LENTEN VESPER SERMON AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Rev. Brian Murphy of the Passionist monastery at Union City, N. J., continued his Lenten sermons Sunday at the evening vesper service at St Patrick's church, giving an able and inspiring address on the infinite mercy of Christ. He described the unfaithfulness of the 12 apostles of Christ in His hour of need and of their subsequent repentance.

Rev. Fr. Murphy appealed to the audience to let the story of St. Peter and His apostles be a lesson to them. Even in spite of the great sin of the apostles, God with His infinite mercy forgave them, he said. Let us admire the great mercy of God. No matter how great our transgressions may be we have a right to hope in God's infinite mercy.

Without God's grace we can do nothing, the preacher declared. Let us not think we can go through life alone without God's assistance. With Christ we can save our souls and without Christ we are going to be bad Do not rely upon your own self-complacence and beware of false pride and boasting in your own power. Pride goeth before a fall. Let us, day by day, seek Christ's help and forgiveness.

The musical portion of the service was rendered by the choir under direction of Henry J. LaFontaine, organist, the singing being received with great pleasure by the congregation, which nearly filled the main auditorium of the church. Mercadante's vespers was given, the soloists being Miss Sadie Driscoll, Walter LaFontaine and Henry J. LaFontaine, who sang in excellent voice. Laudate Dominum was by Mrs. B. Coyle and Veni Creator by Roderick F. Sullivan, both doing excellent work. The Gregorian benediction was used and at the offertory the parish hymn to St. Patrick was sung.

PUTNAM SCOUT MEN HOLD CLOSING HIKE SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 23.—The Putnam scoutleader's training course conducted by Scout Executive Sellman during the past three months had its closing session Saturday afternoon and night at the Putnam Boy Scout camp north of Woodstock. The scoutmasters and assistants assembled at St. Theresa's hall at 10 in the morning from whence they drove to the camp. The camp is situated on a beautiful natural pond and the site has many interesting features.

Upon arrival at the camp the scout men all passed their second class cooking test of one-half pound of steak and two potatoes cooked over an open fire. Each leader made a twist and preparations for the individual dishes for supper were begun. Arthur Pominville and Dona Charron made an Indian Seneca dinner which consists of digging a hole one and a half feet deep, placing hot stones on it, and putting chicken, vegetables, etc., in the hole, covering over with a wet burlap and then with soil until no steam can escape. The dinner was left in the ground for five hours, at the end of which time it was removed and found to be well cooked.

Scoutmaster Edward Donovan made a tasty kabob of onions and cut steak on a stick. Scoutmasters Frank Gleason and Harry Trask from Woodstock made a large kettle of hunters' stew, which was declared to be the best dish cooked, and which was awarded a gold razor prize contributed by one of the scouters. All the men made bread tests on a stick furnished by Scoutmaster Howard Ludlow of Norwich.

After the noon meal the leaders followed a tracking trail made up of the common wood signs. The trail led to the summer cottage of Mr Trask and the treasure consisted of a bag of kisses. Answering a call to help find a lost boy scout, the leaders spent two hours searching the surrounding trails and hills for the scout. After a long search the scout was found. He had strayed about two miles from the camp site.

In the late afternoon the leaders demonstrated to one another different methods of judging of distance; the pencil method, the staff method, triangulation method shadow method, etc. Scout Executive Sellman made a panorama map and also made a flat map, the men choosing the proper signs.

Saturday supper consisted of a feast of hunters' stew, chicken, cocoa, gravy, and other dishes. Following supper a four-hour camp fire was held which waxed into late hours. Stunts, magician tricks, stories of adventure, songs, etc., came in profusion from the leaders so that when the lights were finally put out it required but a few moments for the men to fall asleep. However, the night was cold and the men slept on canvass cots without mattresses so that some of them got very little sleep.

Up early Sunday, breakfast consisted of eggs, coffee, and toasted fried banana sandwiches. The hikers returned early to permit all to attend church and mass. The leaders decided to hold a monthly round table declaring that the hike had been a memorable experience and that they would like to have another one in the late spring or early fall.

Those in attendance on the hike were: Edward Donovan, Lawrence Lucier, Dona Charron, Frank Gleason, Arthur Pominville, Harry Trask, Seconda Rovero, Euclid Phoney, Fred Raccine and John L. Sellman. Other men enrolled in the course who were unable to attend the closing session were Norman Peloquin, Lablie A. Massicotte, C. R. Brodier, John P. Cronin, John Limonize, Frank Murphy, Rudolph Nelson, Ollen Shead and Edwin Spellicy. According to the scout executive, leader certificates will be presented to the men in the near future at the first public function of the scouts.

GAVE CLOSING MESSAGE IN "NEW LIFE" SERIES

The final message in the "new life" series conducted in the past week at the Central Baptist church was delivered at the church service Sunday evening when Rev. C. H. Stull spoke from the text, Let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel, his theme being "Beautifying the Gospel."

Dr. Stull said that he thought the present day world was not so much concerned with creeds and beliefs as it was in the man who knows how to walk uprightly, to show the Christian character that commends Christ to the world. The world is looking to spiritual forces to show by their life what they profess, and we should make people see that ours is a religion of joy, bring out the radiance of the religion of Jesus Christ. We should be like Him and in that way exemplify the message He brings.

How can we make our message most attractive and most effective, the speaker asked. This can be in three way. First, by working together unitedly in one spirit, in one mind. The spirit of unity is absolutely essential. Second, there must be deep and true conviction. We must believe with all our hearts and when we believe like that people are touched and their hearts are moved. The world is moved by the force of conviction. And thirdly we must have fortitude and Christian courage, never failing, never weakening, but ever going on strong in heart, believing that you represent Jesus Christ and let your belief be consistent with your profession.

Rev. Dr. Stull is to go from here to Providence to conduct a series of meetings at the Central Baptist church, where the pastor is Rev. Dr. Clarence M. Gallup, formerly of this city.

"I had a nervous breakdown and could not do the work I have to do around the house. Through one of your booklets I found how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped other women and I went to the drug store and got me six bottles. It has done me good in more ways than one and now I work every day without having to lie down. AMERICAN LEGION BACKS VETERANS' OMNIBUS BILL

The relief of 84,000 disabled veterans is provided in house bill No. 10,381, the new veterans' committee omnibus bill now pending in congress, and its passage should be allowed without further delay, according to National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion, says a statement issued Sunday by R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, A. L., this city.

The statement follows:

"House bill 10,381 has been agreed upon, after much testimony before the veterans' committee of the house of representatives, and approved by the committee and the Legion as the best measure in the interest of the disabled that has been devised, and it has been introduced in the house by the chairman of the committee, Royal C. Johnson.

"This legislation is urgent. It has been carefully considered. It embraces nearly all the major provisions requested by the last national convention of the Legion. It is a splendid piece of constructive legislation, and its passage should not be further delayed. The Legion urged the passage of the hospital construction bill just before Christmas, as a separate piece of legislation, although that was less than half of what was needed. It urges the passage of this legislation as a separate measure upon which all are agreed, and because it is urgent, Congress should let it be passed immediately, because 84,000 of our disabled comrades need the relief it provides in one of its 24 sections, and they need it now.

"That one section alone broadens the presumptive provisions so that any veteran who, prior to Jan. 1, 1925, has had a disability developing at a degree of 10 per cent, or more, shall be presumed to have acquired his disability in the service of the armed forces in the war, or to have suffered aggravation of a disability that existed before that. In addition, the presumption shall be conclusive in cases of tuberculosis, paralysis, paresis, blindness, or in cases of those who are permanently helpless, or permanently bedridden.

"The new bill also denies the comptroller general the power to revise a decision of the director of the veterans' bureau, and this, alone, would speed up a great many urgent cases. It provides that proper consideration be given to lay evidence, and other evidence not of a medical nature, in adjudicating veteran claims, and this liberalizes the law for many more cases. It extends the time when suits may be brought on insurance, to one year after approval of the bill. Our comrades who served under the flag, certainly are deserving of having that flag accompany them on their journey to their last resting place, and this bill provides that. For many of our comrades, a week's delay may mean the loss of their last battle for health. This measure should be enacted, and all delay avoided."

NORWICH GIRLS BATTLE FOR COUNTY COURT TITLE TONIGHT AT Y. M. C. A.

Positively the last basketball games of the season will be played at the local Y tonight when the Norwich Girls will meet the New London Y Girls and the Y Seniors will encounter the Saybrook Town team. Tonight as reported by Manager Leffingwell is benefit night and all proceeds will be used towards giving the girls' team a social time, namely a trip to Hartford where the girls will enjoy a good show and a dinner. A check-up on the advance sale of tickets shows a thorough clean-out and it looks like a banner night.

Each of the girls teams has won a game and tonight's battle will be for the best two out of three and the title of New London county champs will go to the victor. The local girls have had an exceptionally fine season and are to be complimnted upon their good work. The regular lineup will be used with Misses O'Hart, and Ksuzek at forwards, Gregory at center, and Manty and Sibly, guards.

The second game of the double attraction brings together the Norwich Y five and the Saybrook Town team. The locals will use their ten men team tonight with Coach Demarest in the lineup. For a starting lineup Lynch and Brown will play forwards, Harris, center, and Eccleston and Pingree, guards. This lineup, when they're going good, is one of the fastest teams in the state. For a reserve lineup, Yerrington and Leffingwell will be at the forward berths, Ludlow at center, and Barber and Demarest, doing guard duty.

Saybrook comes here with a record of no defeats to its credit so Norwich will endeavor to pin one defeat upon them. Such stars as Fisher, O'Brien, Curran and Coach Frash of the Saybrook high school, are included in their lineup.

The largest crowd of the past season is expected to be on hand and Manager Leffingwell has provided seating accommodations for five hundred besides plenty of standing room. Randy Whaples, state board official, will referee both games with the girl's game starting at 8 p. m.

Let's go everybody so that the girls may have their outing as complete as possible!

(The trout fishing season will open on April 15th—News item.)

The fisherman and his wife are spending a quiet afternoon at home when the man reads the item in the paper.

"Well, Mary, it won't be long now before I'll be out on the old brook. Ough; to get some big 'uns this year."

"Yeah? Well, I hope you'll get something besides a cramp in your back. Last year all you did was to get your boots full of brook-water and a cold in your head."

"Is that so? Didn't I catch that big trout up in Fenton river that was the envy of the whole party? And didn't I come home with a nice mess of fish from Snake Meadow?"

"Oh, yes you had a big fish all right, but it look twice as big to you for certain reasons which it is not proper to mention in this day of prohibition. It's a wonder to me you could catch cold, say nothing of fish."

"Now, Mary, you know if it hadn't been for that medicine I took with me I might have got pneumonia when I fell in that brook. I'll admit it might have had a high alcoholic percentage, but it was medicine. Now where's my fishing tackle, I might as well get it in order?"

"How should I know, I didn't put it away. You know right well that if I touched that tackle and so much as a hook was missing I'd never hear the last of it. Look up in the attic."

"Hey, Mary, come up here, and look at this fishing tackle. Who's been fooling with this tackle, the lines are all knotted up and the top of that new bamboo pole is broken. And look at that reel all rusty and gummed up. Who did it, answer me that."

"Why, I don't know, unless it was Junior, he comes up in the attic once in a while to play. But what's the use of making all this fuss over it, you've got lots of time before the season opens."

"Yeah, and it will take me all that time to unsnarl that line. And it was my best line, too. That silk line that I got when I went up in Maine. Never had a line like it, and now look at it, as full of knots as cheese is full of holes."

"And look at my rubber boots. Look at those toes, all scraped through. Who did that. You don't know? I'll bet that's more of Junior's work. If it is, I'll tan him. Answer me, did Junior do that?"

"I don't know, but I heard him say he wanted to borrow your boots to go sliding down hill in last winter. I don't see how he could have done it. You probably did it yourself and don't remember about it."

"That's it, stand up for the boy against your husband. Just as if I would do a thing like that. I know how to take care of my things. And those boots were so light, I'll never get another pair like them."

"Oh, well, I'll go down stairs and leave you with your sacred fishing tackle. Good bye."

McEWEN APPOINTED COACH AT HOLY CROSS FOOTBALL

WORCESTER, Mass., March 23—(AP)—Captain John J. McEwen, U. S. A., retired, has been appointed head football coach at Holy Cross college, it was announced today by Rev. John M. Fox, S. J., president of the college.

Captain McEwen, a former Army star, has previously been head coach at West Point and Oregon. He succeeds Cleo O'Donnell, who resigned early in January.

Captain McEwen's tenure of office here is an indefinite one. No contract was signed and there was no public announcement of the amount of salary he is to receive.

Captain McEwan plans to begin his new duties at once and will launch an intensive spring training campaign on Wednesday.

Captain McEwan, 37, has long been an outstanding figure in the intercollegiate sports world. Selected by Walter Camp on his All-American teams three times while a Cadet at West Point, he later was brought back to the academy, first as head line coach and later as head coach.

He was appointed to West Point at the conclusion of his second year at the University of Michigan by the late Congressman Lindbergh, father of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh. He played center on the 1913-14-15-16 teams and was Camp's selection for All-American center in 1914, and also the selection for the second All-American team in the other years at the academy.

After graduating from West Point, Lieutenant McEwan was sent to the Mexican border as an officer of infantry where he remained until after the World war. At the age of 25 he was one of the youngest of officers in the United States army to become a major.

He returned to West Point in 1919 as line coach under Major Charles Daley and remained at that post until 1923 when he was made head coach. He was head coach at the University of Oregon from 1926 until the close of the 1929 campaign.

REDS EVEN SERIES BY BLANKING ATHLETICS

MIAMI, Fla., March 23—(AP)—The Reds evened the series with the world's champion Athletics here today, taking the fourth exhibition encounter 1 to 0. Walker scored the Reds' lone tally on a double steal when Schang threw high to second, making Williams' return late to the plate.

Pete Donohue, staging a comeback this season, worked the first three innings for the Reds and held the champions to two hits. Bennie Frey, rookie, and Rube Ehrhardt, veteran, followed on the mound and both were effective, Frey allowing two bingles and Ehrhardt, three.

The Athletics had only one man beyond first base when Dykes banged out a double. Score:

Cincinnati	000 000 010—1	5	0
Philadelphia	000 000 000—0	7	3

Donohue, Frey, Ehrhardt and Gooch, Sukeforth; Walberg, Earnshaw, and Schang.

No Change in Leaders

WATERBURY, March 23—(AP)—Six teams, the Kingpins, High Point, N. C., University College Park, Md.; H. K. Advertising, Washington, D. C., and two Waterbury aggregations, bowled today in the national duckpin bowling congress, but failed to displace any of the leaders.

BENDER FAVORED TO BEAT KOZIOL

When Al Koziol, local battler, enters the ring Friday night against Freddie Bender of Fall River, the local boy will be on the short end of the betting. Many local fans consider that Bender is the most formidable opponent that the Laurel Hill slugger has met in a local ring, and they pick the Fall River boy to give Koziol a neat lacing. They base their claims on the fact that Bender holds a decision over Koziol and that Bender has beaten boys who have beaten Koziol.

Whether Koziol will fall a victim of Bender Friday night at the Shyma all-star show remains to be seen. Koziol and Bender have met twice before, each holding the verdict over the other. And the strange part is that neither time they met was the bout close. In the first meeting Koziol plastered Bender all about the ring and then in the second meeting Bender turned the tables and gave Koziol a beating equally as decisive. Both bouts were crammed with action and the fans got plenty for their money.

That Bender is made the favorite over Koziol is the fact that Bender has beaten Young Lefty of Providence, who has twice decisively beaten Koziol. Young Lefty would probably have been Koziol's opponent next Friday night had not Bender beaten Lefty. But the fact remains that the outcome of the bout cannot be predicted with any degree of certainty. Everyone thought that Joe Machado had Koziol's number, yet the local youngster went out and crashed through to a knockout victory.

At Providence last Friday night Koziol added another knockout to his string when he kayoed Artie Levine in less than a minute in the first round. Many of those who would like to see Koziol beaten claim that Levine was a set-up, but that is something that is always claimed by those who never give a home towner any credit.

In Friday night's bout it can be said that who ever wins the bout will be well worth seeing and that it will be full of action from start to finish.

WINTER SPORTS SEASON IN CITY HAS BEEN OF AVERAGE ACTIVITY

The winter sport season in Norwich, closing tonight with the big double feature basketball affair at the Y gym, has been an average one, all things considered. The introduction of indoor track by the Academy, which saw two meets at the state armory, the formation of a girls basketball team, and the good showing by the Y Seniors for the majority of the time in the state league, were the highlights. In basketball outside of the city but in Eastern Conn. the Shymas and Plainfield Pros were the junior and senior champs.

Coach Murphy of the Academy brought some of the best runners in the East when on Feb. 1, the Holy Cross varsity team appeared in exhibitions. Included among those present were Bernie McCafferty and Jimmie Quinn.

The Wildcats also went to most of the leading meets in this section, including those at Boston, Hartford, New Haven, and New York.

The Seniors, the only senior team in the city limits, started off strong in the state Y league only to falter in mid-season and then return to their good form in the closing weeks. As it was, they managed to land fourth place. The Seniors drew much larger crowds than had been the case in other years, but this was mainly due to the playing of the preliminary by the Girls team. The Seniors did not make any attempt to gain the Eastern Conn. semi-pro title from the Shymas.

The Academy did not sponsor basketball for the first time in three seasons.

The 1930-31 indoor season promises bright things for local fandom. In addition to a new Academy gym, where will play the re-vived Academy five and probably a Red and White girls team, there will be the indoor track and also the Y Seniors expect to do bigger and better things when the snow starts flying again.

spring but was farmed out to Scranton whence he went to Columbus. The Cincinnati Reds' owning Columbus and the Reds being in need of a third catcher, some have seen the possibility of Shefflot moving up a peg. Further interest is added to this story when it is said that the Reds are looking for a young catcher to carry along whom they can develop.

From McAllen, Tex., where Lefty Dugas, the Taftville clouter, is training with Wichita come good reports on the boy whom Norwich fans have always considered a real prospect. Lefty has been putting them over the fence with regularity and to brighten his prospects is the fact that he is one of the few outfielders signed to a contract.

The Riverview club of the state hospital expect to put on one of their strongest clubs this year. An important addition to the infield will be Steffy Cimikowski, former Academy star infielder, who is home from Williams and Mary college for a year. The season will get underway next month. Following the good teams of four and five years ago, the Riverview brand of ball has fallen down somewhat in the last year or so but the prospects are for a much stronger representative this spring and summer.

Scholastic baseball will be getting underway in earnest within the next week or so. Windham high will start Monday while most of the others in Eastern Connecticut have been at it for at least a week or ten days.

CONNIE MACK TO GO ON THE AIR TONIGHT

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—Connie Mack, manager of the Pennant-holding Philadelphia Athletics, will make his radio debut tomorrow night.

He will appear in a programme to be devoted to baseball, and is expected to discuss some of the season's prospects. Together with DeWolfe Hopper, pioneer of the stage who will recite "Casey at the Bat," again, he will be guest of the family party on WEAF and coast to coast NBC chain. The orchestra is to play nine musical "innings" and Graham McNamee will recount former plays and incidents of the national game.

Arrangements have been completed for the broadcast of the spelling bee between congress and the press Saturday night March 29. Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia broadcasting system are to place several microphones in the National Press club auditorium in Washington. Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio is to act as "spelling master." Senators and representatives and Washington newspaper correspondents will compete. There will be 11 spellers on each side.

The Pelicans scored once on four bases on balls.

The Indians reached Willie Leitz, Pelican pitcher, for 8 hits and 7 runs in the first three innings. The score.

Mitchell, Hallahan, Bell and Wilson, Smith, Mancuso; Jonnard, Burwell and Sprinz, Lorber.

BASEBALL BITS

There's going to be an all-Norwich battle every now and then somewhere west of the Mississippi this baseball season. In the Western league Joe Faber is the regular shortstop, holding over from last year, with Omaha and Lefty Dugas is after an outfield berth with the Wichita outfit. Local fans will watch them with interest during the season and especially when the two clubs meet for they are of the few Eastern Connecticut lads in organized ball.

Another boy from this section, though, who is trying to break in is George Shefflot, with the Columbus Senators in the American association. Sheffie, former Bulkeley catcher, finished the season with Ohians in 1929. He had a tryout with the Phillies last

The Braves fell on George Pipgras in the first two innings and batted out five runs. The Yanks got two of them back in the second and tied it up with a triple. Ruth's double in the seventh put the New Yorkers a run ahead only to lose out in the final frame when the Braves bunched hits off McAvoy. The score:

ACADEMY SQUAD GETS DOWN TO WORK THIS WEEK

The third week of Academy baseball practice opens this afternoon at the campus when, with the help of warmer weather, Coach Brigham will get his boys back to work after a rest since Thursday, because of the cold weather. With the first game scheduled a week from Saturday, the squad will be driven at top speed for the remainder of the time in order that the Wildcats may get off on the right foot against the Richmond Radiators.

The battle for positions still goes on at a merry pace. The local mentor is still concentrating on the hitting, and especially of the outfield candidates. The pre-season outlook shows this to be the only possible weakness on the team. The new uniforms will be handed out this week.

BROWNS BEAT BISONS ON TWO SCATTERED HITS

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 23—(AP)—Held to two hits by the Buffalo Internationals the St. Louis Browns, managed to squeeze out a 2 to 1 decision in seven innings here today, when rain halted the festivities. It is understood that a few changes will be made in the personnel of the playing talent, which are intended to strengthen the club.

This is the second team to announce its intention of entering the league this year, the Kaceys having made it known last Sunday that they would put a strong team on the field.

"Spring demand for electrical equipment has developed. Some larger manufacturers report orders substantially ahead of last year's figure to date. Some branches report conditions moderately below last year's average. The export market is reported favorable. Payroll indices this February were six per cent larger than February, 1929.

"January and February leather consumption was sub-normal, with price declines reported. Leather stocks are low but there is much hesitancy in all branches of the industry.

"Newspaper advertising in 173 leading newspapers decreased about eight per cent from February last year.

"Advertising over the radio shows a remarkable increase, March being estimated at 40 per cent over a year ago.

PROMISING ASPECT OF THE BUSINESS SITUATION DEVELOPED LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—The most promising aspect of the business situation again appeared last week in cheapening credit, industrial operations generally continued to lag, and retail and wholesale trade failed to show much vitality, but there was a growing conviction in business circles that the foundation is being firmly laid for steady if slow improvement during coming months.

While no further reduction was made in the New York rediscount rate of 3 1-2 per cent, rates for several monetary accommodations in New York fell to the lowest levels in five years or more. The situation was somewhat accentuated by the release of credit coincident to the quarterly treasury financing, but little doubt was left that a sustained period of reasonable credit has started.

The Bank of England reduced its discount rate by another half of one per cent, bankers' acceptances fell to 3 1-2 per cent, asked, and commercial paper moved as low as 3 3-4 per cent for prime names, although 4 per cent was still formally quoted. An enormous demand for bonds developed, and savings banks were reported once more investing in real estate mortgages.

Steel mill operations continued to decline, reaching 75 per cent of capacity, as compared to close to 100 per cent a year ago. Early reports of new automobile registrations for February, indicated that the number of units sold came close to the level of February of last year. Freight car loadings, as reported for the first week of March, were again unsatisfactory.

Crude oil production gained moderately. The petroleum outlook was generally regarded with considerable optimism, a stiffening of mid-continent crude prices failed to appear, but was still predicted. Copper buying showed slight gains, but large buying by public utilities is looked for over the next few months.

One of the most favorable developments was the stiffening of the commodity markets. Both wheat and cotton showed considerable improvement.

NEW YORK, March 23—(AP)—In spite of lower interest rates and improved credit conditions, business at present is in a waiting attitude, says the March report of the conference board. "Business activity slowed up during February and very little change has been noticeable during the first half of March," the report states. "The reluctance on the part of buyers and borrowers to avail themselves of the easier credit conditions evidently is due in part to the influence which the unemployment situation has upon business psychology as well as upon consumer psychology and purchasing power."

Stocks of rubber in the United Kingdom will attain new record high figures Monday according to advices to the Rubber exchange here which unofficially forecast an increase of 1,100 tons in London and a gain of about 350 tons at Liverpool.

As he mopped his forehead he looked around at the heap of "props" and saw a dummy of old clothes and straw.

POETRY

"Lest, Coming Suddenly"

"Ye know not what hour your Lord doth come."—Matt. 24:42.
"Watch ye therefore . . . Lest, coming suddenly, he find you sleeping."—Mark 13:35, 36.

If Jesus Christ should come today,
Ere fades the sun from earth away,
Would you be found with armor on?
Could you expect His glad "Well done!"

If He should come, my friend, today,
How would you greet Him?— Listen, pray!—
Would you rejoice to see His face?
Or would you hide in deep disgrace?

Some have denied their Lord. Have you?
And faithless some. Have you been true?
His banner have you held on high
Among the crowds that pass you by?

If he should come, what could you bring
To Him, in joyful offering?
Could you bring precious souls, as sheaves?
Or would your hands bear naught but leaves?

We are the branches, He the vine,
And He will look for fruit divine.
"Each branch that beareth not," He saith,
"Is soon cast forth," and withereth.

But if we 'bide in Him alway,
We shall bear fruit, day unto day;
His dear name we shall glorify
And spread His truth through earth and sky.

Christ will return, as saith the Word
Be ready, then, to meet your Lord!
Be earnest, work, and watch, and pray
Lest, suddenly, He come today.

Congress

Congress meets from day to day,
To pull their strings and draw their pay;
And mid the battle's smoke and fogs
To save our country from the dogs.
They organize and start debate,
When someone yells "Investigate";
And then begins the circus show,
And oratory starts to flow.
The truth they always try to hush,
By vigorous use of whitewash brush;
And pull their underhanded tricks,
While some are shouting "politics."
They charge, deny, they slap and slam,
From Muscle Shoals to Boulder Dam;
And then, regardless of expense,
They buy up all their evidence,
And plainly prove that truth will lie,
That drys are wet and wets are dry.
They keep this up from day to day,
And only stop to draw their pay.
So they bribe and buy and sell;
They censure some and some expel.
But all we can do is meekly wait,
And feebly cry "This must be fate!"

—A. H. Stewart, in The Pathfinder.

SPRING FROCK

Not the least interesting of the spring style trends are the new prints which are so very popular.

The skirt fullness is posed in front in unpressed pleats. A peplum gives movement to the hipline, and an attractive neck treatment of two solid color bandings, which is repeated at the wrists, with narrow belt at the normal line, are the featured style points.

SUN REVEALS TIPS ON STYLES MONTH AHEAD

PARIS, March 23—(AP)—Fine weather brings fashionably dressed women to the Paris race courses with the result that the trend of styles as they are actually worn has been determined a month earlier than usual this spring.

Tweed mixtures are easily the most noticeable phase of the new styles.

Smart Parisians are turned out in tweed one piece dresses and short coats, tweed suits and three-quarter coat ensembles.

The favorite hat with such costumes is felt in the beret style or dressmaker hats of the same tweed as the costume. If the hat is tweed the handbag is of the same material. With plain color felt hats shoes and handbags match in leather and design.

Dark blue, particularly blue flecked with white or gray, has made noticeable inroads on the vogue of all black.

Some of the Parisians most distinguished for their taste in dress are wearing skirt and collarless coat ensembles. Frequently the cape-collar of the accompanying blouse forms a scarf which is worn outside the coat.

Black broadcloth or wool crepe coats trimmed with bands of white shaved lamb are the choice of the chic Frenchwoman who wore black trimmed with astrakan for winter. With her spring coat she wears a black straw or felt hat with a jeweled ornament.

COEDS STUDY IN WING OF EX KAISER'S PALACE

BERLIN, March 23—(AP)—War's aftermath has made a coeds' home of the "apothecary's wing" in the palace that once housed the kaiser.

The girls probably would be living elsewhere had not the post-war housing shortage driven German educational authorities to aid young women who wanted to study in Berlin but could find no place to live.

Most of the palace, formerly a regular residence of William II in winter seasons, was converted into a museum in 1921. When the ministry of education sought a place for girl students, however, enough of the "apothekenfluegel" was left unoccupied to make room for a club and dormitory.

Seventy girls live there now, and others make use of its facilities. Although not large, it indicates the German attitude toward women students.

The "apothekenfluegel" is considered the finest extant example of renaissance architecture in Berlin. It is one of the oldest parts of the palace, which dates from 1443 and is intimately bound up with Hohenzollern history.

PARIS IS WEARING BLOUSES OF STRAW

PARIS, March 23—(AP)—Blouses of straw are a spring novelty.

The straw fabric corresponds to that which milliners use for turbans and berets requiring supple light material. Split straw is woven into a cotton mesh backing which prevents the straw from scratching.

Most of the straw-fabric blouses are sleeveless. They are shown with matching handbags and hats.

FUR HANDBAGS SHOWN WITH NEW ENSEMBLES

PARIS, March 23—(AP)—Handbags of shaved fur are shown for spring as accompaniments of coat-dresses with fur trimming.

Shaved lamb and calfskin are the furs. The bags are the envelope type or flat pochettes with metal mountings.

OLD SHIRT-WAIST NOW 'TUCK-IN-BLOUSE'

PARIS, March 23—(AP)— Tuck-in blouse is the up-to-the-minute name of the same piece of wearing apparel that women called a shirt-waist before the war.

JADE OILCLOTH COAT CHIC FOR THE SEA

PARIS, March 23—(AP)—One of the new sea-going yacht and beach coats included in spring style collections is an ankle length sou'wester made of jade green oilcloth.

It accompanies a gray knitted bathing suit.

Women To Beautify Mansion

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 23—(AP)—Okahoma women are to have a part in beautifying the governor's mansion. Gov. W. J. Holloway says that at the request of the Women's Federated Clubs, it has been agreed that the mansion flower beds are to be filled with the finest flowers available which the women themselves will plant.

Reinhardt To Try Opera

BERLIN, March 23—(AP)—Max Reinhardt, German impresario, has chosen the operatic stage as a new field. He will supervise the "mise en scene" of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffmann" at the State Opera Unter den Linden during the Berlin festival season in May.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To garnish pork chops, use halves of apricots, filled alternately with a green cherry and a red one.

Lemons will remain fresh indefinitely if kept in a jar of cold water which is changed daily.

Essence of peppermint applied vigorously with a soft cloth will remove white spots from furniture.

Do not use too much wax when polishing floors; a little goes a long way. Too much wax makes the floor slippery and collects dust.

Use a soft brush, such as is used for varnishing, to brush the top of bread, rolls and pastry with melted butter.

Coffee freed from grounds may be kept hot over boiling water for hours. Coffee reheated while the grounds are still in the pot loses its flavor.

Appetizing is the all-green salad, made of lettuce hearts, with a few stalks of endive, watercress, and three stuffed olives.

Mashed parsnips, molded into small mounds and covered with shredded parsley, make a colorful vegetable and a very good one.

When syrup is coming to a boil add one-third teaspoon cream of tartar to every two cups of sugar used. It will prevent the formation of icing, or turning back to sugar.

Dry some stale bread thoroughly and brown it in the oven, then grind it fine with a food chopper or rolling pin and it will make a good breakfast food if served with milk or cream.

If you wish to serve your guests individual cakes, bake your cake in a loaf. When it is cool, cut into squares, frost it on four sides and decorate the top with walnuts.

WOODEN SPOON

A wooden spoon is better than an iron one for mixing. The latter often scratches the tin or nicks the porcelain of the mixing bowl.

THIN CREAM

To whip thin cream add the white of an egg before you start to beat. If the quantity is large, it may take two whites but this will make whipping a sure success.

SALTED WATER

When putting on water to boil for vegetables, wait until it boils before adding the salt. If added in the beginning the boiling process will take longer.

SUPPER DISH

An excellent luncheon or supper dish is slices of fried eggplant topped by poached eggs and covered with creole sauce. Service in individual casseroles, piping hot.

BAKED BEETS

An extra fine way to cook beets is to bake them on the grate in the oven like potatoes. So cooked they are delicious and none of their food value is lost.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

An economical deodorizer for the sick room can be made out of a pint of vinegar boiled with one quart of myrrh.

Take elder-root and the seed of Jamestown weed, fry it in lard and apply. This will draw any splinter from the flesh.

Eggs given to invalids should be unquestionably fresh. Always cook eggs very lightly, otherwise the albumen is coagulated and toughened, and rendered more difficult to digest.

Thin hands should be massaged with a flattening cream to improve the tissues. Equal parts of lanolin, cocoa butter and almond oil may be used for this purpose. First wash the hands in warm water that the pores may more easily absorb the lotion.

HANDS WON'T CALLOUS

Those who do much sweeping will find that a piece of velvet glued to the part of the broom handle on which the hands rest will prevent blistering of the hands.

DANDRUFF

To remove dandruff you must shampoo the hair frequently enough to keep the scalp clean. Once a week or every ten days is not too often to wash it. Any soap that cleanses the hair well may be used. It should be reduced to liquid form.

FRESH FLOWERS

Add a pinch of soda or a couple of aspirin tablets to the water in which flowers are to be put. Either keeps them fresh longer than plain water.

CANARY CARE

Canaries need appetizers in spring as well as people. Plant a little garden for your bird and then place the cage over it, or put a little green in the cage every day.

FOR SHOES AND STOCKINGS

A painted cabinet which stands fairly high has three shelves for shoes. On top of this is a matching box to hold stockings, gloves and other accessories. Each is painted a soft ivory yellow, with charming old French flower motifs in delicate colors.

SOUTHERN SUPPER

A Southern supper combination that is very good consists of calves' brains, corn fritters and chocolate, served with whipped cream.

TINTED LACES

The vogue for colored table-linens extends to the exquisite Italian embroidered laces and linens, and the famous Deruta work now appears in pale yellow, violets and blues. Long runners and place doilies of these are distinctly smart.

DICTATES OF FASHION

White lapin coats, especially jackets, are another smart note from the southland.

Spring suits that belt achieve diversity by pleating the peplum, cutting it circular or scalloping it.

Practical for work is a brown figured damask crepe frock with a pleated ruffle for its neck finish and turned back pleated ruffles for cuffs.

For early spring, a favorite attire will be the feminine tailored frock, with fabric banding to simulate a bolero and to outline panels in the skirt.

The correct length for daytime, generally accepted, is three inches below the knee—for more formal afternoon, four inches below the knee—and for evening, any length, with even hems best in fashion.

The ribbon beret is one of spring's most sprightly contributions to fashion. A brown one is made of two-inch grosgrain ribbon, hand fastened, in a square pattern that is very distinctive.

SHORT-LONG

Very long gowns and very short wraps are the order where formal social affairs are held. There are fewer evening ensembles.

RED-WHITE-BLUE

A gorgeous brocaded evening slipper is ultra-modern and patriotic, its tip being scarlet, its saddle white, its shank checked blue and white. The heel is gold as is the trim.

BELTED JACKETS

Four out of five sports suits in tweed have some kind of a belted jacket. Some of the featherweight tweeds make much of unusual pockets, yokes and cuffs, too.

HORIZONTAL STRIPES

Stripes on the horizontal are chic right now. Chanel makes a sports cape suit of brown beige with apple green blouse.

JUST ONE BOYISH FASHION REMAINS

You may have wondered whether there would be any remnant of the slim boyish fashions of yesterday that might be allowed to remain in this feminine style era. A suspender dress with matching jacket answers this question. True, the frock itself with its flaring skirt and high waistline is very feminine, but there are the suspenders attached to the bodice to remind of the days of the boyish bob and straight lines. The frock is of printed pique with blouse of white batiste. The matching jacket closes with one button.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If colors in material tend to run, launder in cold water and wash and dry rapidly.

Sponging with ammonia and pressing will often remove the shine from woolen clothes.

Sheets and pillow cases will last much longer and wear more evenly if, as they are returned from the laundry, they are placed at the bottom of the pile and those on top are used.

When putting clothes on which there are buttons through a wringer, fold the buttons inside of the garment and hold it flat as you turn the wringer, thus preventing the breaking or pulling off of buttons.

To launder scrim curtains, fold them double lengthwise, having top and bottom even. Press double, being careful not to press too heavily what will be the center when opened. If any crease appears in the center it can easily be pressed out after opening up the curtains.

SHOE CARE

No leather shoe should be worn without being dressed properly with cream beforehand. This protects that pristine beauty and saves them from discoloration and scuffing.

EARLY GARDENING

Long before it is time to plant, it is a good idea to plot out the kind of garden you want next year, study catalogs of flowers and choose which ones to order.

AIRING PILLOWS

Don't sun feather pillows as the heat brings out the oil of the feathers. But hang them on the line on a windy day so the air can penetrate.

LIKE NEW

If your window shades look dirty and worn on the bottom, reverse them by taking each off its roller, and turning it upside down, stitching the top to make a hem for the bottom and tacking the erstwhile bottom to the top.

PUT TO MANY USES

Common laundry soap will make bureau drawers and windows, inclined to stick, work smoothly. Rubbed on a nail, it keeps the wood through which the nail is driven from splitting. Mixed with stove blacking, it lessens the labor of applying and improves results, and if rubbed under and around the finger nails before working with the blacking, the nails are easily cleaned.

SHADES OF ECRU

Cold tea is the best medium for getting your curtains up to the desired shade of ecru. Strain the tea and add it gradually to the starch water until the correct shade is reached. Stir well to remove any streakiness. Now immerse the washed curtains, leave for twenty minutes or so, lifting and stirring them occasionally. Squeeze them out, but do not twist them, and hang them fairly wet to dry. You will find your curtains will dry a pretty ecru tint that will last through many washings.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The present day feminine shopper's wants are divided into 1,500 classes of purchases.

The government of Czecho-Slovakia intends to make women eligible for the office of judge.

According to the Fascist theory in Italy, women are meant to be wives and mothers and their place is in the home. There is no room for women in the government of the country.

When asked as to what she attributed her long life, Mrs. Louise Wheeler, who recently celebrated her one hundred and third birthday in Freehold, N. J., replied, "To minding my own business."

Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, famous French tennis star, is working as a saleswoman in a dressmaking establishment in Paris. She is believed to be the highest paid saleswoman in the Parisian shops.

The hobby of Mrs. Floyd Davis, of Webster Groves, Mo., is remembering birthdays, and she not only remembers these birthdays but sends each person who is listed in her birthday book a card on the anniversary. At the present time she has a list of 1,000 birthdays.

RED LACQUER STANDS

They are not more than 10 inches across and fold into a compact space, but they suggest any number of different uses and will at the same time contribute a decorative touch of color, with the motifs of black and gold on a red background.

CLEANING BILLS

You can cut your cleaning bill by going over the cuffs and collars of frocks and coats every few days with a bath towel dipped in reliable fluid. These are the tell-tale places that need cleaning most often.

RECIPES

Casserole of Lima Beans: Soak one cupful of dried lima beans overnight and then parboil them in water with a little baking soda added. Drain off the water and turn the beans into a casserole. Add one-fourth cupful of ham or bacon fat, two cupfuls of milk, two teaspoonfuls of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper. Cover the dish and bake in a moderate oven until the beans are soft. Serve hot from the casserole.

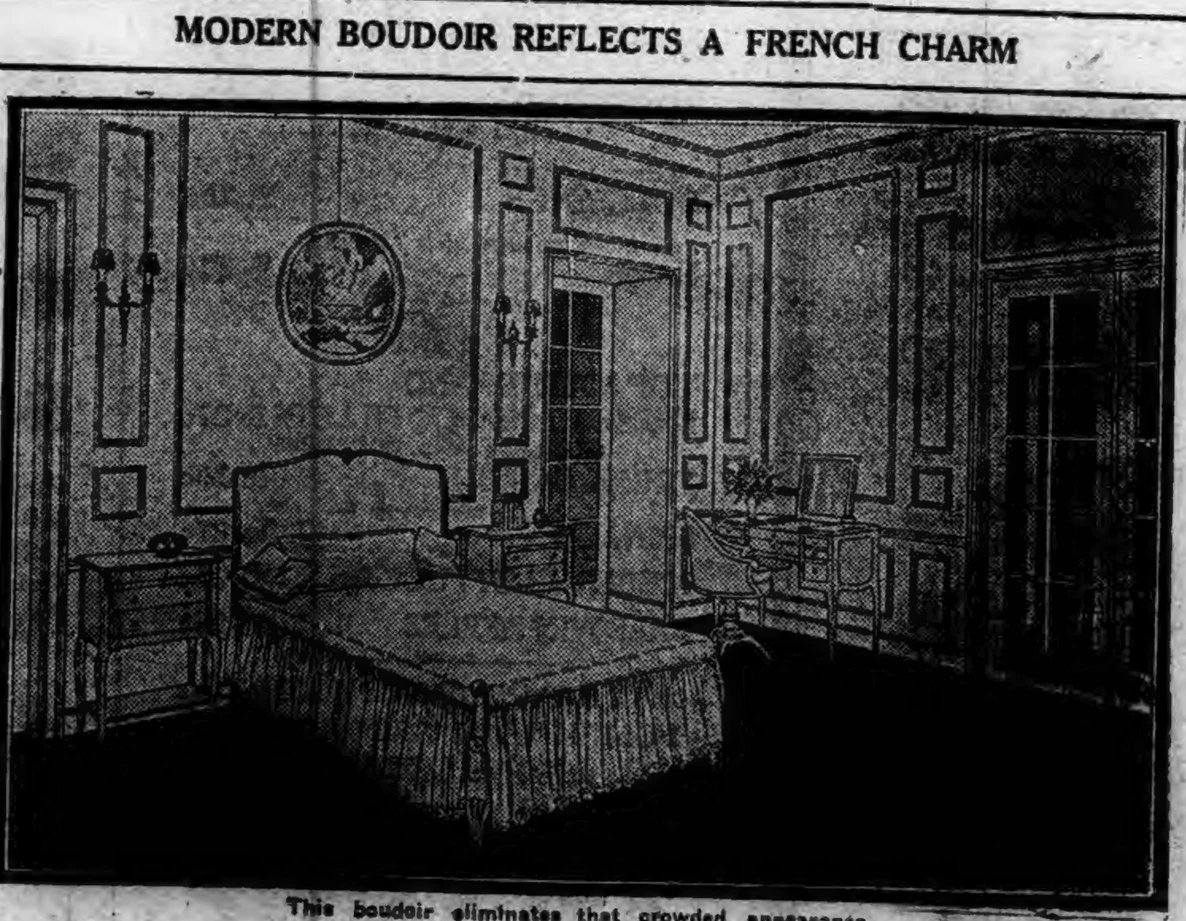
Coffee Custard: Put three gills of water in a coffee pot, and when it boils add two ounces of coffee, stir it, let it boil up four or five times, let settle, then pour it off clear into a saucepan with half a pint of milk and a little sugar, let boil away to one-third the amount, and when cool add five yolks of eggs beaten with a pinch of flour and half a pint of cream. Put over the fire and stir one way until it thickens.

Brown Nut Bread: Four tablespoons melted shortening, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 2-3 cup molasses, 1 1-2 cups flour, 1 1-2 cups graham flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup chopped nut meats.

Beat eggs and sugar together for 5 minutes. Then add molasses, soda mixed with milk, salt, flours, raisins, and nuts. Mix and turn into greased and floured cake tin and bake in slow oven one and a quarter hours.

Sufficient for one medium sized loaf.

MODERN BOUDOIR REFLECTS A FRENCH CHARM



This boudoir eliminates that crowded appearance

By ELSIE DREW KENNEDY

If you are fastidious of your boudoir, you will like this modern adaptation of a Louis XV room. The modern woman who has few hours for leisure, too, will welcome its restful charm.

The furniture of this interior offers luxurious comfort. It is scaled to fit modern rooms and combines several necessary furniture pieces, two factors which create the spaciousness which is a first essential for a charming interior.

The danger of too much in the room is eliminated in this interior in the combination of dressing table and desk, boudoir and desk chair, two pieces of furniture which serve for four. The dressing table and desk arrangement provide facilities for spending an additional hour in this lovely boudoir catching up with correspondence or settling household accounts.

The low plain headboard of the bed, which you may decorate yourself, and the absence of a footboard, give a dainty character to the bed. Dressed in organdy for summer months, or celanese taffeta for winter, the bed contributes considerable to the boudoir's beauty.

Leisure hours are sure to be restful in this altogether feminine room. It is a room in pastels, if one follows the standard of Louis XV interiors, color tones ever restful and soothing to tired nerves.

More and more, the smart world is carpeting its floors to the wall. As the illustration suggests, it creates a beautiful floor, which stays unobstrusively in its place and gives a feeling of added space.

Color, correctly handled, is the keynote to the success of this room.

Fairy Tales

It is said that fairy tales and legends are the day dreams of peoples. Magic, chance of genius do for our heroes and heroines what we wish they would do for us.

A striking circumstance is the similarity of these imaginative products in different countries. Our own Cinderella, as Dr. F. Riklin has pointed out, is found in essentially the same form in many lands.

The Icelandic missy hears of Helga, who had no stepmother but a real mother who treated her like a stepchild. Her two sisters got the best of everything. But when the fairy prince came along, at first disguised as a giant, the tables turned and as his bride Helga went forth to happiness and riches.

Marfuschka, the little Russian stepdaughter, is rescued naturally enough, by frost. She had to do all the drudgery and act as servant to two haughty stepsisters.

Finally, she was sent out by the cruel stepmother to be left alone through the wintry night in the Russian wood. But she didn't perish from cold, for Father Frost wrapped her in furs and gave her presents besides because she was a good meek little girl.

When the two sisters were left in the wood in the hope that they, too, would receive presents, Frost nipped them because they were selfish. Thereafter Marfuschka was the pet of the household and soon married a wonderful man.

Japanese children apparently are not bothered by stepmothers but in their strict discipline they dream of a nice friendly grownup. O'Toyo, after the death of her husband and small son, turned to little things—tiny dishes, knives, forks, spoons—and to little children. A wee temple was set up for her and all day long she played with children as if she were a child herself.

Such stories are kept alive because they fill a need.

The fairy tales of the grownups are the lives of national heroes of the present.

MARRIAGE BUSINESS POOR, DECLARES WOMAN JUSTICE

NEW BERN, N. C., March 23—(AP)—This marriage business isn't what it used to be, says Pauline Barrington of New Bern, who, unmarried herself, has tide the knot for 150 couples in the last three and a half years.

"Couples change their minds in five days," she says.

Hoovers Seldom Dine Alone, But Formal Affairs Are Rare

MRS. HERBERT HOOVER

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, at the end of her first year as First Lady of the Land, has become noted for informal entertaining.

Never have there been so many small groups bidden to the white house.

There has been scarcely a day that the Hoovers have dined alone. There are usually guests for either luncheon or dinner. Informal Sunday night suppers with small groups of congenial friends have been a part of their hospitality also.

Mrs. Hoover has a reputation for cordially and for doing things in a "different" way. She puts a personal touch into her informal entertaining. She delights women guests by giving them flowers from the white house tables.

She gives special attention to musicians and others who have entertained her, sending notes of appreciation and having them personally presented.

Last Christmas Allan Hoover suddenly decided he wanted to give a party. Mrs. Hoover promptly arranged it for the next night. Precedent gives way to expediency in the Hoovers' social program.

Thus delighted debs received telephone invitations to the white house—something that rarely occurs.

But formal white house entertainments have suffered an eclipse.

The President and Mrs. Hoover had originally planned more formal state receptions than have marked previous white house social calendars, but events have prevented carrying out the program.

FORESEES GREAT LIBRARY ON CHILDREN'S PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON, March 23—(AP)—A national library of complete data on everything pertaining to the health and welfare of children will probably result from the white house conference on child health and protection which President Hoover is sponsoring.

As the committees get their programs under way more and more valuable information is being accumulated from experts in every line of knowledge affecting children.

Dr. F. J. Kelly of Moscow, Idaho, chairman of the education and training section of the conference, foresees the possibility of such a library which would be available to the whole nation.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

HANDICAPPED

We think of handicapped children as those who are physically crippled or mentally defective.

We forget that much larger group of children who are as truly, if less obviously, handicapped.

Julie, for instance, is an extremely healthy and intelligent little girl. When she was a little baby her father left her mother with herself and a brother two years older to take care of. All her short life Julie has been subjected to the reverberations of her mother's personal tragedy.

She has been present while her mother raged against her fate and burst into paroxysms of futile tears. She has heard her mother agonize over the difficulty of earning their food and clothes and shelter. She has seen her older brother obviously preferred. She has been asked time and again why she can't be good like Joe.

Julie is carrying burdens not her own and it is no wonder that she is a difficult, unhappy child.

Parents who have not learned to play with good sportsmanship the hand that life has realt them, parents who are themselves still childish, petulant and undisciplined, handicap their children in their chances for rounded growth and development.

A child who is lame or endowed with something less than a good mind has, if his parents are wise and self disciplined, a better chance to become an adequate, balanced human being than one who is made to suffer directly and indirectly for their emotional immaturity.

COMMERCIAL POPPY SELLING CONDEMNED BY LEGION

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 21—The meeting of the American Legion Fifth Division was held in Rioux hall, Thursday evening. The auxiliaries session was held in Masonic hall and was conducted by Mrs. Thomas P. Sears, of Taftville, the secretary being Mrs. Grace McNally, of Groton, and the treasurer, Mrs. Charlotte Denison, of Norwich. Special attention was called to the matter of ordering poppies only that are made by ex-service men in hospitals. They derive the benefit and the funds from the sale of these are used to aid service men and their families. It is absolutely against the American Legion rules to purchase commercial poppies to sell. The roll of the members present was responded to from Norwich by 9; New London, 2; Jewett City 10; Baltic, 0; Groton, 1; Noank, 0; Taftville, 5; Colchester, 0; Lyme, 0; Mystic, 0; North Stonington, 0; Montville, 0. The roll call for the men showed: Norwich, 8; New London, 3; Jewett City, 19; Baltic, 10; Groton, 0; Noank, 4; Taftville, 3; Colchester, 0; Lyme, 0; Mystic, 1; Stonington, 2; Montville, 4.

A lunch of sandwiches, pickles, cream doughnuts and coffee was served by the auxiliary under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Gray, the president. A very pleasant feature was the surprise given Dr. G. H. Jennings, the organizer and first commander of the local post and its most beloved member. The doctor celebrated his eightieth birthday Thursday and was presented a large, beautifully decorated birthday cake, as a remembrance from the local auxiliary. It bore twenty-one lighted candles, symbolical of the doctor's youthful spirit. Dancing followed, for which Morey's orchestra played. This feature was made more colorful by the vari-lined streamers used during the dances. The post commander, W. H. Payne, assisted by George Rochleau, John Davis and Edgar Knox arranged a delightful evening.

CONNECTICUT CROPS ON INCREASE IN PAST YEAR

Connecticut farm crops, exclusive of vegetables, milk and livestock products, rang up a cash value of $38,218,000, according to a summary of the Connecticut crop and livestock review issued by the state department of agriculture. This publication will be ready for distribution in about a week and shows that 1929 values exceeded those of the previous year by $3,457,000 or about 11 per cent, which is practically the same as the five-year average for 1923-1927. Shade grown tobacco in areas not affected by hail showed the heaviest yields ever recorded.

There was a slight reduction in the crop acreage harvested from that of 1928 and the average for the past five years. The reduction is due largely to the abandonment of tobacco acreage as a result of the severe August hail storm.

Farm prices on Dec. 1 averaged slightly higher for nearly all commodities than a year ago. Apple prices, although below the five-year average, were higher than in 1928 and potatoes were worth twice as much. The price of tobacco averaged for all varieties was about one-third higher than in 1928. Milk production showed an increase of 7,980,000 pounds over the previous year. The average farm price of milk increased seven cents per hundred pounds which brought the total value of this product up to $22,963,556 for the year.

The 1929 growing season was first too wet and then too dry for maximum crop growth.

Vegetable growers for the first time will find information in the crop review of direct interest to them. Crop statistics are given on the leading commodities for the past ten years from the principal competing areas in asparagus, cabbage and lettuce.

Weather data for Connecticut during the 1929 crop season compared with normal is included in the bulletin as well as livestock and crop statistics by counties. The average temperature and rainfall is based on records received for 140 years at New Haven, 42 years at Cream Hill in the town of Cornwall, 36 years at Storrs, and 30 years at Hartford.

CONDUCTED SERVICE AT SHELTERING ARMS

Rev. Edward W. Gantt, pastor of McKinley avenue A. M. E. Zion church, with the choir, had charge of the service at Sheltering Arms Sunday afternoon. He spoke from the text from Matthew 17:8, "And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only."

In part he spoke as follows: "Jesus only, is presented in this lesson, because He has that great power to transform. He touches the heart—it matters not how sinful it may be, and turns it into one of righteousness and purity. He touches the weary soul, and no matter how badly it is broken in spirit, that soul "lives and moves and has its being.'

"Think of poor Russia trying to do away with the Christian religion, with Jesus, and the church of God! Think of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism trying to teach that there is no God! People are calling this new thought. It is not any new thought at all. It is only old thoughts modernized. Don't you remember what Voltaire, the great atheist, said long years ago, 'I have gone through the books of the Bible like the woodsman goes through the forest, and have cut them down like the great trees are cut down, now let it grow.' Poor Voltaire! And poor everybody else who thinks that he can undermine the Bible and the religion of Jesus Christ. The church shall not be destroyed in Russia, or in any country, because 'Jesus only is its great head.'"

The choir sang a fine selection of Negro spirituals.

WICKERSHAM OPTIMISTIC OF DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

Chairman of Law Enforcement Commission Reports "Steady Improvement" In Dry Enforcement—Asserts That No One Can Say Whether the Act Can Or Cannot Be Enforced Until It Has Been Given a Trial Under the Justice Department — Certain That the Law "Can Be Measurably Enforced, Although Human Appetite Is Widespread" — Says Taste For Beer Is Diminishing—People Want Something Intoxicating.

WASHINGTON, March 24—(AP)—Expressing the opinion that prohibition "can be measureably enforced, although human appetite is widespread," Chairman Wickersham of the law enforcement commission has informed the senate that no one can say whether the act can be or cannot be effective until it has been given a trial under the justice department.

A comprehensive report of the eight months' study of prohibition by Chairman Wickersham was disclosed today in the publication of his recent testimony before an executive meeting of the senate judiciary committee. The house bill transferring prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the justice department is before the committee.

He advocated a softening of the terms of the Jones act which was passed last year by congress increasing the penalties for dry law violators. He said, however, that federal officials have used "discretion" in administering penalties under this act.

The chairman reported "steady improvement" in dry enforcement; praised the dry administrators, denied that political influence was filling the service with inefficient and corrupt officials and ascribed the leaks from industrial alcohol as the most difficult source of liquor to contend with.

"I think if the attorney general has a free hand as he should have," he contended, "in re-organising the prohibition bureau, you have as good assurance of effective conduct of the enforcement agencies as could well be had, provided his personnel is sufficiently compensated and are put on a proper basis. I think until that is done no one can say absolutely whether the law can be or cannot be enforced."

As for the Jones law, Wickersham in asking for its modification, said:

"I do not think you ever can enforce laws more effectively by putting extreme penalties on minor violations."

"The taste for beer," Wickersham reported, "seems to be greatly diminishing and the people who want to drink at all want a strong drink, something more intoxicating."

Wickersham was before the senate committee on the resolution of Senator Norris proposing a senate inquiry into dry enforcement. The committee took no action on the resolution today. It invited Attorney General Mitchell to appear before it next Monday.

Giving a picture of prohibition conditions, the commission chairman told of his interviews with the dry law administrators and said he would question the integrity of only one of them.

He told of the importation of whiskey from British and French possessions off the Atlantic coast by a number of fast ships equipped with tanks with a delivery hose.

"They make a connection, probably by radio, with some point on the coast," he said, "run in and discharge their cargoes into tank wagons in a very brief space of time and are off. A great deal is brought in that way. How much nobody knows."

He cited that exportations from Canada to these islands along the Atlantic coast had increased last year over 1926 by more than 900,000 imperial gallons to a total of 1,259,667 for the year ending March, 1929. He expressed the belief that "in all probability that increase largely came into the United States through some of the ports along the Atlantic coast or the gulf."

He estimated that of the 100,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol, manufactured and sold last year, five or six million gallons was diverted into the bootleg trade. He advocated some system of forcing the permittees of industrial alcohol to make a report of what is done with the product.

CONTEST OVER CLEARANCES OF LIQUOR FROM CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., March 24—(AP)—Premier MacKenzie King's bill to prohibit liquor clearances to the United States met with opposition today when it came up for discussion before the committee of the whole in the house of commons.

C. H. Cahan, a conservative, of St. Lawrence, challenged the constitutionality aspects of the proposed measure and hinted that the United States had brought great pressure to bear on the prime minister to prohibit this exportation.

Premier King interrupted:

"None whatever."

Continuing, Mr. Cahan declared he had been told by a "very high official of the United States" that unless Canada banned such export the United States would place an armed body of 10,000 men on the Canadian border.

Again the prime minister interrupted, declaring that no pressure has been brought to bear on the government. Mr. Cahan accepted his statement but declared that instead of legislative enactment on the liquor question, the treaty drawn with the United States in 1924 should be amended slightly.

This treaty recognized the right of Canada to distill liquor and ship it into the United States provided it was done openly, Mr. Cahan said, but the prime minister "has had a quick change of heart with respect to the 'moral obliquity' of distillers and brewers."

Enactment of legislation prohibiting clearance of any ship with liquor aboard for the United States, he continued, would force inspectors at Canadian ports to "inspect ships from stem to stern" and would add the danger of Canadian ships suspected of having liquor on board "being treated by the United States Coast Guard with a ruthlessnes not yet attained."

Canada would be compelled to place from five to ten thousand men on the frontier and along the sea coast, he said, "and this would be a burden, responsibility and expense which this country has not the right to assume."

2 Men And a Woman Killed In Plane Crash

Actor Wallace Beery's Biplane Fell In Flames Near Los Angeles — Actor Was Not In Ship.

LOS ANGELES, March 24.—(AP) — Three persons were killed today in the crash of a cabin biplane owned by Wallace Beery. The motion picture actor was not aboard when the ship went into a tailspin at 500 feet, nosed into a field near Alhambra, Los Angeles suburb, with terrific impact and burst into flames.

The victims were George Maves, pilot, his wife, Mrs. Cynthia Maves, and Lynn H. Hayes, 28, pilot and friend of the Maves. Maves was the personal pilot of Beery.

Taking off from Burbank airport, the trim blue bodies, orange winged craft climbed as it flew southward over San Gabriel valley.

A sputtering motor caused the plane to lose altitude. From two airports it was seen that the craft was in trouble over Pasadena.

Scores of motorists on the valley boulevard, one of the main highways south from Los Angeles, witnessed the biplane in trouble. Suddenly the nose pointed downward. The ship was up only 500 feet. A swirling tailspin caused the craft to crash a short distance from the highway.

Motorists rushed to the scene, but were driven back by the fire. Three bodies were seen behind the wall of flames. Before officers arrived the plane was destroyed. It was more than an hour before the victims were identified.

Hayes who resides at Westwood, near Los Angeles, was the father of two children. The Maves left no family.

PROPOSAL TO ADJOURN THE NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, March 25.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—The Daily Mail reports this morning that a proposal to adjourn the naval conference for six months, so that France and Italy might have an opportunity to adjust their differences over parity, was laid before the delegates yesterday.

The Mail adds that meanwhile there would be an understanding that neither France nor Italy would increase its building program.

The proposal was said to have emanated from the British delegates, who suggested that the adjournment follow the conclusion of a three-power pact by Great Britain, the United States, and Japan.

The Mail understands that this proposal was favorably received by the United States and Italy, and that it will now be considered by the French.

The Times also reports a similar proposal, but ascribes it to Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy.

TRACING THE MACHINE GUN THAT KILLED FRANKIE DUNN

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—The machine gun that killed Frankie Dunn, multi-millionaire retired Jersey beer runner, was traced back today to a New York policeman, who was alleged to have bought it for a rum row ice dealer to mount on his motorboat.

The policeman, Edward Deban, was suspended and held for trial on charges of neglect of duty and making a false statement.

Assistant Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney announced that Deban had confessed that in 1924 he obtained a machine gun for a man named Coleman, which the latter wanted for a boat he used in serving ice to rum-running ships. Mulrooney said Coleman passed it on to another man—whose name was not read—three years later.

STEADY REDUCTION IN BRITISH MILITARY FORCES

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)—In introducing the army estimates of pounds sterling 606,000 in the house of commons today, Tom Shaw, minister of war, drew attention to steady reduction in the British military forces.

He said the plan was for progressive reduction of military strength to 148,900, but said at the same time that Great Britain was unable to engage in purely unilateral reduction and must consider her situation with regard to the courses of other nations. It was not the British government's intention to make another cut without an international agreement.

New German Liner Nearing Time Record

The Europa Was Averaging Better Than 28 Knots An Hour Yesterday—Due This Morning.

NE[illegible], March 24. — (AP) — Plo[illegible] through a comparatively m[illegible] but against headwinds, the [illegible]rth German Lloyd liner Europa was averaging a speed of better than 28 knots today as she dashed [illegible] the final 519 miles of her maiden voyage across the Atlantic.

The Europa is expected to reach Ambrose lightship, the American finish mark of the Atlantic speed channel, around six a. m., (E. S. T.) tomorrow. If the giant vessel passes Ambrose before 5:54 o'clock, she will have set a new record for the crossing from Cherbourg breakwater.

When the Bremen, the Europa's sister ship, made her maiden voyage last July, she set a new mark of 4 days, 17 hours and 42 minutes for the run. To equal this record the Europa must reach the lightship by 6:12 a. m., tomorrow.

The Bremen later lowered her record by 18 minutes to 4 days, 17 hours and 24 minutes. The Europa was four days out from Cherbourg breakwater at 12:30 p. m., (E. S. T.) today.

For the fourth full day's run, ending at noon today, the Europa made 704 miles, an average speed of 28.16 knots. She was then 519 miles from Ambrose light.

BREAKING OF RECORD BY EUROPA ALMOST ASSURED

S. S. EUROPA, March 24—(AP)—Sliding into the home stretch of her maiden run from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose channel lightship, the North German Lloyd liner Europa, steamed past Nantucket light vessel at 11:20 p. m., ship's time today.

The officers felt that only unforeseen conditions can prevent her from setting a new record for the Atlantic crossing from east to west.

WAGE TROUBLE IN THE TEXTILE TRADE IN ENGLAND

BRADFORD, England, March 24.—(AP)—With employers and operatives in the British woolen and textile trade in complete disagreement over proposals for lower wages, a conference of the Northern Counties Wool and Textile Industrial council today ended in a complete breakdown of negotiations.

Workers' representatives said that the trade unions had passed resolutions that the employers' proposals should be rejected, and that the employers should be informed their proposals had been turned down by every trade union that had balloted its members.

The aggregate vote against the employers' proposals was 72.1 per cent., and the aggregate vote in favor of the wage reductions was 21.2 per cent. The employers represented on the industrial council received the resolution with regret and the meeting ended.

Lord MacMillan, royal commissioner appointed to investigate the woolen and textile trades, earlier this month submitted recommendations that amounted to a reduction of about nine per cent. in wages. He declared the industry was in a condition of dangerous depression and some sacrifice in wages was necessary.

TO DEFY ORDERS OF THE FED. RADIO COMMISSION

WASHINGTON, March 24. — (AP) — With a sovereign state challenging for the first time the authority of the federal government to say who shall operate a radio station, the long distance quarrel between Governor Green of Michigan and the federal radio commission was renewed today both here and in Lansing.

The commission touched it off with an announcement that it had asked the department of justice to instruct its agents in Michigan to arrest anyone who started work on the state police radio station, which Governor Green had said would be built without a permit from the commission.

This brought an immediate reply from the governor, who declared that "regardless of threats of arrest the state will proceed with construction of the station."

"The legislature has stipulated that a station be established and appropriated funds for its construction," he said. "We expect to carry out the mandate of the legislature."

GIRL CONFESSED KILLING MOTHER WITH HAND-AXE

NORTH BAY, Ont., March 24.—(AP)—The 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. W. F. Foster, slain early today, told a coroner's jury this afternoon that she had killed her mother with a hand-axe because the mother had objected to her keeping company with the boy she loved.

"There is one fellow my mother was trying to keep from keeping company with me," she said, "saying I was too young to go with a fellow, and I killed her. I had said there was no harm in going with this boy, and this is how my mother came to her death.

"I did not know what I was doing. I called mother into the fruit room and I knew what I was going to do then. I had the axe in my hand and when she came in I struck her on the head, and then I struck her again and she fell."

SENATE PASSED TARIFF BILL BY VOTE OF 53 TO 31

Contains Export Debenture Plan of Assisting the Farmer and a Substitute For the Present Flexible Tariff, Both of Which Are Expected to Be Strongly Contested In Conference—1,253 Amendments Have Been Made to the Bill As Passed By the House—Measure Now Goes to House and Then to Conference.

WASHINGTON, March 24.— (AP) — The Hawley Smoot tariff bill was passed by the senate late today by a vote of 53 to 31 and now goes to conference with the house for adjustment of hundreds of differences between the two congressional branches.

The measure, as it won the senate's final approval after an eleventh hour arraignment from half a dozen democrats and republican independents, carried a total of 1,253 amendments to the house text approved at the other end of the capital last May 28. It had been before the senate since September 4.

A general revision upward of farm duties, including that on sugar, and scores of increases and reductions in the industrial rate groups were provided in the complex document. It received the support on the final roll call of 46 republicans and 7 democrats. Twenty-six democrats and five republicans voted against it.

House leaders announced shortly after the vote, which ended at 4:50 p. m. that the bill would not be brought up in that branch for the routine procedure of sending it to conference until next Monday. This respite, they said, was to allow the 435 house members to study the completely re-written bill.

Shortly after the senate session opened, a motion by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, to return the bill to the finance committee with instructions to limit the revision to agriculture rates was rejected 70 to 9. Six democrats, Blease and Smith, South Carolina; Caraway, Arkansas; Thomas, and Wheeler and Walsh, Montana, and three republicans, McMaster, South Dakota; Nye, North Dakota, and Pine, Oklahoma, voted for re-commital.

The export debenture plan of assisting the farmer and the Simmons-Norris substitute for the existing flexible tariff are expected to prove the biggest stumbling blocks to an agreement in conference on the widely varying measures.

Both were placed in the bill by the coalition of democrats and republican independents over the expressed opposition of President Hoover.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the finance committee, obtained pledges today from Senators Smoot, Utah; Watson, Indiana, and Shortridge, California, the three republicans to represent the senate on the conference committee, that they would not agree to elimination of these provisions without first seeking instructions from the senate.

Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the independents, explained that his vote for the bill in its present form was not to be taken as an indication of what he would do when the conference report is put to a vote.

He said the debenture, the substitute restoring to congress the present executive power to make emergency changes in tariffs, and the Norris anti-monopoly provision were vital parts of the bill and should not be compromised.

Senator Lafollette, of Wisconsin, another independent leader, assailed the measure as the "worst tariff bill in the nation's history" and as one that "should be known as Grundy's billion dollar tariff bill."

Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, asserted the bill was "full of impediments to industry," and "if President Hoover listens to the voice of industry he will veto it."

Terming it a "fraud and a breach of every campaign pledge made by the republican party in 1928," Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, said any senator who expected to see the debenture and the provision for repeal of presidential power to change duties enacted into law was "indulging in a very sanguine hope."

"Over in the white house," he said, "sits an executive who is determined that neither of these provisions be in the bill when it is reported from conference."

VIENNA, March 24.—(AP)—Dr. Ernest Watzel, prominent chemist and inventor of Cleveland who disappeared near Pottstown, Pa., on Nov. 7, 1929, was found dead this afternoon in his hotel room here. Josefa Kropej, also of Cleveland, was discovered dead with him. The authorities said it was a case of double suicide and believe that financial difficulties were the reason.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 24.—(AP)—Police believed tonight that Josefa Kropej of Cleveland, who was found dead in a Vienna hotel with Dr. Ernest Watzel, Cleveland chemist, may be Mrs. Mary McGranahan of Cleveland, who disappeared shortly after Watzel's automobile was found at Pottstown, Pa., last Nov. 7.

Nothing has been heard from her since she disappeared, and police believe Mrs. McGranahan might have gone to Vienna with the chemist.

FOR FEDERAL REGULATION OF INTERSTATE BUS TRAFFIC

WASHINGTON, March 24.— (AP) — The first act by congress to place interstate motor bus traffic under government regulation came today with passage by the house of the Parker bill, to give the interstate commerce commision jurisdiction over the motor carriers.

The final vote was 215 to 118, after a motion to send the measure back to the interstate commerce committee for amendment was rejected by 236 to 104. It now goes to the senate.

In addition to the regulatory powers over rates and schedules, the federal commission, with the aid of joint boards composed of representatives of states involved, would be required to pass on applications for certificates of necessity and public convenience, which the bus lines would be called upon to secure. The bus operators also would be compelled to carry surety bonds for the protection of the traveling public.

CURSE OF PHARAOHS DEFIED BY BELGIAN KING AND QUEEN

LUXOR, Egypt, March 24—(AP)—The king and queen of the Belgians today defied the reputed curse of the pharaohs.

With Howard Carter, excavator of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth visited the tomb in the Valley of the Kings and neither indicated any bad luck was expected. Thereafter the king walked nearly two miles from his yacht into Karnak. He will go to Cairo, Wednesday.

The alleged curse of the pharaohs is a popular superstition in England where many people believe that anyone who touches the tomb of an ancient Egyptian ruler will suffer a quick or violent death.

HUSBAND AND WIFE REUNITED AFTER TRAGIC TEST OF LOVE

DETROIT, March 24.—(AP)—A husband and wife who were reunited after a tragically-ending experiment in which the wife went away with another man to learn the quality of her love for him sent a message to friends today saying that they "intend to be happy once more."

The message came from "Somewhere in Michigan," friends of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin March, said. "We are together once more," the friends were told. "We understand each other and will take up life again as though the incident that has passed never happened."

In the meantime, the body of the other man, Thomas A. Newton, 32, lay in Miami, Fla., where he ended his own life with a bullet last Thursday after Mrs. March had decided that she preferred life with her husband and 18-months-old daughter to continuing with him. Newton's wife, whom he married ten years ago, and his father, Thomas E. Newton, wealthy packer, were in Miami making arrangements to take the body to Orlando, Fla., for cremation.

The return of Mrs. March to her husband, who is curator of Asiatic art at the Detroit Institute of Arts, came after a trip with Newton which started Feb. 24, during which the couple visited Bermuda, Cuba and finally Florida. The trip, the husband said, was taken with his consent, after Mrs. March and Newton revealed to him the belief that they loved each other and wanted each other more than anything else.

March said that he consented to the experiment, which was to continue for a month. If his wife decided that she really held more affection for Newton they were to remain together, he said, but if she or Newton found that they were bound merely by an infatuation, she was to return and they would continue life as before.

OVER $10,000 DAMAGE BY BRUSH FIRES IN CONN. YESTERDAY

(By The Associated Press)

Forest and brush fires burned over more than 500 acres and did damage exceeding $10,000 in Connecticut yesterday.

At Sherman, a brush fire laid waste about ten acres and then got out of control, destroying Charles Mosher's seven-room house, a barn, garage and a small shop. Fifty volunteer workers succeeded in saving some of the furniture.

An automobile, owned by Julius Fredland, was burned in the garage.

The Tamarack Country club at Greenwich was threatened by a fire which devastated 300 acres and destroyed a tool house. Ten trees were ignited, several of which fell on the highway, carrying electric and telephone wires with them. The other trees were cut down to remove their menace. Fort Chester and Greenwich firemen were called to battle the fire.

A dozen men worked for six hours at Colchester to conquer a blaze which spread over 200 acres. Some valuable pine trees were burned.

Allen, who has at various times been state senator, chairman of the Hartford republican town committee and police commissioner, were today ordered to appear in superior court tomorrow afternoon to answer to charges of contempt as a result of their refusal to answer questions put to them by the grand jury investigating the liquor traffic in Hartford county.

The mayor is understood to have refused to tell the name of a friend from whom he has obtained liquor.

TO CONTINUE FIGHT FOR FIVE POWER NAVAL TREATY

LONDON, March 24.—(AP)— Despite dissension within the naval conference in the form of the Franco-Italian parity dispute and steady sniping from without by critics, Secretary Stimson and Prime Minister MacDonald intend to defend their banner of a five power treaty to the bitter end.

Thus today they started the third month of negotiations, keeping busy even though the day's work was fruitless as far as any reports made public.

As a starter the American and British delegations held an hour's conference at Downing street this morning. Then Mr. MacDonald received Dino Grandi, head of the Italian delegation at his office in the house of commons this afternoon.

It is understood that Signor Grandi felt pessimistic and expressed the opinion that adjournment of the conference might enable settlement of Italy's argument with France in a cooler diplomatic atmosphere than that of London at present.

Help from Japan, which may arrive Thursday in the form of approval of a three power pact for Great Britain, Japan, and the United States would give the conference leaders a chance to pull at least partial success out of the stalemate.

APPROVE PAYMENT OF $500 CLAIM AS "AN ACT OF GRACE"

WASHINGTON, March 24.—(AP)—As "an act of grace," a house committee has approved a bill appropriating $500 to pay a claim which resulted from the death of a Chinese in 1927.

When a Chinese junk and the United States gunboat Bittern collided a passenger on the junk was killed. President Hoover asked congress "as an act of grace and without reference to the question of legal liability of the United States" to appropriate the $500.

An investigation showed, officials said, that the junk did not bear a light at the time of the collision.

The three were arrested at Palmer.

NEW HAVEN DETECTIVE FREED OF MANSLAUGHTER CHARGS

NEW HAVEN, March 24.—(AP)—Holding that the youth was an escaping felon and therefore the police officer had the right to shoot, Judge Stanley Dunn, in city court, late today discharged Detective Joseph P. Sullivan, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Herbert Messner, fugitive from the Cheshire reformatory.

Messner, 22, was shot Dec. 17, in the home of his sister, whither Sullivan and Detective Charles Gill had gone to arrest him for violation of his reformatory parole. He died the next day.

The youth struggled with the police officers and dashed out of the house. Then Sullivan fired at him.

In releasing Sullivan, Judge Dunn said:

"When the detectives entered the room and told Messner that he was under arrest he was still a felon as his six-year term in the reformatory had not expired. When he broke away he was an escaping felon and Sullivan therefore had the right to shoot to prevent his escape."

DEATH OF GRANDMOTHER OF ADMIRAL BYRD

BALTIMORE, March 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Jennie Byrd, 91, grandmother of two famous men, died today after a short illness which followed several months of declining health, as one of her grandsons, Rear Admiral Richard E. NEW LUMBER CO. BUILDING OF OLD ENGLISH DESIGN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24—Old English architecture has been coupled with modern business in a most effective result by the Willimantic Lumber and Coal company which will formally open its improved show rooms at the corner of Church and Valley streets next Thursday evening. The inspection of these delightful display quarters will be in conjunction with the public display of Willimantic merchandisers on the first evening of spring opening.

In bringing about these extensive alterations to its plant, the Willimantic Lumber and Coal company is falling in line with changes in the lumber and coal business in which additional lines of merchandise are making necessary steady expansion.

The exterior of the building has been modernized to conform with English style architecture, the contrasting result being that of the refined country estate where modern business throbs in its daily progress. The plans and sketch were prepared by A. R. Sharpe, local architect, with the ideas and suggestions of the lumber company staff and the entire thought was materialized by J. C. Boucher & Company, general contractors. Excellent contributions to the structure were made by the sub-contractors including: F. J. Bergeron, tinner, Bergeron-Grimley Co., plumbers, F. H. Williams, painter, Costello Bros., masons, The Willimantic Glass Co., and John T. Ashton, electrician.

Following the economic plan of modernization, very little of the old building was taken down. The corner building was given a sort of an English touch with no structural changes other than the lower part of Church street which was cut back and put on a line with the office building.

Tapestry brick, bungalow siding, a rake cornice and casement sash, as well as a new entrance, give the building a decidedly English appearance. Large windows provide space for window displays. Over the office entrances two new gables with stucco and half timber effect were built. The open cornice was replaced by a new box cornice and a rake cornice was built on the south side of the office building. The new roof is of Safekote Asphalt shingles, all the materials used in the alterations being carried in the stock of the company.

A finish of B. P. S. cream and brown paint was applied to the exterior woodwork to harmonize with the stucco and the blended shingles.

The ample office and display space of the interior is most attractive. The office quarters were completely renovated less than a year ago. In the new salesroom the walls are covered with Insulite board and decorated in a beautiful combination of ivory and cream Textone. A modernistic effect is carried out with pleasing results in the lighting fixtures.

The spacious store fronting at the corner of Church and Valley streets is to be used as a display and salesroom of unpainted furniture and millwork. The company is now adding to its present building material line, unpainted furniture and Sellers kitchen furniture units, placing these popular products into actual commercial contact for the first time with eastern Connecticut people, as to variety of choice, quality and price.

In an adjoining rom is to be found still another display where breakfast nooks, ironing boards, telephone cabinets—in fact, all variety of standardized woodwork specialities for home beautification and comfort, are featured.

This room leads through an arched entrance to the company's paint and builders' hardware department. Here a full line of ready mixed paints and nationally approved hardware is to be found.

The alteration work was started early in January and was rushed through to allow a formal opening in conjunction with the annual spring opening of the Willimantic merchants Thursday, March 27.

The Willimantic Lumber and Coal company will keep open house Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week and extends a general invitation to the public to call and inspect the new quarters. A photograph of the company's new sales and office building will be found on another page of this newspaper with a list of the sub-contractors who did their part in modernizing the building.

SPRING OPENING TO BE HELD ON THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24—Preparations for the annual spring opening by Willimantic merchants were going apace today as thousands of dollars of new 1930 merchandise was being received and arranged for display.

The show windows of the Willimantic stores, which have already gained wide reputation for attractive appearance, will be resplendent in colors and fanciful displays during the three days of the opening, and there will be novelties well worth coming miles to attend.

The spring opening will get formally under way Thursday evening when the stores will be thrown open for public inspection from 7 to 9 o'clock. The merchants are inviting all to come into the store and just browse around without feeling under the least obligation to make a purchase. Serving to liven the spirit of the occasion Wheeler's band will be on hand and will be heard in a concert at various points throughout the business section.

The opening will continue Friday on which day the stores will close at the customary hour of 6 o'clock, in order to afford the clerks a rest. Saturday will be a full day from 8:30 a. m. until 9 o'clock in the evening.

This year a special gift feature will be carried out by 52 of the progressive merchants of the city. According to this plan each of the 52 merchants will put into prominent display in their show windows a gift. All visitors to the store whether purchasers or not, from 7 o'clock Thursday evening to Saturday evening, may be the recipient of such a gift. Saturday evening a card bearing a number will be placed against the gift as displayed and the person to receive it must call for it at the store. Special announcements of the Willimantic stores will appear in the Thursday morning issue of The Bulletin.

NORWICH MAN FINED FOR EVADING RESPONSIBILITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24—Charles H. McGibney of 26 Winchester street, Norwich, alleged hit-and-run driver, was fined $50 and costs in police court this morning when found guilty of a charge of evading responsibility. Mr. McGibney's attorney entered a demurrer which was overruled by Judge Frank H. Foss, who imposed the fine and costs, remitting $25 of the amount.

McGibney was the driver of a Ford car that crashed into the parked Essex coach owned by Harry B. Read of Jamaica Plains, Mass., formerly of this city on Windham road Saturday night. Mr. Read had left his car in front of the home of his mother, Mrs. Frank B. Read at 217 Windham road. A crash was heard in the neighborhood and it was found that the Read car had been badly smashed, causing damage estimated at over $150. The other machine was gone. The police investigation made by Officer Roderick Lariviere disclosed that the hit-and-run car had passed another machine, driven by Haskell Rosen, local poultry dealer, and then crossed to the left of the road where it crashed into the Read machine. Ford hub caps and scrapings of blue paint, plus a registration number were furnished as clues to the police. After the collision McGibney drove on into the city and at Thread Mill square turned toward Windham Center apparently hoping to return to Norwich. The car broke down near Windham Center, however, and was finally towed away.

TAXPAYERS ASK FOR AUDIT OF TOWN BOOKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 24.—Some 700 taxpayers, including over 300 members, attended the meeting of the Taxpayers' Protective association held at the town hall tonight. The association, which enrolled many new members during the meeting, voted to direct its president, Dr. George E. Wilcox, to place before the selectmen a petition for a special town meeting at which the voters will be asked to have an audit of the town books by certified public accountants. The warning of this meeting would further ask that the accountants prepare a new system of bookkeeping, that the voters make the proper appropriation for the work and name the accountants, if so desirous.

The meeting, which was called to order by President Wilcox, had as its definite objective the formulation of a policy of the association. In a review of the proposed policy, President Wilcox named the three following objectives: First, to determine just where the town stands financially; second, to arrange for the funding of town indebtedness in serial bonds, and, third, "To pay as we go and go as we pay," this to include paying serial bonds as they come due, from current income.

President Wilcox asked for the support of all taxpayers and the banks in following this policy and warned all politicians that the association would carve their political tombstones should they fail to support the association's general policy. He further advocated a fixed tax rate in future years. A resolution authorized the president to name a consulting committee of ten to act with the association members and meet committees of any other organizations seeking information on civic problems.

President Wilcox denied a current rumor that the members of the taxpayers' association were either endeavoring or willing to pay the bills of the town. Relative to the eight-mill tax levied at the special town meeting and generally considered insufficient to meet the expenditures for the year, President Wilcox said that this was not done on any recommendation of the association but might justly be interpreted as a vote indicating lack of confidence in the town government.

The meeting adopted the form of a forum during which several well-known citizens were heard. The consensus of opinion was that the taxpayers were to blame for much of the present condition, owing to lack of interest and small attendance at the annual town meetings when the budget was adopted in past years. The sentiment was for larger attendance in the future and, following this line of thought, Eugene J. Dion, treasurer of the association, moved that the selectmen be petitioned to hold their future annual meetings in the evening and at hours conducive to larger attendance.

Town Tax Collector Albert J. Piche stated that approximately $15,000 in back taxes came within the possibility of collection but that this could not be depended upon to defray expenses this year. In reply to various charges regarding lack of advertisement of the town meetings, Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton, assistant town clerk, asked for fair play in that the meetings had been duly advertised and that all books and bills in the town clerk's office were available to the public at all times.

Others who were heard included A. L. Gelinas, who advocated the single government and city manager for the town and city; J. Nelson Gilman, P. J. Laramee, who pleaded for more interest in future town meetings; Fred H. Turner, Mrs. Margaret Mahoney and Elmer E. Richmond, who spoke on behalf of a tax rate sufficient to meet the current or the annual expenses.

This year's team was a top-notcher and by far the best that has ever represented the local high school. The success of the team has been due in a large measure to Chester E. ORIGINAL AND CLEVER PROGRAM AT GRANGE MEETING

The meeting of Columbia Grange Wednesday evening was in charge of the women's economics committee. There was a roll call, the sisters responding by giving their pet annoyance and the brothers by suggestions for tax reduction. Music was furnished by Frederick Hunt and Clayton Hunt, Jr., on their saxophones, accompanied by Miss Ahlene Budge on the piano. An exhibition of hand work by the members was arranged by the committee, completely covering the stage. Conspicuous among the display were many beautiful hooked rugs, as well as embroidery of all descriptions. Some of the younger male members exhibited model airplanes, surprisingly realistic. There was a good attendance. A letter was read from the state master asking that a meeting be held to form an organization for the betterment of rural roads. It was voted that the master of Columbia Grange appoint such a meeting and he announced that it would be held at the hall Wednesday evening next, March 26th, everyone to be invited who is interested in the subject, whether grange members or not.

Spring officially began Friday, but the date on the calendar was the only indication of anything spring-like, as Friday and Saturday were two of the windiest and coldest days for some time. The mercury dropped to around 15 Saturday morning. Sunday the warmth of the sun began to make a little headway against the bitter cold of the wind, with a promise of warmer weather. The peep frogs which tradition says must be frozen in three times after they are first heard surely have had their three times by now!

Another Bad Fire

District Forest Fire Warden John M. Riley and Deputy Wardens Elmer H. Foote and Marshall Dean had a force of fifteen volunteers at work, fighting a bad fire which swept over a tract of nearly a hundred and fifty acres of brush and meadow land on the Nelkin and Kutis farms, Monday forenoon. The blaze was said to have started on the John Nelkin farm and worked its way steadily northwestward, up across the former Taintor meadow and westward towards the Colchester Falls. The men worked frantically with hand pumps and by the middle of the afternoon the flames had been extinguished. Due to a delay in notifying the fire warden, the fire had gained considerable headway when help arrived. Aside from burning a few acres of woodland, the damage was confined to brush pastures and meadow land.

March Gusts

Strange is the temper of the mad March gusts
  As from the north they come
  Swift winging down the lake
And of the tinkling ice sweet windharps make;
  Or from the west, with drum
  Of restless rain, and fife
Of whistling branch they stir the woods to life;

  Or from the east, with wraith
  Of white sea-ghost awave
They drift in silence like a sorrowing slave;
  Or from the south, with faith
  Of promises forgot,
Sighing of summer though they bear it not,
Rustling the rushes where the bracken rusts;
Strange is the temper of the mad March gusts.

Strange is the temper of our mad new love,
  As from your laughter springs
  An echoing roundelay
That sweeps the ice of solitude away;
  Or from your eyes, on wings
  Of fiery torrents flare
Such messages as drown me in despair.

  Or from your sigh there seems
  A misty spirit, fain
To bid me follow where I go in vain;
  Or from your lips, in dreams,
  When they are close to mine,
I crush the magic of an opiate wine;
Wild winds about us, starry sky above
Strange is the temper of our mad new love.

Condonation

I can forgive you when you lie
  To me, in paying compliments.
I should, of course, condemn you, but
  My rigorous rectitude relents.
It is so sweet to hear the words
  Of flattery and praise from you
That I accept them even though
  Wee both know that they are not true.

So keep on lying, if you must
  To keep on saying such sweet things.
It fills my heart with joy to hear
  Your pleasant lies, and my soul sings!
You do it all so gracefully
  And flatter me so well that I
Almost believe you, even though
  I know that it is all a lie!

THE SENATE REVISION

At last the senate has completed its work on the tariff. It has spent ten months in doing it, including the time given to it by the senate finance committee and the time that has been wasted in needless delays and playing politics.

It is a tariff revision where special stress has been laid upon relief for agriculture and the agricultural schedule gets the greatest increase. That there was a disposition in the house to consider the position of agriculture was made clear in the bill that was approved by that body. The senate has acted in a way to increase it, but in so doing there was evidence that there was an unwillingness on the part of the farm group to do an equally fair thing by industry. There has been evidenced a disposition to look after sectional problems without giving the same consideration to the problems in other sections. With more than 1,200 changes made by the senate in the bill as presented by the house it is plain that the conference members face no easy job in reconciling the differences.

Aside from the necessity of compromising the differences between house and senate as they appear in the rates of the various schedules, there will also be the problem of dealing with the features which have been injected into the bill by the senate against the declared wishes of the president. As if it was determined to do just the opposite of what he wanted, the senate sought his position in regard to the flexible tariff and the debenture idea. In the latter he pointed out nearly a dozen reasons why it would be detrimental to the country. That seemed only to strengthen the determination of the coalition of democrats and insurgents to adopt it. Again the president urged the retention of the flexible feature of the tariff, which gives the president the authority on recommendation of the tariff commission to change rates within a certain limit, in order that changing conditions might be met, but that was also the signal for coalition opposition.

Hope rests with the conference committee to see that the debenture is knocked out and the flexible clause retained. It will not be accomplished with ease, but it should be insisted upon. The bill was passed by a comfortable margin in the senate but there is no telling where certain of the insurgent members are going to be found later on. The bill bids fair to undergo many changes before it leaves the hands of the conference committee.

CROSSING SLAUGHTER

There are grade crossing accidents which raise the question as to the fitness of some persons to drive motor vehicles. Two of such were reported over the week end in which the lives of 12 persons were snuffed out.

At Auburn, N. Y., a machine containing eight persons was driven directly in the path of a fast gasoline coach with the result that all were killed, while at Trenton, N. J., four persons were killed when a machine was driven into a locomotive at a crossing where there was a full view of the tracks in both directions and where there were crossing signs and warning gongs.

Under such conditions it seems as though those at the wheels of those autos could have prevented such slaughter. One thing seems certain in view of what happened and that is that proper attention was not being given to the danger which exists at every crossing and those at the wheel were not making any effort to see that the way was clear or to avoid an accident. As a matter of fact, it would appear that none of the others had been sufficiently mindful of their position to even voice a warning about what was ahead.

Too often it is the case that a car filled with people escapes trouble of one kind or another rather through good fortune than through the attention given by the driver. The man at the throttle of a locomotive is required to watch his track for signals and switches, even though the iron horse can be expected to stay on the rails, but the speeding motorist is too often whizzing along with attention distracted by what is going on in the machine.

Far more deaths than there is any excuse for have occurred at railroad crossings. How any auto driver can be unmindful of the danger that exists there is difficult to understand. It is chiefly because of the rankest kind of carelessness that so many of these accidents occur and yet such needless deaths will have little or no effect upon the manner in which hundreds of other drivers will disregard warnings and refuse to exercise care at railroad crossings.

ROADSIDE FORESTS

What an impression forestry work has made in New Hampshire is disclosed by the announcement that the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests is planning to establish 1,000 forest reservations along the highways of that state. Though New Hampshire is a state of much woodland and already has a number of such reserves, this is an ambitious programme.

In various ways New Hampshire has been brought to a realization of the attraction afforded by its natural beauties, part of which are contributed by its forests. There are various points of special interest, to which tourists are attracted throughout the season, but while there are some unusual sights awaiting the eye of the traveler it is not overlooked that the wooded areas help to increase the fascination.

New Hampshire has made some determined fights to preserve intact the wood-covered hills and valleys, and it has received aid from all parts of the country because of the recognized injustice of permitting such attractions to be shorn of any of their beauty. But its opportunities for doing much more for the state are not being overlooked because certain protection has been obtained. Knowing what the effect would be of having its mountains, notches and reservations denuded by the man with the ax it is prepared not only to stop it but to see that more wooded areas are established and protected.

Because of the educational efforts which have been made concerning forestry work, more and more attention is being turned in that direction. Massachusetts has been developing much interest in the town forest idea until there are 86 of them in that state, or one for every other town in Connecticut, and the movement has by no means exhausted itself.

In both of these states it might seem that there is already a sufficient amount of woodland, but it is apparent that there is a growing appreciation of what woodland means to states in the way of conserving water supplies, furnishing lumber and providing attractions for visitors. There are wooded sections which need to be preserved and there are areas now going to waste which could be put to profitable use by the growing of trees. These two states are setting a fine example in encouraging these recognized advantages.

DIVERSIFYING CROPS

From time to time advice has been given to the cotton planters that they should stop planting cotton, cotton and more cotton and devote a certain part of their fields to the cultivation of other crops. This has been urged at times when there have been such bumper crops as to make the supply far beyond the demand.

For the same reason the same kind of advice has been given to the growers of wheat for the purpose of affording relief in that line of agricultural effort. It is what the manufacturer has to do under similar circumstances and it is because there has been too little recognition given to the real situation that farm conditions have grown worse.

At times word comes to the effect that such advice is being followed. Just now Carl Williams of the farm board provides the information that cotton raisers are coming to recognize the importance of following the advice which has been ignored too often and will endeavor to keep the acreage for the cultivation of cotton down and turn to something else.

It seems that when he speaks of growing wheat and corn in the fields which were formerly used for the growing of cotton the general agricultural situation is not going to be helped very much, for with wheat growers producing more than is required the cotton growers would simply be making unbearable another branch of the farming industry where overproduction is quite as likely and bothersome as with cotton.

The diversification of crops unquestionably has merits. It is quite necessary to see that any diversity does not help to make a bad situation worse for the other fellow. Certainly the cotton growers would not expect to experience any relief from decreased acreage if others who had never raised cotton, such as the wheat growers, for instance, started in to compete with the south by planting cotton.

DRIVEN FROM HOME

Perhaps the situation prevailed some time ago when Al Capone, notorious as a gangster and law defier, was not wanted in Chicago. If such was the case it was not possible to convey it to him in the manner that it has been recently done. Capone, for a long time, did about as he pleased. He had a reputation of getting what he wanted by fair means or foul. He found that he could not do in Philadelphia as he did in Chicago, for, being found in that city carrying a gun, he was made to serve a year in prison. He tried to get a parole but the authorities would not listen to him. His charm over the supporters of the law didn't work in the Quaker city.

When the time came for him to get his freedom he knew that he had prosecution hanging over him at Chicago and hurried there to square things up. It must have been a big surprise to the gunman when he learned that he was no longer wanted in Chicago, warned to pull up stakes and get out and told not to come back.

Somehow that seems a bit out of the ordinary for Chicago. It is rather rough treatment for one who had done about as he pleased for so long and apparently considered himself immune. He has decided to take the advice and he may be surprised to learn that other cities, and states, for that matter, have no desire to harbor him.

Capone is a type which has developed within the past decade, or so, a type that is prepared to terrorize and to depend upon protection for his operations. He is not the only gangster who has helped to give Chicago a bad reputation and it is a question whether such desperate characters are going to be treated as they should be by turning them off to prey upon others.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The Connecticut congressional delegation is in full sympathy with the decision of Governor Trumbull not to call a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Glynn.

Floor Leader Tilson of New Haven said: "Referring to the recent comments by Chairman Shouse of the democratic national committee to the effect that Connecticut was derelict in not calling an immediate special election, I believe Governor Trumbull did exactly right in refusing to call a special election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Glynn. The democratic eagerness that such a session should be called is not only a matter of unjustifiable interference on the part of the national chairman, but is an evidence of democratic weakness in the state of Connecticut. Those leaders evidently believe they stand a better chance of winning out now, than they could possibly do in the fall, which to my mind is an admission that the arguments they propose to put out now, would not stand the test of even a six month delay. They would be worthless in November. The state will save considerable money, and nothing could be gained by having the election now."

Congressman Merritt, Freeman and others agree this is correct.

Congressman Merritt was especially emphatic in his approval of the action of the governor. He said: "It would be a foolish waste of public money to call a special election to put up a man in office, when he could not be elected in time to serve before the present session adjourns. He could not even qualify, according to present expectations of adjournment. The candidate elected would find himself spending six months in Connecticut, not in Washington, while if no special election is held, the candidate or candidates for the Fifth district, both for unexpired and regular terms, would be elected at the same time. That is by far the better way, the insistence of the democrats for a special election to fill the place of a republican incumbent cannot be other than partisan."

Perhaps one of the most unusual matters brought to the attention of a Connecticut member of the house for a long time, was a letter received by Floor Leader John Q. Tilson asking him to take up with the treasury department the matter of salvaging a cargo of gold, supposed to have been on board a British ship that sunk in New York harbor during or just prior to the war of the Revolution.

The letter was from Simon Lake of New Haven, a recognized inventor, submarine expert and engineer of repute. Lake believes he has an invention that will secure and locate the treasure, and asked Tilson to take up the matter with the treasury department in order to secure protection from snoopers and those who would "butt in" on him. Colonel Tilson has placed the request of Lake in the hands of the treasury department but has as yet received no response.

It seems, according to Lake's letter, that such protection had once been given to a would-be salvager, and Lake merely asks that it be extended to him. The protection which he desires to have passed on to him, was granted many years ago, as Lake recalls it, and to some person with whom the Lake family was acquainted, or in some way connected.

The name of the sunken vessel was The Hussar, and the gold was brought from England to pay the British soldiers over here.

The new home of Chief Justice Hughes stands next to the house purchased last fall by Secretary of the Navy Adams. It is but a short distance from the Hoover home, now leased and occupied by Senator Walcott of Connecticut and which is "next door neighbor" to the house owned by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, which the late president purchased after his retirement from the white house.

In the same vicinity, though a little farther down towards the center of the northwest residential district is the magnificent winter home of Mrs. Lars Anderson; and a bit further down the more modest home of the late Senator Lodge.

In fact, we might count up dozens of distinguished men in political life who are within easy access of the home of Mr. Hughes.

It has come to be a habit with Chief Justice Hughes to own a Washington home. He built a splendid brick house up in the embassy section, and when he retired from political Washington, the house was purchased, with all its furnishings, by the late John W. Weeks of Massachusetts, who occupied it until shortly before his death, when he sold it with the intention of returning to Newton permanently.

Although petitions bearing seven million signatures for congressional authorization of the Star Spangled Banner as the national anthem, are in a bale up in Congressman Linthicum's office, nothing has been done by the house in bringing the matter to a head. It may be regarded as sufficient that the executive order of President Wilson made in 1916, at the request of the war department, will be regarded as sufficient. It may be that formal congressional action will later be taken, but at present the matter is dormant. But whether or not anything is done by congress the Star Spangled Banner is the authorized national anthem, and will so remain until that order is rescinded, an event quite unlikely to happen.

The other day when a hot fight was imminent over certain matters which the republicans of the house did not care to discuss at that moment, Republican Floor Leader Tilson of Connecticut very cleverly turned the tide from that point of debate by maneuvering two fiery southern democrats into a controversy of white heat over some local issue between Texas and Louisiana. There was a merry war on, over in the democratic ranks, till one of the men involved shouted, "We have lost sight of the main issue. Tilson has washed the ground from under our feet by maneuvering us into a local controversy." Everybody laughed, and legislation along a new line followed. Tilson had won out.

BOX FLOATS 3,0000 MILES ALONG JAPANESE CURRENT

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—A message dropped into the Pacific ocean near Japan has been picked up by Fred Hulutin at Chiniak Cape beach near here, after floating 3,000 miles.

It was cast overboard with two dozen others from a Japanese vessel to locate the direction of the Japanese current. Hulutin picked it up six months after it had been tossed overboard.

Its journey indicated that the current flows northward to the head of the Gulf of Alaska. The current is believed to swing southward from Montague island and the Gulf of Alaska to make mild winters for the shores of Alaska, British Columbia and Pacific coast states.

Messages were put in waterproof boxes and written in English, French, German and Japanese.

The upper dog is willing to take the bone and let the under dog have all the sympathy.

BREAKFAST SETS FOR HUSBANDS

The auction had already begun when Emalina slipped into the second seat from the back. She had never attended an auction sale before and she would not have gone today if it had not been such a nice morning. But blue sky and a tinge of autumn in the air tickled her love of adventure. Even before she was out of bed she was trying to decide what to do. One by one she told off the day's possibilities and none seemed to suit.

"I want to do something exciting," she said to her reflection in the dressing table mirror. "I want an adventure, a romance. Something," she made a carmine cupid's bow of her upper lip, "that will t-h-r-i-l-l me!"

So she put on her burnt-orange canton crepe and wandered downtown. Nothing of the soul-stirring nature Emalina was looking for turned up, so she sought a chocolate malted milk for consolation. The department stores, the Art institute, even the Fine Arts building, proved stale and unprofitable. Everything was inadequate to her mood of adventure. And then fate stepped in in the shape of an auctioneer's banner. It caught Emalina's eye, outside the shop door.

"The very thing!" Emalina said to herself. "I'll just slip in for a while."

A dozen guest towels were being sold as she took her seat.

"Ladies and gentlemen," came the auctioneer's smooth voice, "how much am I bid for these beautiful Irish linen, hand-embroidered guest towels?" Emalina was already on the edge of her chair.

"I bid $5." She jumped at the sound of her own voice.

"Thank you, madam. Five dollars is bid. Now maybe you folks don't know why these are called guest towels. Well, it's because you have to guess who has them." He smiled at his own wit.

"Pretty lame," Emalina said, settling back in her chair.

Soon, with Emalina's aid, the towels were disposed of, and a red and white Spanish shawl and a really lovely spinet desk followed them.

"It's so exciting," she confided to her neighbor on the right, and bid three times on a marble lamp. "It's very pretty, don't you think?"

The neighbor who considered auctions part of life's serious business looked her disgust and then murmured something that Emalina did not catch. A young man in a navy blue suit in the row in front turned around and looked at Emalia with an amused twinkle in his eye.

"Oh my, but he's divine looking. Those eyes!" A dart shot straight to Emalina's heart. "If I could only meet him, but he looks frightfully formal—"

A breakfast set for two was being offered for sale.

"Ladies and gentlemen, here is the buy of the morning! This beautiful blue Dresden china breakfast set is a bargain at any price. Lady," he had come up and was addressing Emalina, "your husband will always be grateful if you pour his breakfast coffee into one of these beautiful blue-edged cups. Come what do you say, young lady? What's your bid?"

"Why—why I have no husband. I'm not mar—" A gentle titter spread from the near by seats.

"Oh, $50," Emalina said anything to get him away and remove several dozen pairs of eyes from her blushes.

"Thank you, madam. Fifty dollars is bid. Do I hear another bid? Ladies and gentlemen, it's nothing short of a crime to let a breakfast set like this go for such a price, but I am going to do it, if you don't hurry with another bid. Going once, going twice—sold to the little lady in orange!"

"Oh!" gasped Emalina out loud, and then in a stage whisper to her neighbor: "I was only fooling. Of course, I didn't mean that I actually had $50. I didn't know I would have to take them. Oh dear, this is dreadful! What shall I do?"

"Pay for them, of course. Did you think he was only playing store?"

The young man in the navy-blue suit turned around a second time.

"Excuse me for intruding, but I am a collector of blue Dresden, and I would very much like to have this particular set. It would be a favor if you would sell it to me." Emalina tried to hide her surprise.

"Why, that would be wonderful. You see, I didn't want it, anyway."

As the handsome young stranger pulled out his wallet to pay for Emalina's mistake she murmured: "I am Emalina Dodd. May I know who I am to thank?"

The stranger presented his card and Emalina read:

"Gordon Collins, Attorney-at-Law."

"H'mm," Emalina said to herself, "that's funny. Wonder why he said he was a collector of china?"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 24—A striking figure in the contemporary history of the world has marched on in the passing of Arthur Balfour, dean of British statesmen.

Of all the great men of England in the last two decades, he is best remembered in Washington.

And it is as just that, Arthur Balfour, not as Earl Balfour and Viscount Traprain of Whittingehame, that most Washingtonian's will best like to recall him.

It was so he was known here in those swift, terrific days just after American entry into the world war in 1917 when he came to head the British war commission working out first details of American cooperative effort in the struggle "over there."

The simple dignity of his own name, lacking in title, brought him closer perhaps to American thought in that moment than any rank of nobility could have done.

He was even then a British elder statesman. He looked the part and acted it in public and in private.

Old Friend

And he was still simply Mr. Balfour when next he came in 1921, leading the British delegation to the Washington naval conference.

Washington welcomed him like an old friend. The streets were lined with ordinary folks who had watched him come and go before on high mission and there was much comment as to how little the intervening, busy years had changed him.

Probably the most eloquent address delivered before the Washington conference was that of Aristide Briand as chief of the French group, speaking November 21, 1921.

It was a very glowing, living picture of the position in which France found herself at the close of the war; and it definitely removed every thought of possible limitation of land armaments from the agenda of the Washington conference.

Still, delve among the many addresses Balfour made and you will find time and again evidence of his great oratorical powers, of his winning use of words.

His reply to Briand was a striking example, extemporaneously made as it must have been. He concluded by wishing France every success "in that path of unaggressive prosperity upon which I hope and believe she is now entering."

Not Soon

Yet there lay in Balfour also a power of forceful declaration of a policy for his country to meet force with force if necessity arose.

And it was so he met the challenge of French naval expansion plans later in the session. It was the disclosure of those plans, specifically French plans for a huge submarine fleet, which precluded a full naval limitation treaty.

"Public notice has now been given that this great fleet is to be built on the shores nearest to Britain, and it will necessarily be a very great menace to her," Balfour said. "I have no doubt, if the occasion ever arises, that Britain will be equal to it."

No, Washington will not soon forget Arthur Balfour.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Let's Tune In

Mr. Editor:—Let's tune in on the news of our own land and across the water and find out what people are thinking. First let us hear from U. S. Congressman Louis C. Cramton of Michigan: "It is significant that the first decade of prohibition has proven the most prosperous in our history. The increase in savings banks deposits, ownership of homes, life insurance per capita and number of children in high schools, as shown by figures of the department of commerce is remarkable."

U. S. Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas: "Prohibition is in the federal constitution and it is there to stay. Prohibition is in the hearts and consciences and bank balances, the home comforts, the living facilities, the moral, the educational and economic advantages of the American people, and in all of these it is forever planted."

Federal Prohibition Commissioner Doran:—"Prohibition has shaken off the diseases of infancy; it has weathered the bumps and bruises of the growing years, and it enters the period of adolescence with a robustness that augurs well for the second decade of its life."

The Boston municipal court for the year 1929 shows that arrests for liquor law violations were almost 2,000 less than the year 1928, showing that there is less drinking even in wet cities.

The Hudson Consumers' brewery of Union City, New Jersey, has held to a forlorn hope for ten years. Built in 1900, the stock and property is said to be worth $1,000,000. When prohibition became a national law the brewery was converted into an ice plant, but according to the press, has operated at a yearly loss of $125,000. After a wait of ten years, in the hope that prohibition might be repealed, the stockholders have finally become discouraged at the improbability of recouping their losses and have voted to liquidate their assets.

More drinking among college students than ever before; is there? Why take the word of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment for that statement? Rather put it up to Fielding H. Yost, the famous coach of Michigan university, and see what he has to say about it. This is the way he answers:

"If you should take away 500 of the 11,000 students of the University of Michigan campus a bootlegger couldn't find a sale for a quart of liquor in a month. My observation is that college student drinking is confined to a few 'smart alecks' and the upper crust and is done mostly on special occasions, such as parties."

In an address to the Vienna Prohibition club Prof. Julius Tandler, noted surgeon and chief of welfare institutions in that city, who made an intensive four-month study of American prohibition last summer, is reported to have given it as his opinion that prohibition is "the greatest cultural achievement of all times" and should be imitated as the only method of ending the alcoholic abuses that contribute 33 per cent of the insane asylum inmates and most of Austria's industrial accidents. He has recently urged prohibition before the convention of the Austrian Workers Abstinence league.

Orders have been given by Dr. Friedenburg, provincial governor in the Cassel district, (Germany), that public chauffeurs must abstain from alcohol either before or during performance of their duties. Experience shows Dr. Friedenburg pointed out in his order that even the smallest quantity of alcohol is inimical to the safety of the driver, his passengers and the pedestrians and it is much easier to abstain altogether than to stop in time. The order concludes that public employes must set an example for other citizens. The police are instructed to pay special attention as to whether drivers, public or private, who cause automobile accidents have consumed alcohol, in which case their driving licenses are to be temporarily or permanently revoked.

From London, England, we have two major reasons for industrial expansion in United States, as given by Joy Elmer Morgan in the Nation and Athenaeum of London. First, the high level of individual resourcefulness created in our schools which now enroll approximately 25,000,000 on the primary level; 5,000,000 on the secondary level, and more than a million in colleges. Second, the economic and moral effect of prohibition, which, in spite of heavily subsidized opposition newspaper antagonism and the centers of defiant attitude which survive in certain larger cities, has made remarkable progress, considering the magnitude of the problem and the relatively short time that prohibition has been in force. All over America, schools are being built where breweries once thrived and the money that in my childhood nourished the saloon-keeper and the brewer is now going into schools, homes and autos. Doctors have long contended that the non-drinker recovered quicker from illness than his bibulous brother. It is now apparent that the temperate nation maintains a higher level of economic health than sister nations which have not taken the daring step of outlawing drink.

A LISTENER IN.

Norwich, March 24, 1930.

Changes.

Mr. Editor: Say, old timers, do you ever give a thought to the many changes that have taken place in the world since you were a kid? Many of these changes are for the better in every way. Do you remember when the women would go down the streets with about a yard of their dress dragging along the sidewalks making a dust and carrying along everything just as a broom would do, sweeping everything portable? How unsanitary it all was, and now how different it has become. Then you would catch an occasional glimpse of a woolen stocking, and now we see their extremities encased in silk hose, and believe me it all looks so different. What's that? How do I know? Do you think I have my eyes shut when I am riding on the side seats of a car? Don't you think they look neat? There is no chance for an argument on that question, for a woman looks good with silk hose, for it makes a nice trim ankle. And a thought yet comes to me for those girls of yesterday did not go around showing the colors of the rainbow with their garters of variegated colors, red, pink, blue, or any color you may wish for. I may say I am not color blind. So what can us poor men do? We can't walk with our eyes looking toward the sky when we ride in the trolley we can't read the signs up on the ceiling. These are the things of today; yesterday and the day before have moved on, yes, sir, there is no question, times have changed, for eggs were sold for 12 to 15 cents a dozen, milk was five cents a quart and they didn't know a thing about pasteurizing and they didn't use a lactometer to see if they had too much water in it. You could go to the butcher and get porterhouse for ten cents a pound, and the butcher would give you liver for nothing. The young men would not think they were at man's estate unless thy wore whiskers and chewed plug tobacco and smoked "Missouri" meerschaum. Some of the young fellows smoked Sweet Caporal cigarettes. Ask dad, he knows, but the real he men smoked Navy cut plug and liked it. We got along some how, for we didn't know any different, now we can ring up the changes and the young folks today think nothing of staying out to two o'clock in the morning and even later. The next day they have a hang over from the night before, but what of it, for haven't times changed. In the olden days the women had the men trained and when payday rolled around they would meet them at the door and the men would hand out their pay and the envelope had not even been opened. The man would ask her for a quarter to buy his tobacco and he would be told not to spend it all in one place. Yes, sir, times have changed, but woman is the fairest work of the Great Author. The edition is large and no man should be without a copy. Still they make us walk a chalk line for the women have to keep an eternal watch over us. They tell us what we must do, and what not to do, and let me whisper this, they tell us when we must change our shirts, for we are told the collar is as black as the stove. Say, fellows, don't you think that is an exaggeration?

I wonder if we have any reason for finding fault with the things of today, for it is sure we have made many changes for the better. Yet we old fellows are so stubborn we think the old days were the best. Well, I suppose first impressions are always the strongest, but the girl of today is, as a rule, more self-conscious, more self-reliant, more sure of her own ability, and she has ventured in to the realms of business that was in the early days the prerogative of men. Man has found her a worthy competitor, and she knows what she knows. Still our thoughts wonder back to the days where we recall the girl with her sunbonnet and her neatly ironed calico dress, with her lovely rosy cheeks that were kissed and colored by the winds of old New England. They wore woolen stockings and high topped shoes, and made their own knitted garters. I fancy as I write this that there are some of you old fellows who look back and see what is now just a thought of the many changes. Can you not see as in the crystal ball of life, that everything is different, for when you buy a pack of "coffin" nails you get a paper of matches with them for nothing. In the olden days you had to go easy on the matches for every cent counted.

Do some of you recall when you made "spills." Don't know what they were? Is that so? Don't you remember when you would go down to Hubbard's paper mill and get a lot of different color paper and then twist the paper in to a form that you used to stick in the front of the stove and get a light to make the candle glow. Those were "spills," for those old card matches were all right, but still they were not as handy when the shades of night began to fall as a "spill." Kinder had you guessing for a minute, didn't I? Perhaps you had another name for them. Do you remember when you were a kid and you used to slide down the side of the quarry right where the Greeneville school is today? You had an old tin pan to slide on, and you would wear out the western part of your pants. Of course you know the western part is where the sun sets, and how the other fellows would make fun of you when repairs were made and you came to school with a couple of square patches where they were mended. These squares were often different colors, and looked like a couple of windows. But why should you care, you couldn't see what the other fellows were laughing at. But wouldn't you like to travel back there again and be a boy again, back to that vast unexplored land of dreams, back to the enchanting days of youth? Say yes.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

YOUR HEALTH

Clothing And Health

By Garfield E. Hertel, M. D., Austin, Minnesota.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Among civilized peoples clothes are worn for bodily protection and comfort more or less to dictates of fashion.

There are three definite facts to remember in the discussion of clothing.

1. Air is a poor conductor of heat;
2. Wool is a poor conductor of heat;
3. Wool is a poor absorber of moisture.

In the northern latitudes where winters are severe, more clothing is necessary to keep the body warm. Quite often too much heavy clothing is worn and particularly is this true of underwear. Wool does not allow warmth to radiate from the body, so that garments of this material are warmer than those of cotton, linen or silk. But heavy wool underwear worn next to the skin is inductive of more colds than underwear of other materials, for wool does not absorb moisture readily and so, when a person wearing woolen underwear in a warm room perspires, the body remains moist. His moisture turns the skin cold and "clammy" when the person goes out into the cold, and furnishes an ideal condition in which to "catch a cold."

For those that need the additional warmth that wool affords, I would suggest a light weight of cotton underwear next to the skin and a light weight of wool garment over the cotton. The cotton will readily absorb the moisture from the body and keep the skin dry. The outer wool garment and the air space between the two will retard heat and keep the body warm.

Loosely woven materials are warmer than those tightly woven, as the larger mesh holds air and air prevents heat radiation. Heavy garments are cumbersome, prevent freedom of body movement and proper aeriation of the skin.

Always wear light garments next to the body and heavier ones on the outside, as the outer ones can easily be changed according to the severity of the weather.

"Respect for Others' Opinions"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Be not wise in your own conceits" (Romans 12:16).

Read: John 8:31-40.

MEDITATION: Reverence for others means respect for their opinions. The wise man knows that he does not know it all. He knows that God does not give all of His truth to any one individual, even though it be He; for truth cannot be less than what all men see. He loves truth more than he does his own opinion of truth. The open-minded man is a catholic man. He believes that others see truth which he may not see. To get along helpfully and co-operatively with others one must value their opinion. Blessed is the man that sitteth not in the seat of the scornful.

PRAYER: "Teach me, O Lord, how to love those around me. It would be true to my convictions, and yet kind; just, and yet generous; mindful of the truth, and yet ever merciful. Let me show Thy spirit of love in every relation of life. In Jesus' name. Amen."

SERRUTO PLEADS NOT GUILTY—HIS BAIL IS SET AT $20,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 24.—Joseph Serruto, of Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, alleged assailant of Epiro Episanio, of Westerly, pleaded not guilty to charges of assault with intent to murder, when arraigned in a special session of the Third district court here tonight. The arraignment was made before Clerk Herbert P. Clark. The case was continued to Friday for hearing and bail set at $20,000. Up to a late hour tonight bonds had not been furnished.

At the same time Rosario Dolce of Garden street, Pawcatuck, was ordered continued to be held as a material witness. Bonds for him were set at $2,000 and were furnished. Dolce is a son-in-law of Serruto.

Investigation of the shooting early Monday morning finally established the fact that it had occurred just over the Connecticut line. Westerly and Rhode Island authorities consequently instituted the prosecution. Episanio tonight continues on the danger list at Westerly hospital. An X-ray taken today showed that the bullet had lodged near his spine, after entering the breast two inches to the right of his heart.

The ante-mortem statement secured from the wounded man this afternoon by Town Solicitor John Ferguson and Police Chief Thomas E. Brown and Dr. M. H. Scanlon, examiner, brought out the fact that the shooting had occurred early Monday morning, following a prolonged drinking party at a Pawcatuck house.

After a long illness, Robert Barry, for years a resident of Norwich, died Sunday evening in this city. He was born in Ireland and at one time resided in Worcester. He was a member of Norwich aerie, No. 367, F. O. E.

Surviving are four sons and daughters, Robert, William, Mary and Annie Barry, all of Worcester; a sister Mrs. Thomas Kiley, in Worcester: two brothers, William and Michael Barry, in Worcester, and a brother, Thomas Barry, in Ireland.

George W. Beebe

The death of George W. Beebe, 75, occurred Sunday at his home in Providence, R. I., where he had resided since leaving this city about five years ago. Mr. Beebe was the son of Ebenezer and Lucinda Beebe and was born in New Bedford, Mass., but the family came to this city when he was quite a small child and his residence continued here until he removed to Providence. In his earlier life he was employed as a jeweler, at one time a number of years ago working for Mr. Parlin, a Norwich jeweler, but he suffered from cataracts on his eyes and eventually became blind more than 20 years ago and had been an invalid for the greater part of the time since then.

Mr. Beebe is survived by his wife and his daughter Ruth. He also leaves two brothers and a sister, Edwin L. Beebe of Jamaica Plains, Mass., Mrs. E. Grace Fowler and Otis A. Beebe, both of this city.

Gurdon Miller Recovering

Mrs. Freelove A. Miller of Penobscot street, who visited her son, Gurdon, at Grace hospital, New Haven, on Sunday, found him making good recovery from an attack of pneumonia which came upon him when his teeth were extracted while he was already in a weakened condition from an operation. He is now gaining strength for further surgical attention made necessary by severe electrical burns he received last September in the freight yard at New Haven.

SEVEN BRUSH FIRES MAKE BUSIEST DAY FOR NORWICH FIRE DEPARTMENT

Members of the local fire department were called upon Monday to put in the busiest day of the year in fighting brush and grass fires in and outside of the city, responding to five, the worst of which was in the rear of St. Joseph's cemetery, Greeneville. This blaze required the attention of the department for almost five hours, the firemen remaining on duty until it was deemed safe to leave. A large amount of damage was done to the standing trees in the section.

The central station was notified of this blaze at 11:49 o'clock in the morning, Squad A and Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan being sent out on the alarm. The blaze, which originated from sparks from a rubbish fire, had gained considerable headway upon their arrival, having already covered a wide area, with a high wind to propel it forward. With pump cans and brooms the firemen did all in their power to check the blaze, but in this they were unsuccessful as they were fighting against great odds.

With plenty of dry leaves, sticks and other material for feed the blaze swept onward toward Taftville and outside of the city limits, but still the men fought it. Reaching a brook near the Hunter road the men were able to stop it there, but at the same time it was burning briskly in the direction of Mohegan park road, leading out of Taftville. While this fire was in progress the Taftville department were called out to Plain Hill to fight a brush fire near the property of Harold Jordan, the call coming in at 1:25 o'clock.

Returning to their station the Taftville department was notified of the blaze in the rear of St. Joseph's cemetery, and went there to again return to the station, as they felt that they could not be of any assistance in fighting the blaze, which by that time was raging in an area of live oaks. The local department returned to the central station at 4:29 o'clock, after the course of the blaze had been detoured away from buildings in that section. It burned over a wooded area of about 200 acres.

The first call of the day came in at 11:24 o'clock for a grass and brush fire on land owned by Ellen M. Gardner at No. 231 Maple street, which was put out by Squad A and Chief Henry R. Taft.

At 12:05 Engine No. 4 went to the rear of 135 Dunham street to extinguish a brush fire there. The blaze was on property of Joseph Lede and was extinguished with three gallons of chemical.

With a call for assistance to squelch a brush fire in the rear of property owned by George Driscoll on Laurel Hill road at 2:30 o'clock, Chief Taft appealed to the Norwich state hospital to take care of this blaze, as practically all of the local apparatus were then engaged in fighting other brush blazes. For a time the blaze threatened the house of Mr. Driscoll, but with help coming from the Norwich state hospital the building did not catch fire. A number of employes from the hospital battled the flames for some time until it was turned away from buildings in the section.

Boys with matches were blamed for another brush fire which started on land owned by the Falls company off Asylum street shortly after 4 o'clock. Six gallons of chemical were used by Engine No. 3 to put out the blaze.

The last call was received at 4:30 o'clock for still another brush and grass fire on land owned by Charles Jennings off Hamilton avenue. Mr. Jennings was burning over his land and people in that section not aware of the fact summoned the department. Squad A and the deputy chief went out on this call, but returned to the station when it was found they were not needed.

Warning From Chief Taft

So far this month the department has responded to a total of 36 calls, 24 of which were for brush and grass fires, which is considerably more than is generally received in this month. In a warning issued Monday evening Chief Taft asked that the residents be more careful in selecting the day on which to burn over old grass and rubbish. His advice was to wait for a day when there was little wind. He pointed out that residents in starting fires on windy days were not only liable to have their own property destroyed, but that of their neighbors.

JUNE IS MONTH FOR MOST AUTO ACCIDENTS

June is the month in the year when automobile accidents are most numerous, Sunday is the day of the week and the hours from 4 to 8 p. m. make the period in the day which are most productive of accidents, according to statistics assembled by the Connecticut motor vehicle department.

Accident records also show that more persons are injured because of accidents on good road surfaces than at all places where road conditions are poor; more are injured at intersections than at all other places on the highways; and more are injured because of automobiles colliding with other objects than are hurt when automobiles collide with other automobiles.

The accidents in June last year, numbering 2,489 exceeded those in May, which was the second high month of the year, by 137. October followed May as the next most dangerous period, with 2,276 accidents, and in turn was followed by December, with 2,209, and July, with 2,203. The smallest number occurred in February when there were 1,651. March was the next best month, with 1,761, and January was third, with 1,913. There was an average of a few more than 2,000 accidents a month for April, August, September and November.

A list of accidents by days shows that there were 4,505 on the Sundays of the year. The nearest approach to this is the total for Saturdays which was 4,295. Totals for other days were: Thursdays, 3,358; Wednesdays, 3,315; Mondays, 3,264; Fridays, 3,228; Thursdays, 3,223. Totals do not vary much for the days Monday to Friday, inclusive. There is a difference, however, of 1,281 between the number of accidents which occurred on Tuesday the lowest figure, and those on Sundays, when the highest figure is reached. The accidents on Saturdays also exceed those of other days, except Sundays, by more than 1,000.

A study of place, conditions and circumstances connected with accidents in which persons were killed or injured also brings out interesting facts. Of the personal injury accidents, 5,191 were at street or road intersections. This was 114 more than the 5,077 which occurred on straight-aways, hills, bridges, curves and railroad crossings. Personal injuries resulted from 7,204 accidents on good road surfaces, while there were only 3,004 on roads where there was ice, oil, mud, sand, and wet or rough surfaces. Of these accidents, 8,191 were in clear weather and 2,077 in stormy weather. There were 5,324 in daylight, 449 at dusk, 4,495 in the hours of darkness.

There were 4,458 personal injury accidents because of collisions between motor vehicles. Opposed to this is a total of 5,818 accidents in which motor vehicles collided with other objects and personal injury resulted. This latter type included 3,871 collisions with pedestrians; 206 with trolleys; 19 with trains; 277 with bicycles; 12 with animals; 973 with stationary objects; 103 with horse drawn vehicles; four with other vehicles; and six listed as miscellaneous. There were also 339 no collision accidents, such as result of skidding, overturning, falls from vehicle, explosions, and the like, which caused personal injury.

FUNERALS

Napoleon Coveau

At 8:15 o'clock, Monday morning, the funeral of Napoleon Coveau was held at his home, No. 2 Oak street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. Mr. LaFontaine played Chopin's Funeral March at the processional and Mr. Sullivan sang De Profundis at the offertory. Some Sweet Day was the waiting hymn by Mr. Sullivan and Mr. LaFontaine played Abide With Me at the recessional.

The interment was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery, Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May conducting the committal service. HEART DISEASES LEAD IN CAUSES OF DEATH

Diseases of the heart, for the sixth consecutive year, accounted for larger claim disbursements than any other disease or cause of death, taking more than one-seventh of the $140,046,625 paid during the year 1929 to families and other beneficiaries of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company policyholders. Two other "degenerative diseases", cerebral hemorrhage and chronic nephritis, accounted together for 12.4 per cent of the total paid out in death claims by this company. Jointly, the three diseases, which are frequently contributory to each other in individual patients, were responsible for nearly one-third of all the deaths and for more than 27 percent of the total sum paid in death claims last year.

Cancer, for which $12,683,300 was paid in death claims, ranked as the second cause from the standpoint of cost to this insurance company, although external causes, which include suicides, homicides and accidents, were responsible for larger distributions than any single disease. Accidents, if considered as a single cause, ranked before cancer in importance, with disbursements amounting to $16,425,000—nearly one-eighth of the total. Automobile fatalities accounted for $5,277,000, nearly one-third of the total paid out on account of accidental deaths and for approximately 4 per cent of the total disbursed for all causes.

Influenza and pneumonia, if considered jointly also overtopped cancer, with disbursements of $15,205,000. For pneumonia, considered separately, the ratio of the amount disbursed to the total for all causes, in 1929, was smaller than in 1928, despite the influenza epidemic, which prevailed early last year. The year would have witnessed a considerable reduction in the pneumonia death rate, and in the cost to insurance companies had it not been for the large number of deaths of influenza origin during the epidemic.

Tuberculosis, despite the fact that a new minimal death rate was recorded for it last year, cost this insurance company $11,453,000 and ranked next to cancer as a single cause of cost to life insurance companies. The percentage of its total claim disbursements in 1929, nevertheless, was only 8.4 as compared with 9.6 in 1928, 11.3 in 1925 and 14.3 in 1920.

Metropolitan disbursements on account of diseases relating to pregnancy and childbirth amounted to $1,440,000 or 1.1 per cent of the total. The percentage of the total paid out has been steadily declining for these diseases, and the actual sums paid in death claims have increased only slightly in recent years, despite the rapidly rising volume of insurance carried on the lives of women.

Suicide and homicide continue to be important items in the budgets of life insurance companies. Out of every $100, paid out by the Metropolitan in death claims last year, $2.50 was on account of suicide, and more than $1 on account of homicide.

The acute communicable diseases of childhood have become relatively unimportant in insurance company calculations and typhoid fever, which established a new low death rate last year, was responsible for only three-tenths of 1 per cent of the company's total disbursements, as compared with nine-tenths of 1 per cent in 1920.

"These figures", according to this report, "show far more than the extent to which death claim payments on account of various diseases affect the budgets of life insurance companies. These deaths, to a large extent, were preventable or postponable. Every life lost was a monetary loss to the community in which death occurred, for the chief asset of any community is the actively and potentially productive citizen.

"Our vital assets have been estimated to exceed our ordinary material wealth five-fold. The death of a breadwinner means that a life full of promise for service to the community has been shortened; that a family has been broken; that children, in many cases, must forego educational advantages which they would have otherwise enjoyed. Communities owe it to themselves to lend all possible encouragement to every measure leading to the conservation of human life."

SAFETY EDUCATION IN SCHOOLS PROTECTS CHILDREN

Safety education in the schools and proper protection of children going to and from school are outstanding "actors in reducing the number of deaths from automobile accidents according to public safety officials of 15 large cities where the 1929 automobile fatality rate showed a decrease over preceding years.

Although there were 31,400 deaths from automobile accidents in 1929, more than in any previous year, 24 of the large cities of the United States reported decreases in deaths from this cause, up to November 24. In the rest of the 78 cities of this class which report to the bureau of census, there were increases in the number of deaths from this cause.

Delving into the factors responsible for the lowering of the death rate from automobile accidents, the Metropolitan Life Insurance company queried officials in these 24 cities. Replies were received from 15 cities, which the insurance company's statistical bureau has summarized as follows:

"The most outstanding development brought out by the Metropolitan's inquiry is that in all 15 cities alert safety officials had emphasized safety education in the schools and had employed measures to protect school children on their way to and from the school buildings. In seven cities, the active interest of the school children was enlisted and the boys made members of junior traffic patrols. In one New England city, safety literature was printed by training school boys. In five cities, special traffic officers, or officials, gave talks to the pupils.

"It is thus obvious that all fifteen of these municipalities concentrated their safety program at the very point where it was possible to make the greatest gain; namely, on saving lives among the children, for, in American cities one-third of the deaths from automobile accidents affect children.

"With respect to better traffic regulation and stricter enforcement of traffic rules, the following items were brought out; six cities added more or less to their installation of traffic signals and lights; four established more full-stop intersections and either eliminated some of the grade crossings or took steps to make them safer; four added to the number of safety islands or safety zones; two increased the number of one-way streets. In eight cities, the officials state that there were stricter enforcement of traffic regulations last year, with special emphasis upon such important items as increase of traffic officers at heavily traveled intersections during peak hours, additional motorcycle men, drives against improper lights, etc.

"In several cities, the officials have realized the value of publicity in their campaigns against automobile accidents. In three, successful efforts were made to secure the interest and cooperation of the press; and three delegated traffic officers, or officials, to lecture on safety before civic and fraternal organizations. One city used the radio, while another employed billboard publicity and distributed safety literature. Safe driving contests with prizes, were featured by one city.

"In one city, those in control of traffic do not believe in 'drives', and report that much of the credit for reducing the automobile fatality rate, in 1929, must be ascribed to a policy of strictly enforcing at all times a 'workable traffic ordinance'. In this city, which has a population of more than 325,000, an average of 3,000 automobiles a month are tagged for 'minor traffic regulations' and the monthly average for arrests is about 400. The officials report that as the result of a long period of education and enforcement pedestrians are cooperating in obeying the traffic lights."

MURRAY GARAGE, ASHAWAY, BURNED WITH LOSS OF $12,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 24—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the public garage of Andrew Murray at Ashaway about 10:30 tonight. Besides the garage, six automobiles, a complete tool shop equipment and a large quantity of supplies were destroyed. The loss is set at between $12,000 and $15,000.

Passing motorists discovered the flames inside the garage and telephoned a call to the Westerly fire department. One pumper company was despatched to the fire, but so rapidly did the garage burn that the firemen were unable to save any of its contents. Besides the garage, Murray lost a wrecking car and a coach. Machines owned by Harry Martin, William McDonald, Percy Byron and Walter Eccleston were destroyed.

A party of four Westerly boys, Elisha Peckham, Nelson Thorpe, Grant and Gordon Perrin, who were among the discoverers of the blaze, managed to force open the front door in an effort to save some contents, but were driven from the building by an explosion at the rear. They and Peter Pidaro, also of Westerly, called the Westerly fire department.

Murray stated that he closed the place at 7 o'clock and everything was all right at the time. He was in Hope Valley demonstrating a car when the fire was discovered.

GOSHEN

W. L. Curry at Crystal Spring farm Tuesday morning, came near losing his house by fire which caught from a defective flue in the attic of the ell. It was fortunate there was no high wind, but for the Lebanon power pumper that soon arrived, the large farm house would have been lost, as the flames were eating their way into the partitions and getting beyond control. Another fortunate incident was there was plenty of water in a near by ice pond for the powerful fire fighting machine to draw from. The timely use of the telephone was another factor that saved the dwelling.

March 12th, the anniversary of the blizzard of '88 was mostly a clear day until late in the afternoon when from a black cloud out from the west there was the hardest snow squall ever seen for about half an hour the big flakes came down in handfuls, and during part of the time it was a curious incident that the sun was shining. The white blanket made good sledding on grass ground, as one man was seen trying it out.

The annual church meeting is to be held April 1st at 2 p. m. Dinner will be served at the noon hour. There will also be the church roll call.

A meeting of the social committee of the C. E. society was held at the home of Mrs. E. W. Jones, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. J. A. Thomas entertained the Ladies' Aid society, Thursday, for an all-day meeting. A variety lunch was served at noon. During the day a rug was woven and some sewing accomplished.

Mrs. E. W. Jones was the leader of the leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening, an interesting feature was a debate, "Resolved; that Paul was a greater Evangelist than Peter." Mary Kostowich and Michael Varnish had the affirmative and Alice Faulkner and Stephen Gorski the negative. All presented convincing arguments.

Peep frogs have been heard on several occasions, but the temperature is still a little too chilly to hear the full chorus, yet it seems cheery to hear the blackbirds (red wing) and the wakups again.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, or so-called "morning sickness," this simple measure is proving a blessing. Most nurses know it and it is advised by leading specialists.

Prepare a small quanity of finely cracked ice—about a wineglassful. Pour over it a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until the mixture is gone or you are entirely relieved. It is seldom necessary to repeat the dose to end sick stomach or any inclination to vomit.

Its anti-acid properties enable Phillips Milk of Magnesia to give immediate relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild, but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouthwash it helps prevent acid erosion and tooth decay during expectancy.

NEW LONDON CITY MANAGER DELAYS DECISION IN PATROLMAN'S CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 24.—Patrolman John Sullivan was given a hearing before City Manager William A. Holt at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the municipal building, charged with conduct unbecoming an officer as a result of Mrs. Theresa Grihl, rear 26 Truman street, alleging that on the night of March 21 Officer Sullivan entered her home and made improper proposals to her. The officer was represented by counsel in Attorney Morris Lubchansky. As a result of the nature of the charges against the officer, Judge Daniel M. Cronin, Deputy Judge John McGarry and Mayor Cornelius D. Twomey, who would have the power to endorse the dismissal of the officer as a member of the police department in the event that such an edict would be issued by the city manager, attended the hearing, as did Attorney Thomas E. Troland, counsel for the city and Attorney Max Boyer, prosecuting attorney of the police court. The hearing was not concluded until after 4 o'clock when the taking of testimony was finished. City Manager Holt reserved decision but it is expected that he will make known his finding tomorrow. The hearing developed into a heated affair in which Attorney Lubchansky verbally chastised Desk Sergeant William Babcock and Director of Law Troland, the criticism of the attorney for the defendant being vehement and bitter. The officer is accused of having entered the home of Mrs. Grihl and to having attempted to induce her to enter a bedroom with him. The officer admitted having gone to the house and while off duty, but because of the residence being on his beat and having been instructed by his superior officer to maintain a watch of the premises, that last Friday night when he observed two young men approach the house, he waited a few minutes and then went there. He said he was admitted by Mrs. Grihl, but did not find the two youths he had seen approach the house. Officer Sullivan denied emphatically that he extended an invitation to Mrs. Grihl to enter the room and there was no corroborating testimony that such an invitation was extended.

ROBERT COLEMAN SOUGHT—ASSAULTED CONNIE BURT

Robert Coleman, colored and residing at 16 Hill street, is being sought by the police on a charge of assaulting Connie Burt, also colored and of the same address. Coleman attacked the woman with a bread knife and that he did not sink the blade into the woman's body was because of Elie Pijeaux, 690 Bank street, combatting the knife-wielder. Coleman and Pijeaux were at the Hill street house about 1 o'clock. It is a resort conducted by Coleman and the Burt woman. A quarrel occurred and during a harsh exchange of words. Coleman seized the knife and attacked the woman, but before he had an opportunity to use the knife he was opposed by Pijeaux. During the fight for possession of the knife, Pijeaux got a cut on his hand. When Coleman lost his grip on the knife, the fight ended and the Negro made his hasty departure because the Burt woman had summoned the police. Officers made a search for Coleman, but he could not be found. Coleman and the Burt woman have been arrested several times, charged with conducting a disorderly house.

An automobile driven by A. Denison Smith, 284 Crystal avenue, in passing through Bank street Sunday night, hit a parked car, the owner of which is not known. The car struck sustained slight damage.

AWOKE TO FIND A MAN CLIMBING IN WINDOW

Mrs. Michael Connolly, 14 Orchard street, was aroused from her slumber early today by an intruder, who was attempting to gain entrance to the woman's sleeping room by means of an open window. Mrs. Connolly, who retired about 11 o'clock, was awakened by the fellow, who was about half way through the window when she observed the form of the man. Mrs. Connolly screamed and the fellow was scared away. He dropped to the ground and was observed to flee through the yard and into Squire street, where he disappeared. Mrs. Connolly, who was alone in the house, communicated with police headquarters and Patrolman Dennis Murphy went to the house, finding that the fellow had removed a screen from the open window and then attempted to gain access to the sleeping room. The only description Mrs. Connolly could give of the man was that he wore a cap and overcoat, with the collar of the coat turned up.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Bringing dramatic scenes aboard a raiding Zeppelin to the screen, "The Sky Hawk" sets many new thrill records and also has the distinction of being the great all-talking production filmed in the air. John Garrick, Helen Chandler and Gilbert Emery share leading honors in the Fox Movietone film showing today and Wednesday at the Breed theatre.

Spectacular scenes of Zeppelin raids over London, impressive shots of a huge British training airdrome, and a breath-taking climax of an aerial duel between a Zeppelin and a British fighting plane, all serve to lift this Fox all-talking Movietone picture into a class by itself.

A noteworthy cast headed by John Garrick, with Helen Chandler and Gilbert Emery, the excellent direction of John G. Blystone and an intensely human and dramatic story by Llewellyn Hughes contribute to the success of this Fox Movietone picture.

Broadway Theatre

In addition to the final showings of the big naval musical comedy "Hit the Deck" at the Broadway tonight, the Broadway management has the treat of the season for its patrons in the stage appearance for the first time in uniform of the now famous Norwich Free Academy band. The boys have arranged a special program under the direction of their leader, Mr. Swahn, and inasmuch as they receive a share in the receipts, all Norwich is expected to turn out and welcome the boys. Their surprise finale number will literally "raise the roof." Starting tomorrow, another big double feature will occupy the screen headed by a hectic drama of Chicago racketeering, with a headline cast. Charlie Ruggles, that lovable "souse," as a reporter is sent to investigate the disappearance of a brother reporter, who he finds has been "put on the spot" by the rum-runners, headed by Fred Kohler. In the meantime the "gang" has taken over the town where their river hide-out is located, and a wildly exciting skirmish of wits and action takes place when the raiders headed by the boozy reporter invade their stronghold. Helen Morgan is the "blind" for the gang, and that famous team of vaudeville funsters, Clayton, Jackson and Durante, furnish additional comedy of the side-splitting variety. They are rated as close competitors of the famous Marx "Cocoanuts" Brothers, Durante's "Schnozzle" character being a world beater. The companion picture marks the first screen appearance of the radio favorite, Rudy Vallee, with his famous Connecticut Yankees' band, and his crooning voice is heard to good advantage in several numbers. Sally Blane is a lovely sweetheart of the small-town band leader who learned to play via correspondence school, and Marie Dressler is a scream as a climbing society matron. Charles Sellon, Eddie Nugent, and the famous "Yanks" are also prominent in the cast. All ears are attuned for the first talking picture by that mysterious exotic Swedish star, Greta Garbo, who appears at the Broadway Saturday in a wonderfully dramatic story, "Anna Christie."

Palace Theatre

And still they come! More and better double feature programs for the Palace theatre patrons. By this time the whole town is talking about the unusual entertainment values which the Palace provides on such occasions. It is just like seeing two shows, except that one may see them at the Palace for the price of one.

Starting tomorrow, the Palace presents Tom Moore and Blanche Sweet in a brilliant picture of night club life, "The Woman Racket," as well as Eddie Dowling and Betty Compson in "Blaze o' Glory," a splendid talking, singing and dancing photoplay set against the background of war. This is an unusual treat.

BLANCHE SWEET and TOM MOORE in "THE WOMAN RACKET"

The plot of "The Woman Racket" has to do with a policeman who marries a night club hostess, and his battle with the underworld to bring her back when she deserts him for her old life. It is a great tale of the Great White Way, and it is an absorbing study to watch the woman change from velvet and diamonds to plain gingham and wedding ring, and then gradually find herself oppressed by the petty economies of married life. Soon the position of being a policeman's wife begins to pall on her, and she has a great longing for the lights and the dancing and the songs of the night club. She finally gives in to her desire, and having gone back to the club, becomes involved in the murder of a millionaire gambler. Her husband then has the job of clearing up her name, and what a job that is! That isn't all he has to do, either. Just come along and see how fiercely this husband battles to win back the love of the woman to whom he gave his name.

"Blaze o' Glory" opens on the stage of a New York theatre during the action of a musical comedy, then passes backstage into the intimacy of dressing rooms, and finally makes a dramatic sweep across the seas into the trenches. Then back again to a New York home the action swings, and eventually ends up with a terrific climax in one of the most dramatic courtroom episodes ever staged. It is one thrill after another, a dramatic triumph.

Today for the last times the Palace presents "Montana Moon," starring Joan Crawford and John Mack Brown in a magnificent drama.

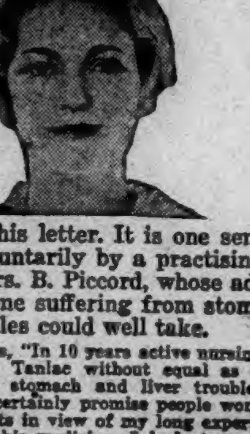
No Substitute For Tanlac

For Quick Relief of Stomach, Liver, Kidney and "Rheumatic" Troubles — Two of The Most Remarkable Endorsements Ever Given A Medicine

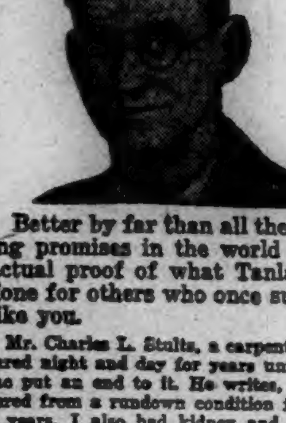
TANLAC WITHOUT EQUAL SAYS NURSE



Read this letter. It is one sent to us voluntarily by a practising nurse, Mrs. B. Piccord, whose advice anyone suffering from stomach troubles could well take.

She writes, "In 10 years active nursing have found Tanlac without equal as a remedy for stomach and liver troubles and I can certainly promise people wonderful results in view of my long experience with this medicine. I had stomach troubles, myself for years, could eat scarcely anything without suffering, never any appetite, always nervous and rundown. But as soon as I began Tanlac, it started to build me right up. All stomach troubles were routed and never any pain, distress or gases since. Now I eat everything with perfect safety and weigh more now than in past 15 years." Tanlac is not a patent medicine. Every drop is real medicine designed to do its part in making you well. Accept no substitute.

IN 21 DAYS KIDNEY, BLADDER, STOMACH TROUBLES END



Better by far than all the glowing promises in the world is the actual proof of what Tanlac has done for others who once suffered like you.

Mr. Charles L. Stults, a carpenter, suffered night and day for years until Tanlac put an end to it. He writes, "I suffered from a rundown condition for 3 or 4 years. I also had kidney and bladder troubles as well as indigestion and pains in stomach and side. My sleep was disturbed 4 or 5 times a night. I saw Tanlac advertised and decided to try it. I had tried other things which failed but after I had taken 3 bottles of Tanlac my kidney, bladder troubles and pains disappeared and never returned." Tanlac gives results and gives them quickly, for every ingredient in it is a strong potent medicine. Get a bottle today at your druggist.

DANIELSON

LOCAL MAN ARRESTED FOR PASSING FRAUDULENT CHECK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 24—Timothy F. Quinn, a resident of this town, was arrested by state officers today on a charge of passing a fraudulent check. He was released this afternoon under bonds of $100 for appearance in the city court of Putnam Tuesday morning. The check, for a small sum was drawn on the Danielson Trust company, where Quinn had no funds at the time the check was presented for collection. The check was passed at the Rose Ann Inn on the Putnam road, near Grove street cemetery. Twice prior to this occasion Quinn has found himself in similar situations as the result of issuing checks when he had insufficient funds on deposit.

Chicken Thieves Caught

Chicken thieving was responsible for the arrest today by state officers of the Danielson barracks of Michael Chykow and Carmine Valeski, both Canterbury youths and each about 20 years of age. Ten Rhode Island reds that were the property of Lucy Baldwin of Canterbury were stolen by Chykow and Valeski, and the pair also got away with 25 more chickens that were owned by an aged man that lives alone in Canterbury. The youths sold the stolen chickens in Willimantic. They were to be presented for prosecution this afternoon in a justice's court in the town of Canterbury.

Chicken thieving has been more or less prevalent in territory for miles around for a number of weeks past, and the matter has caused state officers and Rhode Island troopers of the North Scituate barracks to make a special effort to apprehend the thieves.

FUNERAL

Moise Gosselin

This morning the funeral of Moise Gosselin was held from the home with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., being celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery, the committal service conducted by Rev. J. A. Demers, M. S. The bearers were Omer LaBarre, Oliver Bessette, Leon Renard, Arthur Mailloux, William Mailloux and Eugene Brassard. L. E. Kennedy had charge of the arrangements.

Rev. Harding W. Gaylord has announced that the special communion service this year for the reception of members who have attended the minister's class of the Westfield Congregational church is to be held on the evening of Palm Sunday, April 13. The general topic presented for the class is Christianity and Church Membership. Others who will be welcomed into fellowship at the time mentioned are those who would like to join by letters from other churches.

The many Danielson streets that are oiled each year will again be treated within the next few weeks. Experience has shown that oiling keeps the street surfaces in much better condition than when they had gravel tops. At the present time where there is a particularly large amount of wear and tear on some streets or particular parts of streets the surfacing has broken down, but repairs will be promptly made.

The Tri-County Y. M. C. A. camp at Black Pond in Woodstock—Camp Woodstock—will open in early July this year, and during the weeks that follow a large number of boys and girls will spend fixed periods there. There will be a considerable number in attendance from Danielson, and the young people are looking forward to their stay there with keen anticipation.

Unusually dangerous conditions exist, as to the possibility of grass and woodland fires getting started, prevail throughout the countryside at the present time. For that reason fire wardens are especially stressing the need of great care on the part of persons going into the woods as to discarding matches, cigarettes or other lighted things. Considerable damage to property already has occurred this season in this and nearby towns from fires believed to have been the result of carelessness. An especially dangerous practice, and a very common one, is that of tossing lighted cigarettes from automobiles traveling along the highways.

E. C. Rogers, owner and operator of the Putnam Inn and who purchased the T. E. Hopkins estate on North Main street last fall with a view to giving Danielson a modern hotel, is having some landscaping work done on the lawns there this week. Mr Rogers has not revealed all his plans for this season pertaining to the property, which some day is destined to be one of the fine hotel properties in this section of the state.

Cases arising over the week end and in which state officers of the Danielson barracks were interested were disposed of today in courts in neighboring towns. Louis Frechette, Moosup, arrested by State Officer Royal V. Scranton, was fined $25 and costs in the town court of Plainfield for operating a car with defective brakes. Alix Heino, Greene, R. I., was in the same court today to answer to a charge of reckless driving. His car figured in an accident at Central Village being in collision with another machine. He pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs. Oskar Holkanan of Plainfield pleaded guilty to operating a car with defective brakes and was fined $25 and costs.

Lines marking safety zones in Danielson's business section need repainting. They have been largely obliterated during the winter season. It is not an infrequent thing now for motorists unintentionally to park their cars across these zones, and large numbers of people instead of crossing in these zones cross wherever they like, risking figuring in an accident.

Now that there appears to be a chance that Danielson may be alloted an appropriation for the erection of a postoffice building, so badly needed here, speculation is underway as to a location for it. Several sites that would be convenient and desirable have been discussed by those unofficially interesting themselves in the matter. Whether or not any of these sites are selected when the government is ready to purchase is wholly uncertain, it appears.

The dog quarantine in the towns of Sterling and Killingly, both of which touch the borders of this town, is now regarded as quite fully effective. However, officials charged with the duty of seeing that the quarantine is strictly obeyed will keep a sharp lookout for roaming dogs.

There were encouraging reports today from Howard Woodson of Brooklyn, patient at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam and progressing toward recovering after being seriously injured last week when a carbide gas tank exploded. The young man will bear the scars of the accident for life, but it now appears that he has no fracture of the skull. X-ray pictures may be taken, however, later in the week.

Burton Wilson, now attached to the U. S. S. Southerly, a receiving vessel now in Boston, has been a visitor here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson.

John Clark Pond, who died recently at Scotia, Cal., where he had gone from his home in Kansas City, Mo., was a native of Brooklyn, born 77 years ago. He is survived by two sons.

Indications now are that Danielson will go on daylight saving time Sunday, April 27, in common with many other places in eastern Connecticut.

Many Danielson boxing fans are planning to be in Taftville next Friday evening when Dynamite Lou Brouillard and Rene Peloquin, local battlers, will take on opponents.

The flowers at the Westfield Congregational church Sunday were in memory of Deacon William H. Chollar, for many years a member of the church.

Harold C. Mendon of Springfield returned to his home today after visiting with friends in Danielson.

Homer H. Judd of Bristol will come to Brooklyn this week, as a representative of the state fish and game commission and in relation to making Blackwell's brook ready as a state-leased fishing stream.

This morning there was a brief service conducted by Rev. Ignatius Kost at St. Joseph's church in Dayville for Richard Harris, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Harris. The body was entombed in St. Joseph's cemetery. L. E. Kennedy had charge of the funeral.

The Windham County Y. M. C. A. basketball team was returned the winner over the Hartford County Y team in the state championship contests run off at Storrs at the week end.

PUTNAM

BURGLARS MAKE FOUR BREAKS AND STEAL CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 24.—In a robbery at the Bundy street service station of the Putnam Buick Sales company, believed to have been committed sometime between 11 o'clock Sunday night and 1 o'clock this morning, burglars escaped with a 1929 LaSalle sedan, valued at $2,500. The large automobile, which had been refueled the previous evening for a Boston drive to have been made by F. M. Bruce this morning, was the only thing reported to the police as stolen in the break at the Buick garage which was one of four burglaries committed in this city over the week end.

The discovery of the garage break by Officer Harry Wallen this morning, soon brought to light the fact that the Arnold Sea Grill in front of the garage had also been entered. Officer Wallen immediately communicated with Sergeant A. J. Spoonecy and an investigation was started. At 8 o'clock this morning the fireman at the Putnam Steam laundry on Pomfret street reported to the police that burglars had also entered the Odd Fellows building and ransacked the offices of the laundry and the plumbing house of W. J. F. Rafferty.

Entrance to the laundry had been gained in the same manner as the previous break last Sunday morning—through a window in the rear of the building. A window in the basement of the Rafferty shop was open, enabling thieves to enter and make their way to the offices on the first floor.

With the aid of a sledge hammer and packing bar taken from the tool crib of the plumbing shop, the burglars in a futile attempt to force the safe open, knocked off the dial. Aware of the damage they had caused, they then ransacked desk drawers and other recesses in the room in search of the money hiding place. As a matter of fact, it is not the policy of the proprietor to leave any money in the office after business hours. The same is true of the management of the steam laundry.

It appeared that burglars then proceeded to the laundry building where they repeated their tactics of last Sunday. Failing to open the large safe after they had knocked off the dial, hinges and bolt lever, the thieves diverted their attentions to the ransacking of desks, filing cabinets, jimmeyed open a cash drawer, found it devoid of any money and departed, apparently making their exit in the same manner as they entered. Ellsworth L. Kelley, proprietor of the laundry, said this afternoon that not an article was taken.

At Arnold's Sea Grill a window on the ground floor was broken, the window fastener unlatched and the window opened, allowing the burglars to make their way into the restaurant. The rooms were searched in search of money containers, but none were to be found, Mrs. C. D. Arnold told police this morning. Nothing of value was reported as having been stolen.

PUTNAM FIRE COMPANY SAVES MECHANICSVILLE HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 24.—Members of the pumper company at the central fire station in Union square working under the direction of Chief Ralph E. Thurston saved a two-tenement house in Mechanicsville from destruction by fire early this afternoon by their quick and efficient work.

The fire broke out shortly after 3 o'clock. A small battalion of volunteer fire-fighters enlisted to combat the flames, but the absence of necessary equipment necessitated that a call for help be sent to the local fire department. Chief Thurston and the pumper company responded immediately, making the two and a half mile drive in fast time. The supply of water in the booster tank was exhausted and a line of hose was laid before the firemen were able to bring the flames under control and finally extinguish them with chemicals.

Fire got into partitions and made a stubborn attempt to resist the efforts of the firemen. Considerable damage was caused to the house by smoke and water, but the blaze was checked before flames enveloped the roof. After an investigation, Chief Thurston discovered a box of matches beneath a sink in one of the tenements, which apparently had been ignited by mice. Chief Thurston estimated the fire loss at $300.

While discussing the work of the fire department since Jan. 1, Chief Thurston commented this afternoon on the number of brush fires that have required the attention of the fire department. The chief intimated that most of the grass and brush fires were the direct result of carelessness and in the majority of cases can be and should be prevented.

While examining the fire record for the past month, Chief Thurston cited the fire at the residence of A. Weiss on Maynard street on March 14, as an example of what invariably happens when property owners are permitted by the city to build wooden structures, especially garages, so close to dwelling houses. Only the quick work of the firemen prevented a dangerous conflagration in the north end of the city on the morning of the Weiss fire. Chief Thurston averred that the fire was caused by carelessness on the part of some person residing in that vicinity, which is thickly settled. Since his appointment as head of the fire department eight years ago, Chief Thurston has sternly objected to the erection of wooden structures in the densely populated districts of the city, where in many cases fire traps are created. The chief undoubtedly will bring this matter before the fire committee of the common council at its next meeting on Tuesday evening, April 8.

Mrs. Emily Durand, 74, of Church street, mother of Patrolman Benoni Durand, is suffering from a fracture of the shoulder, sustained Friday evening when she tripped and fell on a piece of defective sidewalk on Batty street. Mrs. Durand was returning from Lenten devotions at St. Mary's church when she encountered the misfortune. She was attended by physicians at the Day Kimball hospital and later returned to the home of her son. Her condition was reported today as being favorable.

A death in Woodstock today was that of Mrs. Lucy Bradford, wife of Irving F. Bradford of the West Village. Mrs. Bradford was 35 years of age. She had been ill only a short time previous to her death. She was born in Pomfret, the daughter of Benajmin and Martha (Baker) Chandler, and spent the greater part of her life in this section of the county, where she was widely known.

Mrs. Julia Kozey, 38, a native of Poland, but for a number of years a resident of Eastford, died Sunday at her home in that village following a prolonged illness. She is survived by her husband, Harry Kozey, of Eastford, and eight children.

Military funeral services for Wilfred Chandler, son of Earnest L. Chandler, whose death occurred last Tuesday in Hartford, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel of the Congregational church. Rev. James F. English, pastor of the church, officiated at the service and conducted a committal service at the grave in Grove street cemetery. A firing squad composed of ex-service men fired a volley over the grave of the deceased veteran as the casket was being lowered.

The fire department experienced a busy week end, according to the report filed today with Chief Ralph E. Thurston. On Saturday morning at 7:45 o'clock the department was called for a small fire at the home of Charles Bove on Main street. No loss. On Sunday morning at 9:10 o'clock the department was called for a grass fire on Church street in the rear of the municipal building. No loss. At 2:35 o'clock Sunday afternoon the companies at the central station responded to a still alarm for a grass fire at the home of E. B. Kent on Grove street. No loss. The next alarm was received this afternoon for a fire in Mechanicsville.

Charles H. Potter, a resident of East Woodstock, died at his home there Saturday evening following a prolonged illness. He was in his 78th year. Mr. oPtter was born in Woodstock on Dec. 4, 1852, the son of Benjamin W. and Nancy (Chamberlain) Potter. He spent the greater part of his life in the town of his birth. He was active in town affairs and was widely known in the Woodstocks.

Interior finishing operations are going through at a rapid pace at the new Main street banking home of the Cargill Trust company, which is nearing completion.

F. M. Bruce of Canal street was in Boston today.

Mrs. Odelia Tetreault of Powatton street will be in police court tomorrow morning on charges growing out of her arrest for alleged violations of the liquor laws. Mrs. Tetreault will be arraigned on charges of owning and keeping with intent to offer intoxicating liquors for sale.

LOCAL GIRLS' TEAM LOSES COUNTY TITLE TO NEW LONDON BY FOUR POINTS

By a margin of four points the Norwich Girls team lost the title of girls champions of eastern Connecticut to the New London Y. W. C. A. at the local Y. M. C. A. court last night, the score being 39 to 35. After leading the New London team 23 to 15 in the first half the Norwich team slipped and the visitors overtook the locals to win out by two baskets. The game was fast and furious with the outcome in doubt throughout the struggle.

The Y Seniors closed their season in a listless manner when they dropped a loose played game to the Saybrook team 50 to 35. The regulars, with the exception of Harris, appeared to take no interest in the game and their playing was such that Coach Demarest pulled the team from the floor. The substitutes finished the game and made a very good showing. The summaries:

ACADEMY SQUAD CUT TO 34 PLAYERS

Three catchers, eleven pitchers, nine infielders and eleven outfielders have survived the final cut of the Academy baseball squad announced Monday by Coach Earle E. Brigham, bringing the present strength of the Wildcat forces to 34.

This number worked out at the Y gym for two hours Monday afternoon, most of which time being spent in a practice game. Several shifts were made in the lineups, especially in the pitching.

The present list of candidates, no more of whom will feel the axe this year follows:

Catchers—Fontaine, McGuinness, Stefano.

Pitchers—Weingarber, Greene, Richards, Lavarge, Aex, Caron, Karkutt, Brown, Walker, Hamil, Russilo.

Infielders—Ariot, Sherry, Sabrowski, Fitzgerald, Gibbs, Breen, Riordan, Nadeau.

Outfielders—Crowell, Flatber, Geer, Berghimer, Holden, Carter, Demba, Lyons, Dickerman, Butkiewicz.

From now on, until the opening game April 8, every practice will get stiffer. Batting and infield practice is bound to start shortly. In Monday's practice game several of the boys were hitting the ball on the nose and to Chet Berghimer went the honor of the longest drive, a triple through the left center. Bitgood, after a year's absence, is making a strong bid for a position, hitting the ball hard and handling with his old-time skill.

A slight shift in the first team lineup gives (Speed) Riordan to second base in place of Walter Nevick and Harry Barry who had down duty there last week. Riordan has an arm like a rifle, but the keystone sack is still the center of a hot fight by these three and possibly Jerry Fitzgerald, the second team's third baseman last year. The best hitter will probably get the call as they all show up on a par in fielding.

There will be no practice games with local teams before the Richmond Radiators clash a week from Saturday according to Coach Brigham. Several teams have been seeking a date, especially on the coming Saturday.

Johnny Lyons, track and cross-country star, joined the squad Monday, having forsaken the cinders for the national game. He is after an outfield berth.

JARVIS HAS EXAMINATION BY HARTFORD SPECIALIST

That Lloyd Jarvis, the former Academy baseball star, is having his share of trouble since the spring is trying to break into the lineup of the Holy Cross varsity nine is seen in reports coming out of Worcester, where Coach Jack Barry has his team hard at work for the opening game.

It seems that Lloyd's arm, which went bad last spring while he was with the freshman squad, is again troubling him in the opening workouts. It is understood that Barry has sent the clever southpaw to a Hartford specialist last week to have his arm treated. The outcome of the trip is not known.

Those who have closely followed the Holy Cross team for many years claim that Jarvis stands a very bright chance of fitting into the left field position regularly. He was rated as one of the best fly-chasers on the yearling team in 1929 where he played left field for a good part of the time. The trouble with his arm is said not to distract the accuracy or power of the wing but such toss causes pain to the Jewett City youngster.

It would be most unfortunate if Lloyd cannot shake off this trouble and fans all through Eastern Connecticut, friends and the allies of the Academy, are pulling for him to come through. With Lloyd on Holy Cross, the Academy would have its first representative on a major college nine in many years.

EIGHT WATER HOLES ON NEW ATLANTA COURSE

ATLANTA, Ga., March 24—(AP)—A golf course equally suitable to champions and duffers has been constructed by the "Eastlake Country club, whose colors Bobby Jones wears in his golfing wars.

Each of the 18 holes of the new course has been equipped with two tees. The back tees, for use in tournaments, make the total yardage about 7,000, while front tees gladden the duffers' hearts and cut 1,000 yards off the distance.

The 18 hole layout is supplemental to the old course on which Jones learned the shots that carried him to the pinnacle among the nation's amateurs. Donald Ross, noted golf course architect, was the designer.

The course rambles through heavily wooded terrain and is crossed by four streams which serve as water hazards on eight of the holes.

Formal opening of the new layout awaits only the filling out of spring grass on the greens. Scott Hudson, president of the club, says it will be ready for play about the time other rounds from the English invasion, which is to begin next month.

RAIN PREVENTS ATHLETICS AND PHILLIES FROM CLASHING

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Managers Burt Shotton of the Phillies and Connie Mack of the Athletics had a conference here today about the exhibition series. The confab was that the Phillies started back to Winterhaven through a tropical downpour, disappointed that they could not play the first game of the series with the Athletics for the baseball championship of Philadelphia.

There was talk of the Phillies staying over until tomorrow, as both teams have an open date. However, it was decided not to play, and the first tussle between the two Philadelphia teams will be held at Winterhaven Wednesday.

THEVENOW TAKING LESSONS IN BATTING FROM O'DOUL

WINTERHAVEN, Fla., Mar. 24.—(AP)—Tommy Thevenow, the Phillies' shortstop, who finished with a batting average of .227 last season, is not going to be at the bottom of the plate this year if Lefty O'Doul can prevent it.

Lefty, who hit his way to the top of the National league in 1929, has made a proposition to Thevenow that he expects to show results. Tommy has been brought quick results. One of those results is that Tommy adopting Lefty's type and weight of bat. O'Doul's motive in helping Thevenow, the players say, is that he likes to see his teammates smack them.

RISKO GETS VERDICT OVER CAMPOLO

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, March 24.—(AP)—Poetic justice rode with tough old Johnny Risko tonight and the rubbery spoiler of many a fine heavyweight's plans gained for himself a ten round decision over rough awkward Victorio Campolo, mañana mauler from the Argentine.

Risko won a verdict that popular consent said should have been his three weeks ago when the strangest assortment of all the heavyweight pairs met for the first time on the ill-fated Sharkey-Scott card at Miami.

But just as the crowd in the southland believed that night the [illegible] against the colorful old "deer" ... [illegible] ... the return engagement, ... award of the decision to Risko tonight.

In the opinion of one of the judges and Referee Arthur Donovan, Risko won the decision after a gruelling battle ... [illegible] ... of the mammoth Argentinian.

The other judge thought that Campolo had won.

A majority of the ringside critics and the crowd as a whole thought Risko had a fairly comfortable margin.

Although both landed scores of solid smashes, neither was ever in danger of a knockdown. Risko rocked the Argentine in the seventh round with a volley of looping left swings to the body, but Victorio rallied strongly. Again in the ninth, Campolo was forced into retreat by Risko's dogged head attack.

Campolo had Johnny wobbling in the second, third, eighth and tenth rounds, but Risko always managed to shake off the winging right handers to the head and come back for more.

The 15,000 gathered for the charity show sponsored by the House of Calvary Cancer hospital paid $49,421 for the privilege.

Campolo, in addition to his wide advantage in height and reach, weighed 223 1-4, Risko weighed 196.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years).

Do you remember the old Norwich Stars? Of course you old-timers do and for the younger generation, just read this and then take a look in Frank Fagan's window for the picture of this sterling ball-club of days some years in the rear.

On Saturday, July 20, 1889, however, the Stars were not so brilliant. They went to Putnam and were beaten, 11 to 4, in one of the weirdest of exhibitions. Billy Moore pitched for the Stars that day, but was decidedly off-form which, together with some very erratic support by his teammates gave the up-the-liners an easy win. Moore was found for 15 hits, one of them a home run. He had two wild pitches and hit two. He fanned seven while his opponent, McGorty, struck out eight men.

Norwich only made eight hits, three of them by John Stanley. It is not known whether Billy Moore used the bat that is now on exhibition in Jack's Sport Shop for this game. The score:

HARRIS CUTS SQUAD TO ONLY 29 MEN

TAMPA, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Manager Stanley Harris has cut the roster of the Detroit Tigers to 29 men, it became known today. This involved sending down four players who have been training here.

Frank Barnes, pitcher, goes to Toledo; John Prudhomme, pitcher, Toronto; William R. Steinecke, catcher, to Beaumont, Texas, and Charles Staples, pitcher, to Evansville, Ind.

Each of the players goes to a club with which the Tigers have a working agreement. On June 15 Henry Greenberg, first baseman from New York, and John Watson, infielder, from Marshall college, West Virginia, will be sent away, but both are expected back in some future year.

A scheduled exhibition game with Tampa, Southeastern league club was rained out today.

YANKEES HAVE QUIET DAY AS IT RAINS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24—(AP)—With the exhibition game against the Toronto Leafs going the way of all the rest in the general washout today, the New York Yankees had nothing better to do than talk over the baseball situation. As previous dope had indicated, they agreed on Ben Chapman, the St. Paul youngster, as them ost promising recruit and an almost certain fixture at third base. Young Bob Walsh is slated to be farmed out as soon as the Yankee management can find a good spot for him, but it is believed that he will be back on the New York pitching force in another year or two.

The pitching mainstays are expected to be Pennock, Hoyt, Pingras, Zachary, Wells and Sherid while Dickey and Hargrave seem due to handle most of the pitching.

FRIEDMAN ASSISTS IN COACHING AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, March 24—(AP)—Benny Friedman, one time Michigan star and all-American quarterback, came to Yale today to assist in coaching the backfield for one week of spring football practice. He was especially invited by Mal Stevens, head coach.

During the week Friedman will give the backs a passing drill and will pay special attention to the quarterbacks.

Seventy-five candidates were out today for the hour and a half's work which included dummy scrimmage.

Browns Have Holiday

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 24—(AP)—After a light workout today Manager Bill Killifer of the St. Louis Browns declared a holiday for his charges. Killifer is fearful lest his athletes become over-trained. While the players rested, Killifer spent much time worrying about his batting order. Tomorrow the Browns will meet the House of David team here.

Braves-Card Game—Rain

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 24—(AP)—Rain saved the Boston Braves from a bus ride to Bradenton where today's game with the St. Louis Cardinals was scheduled. This holiday gave Manager Bill McKechnie a chance to continue his search for another catcher to add to the Braves' woefully weak receiving staff.

WALTER ECKERSALL, ATHLETE, REFEREE, AND SPORTS WRITER, DIES SUDDENLY

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP)—Walter Herbert Eckersall, one of football's immortals, is dead.

Death, caused by a heart attack, overtook the once famous streak of the gridiron suddenly and unexpectedly at 2.30 p. m. today in his room at the Chicago Athletic association where he had been bedridden for only a few days. He was 46 years old.

Ill for the last year, not even his most intimate friends realized the end was so near. Last fall, he jeopardized his health by leaving his sick bed and continuing his duties as football referee and sports writer for the Chicago Tribune. He never seemed to regain his old time spark after that. The death of his mother last fall broke his heart and his will to live was hardly that of the 145 pound football player who used to blast through ponderous lines way back in 1903-04-05-06.

Charles W. Dunkley, sports writer for The Associated Press, Eckersall's close friend for 20 years, was the only one with Eckersall when he died. Dunkley came to make his daily call to learn of his condition and found him dying. He said Eckersall mumbled something about a 20 yard gain and died peacefully.

Football stars have beamed and faded but very few gained the fame that came to Eckersall. A slip of a youth, weighing about 135 pounds, he first attracted attention while playing on the Hyde Park high school team in Chicago.

Recruiting was not considered an athletic sin in those days and several universities and colleges, learning of his remarkable speed, sought his services, but he decided on the University of Chicago where he combined his natural talent and speed with advice from Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg and startled the football world which then was used to the slam-bank type of game. Almost single handed, he crushed heavier and greater teams than Chicago with his triple threat artistry. His kicking was accurate and dangerous and his open field running a revelation. He was an artist as a passer, too.

"Erkie," as he was known to footballdom both as a player, writer and official, played his first two years with the Maroons as an end. In his first year, 1903, he starred and in 1904, he gained a berth on Walter Camp's All-American team and became a fixture on that mythical eleven, membership of which was usually confined to the east, for the rest of his collegiate career—1905 and 1906. The last two years he directed the Maroons.

Football was not Eckersall's only athletic glory. He was a track star and many still remember the day he and Will Hogenson ran two dead heats in the 100 yard dash only to have Eckersall win the next dash in 9 4-5 seconds.

He played third base with Cap. Anson's Colts as soon as he left college but the lure of journalism was greater and he forsook what might have been a great baseball career.

Eckersall went to The Chicago Tribune from baseball and became an authority on football and boxing. Each season, he officiated in most of the more important Big Ten and Notre Dame gridiron classics.

Tributes were many tonight but Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the western conference, summed up most of them by saying:

"Eckersall was not only one of football's greatest stars, he was a great referee, a fine writer and a true blue sportsman. He was beloved by all. The athletic world, especially the amateur sports world which needs men of his type, will miss him greatly."

Eckersall was married and divorced, and has one child, Elizabeth, who is 20 years old. After his mother's death he lived at the Chicago Athletic association.

GODFREY KAYOES CLARK IN SEVENTH ROUND

Godfrey weighed 247 1-2, 10 1-2 pounds more than Clark.

Godfrey dropped Clark with a left to the jaw for a count of five in the sixth and a moment later a flock of rights and lefts to the stomach sent him down for a nine count. A right to the chin near the end of the round put the Ace down again for eight.

Clark was weak and wobbly when he came out for the seventh and Godfrey made short work of him, a left to the jaw sending him down and out.

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 24.—(AP)—Miss Glenna Collett, American champion, shot brilliant golf to score an 80 in the first 18 holes of the mid-south tournament this afternoon, but she fell short of Miss Maureen Orcutt's 78, which stood as the best tally after most of the women golfers had finished. Miss Collett made a 41 and a 39.

Following are some of the 18-hole scores:

Miss Marjorie Laubaugh, Meriden, Conn., 55-52—107; Mrs. Samuel Bennett, New Britain, Conn., 59-55—114; Mrs. A. A. Benedict, Waterbury, Conn., 52-55—107; Miss Helen Bennett, New Britain, Conn., 47-46—93.

President Sidney Weil parted with the team at Miami leaving for Cincinnati. He said that American league owners could easily find a market in Cincinnati if they had any more players like Heilmann and Meusel to dispose of.

SINGER SEWING WINS POCKET BILLIARD TOURNAMENT

In the final game of the pocket billiard tournament at the Recreation billiard parlors the Singing Sewing team defeated the H. D. H's, the miracle team of the tournament, by the score of 100 to 82.

The Singers received $5 gold pieces each which were donated by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins.

The H. D. H.'s received $3.00 in trade donated by Bob's Men's shop. They were the surprise team of the league, going through to the final round and then losing a heartbreaking match to the Singers.

The Recreation donated 3rd prize which was won by the Colonial club.

The highlight of the game was the playing of Wallace, making many difficult shots and topping it off with an unfinished run of 8.

Capt. Reynolds deserves plenty of praise for his shooting, not only tonight but all through the tournament.

Capt. Harris shot brilliant pool all through the game and for a while it looked as though he would win the game, but tough breaks and scratches spoiled his chances.

The winners were: Capt. Reynolds, W. Gromko, and Wallace.

The H. D. H.'s, Capt. Harris, F. Donovan and F. Higgins.

The Colonial club, Capt. Grover, Farrel and Panek.

ONLY FIVE AMERICAN HORSES IN ENGLISH RACE

LONDON, March 24—(AP)—The unexpected scratching of John H. Whitney's Easter Hero from the grand national today, left only five American owned horses to face the starter Friday and turned the gruelling four mile test into a complete riddle.

With Easter Hero definitely out of the race, Sir Lindsay, which put up a good performance in the Cheltenham gold cup, will be the lone bearer of the Whitney silks. Gordon Selfridge's Ruddyman, Victor Emmanuel's Rhyticere and Royal Arch, and S. Sanford's Sandy Hook, complete the American representation.

Easter Hero first developed lameness after winning the Cheltenham but appeared to have recovered, turning in a good trial Sunday. An examination today, however, showed a return of the lameness and it was decided to scratch him. Only an hour previous to the announcement, Easter Hero again had risen to the position of favorite.

Hewitt to Get Pro Tryout

King Bader, the new Hartford manager, thinks Hewitt, who weighs 180, has a baseball future ahead of him.

KOP TRAINING AT LOCAL GYM

Johnny Kop, local lightweight who meets Joe Barre of Fall River in the sixth round preliminary at the Shyma club show on next Friday night, is getting right down to business and is training hard. Kop, who has not shown as well as has been expected of him in his last few bouts, is determined to return to the sensational knockout role that he abandoned against Alex Tourain last fall. In his most recent bout three weeks ago at Parish hall, Kop won on a technical knockout when his opponent, Billy Prince, quit cold. Up to that time Kop had been getting the worst of the battle.

Kop has recovered his confidence and the fans will see a mightily changed boy on Friday night. Last night Kop worked out at the Hickey gymnasium on Main street before a crowd of several hundred fans. The Hickey gym has been recently established by Mr. Hickey in the interests of the boxing game. He has built a full sized ring and the local boys have been invited to work out at his place. Last night Kop worked three fast rounds with Jimmy Quinn and looked mighty fast. Kop was hitting with great power during his sessions with the heavy bag and it is safe to say that Barre will be in for a tough and stormy evening when he faces Kop.

NATIONAL BUSINESS SURVEY REPORT CAUSE OF BUOYANCY ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)— Encouraged by the report of President Hoover's national business survey conference, and further evidence of the downward trend of money rates, bull forces threw the bears into disorderly retreat in today's stock market, and regained most of Saturday's losses. Trading continued in large volume, 4,126,140 shares changing hands.

While business reports over the week-end continued to show disappointing tardiness in the arrival of long expected recovery, the report from Washington of the survey conference, indicating that affairs had taken a definite turn for the better, went far toward restoring speculative confidence. Trade reports that the current decline in steel mill operations had touched bottom were also reassuring.

Standard Statistics, in a review of business conditions, stated that a spring revival of industrial production seemed clearly indicated, and that although it would not approach that of 1929, indications were that it would be of substantial proportions.

Although call money renewed at 4 per cent and was steady at the figure all day, against a range of from 5 to 4 1-2 on Friday, quoted commercial paper rates for prime names were shaded from 4 to 3 3-4 per cent, and a reduction in the Reichsbank rate from 5 1-2 to 5 per cent provided further evidence of the world trends in credit. The call money market reflected withdrawals by banks of about $30,000,000, presumably in preparation for the mid-weekly federal reserve settlements.

U. S. Steel resumed its old time market leadership with a gain of nearly 5 points, carrying it to a new high for the recovery at 192 1-2. Last year it reached a high record at 261 3-4 before crashing to 150. Wall street is growing increasingly confident that something in the way of a stock or increased cash dividend may be expected in the course of the year in view of the corporations strong cash position, and comparatively satisfactory rate of operations.

A high flier was Vanadium Steel, which shot up nearly 14 points to a new 1930 peak at 119, in what appeared to be a trapping of shorts. The floating supply of this issue is small. Among other independent steels Colorado Steel and Gallonsbee Bros. were strong spots.

Favorable California crude production figures for last week, showing continued progress at control, revived the movement in the oils, and several reached new high ground. Standard of New Jersey rose 1 3-4 points in a large turnover to a new top for the year at 76 1-2. It expects to have its hydrogenation refining process in use for May 1, and is arranging to lease the rights to other refiners.

On the whole, the advance was highly selective, and was most impressive in the more easily moved specialties, indicating that the market remains a rather professional affair. Eastman Kodak, Foster Wheeler, Houston Oil, Liquid Carbon, United Aircraft, Warren Bros., and Worthington Pump were sent up 4 to 8 points.

There were a few flurries of selling, notably in the merchandising shares. Montgomery Ward was depressed more than a point to a new 1930 low, but rallied and closed a little higher. Johns Manville dropped about 3 points, then regained part of its loss. Safeway Stores dropped more than 3 points to a new bottom at 93 1-4, and showed little recuperative power. Several of last week's soft spots however, rebounded in short covering, Simmons closing up more than 3 points.

Commodities were irregular. Wheat tumbled about 3 cents early in the day, but rallied to close slightly higher with strength at Winnipeg, decrease in the visible supply, and bullish crop reports. Corn closed up about a cent. Cotton sagged in sympathy with the Liverpool market, futures closing $1.10 to $1.50 a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges continued to climb. The edecline in money rates has induced considerable withdrawal of foreign funds. Several currencies went to slight premiums, notably Sterling cables at $4.86 7-8, up 1-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 24.—(AP)— Grain prices rebounded here today at a lively rate after suffering an early downward jolt that resulted from severe breaks in quotations at Liverpool. A falling-off of 2,309,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply, together with increasing crop damage reports from domestic soft winter wheat sections, as well as news of high winds and dust storms in Kansas and Oklahoma, did much to turn the market upgrade toward the last. Independent strength of the corn market in the late dealings was also a bullish factor.

Chicago closing prices for wheat were firm, 1-2c-3-4c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Corn closed 3-4 1 3-8c up, oats 3 1-2c-3 1-4c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 15c down.

Word that some United States hard winter wheat had been sold for export by way of the Gulf of Mexico had considerable effect in helping to rally wheat at the close. Houses with eastern connection were prominent in the late buying, with general trade sentiment veering sharply away from bearish feeling that found free expression earlier when action of the Liverpool market was ascribed largely to cheap offers of Canadian wheat and to apparent indications of a notable pause in transatlantic demand.

Temporarily, the tumble in prices at Liverpool was emphasized by disregard of unusual smallness of world shipments and by ignoring of the fact that supplies on ocean passage had been reduced by not quite half as much as the total a year ago. At this stage, bears were inclined to make much also of federal farm board curtailment of the Minneapolis wheat loan basis to $1.20 a bushel instead of $1.25, and were putting stress on reports that the wheat stabilization corporation was negotiating with millers to avert a storage-space tie-up at terminals because of anticipated rush of wheat deliveries in May.

Evidence that sellers had overreached themselves in the wheat market developed more and more. Nevertheless, as the day wore on, this was particularly the case after bullish developments in domestic hard winter wheat sections reinforced adverse crop news from the soft winter wheat states, where particularly in southwestern Indiana and southeastern Illinois field after field was reported killed.

Corn owed its late upward trend largely to announcement of a decrease of the corn visible supply and to unfavorable weather for corn movement. Oats followed corn.

Provisions went lower with hogs.

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—A report that the Middle West Utilities Co., an Insull organization, had acquired the Kentucky Securities Corp., through the purchase of 95 per cent of the common and more than 50 per cent of the preferred stock from the International Utilities Corp. was confirmed today. Properties of the Kentucky Securities Corp. include the Lexington Utilities Co., supplying electric light and power, gas, ice and railway and bus services to Lexington, Ky., and a large interest in the Consolidated Coach Co., which operates a bus system in several states.

The Waldorf System, operators of a chain of lunch rooms in 45 eastern cities, plan to open between 10 and 15 new stores within the next few weeks.

The Continental Can Co. plans to increase the capacity of its Cuban plant to double its present rate, O. C. Huffman, president, said today, upon his return from an inspection trip of the company's Cuban properties.

The special stockholders' meeting of the Gulf States Steel Corp., of Birmingham, Ala., originally called for today to amend the by-laws so as to make necessary a two-third's vote before disposal of the company's assets, has been adjourned until September. The retiring directors were re-elected.

COTTON

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed barely steady, 23 to 30 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 15.70

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Prices of stocks on the New York curb exchange moved upward in impressive fashion today after an early period of hesitancy. Some selling came into the market at the opening as a result of the heavy profit-taking which developed Friday afternoon and Saturday, but offerings were well absorbed, and pools quickly resumed operations in a wide assortment of aviations, utilities, oils and specialties, lifting at least two score to new high records for the year.

The demand for the oils received considerable stimulus from the report that California crude oil production last week was down to the lowest level since 1926 as a result of the conservation law recently enacted in that state. Humble Oil and Standard Oil of Indiana moved into new high ground, and gains of a point or two were registered by Gulf, Indian Territorial, Standard Oil of Kansas and a few others.

In the absence of any definite aviation developments, the rise in those shares was widely attributed to pool activities, based on the theory that warmer weather would stimulate business for those companies. Fokker ran up nearly 5 points to a new high at 30 3-8, but lost a point of its gain, and Western Air Express closed 2 1-2 points higher at 46, after touching a new high at 66. Douglas Aircraft sold above 30 for the first time this year.

Speculative interest in the public utilities centered largely in the natural gas stocks with merger and expansion rumors playing an important part in the day's operations. United Gas moved up 3 points to within a small fraction of the high established last week. Dixie Gas Utilities advanced 2 3-8 points and American and Arkansas Natural Gas issues were turned over in large volume, closing with moderate gains. Electric Bond & Share closed fractionally higher after moving within a range of less than 2 points. Brazilian Light & Traction, Hartford Electric and International Superpower topped their previous 1930 high prices.

International Cigar Machinery, making one of its infrequent appearances on the tape, jumped 13 1-4 points to a new peak at 113. Other issues to reach new high levels were Aluminum Limited, American Book, American Chain, Amrad Corporation, Centrifugal Pipe, General Realty preferred, Grand Rapids Varnish, Lily Tulip Cup, National Screen Service, Newport Co., Novadel Agene, Pacific Coast Biscuit issues, A. O. Smith and Starrett Corporation.

BOND MARKET

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 24.—(AP)—Firm money was accompanied by a sharp reduction in the bond market's activity today. Trading assumed much smaller proportions as call loans held at the renewal rate of four per cent. Thirty to sixty day time accommodations were quoted at 3 3-4 to 4, a quarter of one per cent above last Friday's figures.

Further loan calling was reported during the day, although new funds quickly came in as replacements. Some uncertainty was expressed as to the immediate course of money, for it was pointed out that the unusual easiness in the loan markets last week following the treasury financing and the tax payments has resulted in an abnormal situation that might not be readjusted for another day or two.

Although two per cent funds are hardly expected to reappear at this time, the general opinion is that money will be relatively cheap for a rather indefinite period, or until the commercial demand improves.

Transaction in New York stock exchange bonds totalled approximately $13,000,000, or about $10,000,000 below the Friday volume. This decrease demand found prices generally steady around the recent highs. Although small net declines were rather numerous, many pivotal rails were able to score advances averaging somewhat less than half a point.

Oil company bonds were active and firm, Colon Convertible 6s rose 3 points. Shell Anton, Sinclair and Standard issues, as well as the Texas Corp. Convertibles 5s, turned over actively, while Transcontinental 5 1-2s with warrants advanced a point.

Miscellaneous firm spots in the domestic list included International Match 5s, Gulf States Steel 5 1-2s, New York Central 5s, Laclede Gas 5 1-2s, Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, Chile Copper 5s, and American and International Telephone 5s.

American Telephone Convertible 4 1-2s led the stock feature issues, rising 2 1-4 net. Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s went to a new 1929 high on a rise of one point. New Haven 6s also squeezed past their previous 1930 peak for a net gain of 1-2.

United States governments were steady and quiet. Irregularity marked the foreign section, with Buenos Aires 6s and 6 1-2s selling off and the Argentines making narrow improvement. Belgium 7s crossed 109 for a new high but then reacted.

Offering of Erie Railroad's $50,000,000 issue in refunding 5s is expected soon. The present 5s are quoted around 96 1-2.

New offerings scheduled for tomorrow include $18,000,000 Cleveland Union Terminals company first mortgage 4 1-2s, due in 1977 and priced at 98. Associated Gas & Electric company is marketing an additional $10,000,000 in 5 per cent debentures at 91.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Pipe of Pan

Here in this wild, primeval dell
Far from the haunts of man,
Where never fashion's footsteps fell,
Where shriek of steam nor clang of bell,
Nor din of those who buy and sell,
Has broken Nature's perfect spell,
May not one hear, who listens well,
The mystic pipe of Pan?

So virgin and unworldly seem
All things in this deep glade
Thick-curtained from the noonday beam,
That, hearkening, one may almost dream
Fair naiads plashing in the stream
While graceful limbs and tresses gleam
Along the dim green shade.

The cool brook runs as clear and sweet
As ever water ran;
I almost hear the rhythmic beat
Of pattering footfalls, light and fleet,
As Daphine speeds, with flying feet
To hide in leaves her safe retreat,—
But not the pipe of Pan.

On yonder rocky mountain's sides
Do oreads dance and climb?
In that dark grot what nymph abides?
And when the freakish wind-god rides,
Do sylphs float on the breezy tides,
While in the hollow tree-trunk hides
The dryad of old time?

Or is the world so changed today
That all the sylvan clan,
Nymph, dryad, oread, sylph and fay,
Have flown forevermore away,
So, though we watch and wait, and pray,
Never again on earth will play
The witching pipe of Pan.

Come, sit on yonder stone and play
O Pan, thy pipe of reeds,
As when the earth was young and gay,
Long ere this dull and sordid day,—
Play till we learn thy simple lay,
And grief and discord fade away,
And selfish care recedes!

O darkened sense! O dense, deaf ear!
The world has placed its ban
Against the genii, once so dear,
And strife and greed, for many a year,
Have spoiled the sweet old atmosphere,
So, though he play, we can not hear
The wondrous pipe of Pan!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

There is a common expression, "I feel like a fish out of water." As a rule fishes are supposed to be uncomfortable when are out of water. But there are fishes which are perfectly capable of living away from water.

Flying fish, for instance, take great leaps into the air and with their taut fore fins as parachutes may cover many yards of water; also, mudfish, snakeheads and some others can while away the dry season securely encased in mud. We are thinking of fishes that deliberately make excursions on shore.

Then, too, there is the mudfish, or lung fish, which lives in the tropics. Half of the year, during the rainy season, the mudfish has plenty of water, but during the long, dry months the rivers are only small streams and the fishes bury themselves in the mud and remain there until wet weather comes again.

Even more interesting is the climbing perch, found in the fresh waters of India, Ceylon, Burma and the Malayan region, which can spend many hours on land, sometimes among thick vegetation. It seems to push itself along in a wriggling fashion with the help of strong spines on its gill cover and its ventral fin.

It has been recorded that in heavy downpours of rain the climbing perch sometimes ascends the dripping stems of palmyra trees growing beside pools. In all likelihood the climbing of trees by the fish is very rare and half accidental, the instinct of the perch being to ascend the current.

This tendency to go against the stream is also strongly marked in a small catfish, which forces its way up the torrential streams of the Andes, gripping with its mouth and using a toothed ventral plate as a lever. It can climb up many feet of smooth waterworn rock.

Very common in the mud flats at the mouth of rivers in tropical Africa, Asia and Northwest Australia are the mud-skippers, or jumping gobies, which leap about quickly, using their tails and the strong base of their fore fins as a sort of double-hopping instrument. Sometimes they rest on a stone with their tails in the water, and they are able to breathe by their tail fin as well as by their gills!

Sometimes they sit perched high and dry on the roots of the mangrove trees, looking round and round with their strangely protruded, mobile eyes, which are placed together on the top of the head. But we do not need to go to the tropics to find a fish out of water, for the common eel is not infrequently met with in damp meadows, making its way across country from pond to river.

A North American minnow is of interest in showing that a fish will not hesitate to try an overland escape when necessity drives it. The minnow follows the rising tide in and the ebbing tide out. This is usually accomplished with success, but there is always a risk of getting left in a shore pool.

If you will watch the minnow's behavior very carefully you will see how the fishes playing in a tide pool go every few minutes to the outlet, to test the depth and discover if the way of escape is still open. As soon as it begins to get dangerously shallow they leave the pool and do not return.

But what happens if they are so keen on rooting in the sand for food, or on playing with their companions, that the door is shut before they notice? In such cases the fishes swim rapidly in various directions for a few moments, and then leave the water and travel overland to the sea. Many specimens were seen to leave large tide pools and travel across sand bars more than three yards wide and four inches high. They nearly always leave the pools on the seaward side, near the original outlet.

It is likely enough that they remember the position of the outlet and it seems certain the sudden closing of the outlet is the chief reason for prompting the fishes to leave the pool.

The locomotion on land is accomplished by a series of jumps, through rapid bending of the body. When the fish alights after its leap it may be directed toward any point of the compass, but the remarkable fact is that the next leap will carry it on its course toward the sea.

There are three points of great interest in these observations: First, the so-called minnows seem to keep watch on the state of the outlet in the tide pool in which they find themselves; second, when they are landlocked they act at once and try what is for fishes an unusual experiment. If they waited long they would be stranded, for the pools do not last and the ebbing tide would put the sea beyond their reach; third, by a series of rapid leaps they make for the sea without fail, though we cannot tell how they are guided.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

The Story of Glass

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you of the story of glass as I think it worthwhile as well as interesting. Probably when you look out of the window you do not know you are looking through sand and rock. Yet that is just what glass is made of. I will endeavor to describe glass making to you. The ancient Egyptians made very delicate shades of glass. A crude window made of frosted, colored glass has been found in one of the pyramids. In old Italy beautiful glass was made, as specimens found in America and Europe show the Greeks made their windows of glass, but it was not of Egyptian quality. When we go to a glass mill we see bins of a reddish brown sand found in western states.

We next go to a room where we smell chemicals that are to be used to add to the sand to make it transparent. After the chemicals have been added, it is poured out onto metal molds. We next go to the building where the glass is blown. We see big boilers keeping glass melted. We see boys running around to their respective glass blower. Let us sit down and watch. He has a long pipe slightly bent in the middle. He receives a ladle full of melted glass. He dips his pipe in, swings it out carefully, fills his lungs and begins blowing. If he is going to make a bottle he must let the end of his pipe into a mold. The size of bottle he wants, he puts in the molds that are the size he wants and proceeds to blow.

These blowers are apt to be large, brawny men because they have such powerful lungs. The glass articles are next sent to the packing house where they are sorted and put in boxes between excelsior and sent to various cities and towns where we buy them.

A Stormy Night

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a cold and stormy night in the month of December. The wind howled mournfully through the tops of the tall fir trees. All day snow had been falling, and the heavy drifts, had in many places, blotted out every trace of the road so that I could not find my way. I was lost in the darkness! The cold chilled me and the snow covered my face. I was seeking a place where I could spend the night. On walking further I spied a lighted cottage. I pushed forward, rapped, and was admitted by a kind woman who offered me a seat by the fire. Here I spent the night.

The next morning the whistling wind awoke me. I dressed hurriedly, ate breakfast, thanked the kind woman, and set off for home.

A Moonlight Night

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and all the Wide Awake readers enjoy my letter. For some reason I have been awake at night. The night was so warm that I determined to go out into the night air.

Calling my friend who also was not asleep, I took my uke and we went on the lake in the canoe. While she paddled, I played and we sang softly.

Around us was the beautiful lake. We could smell the fragrance of the flowers, hear the hooting of the owl, and the echo of our song. Most of all we admired the full moon, which sent its beams like thousands of silvery threads on the lake. Around this heavenly lantern were stars like diamonds in the sky. Returning home, I looked out the window to view again the enchanted lantern. But it was gone back of the clouds and down came the rain, followed by a crash of thunder. When I fell asleep I was dreaming of the moon.

My School

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you will enjoy my letter. I am in the second grade. I am seven years old. I like to go to school. I like to read, and write and spell. I like to do my arithmetic. Sometimes I get 100. We have report cards in my room.

To Cape Cod

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer I went to Cape Cod by auto. We had a nice ride down and back. Going down we went through Chatham and at night we stayed in Chatham. The next day we went around Chatham and saw the house of the well known writer, "Joseph C. Lincoln," then went on to Provincetown.

In Provincetown I went up to the top of the Pilgrim Memorial monument. This monument is 252 feet, seven and one-half inches in total height and higher than Bunker Hill monument. Going back we went through Plymouth and saw the Plymouth rock. I expected to see a much larger rock. I was glad to get home and see the green grass, although I had a nice time. Everything on the cape was very dry. Would like to go again very much.

Snowed In Since January

Dear Uncle Jed: Are you snowed in out your way? Since January 1, we have been snowed in and haven't seen the bare ground since. Three weeks ago it was twenty below zero, but is getting warmer now. My brother and a boy friend and I took the dog and went rabbit hunting two different days. We got 23 one day and 20 the next day. We got them under corn shocks. We had lots of fun catching them. My father went one day, he caught 32 and he sold them at five cents each. We don't have any trees or brush here, only what people set out along the streets and in yards. Some have hedge fences, some of it grows into trees but mostly it is kept cut short. No forest trees and no orchards, most of the farms don't have a fruit tree of any kind. The land here is mostly all level. A mile east of us there are four hills in one mile and that is all the hills we have around here.

The only deer that are around here are the deer that are kept in parks but there are many coyotes which can be heard barking in the distance but they never come near the farm houses.

My Pets

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about some of my pets. We have one goat "Caranza" and a lamb "Skippy." They don't like each other very much. We also have three collie dogs, "Gip", "Rex," and "Nice Baby." We like "Nice Baby" best. I think, though, it is a very hard problem to decide which we like best. "Nice Baby" is very cute. Sometimes mother will say half in fun, "Put those dogs outside," and immediately she will run into the living room and lie down on the sofa. She drives our 14 cows up from the meadow.

We have a gray kitty "Smoky," by name, she sits on the outside kitchen window ledge. When mother is preparing meat, Smoky tries to push her head through the glass to get the meat.

I wish you all might see my pets. I am sure you would all like them. I read the Wide Awake columns in The Bulletin whenever they appear.

What I Do

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second story I have written. I like my book very much. I am going to write about Sunday morning and afternoon and how I spend it sometimes. I get up about half past eight and dress, then I eat my breakfast and help my mother wash dishes. Then I wash and dress for Sunday school and church. I get out of Sunday school at one o'clock. I come home and eat my dinner. In the afternoon I sometimes take a walk or play. At night they have pictures in the church. I sometimes go to them. They begin at seven and end at nine. After the pictures I come home and go to bed for the next morning I have to go to school.

An Original Story

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I will tell you a story I have made up. Once there was a boy who was very naughty. His name was Dan. One day Dan's mother made some cookies. Dan wished he could have some for him and his friend. His friend was also naughty and said, "Go in and get some cookies for yourself while your mother isn't looking." So Dan went in and got some cookies for his friend and then started in again to get some for himself. While he was getting some cookies, his mother came in and said, "Dan, what are you doing?" Dan told his mother of his greediness very shamefully, and promised never again to do it. But Dan's mother made Dan stay in for the rest of the day because he was so bad.

Our Grade

Dear Uncle Jed: The story I am writing to you is about our grade. Our grade is grade four. We have 31 children in our grade. Our teacher is very good and generous. Everybody in our grade is well but one girl, she is in the hospital. The teacher collected money for flowers for her. We bought her a pot of tulips. I think she will like them.

One girl in our grade drew a picture on the board, it is about a boy and girl picking up sticks and other things and putting them in the trash can.

CURIOUS CREATURES

Making Quilts

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading my story which is my visit at Palmer Bros. and Co., Fitchville, Conn.

As I as approaching the mill yard, my first visit was at the sterilizing room, and what do you suppose I saw? Men brought with the truck two big bales which five men handled each. When they took them in the room, two men opened one bale, put many burlap sheets on the floor and they took rags from the bale, looked them over, stirred them up and put them in the sheets. When the sheet was filled up enough to tie together, they tied the sheet up, and put it all in a very huge stove, which resembles a baker's oven. When the oven was filled up, they closed the large door and opened a little valve near a steam thermometer and set on a certain amount of steam. They kept those rags in the oven for one hour, then by machine they sent the rags to the picker room.

And can you imagine what I saw in the picker room? I saw there a man open the sterilized sheets and you can imagine the steam come out of them. Then a man put the rags on a small machine called the picker. One man works and tends to two pickers. This picker picks the rags to pieces and makes them as soft as wool. This they call shoddy. This shoddy goes by a blower into the lapp room. In the lapp room I saw some men take this sterilized shoddy and put it in the feeder. This goes through the rollers and cylinders and becomes nice, soft, woolly rolls of cotton. This goes to the gang room. There I saw a big table. One large cloth lies on the large table and one hangs from the ceiling. Two women stand and take the lapps and lay them on the cloth roll and smooth them out.

This keeps going by belts to another two women who bend the edges while the machine sews the edges. This keeps going on to a big machine which has lots of needles. Every needle is about two inches apart. This machine is made for seams.

When they go through the seam machine they become seamed quilts. When the quilts pass through the seam machine they go down through the floor into the finishing room. In the finishing room I saw the quilts hanging down from the ceiling. A man stays at a small machine which goes on a platform. This machine is to sew two edges together with a strip of cloth in the middle. Then this same machine goes back and cuts off the quilts by a certain length. Then it goes to another woman who finishes the quilts. Then stand two men at a table and they examine them. Some have left out seams, edges and sides. These go to the repairing man.

The goods are carefully folded and put into crates, and sent to the pressman. The pressman bales them by dozens and half dozens. They are wrapped in paper and into burlap bags and sent to the stock house.

Our Hut In the Woods.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you since last year. I will write to you how my brother and I made a hut in the woods.

One day last summer my brother and I went up in the woods (which are near my house) to build a hut. We first went to find a good place to build one. I went one direction and my brother the other. I looked all around, but could not find a very good place to build one. My brother had better luck. When he came back he told me that he found a suitable place. He led the way and I followed him. In a short time we arrived there.

The next thing to do was to build it. My brother wanted to build it with branches. I told him that if he chopped down a small tree it would die. I also told him that the government wants to preserve it. So we decided to build it out of stone. We made two high walls. For the roof we picked up some dry sticks and put them on top of the walls. Then on top of the sticks we put twigs and dry leaves. For the back we put it against a stone wall. The other side was open, so we could use it as a door. We had it about a month and then one day some one wrecked it. I think this year we will build another one.

A Startling Experience.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to you. I am going to write to you about "The Unwelcome Caller."

One night while I was all alone I determined to make a dress, when I heard a faint noise. It sounded like rap, rap, rap as the sewing machine was running. I could not hear it plainly and paid no heed to it. But when it stopped I knew that someone was knocking.

Suddenly a thought came into my mind. Did I lock the back door, I crept slowly and turned off the light; then I went to the door to see if it was locked, to my surprise it was.

Then I said with a breathlike voice, "Who is there!" But there was no answer. My heart like a grasshopper was jumping and bending to look through the keyhole I heard: 'Please buy some coats, jackets, capes, overalls and dresses.' After taking my breath again I said, "Not tonight sir."

I went back to my chair but could not sew. I waited patiently for father to come home. He soon did come and I told him my story. After I had finished he told me that it was the man from the dry goods store.

An Accident.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. An accident occurred to me the other day which I hope you and the Wide-Awakes would like to read about.

As my friend Dorothy and I were roaming in the woods we spied a beautiful bush of pinks not far away. We had to cross a little pool before we could get them, so Dorothy took off her shoes and stockings and I went to get some violets farther off.

Not long after I heard some one calling, "Help! Help!" I ran back to Dorothy and saw that she was caught in quick sand. "Oh, what can I do!" I said to myself. I found a broken oar, but it was about a foot too short. I ran back and found an old spar of a sailing vessel. It was very heavy and it took all my strength to drag it along. I soon reached her, but could not pull her out. The spar was heavy enough to hold her up till I got help. I ran home as fast as my legs would carry me and was soon back with an old sailor who lived nearby. We succeeded in getting her out and we were soon on our way towards the village. I am 13 years old.

Our Mistake.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as my sister and I had nothing special to do, we decided to go for a walk in the woods. As we were walking along a path we heard a rustle in the bushes behind us, but when we turned around we saw it was only one of our cows that had strayed away from the other cows. After we had walked around in the woods a while and watched some of the birds flying about we decided to return home.

As we were walking by a swampy place in the woods we heard a little noise behind us which sounded like something running. We turned around just in time to see a little brown animal about five or six inches long which looked like a mink scampering away through the bushes. We then hurried home and told our brother that we had seen a mink (which we thought it was) and told him the color and the size of it.

The next day we went to the woods and showed our brother where we had seen the mink and there he set his trap. Early the next morning he went to look at his trip and he found that he had caught a weasel. When he brought it home we said that that was what we had seen instead of a mink.

The Bull.

Dear Uncle Jed: One warm day during the summer I went picking raspberries. I picked my pail full and was starting for home. Suddenly a twig snapped and turning around I saw a bull. He was bellowing in rage because he had seen my red shirt. I instantly ran for the bushes and was safe for the time being. The bushes had thorn and as the bull made a dash after me he was hurt. Now I knew I was safe as long as I remained in theb ushes. I started to shout and received an answer. It was my cousin. I was very glad.

Hallville.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about Hallville. It is a very small town with a population of about 200 people. There is a mill owned by Hall Bros. in which most of the people are employed. There is a pond from which the mill receives its power and also people swim in it. I live in Hallville and like it very much. I hope some of the Wide-Awakes will come and visit this place.

School.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about school. I am in the sixth grade and like to go to school very much. I haven't missed a day in school since I was in the sixth grade and hoope to keep it up.

In school we study arithmetic, spelling, history, writing, geography, singing and English. The subject that I get the best marks in is spelling. In the January examinations I got 100 in spelling and I didn't take arithmetic, English and geography. I hope all the Wide-Awakes like to go to school.

The Sunset

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you and all the Wide Awake readers enjoy my letter. It was a warm summer day. We were on board the Sunrise, heading for Sag Harbor. We could see the beautiful blue sky and the sun was like a reflection of our boat and of the water. The sun was like a mass of red and gold sinking into the blue green water. I kept watching and admiring this sight, until the great lamp faded beneath the ocean. Later I kept watching the coming out of the moon.

JEWETT CITY

TOWN MEETING DEFERS REVALUATION ACTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, March 24.—Forty-two legal voters of the town of Griswold were present at an adjourned meeting held at thee second voting district in Pachaug Monday afternoon. In the absence of First Selectman Daniel F. Finn, the meeting was called to order by Second Selectman Arba Browning. Everett H. Hiscox was chosen chairman. The item, relative to the proposed revaluation of the property of the town, on motion by George H. Prior, seconded by ex-Selectman Maxey Seymour, was laid on the table, subject to action at some future meeting of the town. This matter, which also calls for an appropriation to cover the expenses of the assessors in the performance of their duties as prescribed by law, was the subject for some discussion, and the expression of different views. In response to a call for definite information on the subject, the chairman read the opinion from the town's legal advisor, Attorney Arthur M. Brown. Following the quoting of the statute, Mr. Brown says: "As you will note, the law is mandatory, and says the assessors shall revalue the real estate of their respective municipalities. The word is 'shall' and not 'may.' The statute, however, provides no penalty to be visited upon either the town, or the assessors providing the revaluation called for is not made, and I do not find such penalty provided for elsewhere in the law. It being mandatory, however, I am of the opinion that any taxpayer of the town might bring a mandamus action before the superior court and obtain a judgment requiring the assessors to obey the statute, and it may be that the tax commissioner of the state could take some such action. Inasmuch as the law positively requires revaluations to be made, it seems to me wise for the town to make such financial provision as will enable the assessors to do the work even though the statute carries no penalty at the present time, and the bringing of an action by any taxpayer is not likely to happen."

It seemed to be the general sentiment of the meeting that prior to the regular property assessment in October, 1930, this matter will be taken care of according to law, in a manner agreeable to the advices of the town's counsel. The item, relative to the purchase of a new town truck, following expressions of opinion by Arthur LeClaire, Otto Anderson and Wayland Stetson, was laid over for future action.

Eyes. Now is the time. See Dr. Good. Finn Blk. Wed., 6 to 9.—adv.

John Smith, division engineer for the state highway department, with offices in the Thayer building, Norwich, has been furnished with a copy of the favorable vote of the town of Griswold, in reference to the proposed lighting of the new Quinebaug viaduct. Mr. Smith, in communicating with Mr. Finn, expressed the opinion Saturday that it would not be in accordance with the plans of the state to light half of the bridge (that is to the middle of the river) and leave the balance of the 350 feet of river span in darkness. Pending possible favorable action by the town of Lisbon, this matter has been held up until the present. The provision now, as practically settled Monday, will provide for the lighting system to extend from the approach at the corner of Main street and Salter avenue to the Griswold bank of the river in the rear of the Sharkey property. There will be no lights on the 350 ft. bridge itself, nor on the 500-foot approach in Sylvandale.

Tenement to rent. Inquire Arremoney's store.—adv.

Tonight Fire Six Hours

The fourth bad brush fire within 10 days became kindled in some unknown manner on the H. Allen farm, in Lisbon, Monday forenoon. Men recruited from all the surrounding district fought hard for six hours. An area of about 75 acres of woodland and pasturage was burned over with but little damage, except to piles of corded wood. Mr. Allen's big timber land, once known as Johnson's woods, on the west side of the Providence and Willimantic railroad, was in the path of the roaring flames. Mr. Allen said Monday afternoon that on account of the underbursh in the wood lots being light, that standing timber was not damaged. At noon a call came to the Jewett City fire department for assistance, but as was the case in another Lisbon fire last Saturday, without water to draw from, the big engine is of no avail. Men went over from Jewett City to assist, however.

Phoebes Braved Winter

Observations made by M. H. Bartlett during the winter just past, has added the phoebe to the list of local birds, that are not totally migratory. A pair has managed to carry on during the winter, under his barn, on his farm near Pachaug. A visitor to any of the several dense cedar swamps in this locality during the winter months will note the presence of robins, and in some cases, blue birds have found in these thick woods, a refuge from the winter storms.

Rev. J. W. Reynolds, pastor of Newent Congregational church, was too ill to occupy his pulpit Sunday.

Saturday, some little improvement seemed to indicate that he would be able to preach as usual, but Sunday such action was not deemed advisable, hence the service was omitted.

Camp Section Threatened

The firemen responded to a call Monday afternoon for a brush fire at Tadpole that threatened the Quinebaug camp section. The big pumps did its emergency job again outside the borough limits. The fire burned over a large area on the Tadpole plains in the rear of Mr. Potts' residence, but by hard fighting was brought under control before doing serious damage in the vicinity of the camps section where a dozen summer homes were in the path of the flames.

This (Tuesday) evening, Mrs. E. E. Scates entertains Whatsoever circle of The King's Daughters, at her home in Sylvandale.

Get Bridge Contract

The M. A. Gammino Construction Co., of Providence, was awarded the contract Saturday by the state of Connecticut, to build the new bridge at Tadpole, which is to carry the state highway over the tracks of the New Haven railroad, and also above what is known as the lower or little Tadpole pond. This contract, which will be begun at once, will eliminate the present S curve bridge at that point, where close to two dozen automobile accidents have occurred. Practically all these wrecks have been the results of the failure of strange drivers to negotiate one or the other of the right-angled reverse curves which are hazards in the north and south approaches.

MORNING MAIL DELAYED FOR UNEXPLAINED REASON

No little inconvenience was caused to the several borough manufactories Monday morning because of the failure of the New York, Boston and Providence mail to arrive with the early morning dispatches from New London. At the Aspinook and Ninigret mills the day's business is seriously handicapped by failure to receive the regular requisitions and advices for the day's business. The night mail trains over the Shore line numbers 31 from Boston and 32 from New York, turn in their mail which is due to come up the Quinebaug valley to the mail transfer clerk in New London, making regular pouches for Norwich. The heavy pouches for Jewett City, Danielson, Putnam and other intermediate points up the line which are made up by the transfer clerk in New London, failed of dispatch from that point. Jewett City's heavy east and south mail was not received here until the truck arrived with the regular mid-afternoon dispatches. Telephone calls to New London by Postmaster W. T. Crumb failed to locate the cause of the delay, it being learned that both the east and west night postal expresses had left New London on time.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Flip Forgets the Warning

In matters that you do not know
Make haste by moving very slow.
—Old Mother Nature.

Over in the Green Forest, Flip the Terrier had slipped away from Bowser the Hound. As fast as his swift-moving little feet could take him he hurried back to where he had seen Prickly Porky the Porcupine. When he and Bowser had left there Prickly Porky had been up in a tree. Flip expected to find him up in a tree now. He had gone back because he wanted to look Prickly Porky over more thoroughly. You see, Bowser had told him about the thousand little spears that Prickly Porky carried on his tail and hidden in the long hair of his coat. Flip wanted to see those little spears again. He was curious about them and he wanted to satisfy his curiosity.

"You'd better leave me alone," said Prickly Porcupine

As he approached the tree where they had left Prickly Porky, Flip heard a rustling sound. It came from off to one side. Flip paused and looked that way. He caught a glimpse of some one moving just back of a small hemlock tree. Cautiously Flip moved around to where he could see better. Once he would have rushed around heedlessly, but he had learned that this was not a wise thing to do in the Green Forest. When he reached a point where he could see clearly, there was Prickly Porky shuffling along.

Flip stood still and watched him for a few minutes. "He's the slowest moving fellow I ever saw," thought Flip. "He doesn't look the least bit dangerous. I can see what I suppose are those little spears that Bowser told me about, but I don't see many. Most of those I do see are on his tail and those are short. His coat seems to me to be mostly long hair. He certainly doesn't look dangerous to me. I believe I could kill him without half trying. Yes, sir, I believe I could kill him in a jiffy."

Just then Prickly Porky turned his head and Flip for the first time saw the long, big, front teeth which Prickly Porky possesses. Those teeth looked as if they might hurt. Yes, sir, they sure looked as if they might hurt. Flip was suddenly filled with respect for those teeth. But when he noticed how very slow Prickly Porky was as he shuffled along. Excitement began to take possession of Flip. There was no log handy for Prickly Porky to poke his head under. He was right out in the open. The hair began to rise along Flip's shoulders. He growled. Prickly Porky heard that growl and turned.

"You better leave me alone," said Prickly Porky.

"I haven't touched you yet, have I?" retorted Flip.

"No," replied Prickly Porky, "so I am warning you that you better not."

"Perhaps you think I don't dare to," said Flip.

"I don't care whether you dare to or not," retorted Prickly Porky. "Come ahead and try it if you want to, but I warn you you better not."

By this time Flip had forgotten all about the warning that Bowser the Hound had given him. This slow moving, clumsy fellow didn't look dangerous. Moreover, Flip felt that Prickly Porky was daring him to fight. Flip began to walk around Prickly Porky in the stiff-legged manner a dog sometimes uses when he is getting ready to fight. All the time Flip was growling. He didn't bark. For one thing he didn't want Bowser to interfere again. He didn't feel like barking anyway. He barks when he is excited. When he is angry he growls. And Flip was angry now and growing more so.

FIVE BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED FOR NEW CONSTRUCTION IN THE CITY

During the past week there were five building permits granted by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft for new construction work in the city. The permits are largely for alterations to present buildings and for garages. The largest permit is for alterations to the building owned by Sellas and Constantine at 205 Main street. The alterations include deepening the cellar about a foot and the cutting in of a stairway leading to the store above.

With the issuing of the five permits the total number of permits for March to date is 18, for an estimated cost of $30,000.

During the past week considerable work has been done on local building projects. At the Norton Memorial gymnasium Contractor W. S. Spencer has the foundation work nearly completed and the work of building the walls will start within a short time.

At the Norwich Inn, Contractors Peck-McWilliams Co. have been making exceptionally good progress on the interior. The work on the large living room is well along, the oak beams for the ceiling having been set in place. Work on the third floor is practically complete with the exception of finishing. The servants' wing is nearly complete and the guest rooms on the second floor are well along. Work on grading and the building of the terrace on the front of the building is progressing as fast as weather permits.

The building permits issued last week were as follows:

To J. Burton Young to erect a frame two-car garage at 76 Balmer street for himself. The garage will be 18x22 feet with stone and cement foundation. The roof will be covered with fire-proof shingles. The estimated cost is $450.

To Charles W. Evans to rebuild the present frame porch on the house at 84 Prospect street. The porch when completed will be 8x28 feet and of frame construction. The estimated cost is $500.

To the Charles Osgood Co. to extend the present elevator shaft in the rear of 45 Commerce street. The shaft will be extended about five feet. The construction will be steel and brick. The estimated cost is $200.

To Alexander Wierzbinski to build a one-car garage at 180 Boswell avenue. The garage will be 12x15 feet and will be of frame construction with stone foundation. The estimated cost is $25.

To George E. Boucher, contractor, to make alterations to the building at 205 Main street for Sellas and Constantine. The alterations will include the deepening of the cellar one foot and erecting a stairway leading to the store above, also making a large room. The sides and ceiling will be in sheetrock and the floor of oak. The estimated cost is $1,500.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were three sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to eleven sales for the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $53,854 and $13,240.

In New London during the past week there were four sales of real estate as compared to 13 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $68,870 and $98,450.

NEW LONDON

Twenty-one building permits, including four for new buildings, were granted by the city council this month as compared with 49 of which 14 were for new houses, granted by the council last March.

Th contrast, particularly in the number of dwellings, shows a decided falling off in house building activities for this period of the year. Inasmuch as there are still several new houses about the city which have not been disposed of by contractors who build on speculation it is generally felt that there will be a slump in new home building until business conditions are such as to stimulate the purchase of new homes here.

The Garde building recently taken over by Warner Brothers Corp., has been entirely redecorated and a self service elevator installed. In addition a uniformed hall attendant, such as found in metropolitan buildings has been engaged.

Action of the city council in transferring title this week to the land to be used as the site of the new Coast Guard academy brings this project one step nearer the time when actual construction will start and employment will be provided for a large number of men.

Due to the requirements of the government whereby every possible question of title to the land involved had to be definitely cleared up before the site would be accepted as a gift from the city, Director of Law Troland, was forced to make an extensive and exhaustive search of records here, at Hartford, at St. Albans, Vt., and in Montreal, Can., before complying with all the detailed requirements of Uncle Sam. In the meantime the job of getting congress to appropriate the necessary funds to start work has progressed to the extent where $850,000 is included in the deficiency bill now before congress on which action is anticipated within the near future. With all these details of preparation practically cleared up it is anticipated that work on the new buildings will get under way in the near future, inasmuch as the coast guard is most anxious to get the buildings ready for occupany.

Favorable progress is reported on the construction of a new house being built for J. A. St. Germaine in St. Germain road, recently cut through from Montauk to Pequot avenue. The new dwelling is of Dutch colonial design and frame construction with wide colonial clapboard siding and a wood shingle roof. A sun porch is located to the right of the front entrance, the latter being covered with an A roof. The house will contain six rooms and bath. A one-car garage of frame construction has been completed in the rear of the house. Work is being done by the day from private plans under the supervision of the owner.

Building Permits

Peter Fournier, addition, 127 Cedar Grove avenue, $300.

Chas. Lindholm, addition, 33 Grand street, $700.

Fortuna Strazzo, addition, 26 Shaw street, $300.

O. and C. Recine, gas station, corner Bank and Squire streets, $1,000.

Michael Baldelli, addition, 34 Stuart street, $3,000.

Number of permits for the week, 8; estimated cost of buildings, $7,450.

SLATE ROOF HAS CHARM AND IS VERY DURABLE

There is one thing machinery cannot produce; it cannot produce the charm of hand craftsmanship. The ever increasing volume, precision and uniformity of machine-made merchandise is creating a growing hunger for the individuality of things handmade. You see this hunger everywhere. The vogue for antique furniture is just one phase of it. Modern factory-made furniture may be as artistically designed, as well made and more comfortable than any antique. So when hardheaded business men vie with each other to pay fancy prices for an antique it is the charm of hand craftsmanship they are buying. There is no vogue for collecting second hand factory-made furniture.

Burned brick, the knotty, discolored, misshapen bricks from next the fire in the kiln which once were thrown away or sold for a song, today bring a better price than perfect brick. Burned brick can hardly be called a hand made product; it does, however, carry those irregularities of shape and color that are the charm of nature and of natural products.

When roofing slate first came into use in this country, it was chosen for its practical qualities, its ability to withstand blistering sun, blustering wind, driving sleet as could no other roofing. Today its increasing use is based fully as much on its artistic qualities as on its practical merit.

Slate is a natural product, handfashioned. Two slate shingles can no more be exactly alike in texture or color than can two leaves from the same tree or two roses from the same stem. Therein lies its charm. In this day of machine-made products, a slate roof with its air of hand craftsmanship has become the distinctive, even the distinguished feature of the home. And yet to cover a house with bluegrey slate is said to cost no more than it costs to cover its floors with perishable rugs and carpets.

VACUUM SYSTEMS MUST BE AIR-TIGHT

Vacuum valves for steam heating systems constitute a wise investment. With pipes free of air much less pressure is required to heat the radiators than is necessary with systems in which air must be forced out each time the pressure becomes low. It is well to remember, however, that automatic or vacuum valves are effective only when the entire heating system is thoroughly air-tight. A leak around a shut-off valve, poor packing or a loose connection anywhere will let air into the system, which means that pressure will be needed to drive the air out again and this will defeat the purpose of the automatic valve. The wisest course to pursue is to have an expert steamfitter instal the valves and at the same time have him check up on the entire system to make sure that it is air-tight. With this done the steam plant will be called upon to carry a minimum load and the immediate saving in fuel bills will be quite noticeable.

JUDICIOUS USE OF PAINT MEANS ECONOMY IN END

It is a well known fact that paint and varnish are home investments rather than extravagances. Building economy is practically impossible without the assistance of these two materials. Such economy does not mean the substitution of a cheap product, which always is a form of false economy. When, as a result of choosing poor materials, premature deterioration of a building begins, more than the amount of money saved must be expended in repairs.

It does mean, however, that where expensive hardwoods usually are used, these can be replaced by a good grade of less expensive woods, using paint for appearance and to insure durability. In fact, present-day decoration demands harmony in color schemes, and a definite tie-up of walls and woodwork with the furnishings of a room. For this reason, wood that can be painted is preferred by many home builders to hardwoods that call for stain or varnish. Wood like pine, for instance, which is most inexpensive and adaptable, can be used throughout a house. When given several coats of paint in the color required for a room, it has all the charm and interest that could be desired, and at the same time is guaranteed to last indefinitely.

From the investment standpoint alone, however, paint and varnish are invaluable. They afford your home a protection that can be attained in no other way. Thus far no equivalents have been found that prevent wood from decaying and weathering, or metals from rusting with the same surety as paint and varnish.

Moisture, the root of all trouble with lumber and metals, is the enemy of every property owner. In sections of the country where the temperature varies with the seasons excess moisture in the air is inevitable. For this reason building materials must be protected from weathering.

Paint is the ideal preservative. It seals the pores and forms a protective coating over metals, thus preventing the penetration of moisture and resultant weathering and rusting. Used on concrete and stucco, paint prevents surface cracks, dampness, and subsequent crumbling and flaking.

For reasons of economy painting should begin long before a house has been finished. Then the inner sides of frames, the undersides of tin roofs, steps, porches, interior trim, etc., may be given a necessary protective coat of paint before the process of building has made this impossible. If places like these are neglected the roof soon leaks, windows stick or doors warp.

Metal casement windows always should have paint protection. Otherwise the metal eventually will rust and this condition causes window panes to crack. In fact, there are innumerable places which deteriorate unnecessarily because the owner of the house neglected to paint them.

CHANGE FOR IDEAS IN WALLPAPERING

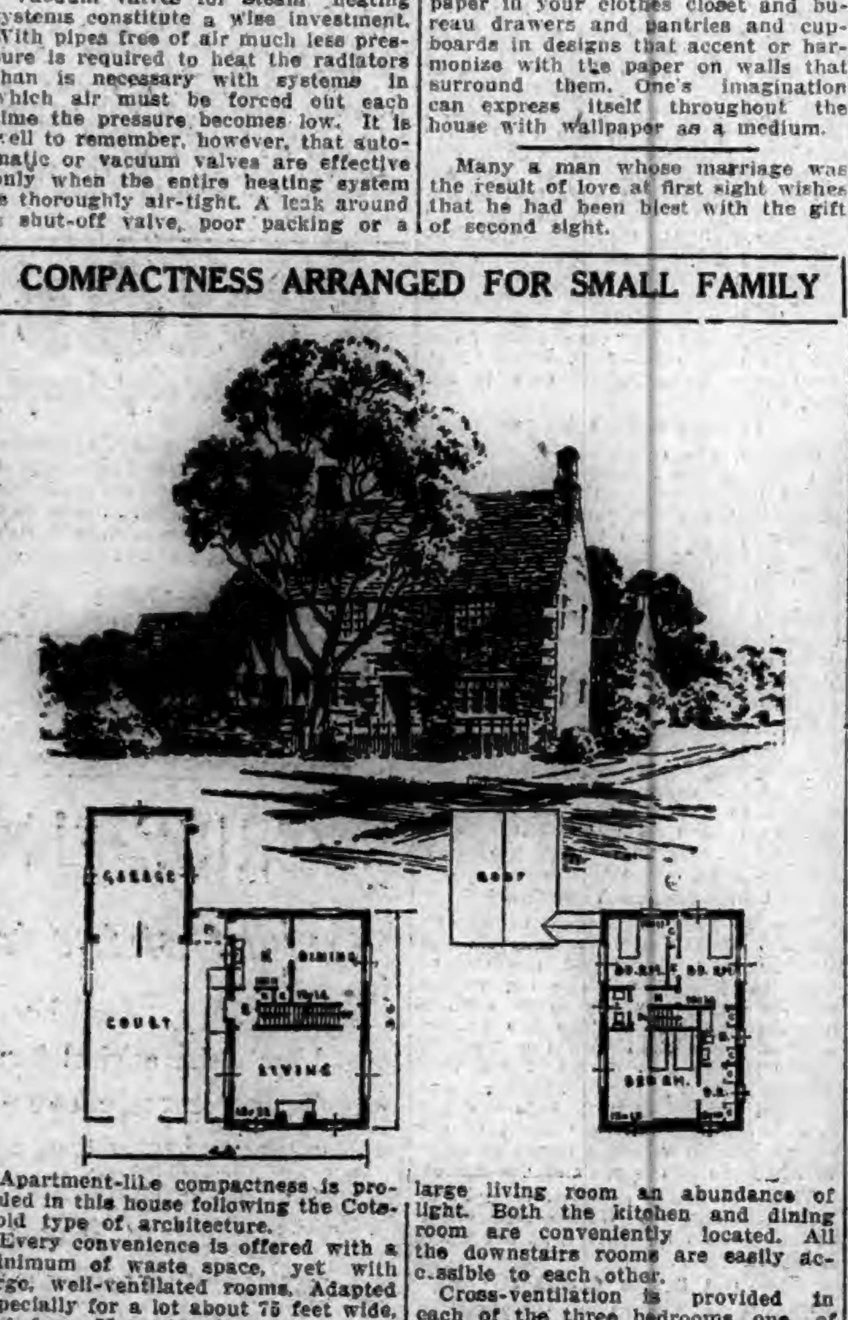
Buying new things is never quite as much fun as making over something old. There is an economical streak in all of us. That is why repapering a room is always a joy.

We can take a dark, shabby, uninteresting, badly built room and by clever planning in the use of color and design make a room as good as new—a room that will be fashionable and serviceable for several years to come. Indeed we are forced to try to make over rooms we do not like. A badly chosen dress may be given away. But a house is so stable that its challenge cannot be ignored.

If you do not want to you do not have to use the wallpapers in the rooms for which they are designed. You can use starry blue paper in the bathroom, though the store clerk tells you it is bedroom paper, and if you want to indulge yourself you can use scenic paper in the kitchen. Both can be coated with varnish so that they will clean easily. You can use wallpaper in your clothes closet and bureau drawers and pantries and cupboards in designs that accent or harmonize with the paper on walls that surround them. One's imagination can express itself throughout the house with wallpaper as a medium.

Many a man whose marriage was the result of love at first sight wishes that he had been blest with the gift of second sight.

COMPACTNESS ARRANGED FOR SMALL FAMILY



Apartment-like compactness is provided in this house following the Cotswold type of architecture.

Every convenience is offered with a minimum of waste space, yet with large, well-ventilated rooms. Adapted especially for a lot about 75 feet wide, and from 75 to 100 feet deep, this house is particularly suitable for a small family.

The unique side entrance and the fenced-in court in front of the garage add a touch of the unusual.

Its exterior appearance presents an enduring construction of brick with limestone trimmings. For color relief there is a touch of stucco on the face of the garage.

Windows on three sides give the large living room an abundance of light. Both the kitchen and dining room are conveniently located. All the downstairs rooms are easily accessible to each other.

Cross-ventilation is provided in each of the three bedrooms, one of which is somewhat larger than the other two. Numerous closets both upstairs and down add to the conveniences.

Costs of construction according to these plans generally will range between $9,000 and $11,000, with expense varying in communities of different size. Labor costs and materials selected will determine the exact figure.

WALLBOARD HAS IMPORTANT PLACE IN MODREN HOUSE

Among the improvements achieved in home building materials during recent years none has been quite so marked as the improvement in the quality of various types of wallboard. Another impressive feature is the ever-increasing number of uses to which it is put. Anyone who had experience with wallboard during its infancy can appreciate how vastly superior several of the well-known types of the present day have proved in comparison with the original. Where once it warped easily, absorbed moisture and involved a property owner in all manner of dificulties, today virtually all these difficulties have been overcome.

For purposes of refining interiors wallboard rightfully is regarded without a superior when one considers the elements of cost, appearance and adaptability, not to mention that vital little matter of upsetting an entire house during an era of repairs.

Just for the sake of illustrating the truth of his stout assertion that virtually anything is possible with wallboard, and expert in its use recently carried out a scheme of ceiling paneling in accordance with the rough texture plan of finish so popular right now. The writer doubted his ability to do a "really finished job," but within a week was compelled to admit himself in error. The old ceiling selected for the text had been a sad affair, but the application of wallboard, together with a simple molding of the same material to form square paneling, made all the difference in the world. In its unpainted state it was impressive enough, but after white paint had been applied it was really a thing of beauty.

Just the other day a friend explained how he had made use of wallboard to eliminate an unsightly spot in his upstairs hallway. Cracks developed in the wall next to the chimney and nothing he could do would overcome the trouble. If he patched it during the summer months the paper would crack again the moment the heat was turned on in the hall. Finally he bought some wallboard, covered the cracked surface, cemented the joints and covered the whole thing with wall paper. He has had no further trouble from cracking.

The demand for color in bathrooms and kitchens, together with the growing popularity of imitation tiling, has opened a new field for the manufacturers of wallboard. Perfect imitations of tiling, even to the hard and almost indestructable enamel surface, have been brought out which are durable, nick-proof and attractive. They can be washed with perfect safety.

As material for finishing off basement recreation rooms or extra attic rooms wallboard offers the most practical and economic material. If one chooses to do the work himself wallboard offers few if any difficulties. a real or imitation open fireplace calls Even the slant to the chimney above for no great amount of mechanical skill, provided the framework is put together properly.

The ultimate value of certain types of wallboard is as insulating material. The nature of the materials from which they are made provides countless dead air spaces and there in turn furnish almost perfect insulation. Accordingly, in relining walls with these types of wallboard one adds extra insultaion as well, thus serving a double purpose.

IRONWORK SHOULD BE GUARDED AGAINST RUST

Ornamental ironwork gives a distinctive touch to even a modest little home. A lovely colonial lantern, a slender hand-rail, or a small footscraper are quaint touches at the front entrance if they are not heavily covered with rust. Exposed to all sorts of weather, they will eventually fall victims to Time and Nature unless they are properly protected, and proper protection for all types of ironwork is paint.

Cast iron will need several coats of paint, two at least, if it serves out of doors. The first coat should be a special metal priming paint, with a coat of ordinary house paint or cellar varnish for the finish. Exterior wrought iron, which does not rust so readily, requires two coats of paint and a coat of clear spar varnish.

Ironwork is just as attractive indoors, and although it will not rust so quickly, it needs protection, nevertheless from atmospheric moisture. The metal surface of cast iron hardware in the home should receive an occasional coat of ordinary flat black paint with a finishing coat of varnish. New wrought iron for interior use calls for two coats of paint.

Although the natural ageing of ironware brings a certain charm, it does not prove advantageous for the longevity of the articles themselves. This effect can be obtained by an antique finish which will protect as well as beautify the metal surface and lend the charm of age. To get this finish, a dark green paint is applied and then antiqued with a brush that has been dipped in burnt umber pigment in which a little sawdust has been mixed.

North Carolina led the United States in feldspar production in 1929 with 210,811 tons.

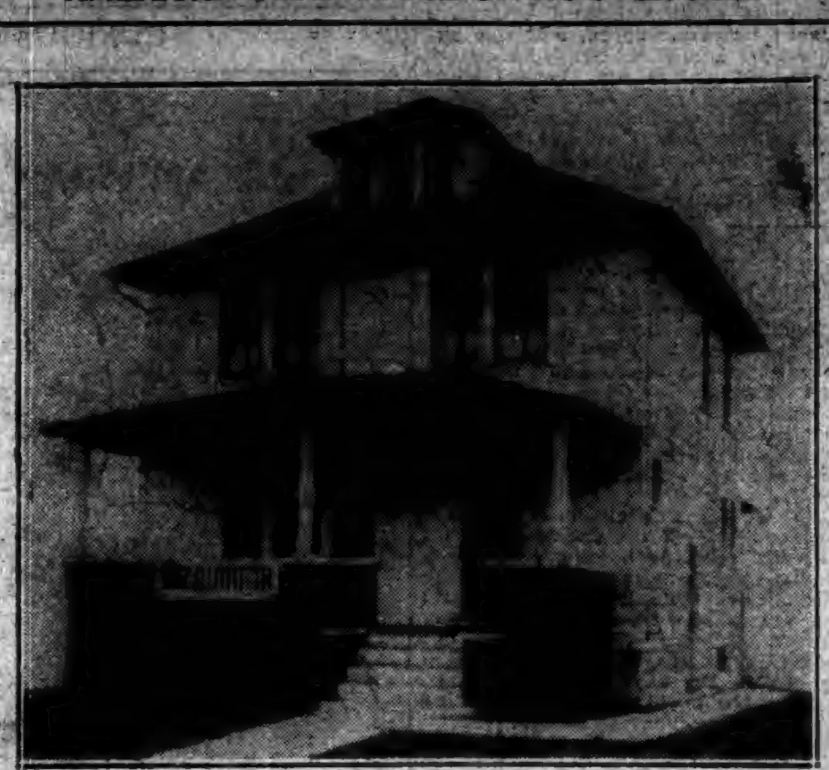
AMERICAN TYPE HOUSE ON HOOVER AVE.



The above house is one built by Contractor Henry G. Montie on Hoover avenue in Greeneville. The house is of the square type American architecture and is two stories in height. There is a large porch on the front of the house which is finished in brown stained shingles. The exterior finish is in broad white clapboards with composition shingles on the roof. The windows are of the three-over-one design. The foundation of the house is of stone and cement.

There are six rooms and bath all finished in hard wood and hard-finish plaster. The floors and trim are of oak and the bath is done in tile and hard-finish plaster. Attractive electric fixtures add much to the house. There are a number of convenient built-in fixtures in the kitchen and dining room.

The house is heated with steam and the cellar is all cemented. The house is one of the most attractive on the street.

STORAGE ROOM IS NEEDED IN KITCHEN

The kitchen is the most essential link in the chain which goes to make up a complete home, and of all the places in the home the kitchen is the one place which can truly be called the woman's. There are more hours, and there is more effort put forth in this room than in any other part of the home. Storage capacity in the proper amount is just as necessary to a modern kitchen as is sink, stove or refrigerator.

Many units are now available for kitchen storage purposes. These compartments come in varied sizes to fit in any space. Perhaps there is a narrow place between wall and stove where the broom or mop is kept and where it is more than apt to fall on or get in the way of the passer-by. Now it is possible to obtain, ready-built, a cabinet which will fit perfectly into this space where brooms and mops may be securely stored.

Then again the housewife may be particularly desirous of having a kitchen storage place for certain utensils in every-day use to do away with the eight or ten steps to the pantry necessary several times during meal preparation. Individual compartments are also available as pantry units, linen closets, plate cup-boards, hanging cup-boards and many others. The manufacturers of this equipment have made it possible for the home owner to install built-in cabinets from time to time after the house has been built, at small cost.

BUILDING PAPER NOT GOOD AS INSULATION

The value of building paper as an insulating material for the home is negligible, says Paul D. Close, technical secretary of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers. "The heat resistance of building paper is so small," he says, "that it is usually neglected in heat transmission calculations."

The value of insulation is based on the speed with which it transmits heat. The fact that paper is more or less air-tight has no bearing on its insulating qualities. Glass, which is also airtight, is actually a conductor of heat and not an insulating material.

Good insulation is made from materials which are naturally slow heat conductors. The insulation value of a material depends on the number of dead air pockets in it. These pockets act as tiny vacuum bottles to prevent the passage of heat.

Insulation makes the modern home comfortable and cuts down winter fuel bills by preventing the passage of furnace heat through walls and roof, thus retaining it where it will keep the home at the proper temperature.

COAL CHUTES DECORATED TO RESEMBLE BUILDING

Painted to harmonize with the brick or stone work a steel coal chute that is built into and is flush with the wall, is inconspicuous and sturdy. One type that is being marketed can be opened only from the inside, where it is secured by a self-acting latch which is released by a chain. When the door is closed it rests against a lid which keeps out moisture and rain.

Heavy gauge steel is used, strongly riveted at the corners to eliminate warping or springing from alignment. There are two standard sizes, 15 by 22 inches in width and either 9 or 12 inches in depth, with solid or glass doors. This coal chute can be used in concrete, block, brick or frame construction.

GAUGING HEAT

A plentiful supply of fresh air is necessary for healthful sleep, but the fresh-air fiend who opens wide every window in the place plays havoc with his fuel costs. There is no economy in checking the fire at night so low that walls become thoroughly chilled.

The amount of fuel required to get the house warm again in the morning will be greater than if the fire is allowed to give out enough heat to prevent the walls from becoming stone cold. The most economical way is to keep the indoor temperature at night only about 10 degrees lower than during the day. This permits a diminished consumption of fuel and at the same time keeps the house warm enough to be reheated to a comfortable temperature without too great a drain on the fuel supply.

If your heating plant is controlled by a thermostat you need only to set the indicator ten degrees lower than you keep it in the day. If the heating plant is not automatically controlled, you may help maintain the desired degree of indoor temperature by closing the bedroom doors at night, so that the cold air can circulate only in the room where you are sleeping.

How Fire Insurance Inspectors Work for You

Frequent, thorough inspections and surveys of insured properties are an indispensable part of the fire insurance business as transacted by the Stock Companies. Hundreds of men are engaged in this work.

Inspections provide the data from which insurance maps are made—rate-makers compute the rate—the agent writes the policy—the underwriter judges the risk, and accepts or rejects it.

Expert Knowledge

The inspector must understand construction, must have a knowledge of the individual hazards of every business, the details of public and private fire protection, the susceptibility to damage of contents and many other matters relating to the character of an insurance risk.

Through his work defects and hazardous conditions are brought to the attention of the property owner. Inspections are the immediate cause of eliminating fire hazards with their attendant reduction in fire waste and the cost of insurance.

Inspections have substantially contributed to the steady decline in the average rate in this country with the result that fire insurance is today one of the cheapest necessities.

We wish to extend our sincere appreciation to our many friends for their acts of kindness during the recent death of our daughter, Catherine Swain, and also for the many beautiful floral pieces sent. 2tmar25

In loving memory of our sister
MRS. JOHN S. HARTIE
Who passed away March 12, 1930

Peaceful be your sleep, Dear Sister,
Grief and pain gone, forever more;
Weary days and nights of suffering
Never will affect you more.
Never did a heart more faithful
Throb within a human breast
Than the one now still forever,
Passed into eternal rest.

With broken hearts we watched you,
And saw you pass away,
Although we loved you dearly,
We could not make you stay;
Nobody knows our longing,
Few have seen us weep,
For we shed our tears with aching hearts
While others are asleep.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Electric Specialty Company, Stamford.

The Electric Specialty company is one of the younger industries of Connecticut, having been incorporated in the year 1913. It began with the manufacture of low voltage generators and motors of special construction, to meet special applications.

The demands for war equipment included radio, then in its infancy, for operation under trying conditions, such as from aeroplanes, etc. The engineers of the company co-operated with Dr. Lee DeForest and other celebrities in the development of radio for war purposes.

After the armistice the company continued the development of radio transmission units for commercial and other purposes. These high frequency generators are in use in every country and have been indispensable to all of the major expeditions, including both the Arctic and Antarctic fields. Its trade name, ESCO, stands for high efficiency throughout the engineering world.

The company has always specialized in designing and manufacturing motors and generators for special application, i. e., something that cannot be found in the open market.

The company's growth has not been phenomenal, but has been steady and sure. Its motto is to keep in the foreground with the rapidly changing industrial and scientific world.

When the organization was formed, the number of employees was six and is now about 125, and the floor space has been increased four different times to provide for the expanding business. The construction of a new plant, completed in February, provides one-third more floor space which is expected to be utilized during 1930.

The unique feature of this business is that it has never employed any salesmen; all of its business comes to it voluntarily and without the solicitation of any sales representative.

The original incorporators and management of the company are still in active charge. The present officers are: J. M. Wright, president; M. L. Bickart, treasurer; D. G. Shepherd, general manager.

JOHNNY KEELEY LOSES RACE TO ANDREW MCLAUGHLIN

Johnny Keeley, local lad and a sensation in Duwell road races the past few years, thought he could beat Frank McLaughlin of Prospect street in a five-mile race Monday. He even agreed to give him a five-minute handicap. The course was to be from the Preston City store to Dick's Service station on North Main street.

Accompanied by their faithful trainers the two set out for the starting point around mid-day and promptly at 2 o'clock McLaughlin was sent away by Starter Earl Bennett of Preston City, followed at 2:05 by our little champion. Each had a machine to follow him, in which were the wildly enthused admirers of the two Nurmis.

But alas and alack! When McLaughlin hove into sight on North Main street and tearing down that thoroughfare, Mr. Keeley was nowhere to be seen. Just as Mac flashed across the finish line Keeley was seen in the distance, beaten by his generous handicap. It was reported that the stray dogs along the way seriously handicapped Keeley by chasing him and getting him off his stride. Keeley immediately issued a defi for a return race for Wednesday and it was accepted.

The Greeneville Cubs defeated the Taftville Congregational church baseball team by the score of 23 to 4. A home run hit by Fred Depucio and the fast fielding of Edward Breen, were the features of the game. The lineup for the winners follows: James McHugh, c; Cameo Kirby, p; Bill Donavan, 1b; Larry Quinn, 2b; Teddy Donavan, 3b; Bud Atchison, ss; Edward Breen, lf; Fred Depucio, rf; John Sublowski, cf.

SEASON STARTS SLOW FOR SMELT FISHERMEN IN SHETUCKET RIVER

Records show that smelt fishing in the Thames and Shetucket rivers has been a popular sport of local fishermen as far back as 1861, when the fish were seined in large quantities. It is noticeable from a search in the files of The Bulletin that periodically the hauls were so poor that the fishermen became discouraged and sought for other fishes, while in other years catches of a ton a day or better were reported.

The first lot of smelts reported taken from the Thames river this season were scooped up by Thomas Spears of Norwich Town. The catch was made last Tuesday, but although Mr. Spears and others have since been wielding their nets for the delectable fish they have not landed a single one. Mr. Spears has held the record of catching the first smelt for several years.

What is responsible for the scarcity of the fish in the Thames this year has not been reported. In the year 1910 the fishermen blamed the ling and whiting for the small runs, claiming that these fish drove away the smelt. Twenty years previous to that, record catches were being made by the Modocs gang, that year surpassing all other springs for smelt in 45 years. A favorite hangout for the fish that year was near the ledge on the northerly side of the Shetucket river by the pier of the Old Allyn's Point bridge.

In 1885 the fishing was not very good in the Thames, only a small number being netted, but two years before that the Bushnell gang was catching as many as 250 pounds a day. The latter part of March, 1885, the fishermen had a red-letter day. Seventeen hundred pounds were taken in the Shetucket in a single day and on another day two tons were lifted from the river. These catches were made by the Peckham Bros.

Since 1918 according to The Bulletin files no very large catches have been taken from either the Shetucket or the Thames river. In that year there was a scarcity of the little fellows.

SPORTSMEN MOVIES FOR NORWICH CLUB MEETING

The Norwich Fish and Game association held one of its best attended and most enthusiastic meetings Monday evening at the home of President Louis Ortmann, 90 Orchard street, where the entertainment was provided by moving pictures which were shown in the barn.

The pictures were shown by Jean Kieffer, using a projector kindly loaned by the Cranston company, and were of a type that held the special interest of the club members. They were loaned by the Naitonal Sportsman. The three reels were entitled Tigers of the North, Fishing Time and Perfect Day. In addition to these Mr. Kieffer showed movies he had taken of the Yale-Harvard boat race and the coon dog trials at Chesterfield.

Between the reels musical numbers were given by the Variety Boys of New London, three playing harmonicas and two accordions.

President Ortmann announced that Game Warden Watron has just received a consignment of 70 cock pheasants for distribution around here and will see that the birds are placed in suitable covers upon notice received through President Ortmann or Secretary Kenneth Fox of the Fish and Game association. DESCRIBES OPERATION OF JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

The speaker at the weekly meeting Monday of the Contact club at the Wauregan hotel was Edward J. Graham, superintendent of schools. Four of the Main Basic Purposes and Functions of the Junior High School was the topic of Superintendent Graham's address. Ernest O. Rodier, president of the club, conducted the meeting, Frederick Geer presided at the piano and Alex Pasnik was the song leader.

At a recent conference of interested citizens, Mr. Graham said he was asked to outline some of the basic purposes and functions of the junior high school. This unit in the American system of education has been organized primarily to give the best educational opportunities to adolescent, pre-adolescent and post-adolescent children. Educators in different cities have felt for a decade or more than the traditional elementary school could not furnish adequately the educational opportunities and advantages to grades seven and eight that our complex social order was continuing to demand. Congestion, in both the elementary and secondary schools, in many cities, had become an acute problem. The junior high school solved this problem by the removal of the seventh and eighth grades from the elementary school and of the ninth grade from the high school.

During the first two years of the high school course, there has always been a high mortality of the pupils. To overcome this difficulty and make more easy and gradual the transition from the elementary to the secondary school, is a function of the junior high school. The greater freedom which the pupils is given in the senior high school, its organization, its curriculums, departmentalization, methods of instruction, are all so different from the traditional elementary school, that it is difficult for a large majority of pupils to adjust and adapt themselves to this new and strange environment. So, in order to overcome some of the difficulties which the pupils have experienced in our present organization, the junior high school organization was formed. The following are four basic purposes and functions of the school.

The first purpose is to ascertain and reasonably to satisfy pupils' important immediate and assured future needs. The work offered should be in itself worthwhile and have a real value. Satisfying important immediate needs results in a peculiar motivation and stimulation of mental and motor activities.

The second purpose. To give exploratory courses, in order to find out the interests, aptitudes and capacities of the pupils. The junior high school gives opportunity for "try-out" courses, opportunity to the pupils to discover or find his abilities, talents, limitations, preferences, interests and capacities. In these exploratory courses, individual differences would be given full play so that the potentialities of the varying groups could be tested for aptitudes and capacities. The possibilities should also be revealed for careers toward a definite goal in the various vocations and major fields of learning. Those directing those courses should see to it that a right start in life is given to boys and girls at a time when their immaturity results in their inability to assume the responsibility to arrive at independent decisions for life careers. These exploratory courses are accompanied by provisions for differentiated curriculums, flexible promotions, rapid advancement of bright pupils, opportunities for over-age pupils, and for those of exceptional ability.

The third purpose and function of the school is to reveal the possibilities in the major fields of learning. The pupil should have brought to his attention information touching on vocational opportunities and educational requirements necessary for a successful career in any one of the major fields of learning. This type of school offers systematic educational and vocational guidance, but the freedom of choice is always left with the pupil or his parents. Too often in the past, the students' choice of an educational program has been a capricious, blind and unguided choice.

The fourth purpose is to start each pupil on the career which as a result of exploratory courses, he, his parents and the school are convinced is most likely to be of profit to him and to the state. To stimulate and encourage his educational and vocational endeavor along the lines of initial choice in a major field of learning or in some vocation, is the fourth basic purpose of the junior high school.

At the conclusion of Mr. Graham's talk, questions were asked by some of the members. In response to one of these questions, Mr. Graham said that with our present grand list, only one mill would be added to our tax if the junior high school proposition was decided upon.

Mr. Graham stated that his talk today was one of a series of an educational program on the junior high school proposition and if proven favorable would result in laying the proposition before the people at a special town meeting for vote.

Asked if there was not another manner by which the congestion could be relieved in the schools, Superintendent Graham said that Principal Henry A. Tirrell of the Free Academy had informed him that a new building there would cost approximately $250,000. About $75,000 would be needed in addition, the speaker said, for a six room addition to the Broad street school and he would not commit himself as to what it would cost to fix up the Greeneville school. This is only patchwork, he said.

The speaker was giving a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of his talk.

DISALLOWED $69,577 CLAIM AGAINST GORDON ESTATE

Out of a total of $118,549.87 in claims presented against the estate of the late Aaron Gordon, who for many years was connected with the Max Gordon & Son corporation of this city, the sum of $69,567.33 was disallowed and $48,982.54 allowed by the two commissioners appointed by the Norwich probate court, Attorneys Arthur F. Libby and Andrew B. Davies.

Mr. Gordon became involved in real estate speculation in Worcester and was a heavy loser when the market declined. His two daughters, Mrs. Miriam G. Kontoff and Mrs. Clara S. Markoff, were the executrices named in his will and they asked the probate court to appoint the commissioners.

The executrices represent that the estate is insolvent and the court so decreed when the commissioners were appointed. The inventory value of real and personal property was $13,226.56. It is expected that creditors will receive about 10 per cent on their allowed claims.

Claims allowed in whole or in part are the following: State of Connecticut, taxes, $196.64, allowed in full; Uncas-Merchants National bank, $13,500, allowed $13,100, disallowed $400; Danielson bank, $16,850.70, allowed in full; Worcester Bank and Trust company, $72,252.50, allowed $18,835.20, disallowed $53,417.30.

Claims disallowed in full were the following: Bessie R. Mintz, $1,000; J. C. Rosenfeld, $38.10; Brown and Soulliere, insurance, $204.48; N. E. Roofing Co., $141.95; Worcester Wall Paper, $10.82; Otis Elevator, $40.63; Nathan Levine, $55.60; Yoffa, Lurie and Cinamon, attorneys' fees, $13,786; Lurie and Yoffa, attorneys' fees, $463.45.

TRAIL OF FIRE IS AFTER THE CORN BORER

Clouds of smoke rising over the dead fields and garden patches of southern Connecticut show the progress of the vigorous official cleanup to destroy the European corn borer. A crew of more than 15 men under the leadership of M. P. Zappe of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station, and T. M. Cannon, federal agent, are now at work in the territory known to be infested.

Where a single specimen was found, in scouting last summer, the field and surroundings were marked for cleanup. Towns thus infested, which lie apart from the quarantined area of Connecticut, are Orange, Bethel, Roxbury, Danbury, Southbury, North Haven, Easton, Stratford and Milford. Corn borers were found in them last summer for the first time, except Milford. A previous infestation there was burned so carefully in 1927 that the pest did not reappear for two years.

Within the regulated portion of the state owners are required by law to clean their own fields. The state board of finance and control recently granted the station $6,000 to continue its work on the corn borer and the Japanese beetle.

Burning is the quickest process to kill off the corn borer. The crew travels from town to town with three truckloads of oil and six hand burners. In small patches debris is raked into piles and burned, but in fields where stalks are standing, fire is applied to the surface. Two men operate a burner, which shoots flames from three nozzles, and a patch of fire and smoke follows down the field.

Love is too often adulterated with money.

ANDOVER GRADE CROSSING IS TO BE ELIMINATED

Approval of the state public utilities commission of a plan to eliminate the railroad grade crossing just west of the Andover railroad station at a cost of approximately $37,700 was given in a decision of the commission just made public. The crossing will be eliminated by the construction of a state highway running parallel with the railroad tracks and north of them. The present highway crosses the railroad just west of the station to go through the town of Andover.

The crossing elimination will be made without expense to the town, the New Haven railroad paying 45 per cent and the state 55 per cent.

The original petition for eliminating the grade crossing was brought by the state highway commissioner in May, 1926, but the project then aroused so much opposition among the townspeople that the matter was temporarily dropped. The present petition was brought by residents of the town headed by Judge Edward M. Yeomans, last December, and a hearing was held Feb. 17. A pedestrian underpass was considered for some time, but the estimated cost was $13,000 and the plan was abandoned when it was urged that the use of such an underpass would be so limited that such an expense would be too high.

FOR DEEPER CHANNEL IN FISHERS ISLAND HARBOR

A channel 14 feet deep and 100 feet wide has been recommended for West harbor, Fishers Island, by the United States engineers for rivers and harbors, the Fishers Island Navigation company was informed Monday in a message from Washington, D. C. The company and the Fishers Island Farms, Inc., were the instigators of a campaign to improve the Fishers Island harbor by deepening and widening the channel, and support was given the project by the city of New London and the chamber of commerce there.

The engineers were asked to approve a channel 16 feet deep and 150 feet wide. The West harbor channel now is irregular in both width and depth. The navigation company said it had not been informed when dredging will be started.

Salesman Finds Way To Keep Stomach Fit

"I was troubled with an acid stomach for ten years, and as I am a salesman, I think my condition hurt my production. Then I heard about Acidine and after using two packages I feel fine. If I could put this enthusiasm I feel for Acidine into selling my own product I would be 100% better for my own company," says Mr. J. F. McCarthy, 7 Danube Street, Dorchester, Mass.

More than 2 million other people depend on Acidine to sweeten sour stomachs, because it gives such swift relief. Get Acidine at any drug store or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

COURT SUSTAINS MAYOR BATTERSON OF HARTFORD

Judge Newell Jennings In Superior Court Decided That the Mayor Was Within His Constitutional Rights In Declining to Answer Questions About a $500 Purchase of Liquor From a Bootlegger Through a "Friend"—The Mayor Was Before the Court As a Recalcitrant Witness Before a Special Grand Jury Investigating Liquor Conditions.

HARTFORD, March 25—(AP)—The constitutional right of refusal to answer questions asked by a grand jury by witnesses who are engaged in the liquor traffic on the ground that answers might be self-incriminating, is an allowable privilege, Judge Newell Jennings of superior court held this afternoon and in so ruling he discharged Mayor Walter E. Batterson and former State Senator Edward N. Allen, who were before him as recalcitrant witnesses before a special grand jury investigating liquor conditions.

The court said that the jury appeared to have relied primarily for its information on "persons engaged in the liquor traffic," and if his ruling hampered the grand jury it could so report and he would discharge it.

The jury has been sitting since January 4, off and on, looking into liquor conditions here as revealed by the killing of one bootlegger by another. State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn had secured the jury in an effort to clean up bootlegging, rum running and other questionable conditions in the county.

Mayor Batterson was drawn into the inquiry when members of the Hartford police department were called into the jury room. As a witness twice, he had been asked about a $500 purchase worth of liquor from a bootlegger through a "friend," several months ago. The jury report to the court indicated that the "friend" might be Mr. Allen and the bootlegger was one "Murphy."

Court action was to obtain an order compelling both Batterson and Allen to answer specific questions about this liquor transaction. The jury itself had no power to punish for refusal to answer but in event an order had been given and refusal of the witnesses persisting the jury could have asked the court to punish for contempt.

In the proceedings this afternoon, the legal angle turned on whether the respondents had to show that answers they might give to the jury would be self-incriminating or whether the state's attorney had to show that such answers would not be.

Mr. Alcorn held that Mayor Batterson was obligated to give all the information in his possession to the grand jury and that information as to Mr. Allen's dealing with bootleggers, was of little consequence.

The court ruled that neither respondent had to answer the questions when he took refuge in his constitutional rights. Mr. Alcorn took two exceptions to the ruling, one to supposed assertion of proof of incrimination was on the state, which was not allowed, and a general one. Mr. Alcorn at first indicated his intention to appeal the court's decision discharging the mayor and Mr. Allen, but later changed his mind, probably ending the case.

SUSPECTS HELD FOR MURDER OF NEWARK RESTAURATEUR

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Nine hours after William Curry had been shot to death in a $35 holdup of his restaurant in Newark, N. J., two suspects were arrested today in New York, all because of a witness' memory for casual details.

The holdup occurred early this morning and the two men who did it had been in the place, which is at 1073 Broad street, for several hours. Curry, who was 45, resisted, and one of the robbers shot him. Then they rifled the pockets of Curry's son, Joseph, 24, and two other diners, herded the three into a back room, emptied the cash register and fled.

One of the customers remembered that one of the robbers had made a telephone call to a girl during the evening. He also remembered the number.

Police said they traced it to an apartment in West 34th street, near the Pennsylvania railroad station. When they went there the girl telephoned and asked for George B. Harris. The detective who answered said Harris was out, but that he was expected soon and that she was to come to the apartment.

She did, that was shortly after noon. While she was being questioned, Harris, whose brother occupied the apartment, arrived with Lawrence A. Doyle, and both were promptly arrested, neither was armed.

After a brief interrogation, police announced Harris and Doyle had confessed to killing Curry, but other detectives said later that both had denied any connection with the holdup and slaying.

A SLIGHT DECREASE IN UNEMPLOYMENT IN MARCH

WASHINGTON, March 25.—(AP)—A slight decrease in unemployment for March—the first gain to be registered since August—was shown by figures made public today by the American Federation of Labor, based on trade union reports to President William Green.

Ten of 24 cities to report showed a decrease in unemployment, 10 others reported increases and in four there was no change. The greatest improvement was shown in the figures of the seafaring trades, where unemployment decreased from 38 per cent in February to 27 per cent in March. OFFICERS OF AMERICAN WOOLEN CO. RE-ELECTED

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 25.—(AP)—All officers were re-elected in the annual meeting of the American Woolen company stockholders here today. The report of President Andrew G. Pierce showed a net loss for the year of $4,228,190, which he blamed to a drastic decline in raw material prices and a heavy annual charge of depreciation. He said, however, that the company was never so strong financially and needed only normal goods buying and stabilized raw material markets to demonstrate the earning possibilities of the system of mills.

MEXICO CITY, March 25—(AP)—Nine workmen were killed and several injured today in the collapse of the Tecamachalco dam at Morales Hacienda, near Tacuba. They were buried in the debris.

PEARLS OF WISDOM FROM MAN WHO WEDLOCKED 900 COUPLES

EVANSTON, Ill., March 25—(AP)—From the pinnacle of 77 years, Justice of the Peace Samuel Harrison looked back today over the 900 marriages he has celebrated in 16 years.

Some of those couples might have made a botch of it, he reflected, but after all, "a bad marriage is better than none."

Here are some of his words of counsel:

"Marry early, but not too often.

"Tell your wife every day 'I love you'.

"Tell your husband every day 'how strong you are', or 'how clever'.

"Do not open each other's letters. You may not like the contents.

"If you must be frank with one another, let it be in private.

"If sometimes it seems hard to be married to him, remember that he has to be married to you.

"Forgive your partner seventy times seven, and then throw away the account book."

And a last word to those still thinking about the plunge:

"The foundation of marriage," said Justice Harrison, "should be respect for each other's intelligence instead of admiration for each other's face."

Relating the hope of the founders, she will translate past struggles for the ballot into terms of future world peace. Mrs. Catt also will call the attention of the nation to a $750,000 League of Women Voters foundation fund, memorializing a "roll of honor" of women leaders who campaigned for suffrage.

Piggott, a farmer of Bogalusa, to 18 months in the Atlanta penitentiary today on his plea of guilty to the charge of holding Negro farm hands in peonage. Piggott admitted that he chained a runaway farm hand to a tree but said that he worked his help "just the same as anyone in the country does."

He said he would advance money to Negro helpers and collect later from their wages. When they would run away he would get sheriffs to return them to him instead of sending them to jail.

Revival Of Hope For Naval Conference

Delegates Are to Meet In Plenary Session Next Week—Hope Replaces Despair.

LONDON, March 25.—(AP)—A formal plenary session of the five power naval conference next week, will inform the world what has been accomplished in ten weeks of negotiations and what hopes are held out for naval disarmament.

The chief delegates of the five powers decided upon this course this afternoon. The exact date of the plenary session to be fixed Thursday after Foreign Minister Briand returns from Paris to head the French delegation.

In conference circles tonight the coming session was described by delegates as one of hope instead of despair, this indicating an entire change of the conference picture since this morning.

There is no talk of adjournment; and the reports of a six month interval, which today became tangled in a skein of confirmations and denials, the proposal for adjournment being credited both to the Italians and British, gave way to more constructive news of plans for proceeding with the conference full speed.

Today's session resulted from realization that the scattered forces of the conference needed pulling together. Instead of leaving negotiations in the hands of individual experts and to a variety of small committees as has been done for a month, the heads of the delegations felt that they must swing into action again on fundamental disarmament problems.

It was authoritatively stated that today's events were largely inspired by Secretary Stimson's frank talk with Prime Minister MacDonald at Number 10 Downing street this morning, the British and American chiefs agreeing that the conference must be lifted out of an atmosphere of apathy and again be headed towards its goal.

AGED COUPLE END LIVES BECAUSE OF ILL HEALTH

BALTIMORE, March 25.—(AP)—An aged couple, in ill health and near poverty, today ended their lives, 32 years of which they had spent together, because one could not live without the other.

Police found the bodies of the couple, Harry B. Applewaite, 75, and his wife, Laura, 70, lying in their bed with their throats slashed. Two old razors, the instruments of their double suicide pact, were found lying by their bodies.

On a table beside the bed was a note, telling of the fight against ill health and strained circumstances of the couple. It was written by Mrs. Applewaite, and signed by her and her husband, though police said she had done all of the writing.

TARIFF LEGISLATION IN GERMAN REICHSTAG

BERLIN, March 25.—(AP)—The reichstag, as had been expected, today passed by comfortable majorities the third reading of a whole group of tariff legislation increasing the rates on agricultural produce.

The increases include one on wheat, raising the duty to a possiaximum of 120 marks (about $28.50) per ton, with the authorization of a still further increase in case of attempts from abroad to dump wheat on the market. Large quantities of wheat stored in the United States were especially envisaged. The former maximum was 95 marks per ton.

Severe Snowstorm Raging In Chicago

Fall Almost Certain to Exceed Previous March Record of 12.6 Inches Set In 1926.

CHICAGO, March 25—(AP)—High winds and drifting snow today held transportation almost at a standstill, hampered communication, caused numerous accidents and were held directly responsible for at least two deaths.

The storm swept out of the northeast, raced over the lower Great Lakes states and extended south into the Missouri Ozarks.

Chicago blinded by the snow and crippled by the drifts, received a snowfall of 8.5 inches by early afternoon and forecasters predicted continuance of the storm until noon tomorrow. The fall appeared certain to eclipse the previous March record of 12.6 inches set in 1926.

The snow was driven before a northeast wind which reached a velocity of 30 miles an hour and diminished only slightly through the day.

Highways were blocked, street cars were unable to hold to the rails, elevated trains collided twice and automobiles skidded and stalled. In one of the elevated collisions a motorman was severely injured and several passengers suffered slight hurts.

A Negro slipped on the sidewalk, suffered a fractured skull and died. An unidentified man slid beneath the wheels of a heavy motor bus as a gust of wind caught him on a slippery curb, and was killed.

In Gary, Ind., the wind fanned the flames of a burning 18 family apartment house. One man was killed, another probably fatally injured and a third is missing. Other dwellers were driven into the storm in only their night clothing.

Many Illinois and Indiana cities were cut off from the outside world and a large number of motorists were marooned over the two states. Deputy sheriffs conducting five prisoners from Peoria, Ill., to a prison farm at Vandalia, were forced to abandon their automobile at Macon, Ill. They had not reported early tonight.

An expectant mother, injured when two automobiles collided on a country road near Chicago, is expected to die as the result of exposure. Two hours elapsed before help arrived. Chicago babies felt the pinch of the storm in the inability of dairies to make milk deliveries.

Many persons were hurt in accidents.

Cold, rain, sleet and light snow were reported generally over Missouri and Kansas and even points as far southwest as Tulsa, Okla., reported snow traces.

FAILED IN EFFORT TO FORM NEW POLISH CABINET

WARSAW, March 25.—(AP)—After a week of efforts to form a new government, Professor Szymanski, president of the senate and well-known oculist, indicated tonight he would be unable to form a cabinet to succeed that of Premier Casimir Bartel, who resigned on March 14.

The immediate cause of his failure was the refusal of representative deputies of the sejm to accept conditions laid down by Marshal Pilsudsky, former dictator and "strong man" of Poland, who had been asked to take the ministry of war.

In view of the friction between the marshal and the diet, this failure had been foreseen since the professor was asked on March 18 to try to get together a cabinet. Some political leaders affirmed that he had been asked to do this merely to postpone the sittings of the diet.

COURT JUSTIFIED RAID ON LIQUOR SMELL FROM HOME

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 25.—(AP)—Dry agents with visual and olfactory evidence that liquor laws are being violated may enter a private home without a search warrant, Federal District Judge F. A. Geiger held today. His decision was on a motion to suppress evidence in the case of Joseph Larien, Milwaukee.

The agents came in through a basement door, which Larien slammed in their faces. But they saw a home brewery outfit operating and smelled alcohol or cooking mash before the door was closed, they testified.

Cornelius Hanley, defense attorney, contended that under the dry law only sale of the liquor from a home constituted a violation.

Heretofore agents have been able to enter a home without a search warrant only if the owner invited them in for a search or on the owner's admission of violating the law.

WASHINGTON, March 25— (AP) — The senate passed the $230,000,000 public buildings bill and the agriculture department appropriation measure, carrying funds for road construction today and then granted itself a week of rest.

The tariff bill which won senate approval Monday night after nearly seven months debate, was returned formally to the house. No action will be taken on it there until Monday.

The public buildings bill allots $115,000,000 additional for construction outside Washington, bringing the total for this work over a ten year period to $363,000,000. It permits an increase in the annual amount for public construction outside the capital from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000. The administration is prepared to take immediate advantage of this to stimulate employment.

The bill was returned to the house for acceptance of a minor amendment.

Acting on the agriculture supply bill, the senate added $6,900,000 on motion of Senator Trammell, democrat, Florida, for continuation of the drive for eradication of the Mediterranean fruit fly.

The regular allotment of $75,000,000 for federal road aid fo rthe next fiscal year beginning July 1, was provided by the bill.

BRIBERY CHARGE BROUGHT INTO MANSLAUGHTER TRIAL

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP) — A Jersey City district judge and a former member of the staff of the district attorney of New York county were today drawn into the trial of Dr. Maurice A. Sturm, a physician on trial for manslaughter, who declared on the witness stand that they had tried to blackmail him.

After the death of his patient, Mrs. Ruth Weir of East Orange, N. J., after an operation a year and a half ago, Dr. Sturm said he was approached by "a Judge Hanley of Jersey City," who, he said, told him that William D. Ryan, then an assistant district attorney of New York county, had a case against him and would prosecute "to the limit," unless the doctor paid $10,000.

Judge William Hanley of Jersey City, who was sitting in Hoboken today, later issued through his secretary, L. Martin, a statement in which he denied the charge made by Dr. Sturm and declared that both he and Ryan had been cleared after an investigation by the district attorney's office more than a year ago.

Ryan, who was a member of the homicide bureau, resigned during the investigation of Mrs. Weir's death. About the same time, after rumors that someone had been bribed in connection with the Sturm case, there was a shakeup in the district attorney's staff. Joab H. Banton, then district attorney, announced that the matter was a closed incident and refused to comment further.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATING THE ANTI-FIREARMS LAW

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Three young men, two of them from South Norwalk, were arrested tonight in front of the Hotel Charles on charges of violating the Sullivan anti-firearms law. Police said all three have records of previous arrests.

They described themselves as Joseph Marino, 24, of New York, and John Warren, 25, and John Brandon, 18, both of South Norwalk. Each carried a pistol when arrested, police said.

They were arrested by a patrolman who had been assigned to watch the hotel because of two recent holdups there. MERGER ANNOUNCED BY GERMAN STEAMSHIP LINES

BERLIN, March 25—(AP)—Almost at the very moment the German liner Europa had seized the blue ribbon of the ocean, the Hamburg-America and the North German Lloyd steamship lines announced today they had completed a 50-year co-operative agreement to end competition.

The announcement was made in a joint communique issued in two cities by directors of the organizations—in Hamburg by Dr. Cuno of the Hamburg-America line and in Bremen by Herr Seineken, of the North German Lloyd. It was indicated that the agreement was a union of convenience only.

Both concerns had to swallow much pride, it is conceded, and overcome their deep seated rival feelings. Necessity caused the shipping agreement which Emperor William II vainly suggested in 1913.

The new combine places the German group third in the world from the viewpoint of tonnage. The Royal Mail line has 2,700,000 tons; the Peninsula and Oriental 2,500,000; the Hamburg-America-North German Lloyd combination, 2,000,000, and Cunard, 1,200,000.

In trans-Atlantic passenger traffic, the agreement placed the combination second only to the Cunard line, which in 1929, carried 25.3 per cent of the entire passenger traffic westward and 24.8 per cent eastward, while Hamburg-America and North German Lloyd together carried 17.4 per cent westward and 18.8 eastward.

WATZL KILLED PARAMOUR THEN COMMITTED SUICIDE

VIENNA, March 25—(AP)—Mystery surrounding the disappearance of Dr. Hermann (Ernstt) Watzl, Cleveland chemist and inventor, of Austrian birth, was unveiled today after baffling inquiry in three continents for four months.

The body of a man found shot dead in a dingy hotel room yesterday was definitely identified as that of the chemist by his father, H. Watzl. A woman lying near Watzl's body and also shot dead, was said to be Mrs. Mary MacGranahan, of Cleveland.

A rapid medical examination resulted in a statement that Watzl had killed the woman and then shot himself through the heart, the bullet with which he ended his life pierced his body, issuing through his back, and fell to the floor of the room after striking a wall.

The couple died absolutely penniless, leaving an unpaid bill at the hotel.

ACTRESS HELEN TWELVETREES HAS BEEN GRANTED DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, March 25—(AP)—Helen Twelvetrees, motion picture actress, was granted a divorce from Clark Twelvetrees in superior court today. She charged mental cruelty and brutality.

"Why did you live with him for three years?" the court asked.

"I thought I could change him but now I have found out it can't be done," the actress replied.

The couple were married in February, 1927. They have no children.

Twelvetrees leaped out of a window in New York some time ago and was in a hospital for several months. The actress said she paid the bills.

NORTH GERMAN LLOYD LINER EUROPA MADE RECORD TIME ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—The new speed mistress of the seas—the North German Lloyd liner Europa—slid into fog-bound New York harbor today with a new trans-Atlantic record for her maiden voyage from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose lightship, just off the entrance of the lower bay.

Cutting through a light mist and drizzle the Europa passed the lightship at 5:54 a. m. to establish a record of 4 days, 17 hours and six minutes for the run across the Atlantic's speed lane. She left Cherbourg at 12:48 p. m. E. S. T. Thursday.

This lowered by 18 minutes the old record established by the Europa's sister ship, the Bremen, last October and cut 36 minutes under the time made by the Bremen in her maiden voyage last July.

The Europa averaged a speed of 27.9 knots in the 3,157 miles she traveled from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose light—a course that was seven miles shorter than the route taken by the Bremen in her record breaking October run.

Fog-bound at quarantine for more than an hour, the Europa finally started up the harbor, guided by a small fleet of tugs, when the blanket of mist partially lifted. Several harbor craft saluted the big ship as they passed in the rising fog but she encountered few vessels as traffic in the upper bay was at a minimum.

Scores of persons lined the government piers in Brooklyn— the only slips adequate to berth the 936 foot Europa—to greet her at the end of the record maiden run. The steady rain, which lifted only as she neared the pier, had by this time washed off the sleek white upper sides of the Europa, which had been grimed by belching smoke during the voyage.

The Europa is nearly identical in size to the Bremen—almost 52,000 tons—and slightly different in appearance in the shape of her two huge funnels and in the details of her super structure. Inside, however, the Europa is more quietly decorated than the Bremen.

She carried 1,940 passengers on her initial voyage and a crew of 975 men. She has accommodations for 2,200 passengers.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED TO ATTEND SPRING OPENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 26—An unusual treat awaits the thousands of people expected to visit Willimantic's business district during the annual spring opening of the Willimantic stores to be staged beginning Thursday evening until 9 o'clock Saturday night.

The treat lies not only in the fact that window and interior attractions will be, according to all predictions, far superior to any ever seen here, but also in the fact that new styles, many of which are quite drastic, will be on display for the first time. The 52 merchants who are going to give away gifts expect many visitors who will take advantage of this opportunity which has no obligations whatsoever tied to it. Any visitor to any or all of these 52 stores, whether a purchaser or not, will receive a ticket making him or her eligible to receive these gifts.

Courteous and hospitable treatment is assured by the merchants to all persons coming to the city during the opening. The intent of the spring opening is not to hold special sales but to show the new spring merchandise and it is hoped to accomplish this in an interesting and instructive manner. Arrangements have been completed to have Wheeler's band play in a series of concerts throughout the business district from 7 to 9 o'clock Thursday evening. Spring opening announcements will be made in The Bulletin by the Willimantic merchants Thursday morning.

"Three Pegs" Given Successfully

Friday evening, the Young People of the Baptist church presented the play, "The Three Pegs." It was well staged, very acceptably acted and splendidly coached. Aunt Euphelia, (Charlotte Kitchin), aged in mind and heart, was also very deaf, talkative and bossy. She was going to Europe until Emily Weston, a woman of thirty-five, rich and cultured, really wanted her to go. Then, Auntie made up her mind to stay home, much to the regret of the entire household. Having neither patience nor sympathy for anybody, nobody had any time for her. She was always recoiling from germs, thieves, ghosts and folks. Marjorie Mortimer, (Mrs. Conti), brought her supposed daughter, (Bernice Gallop) to live with and work for Miss Weston. Aunt Euphelia, sent for her distant relative, Dorothy Mortimer, ill mannered, a habitual user of slang and gum. Phyllis Sanderson came from a girls' home, and, as Peg was eager to make others happy. These three, proved to be three Pegs, all applicants for the position with Miss Emily, and all together in hot water most of the time. Troubled and troublesome Aunt Euphelia was motive and end of it all. Sarah, (Daisy Dawley), the cook, and Lizzie, (Margaret Hope), the maid, sisters in faith and in works, were adepts at the tricks they played on Aunt Euphelia. It all happened to turn out happily. Emily Weston recovered her long lost lover, and found Peg to be a boon companion. Marguerite married and Miss Weston's dear friend, Mrs. Barclay, (Winogene Pratt), found her long lost daughter, Madge, (Bernice Gallop). The play was in three acts. Between the acts Miss Mary Hope's class sold candy. The play was coached by Miss Freda Eyers. Mrs. George Sanderson also gave considerable time to help make the play a success.

DANIELSON

FIRE LOSS IN DANIELSON FOR THE YEAR IS SMALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 25——Considering the fiscal year, and not the calendar year, Danielson seems destined to hang up another record such as it has consistently made, by the grace of God and a splendid department, from absence of fire losses throughout more than a decade past. The borough's year ends with the present month.

Along with those who are superstitious about mentioning such matters, one knocks on wood, in setting forth in advance of the close of this official year that Danielson appears on the eve of again recording that for a town of its size it has a smaller loss by fire than any community in New England, or, for that matter, in the entire country.

This is not all luck, whatever element of that desirable circumstance of life may be included.

Danielson has had a normal number of fires during the past twelve months, but not a one of them got out of control to pile up a really serious property loss.

Though it has only a volunteer fire department, but a mighty efficient and enthusiastic one, when there is fire-fighting to be done, it has a modern fire alarm telegraph system and a motorized set of apparatus. In other words, it is so situated that there should be no great delay in getting alarms through, nor in the apparatus heading out of the central fire station wherever it may be called. And the men who man the machines and the hose and the ladders know how. The majority of they have been in the department for many years.

Fire losses during the last calendar year were less than $1.00 per capita. They have been exceedingly low for many years. Unless something unfortunate and unforeseen occurs between new and midnight of March 31, another fine record will have been made.

This afternoon Elliott James of Chicago, a lecturer whose specialty is demonstrating liquid air as to its value and importance gave an hour's demonstration at a general assembly of the students at Killingly high school, conducting a very considerable number of interesting experiments, much enjoyed by the audience. As the school budget provides no funds for such demonstrations, the students attended paid an admission fee of 10 cents if they desired to be present, as many of them did.

Of interest pertaining to the activities of the high school is the fact that the band is progressing steadily, and likely will be heard in concert and in public later in the season.

Along another line, it so happens that attacks of German measles are at the present time keeping a number of pupils out of the schools of the town, and this week two teachers are off duty, awaiting developments indicating whether or not they may be attacked by this disease of minor severity.

It is regarded that general adverse conditions is largely responsible for Danielson's building campaign getting away to such a slow start in these early days of the spring. The mental attitude of a considerable number of persons who have talked of and would like to build homes is that of hesitancy due largely to uncertain over the future. It is regarded as possible that this attitude will be largely overcome with the coming of real spring weather and the general improvement in business that is being predicted with so much confidence.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Short and Mrs. Charles Martin are to leave Wednesday to visit with relatives and friends in East Orange, N. J.

Michael Chykow and Carmine Valeski, Canterbury youths, arrested yesterday for stealing chickens, were presented before Justice George Torrey and in each instance fined $25 and costs and given a sentence, also in each instance, of 10 days in jail, execution of the sentence being suspended.

Formerly there was a bronze statue in the fountain in the central section of Davis park. This statue, after an exposure of nearly a generation to the elements, disintegrated several years ago and never has been replaced. It was suggested today the replacement of it by gift from some individual or organization would be a very acceptable civic gesture. The borough has no funds for such a purpose just now.

Some taxi operators here say they have noted practically no falling off in business as a result of the increase in fares from 15 cents to 20 cents, for short trips about the borough, a few weeks ago. The advance in fares was general by taxi operators and was made in order to put the business on a basis yielding a fair profit, which was hardly possible at 15 cents Such reduction in riding as some patrons may have caused is in considerable measure offset by the larger revenue derived from individual fares.

Manufacturing interests having water and power rights along the Quinebaug river through this section of eastern Connecticut decline to get over-excited about the uncovering of a proposal under which water was to be diverted from this stream, coming into Connecticut from Massachusetts, for the purpose of supplying water for domestic purposes to the greater Boston area. Under the plan a big reservoir would be created in the vicinity of Southbridge. Eastern Connecticut manufacturers referred to, have valuable vested interests along this stream, and it is only natural that they feel they have legal rights that cannot be easily upset before the courts, no matter what the increasing demand for water in the Massachusetts capital may be.

Nearly 50 young women were in attendance last evening at a meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's parish.

The financial year of the borough of Danielson ends with the present month, and figures from annual reports of borough officials will be ready for publication within a few days.

Published reports indicated that the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, owner of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town, is looking forward to one of the best years in the corporation's history.

Painters are among the first of the artisans of Danielson to benefit by the improvement in business already setting in here, and they report considerable activity now, following a quiet winter season.

A large attendance and much amusement marked the periodical Red Arrow auction at the Orpheum theater last evening. The live baby sold at auction proved to be a police dog puppy.

Henry G. Gervais of Attleboro was a visitor with friends in Danielson today.

Squirrels that have made their homes about a central residential section of the borough throughout the winter have become so tame that they call at homes to be fed from the hands of persons interested in them.

State officers of the Danielson barracks have information relative to the recovery in Newark, N. J., of a Nash coupe stolen in Providence on March 9. The machine is the property of Henry Catry of this town.

Stock of second hand furniture at the Charles Nado store, Railroad square, will be sold at auction Sat., March 29, at 1.00 p. m. Witter Bros., Auctioneers. —Adv.

Mrs. Damase Boulais was reported today as remaining critically ill at her home on School street.

When the Killingly Woman's club meets at the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday the subject will be Gardens.

Wednesday afternoon members of the Ladies' Benevolent society are to meet at the Westfield Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Musgrave and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Storer returned from a visit to Wellfleet, Mass., where Mr. and Mrs. Musgrave have a summer home.

Captain and Mrs. Hugh Mason, who have a country residence in Brooklyn, have returned from a stay of several months abroad, visiting Spain and other European countries.

The death of Mrs. E. A. Winter in Willimantic is a matter of deep regret to the many Danielson people who remember her as a resident of Danielson for years, while Mr. Winter was proprietor of the Central House, now the Danielson Inn.

Rain during the greater part of today did much to reduce for the time being the danger from grass, brush and forest fires, which have been plaguing the territory for a week past.

Louis Peliquin has practically completed arrangements for the card of bouts he is to stage at the town hall here on April 8. Several Norwich and New London boxers will appear at this event.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Eva Davis of Providence has been a visitor with local friends. Miss Davis lived here for some time and is remembered by many for her interest and help in church work.

A very pleasant social event of the week was a birthday party given by H. C. club to members whose birthdays occurred in January, February or March. The guests were Mrs. Nathan Cook, Mrs. Patrick Coffey, Mrs. Raymond Tilton, Mrs. Milan Whitaker, Mrs. Herman Barlow and Mrs. George Coolidge. The hostesses were members whose birthdays occur in April, May or June. Each guest received a birthday cake and a gift and cake and ice cream were served.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall had as guests on an automobile ride, Friday, Mrs. John E. Vaughn of Norwich and Mrs. Patrick Coffey of this place.

A farm management school is to be held in Grange hall Thursday, March 27, at 10:30, for the purpose of studying individual farm problems, the solution of which it is hoped, will result in a larger net income. Prof. A. W. Manchester and A. L. Putnam of C. A. C. will give helpful suggestions on all subjects along these lines. There will be a basket lunch at noon with coffee served by the South Killingly hostesses.

Francis Coffey visited friends in Valley Falls and Auburn Sunday.

The March community social was held in the Community house Friday evening. An illustrated talk, music and a short play by the 4-H club of East Killingly formed the program under the direction of Mrs. H. A. Coolidge.

Local people who attended the gymnasium exhibition at K. H. S., Friday evening, were delighted with the evening's entertainment.

Mrs. G. W. Barlow entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Winsor Barlow of Hillsgrove, R. I., Byron Place and family, Byron Wood and family, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Barlow and Herman Barlow and family.

Mrs. Nelson Griffith and sons, Southerd and Roy, were callers at The Oaks Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cook visited relatives in West Greenwich Friday evening.

Arthur Tetreault has added another chicken house to his poultry farm.

Sunday in the church, Rev. H. A. Coolidge conducted both services.

At her home in Stamford, Vt., within five miles of the place where she was born 101 years ago, Mrs. Mary L. Stroud recently died. Mrs. Stroud had spent her entire life within a radius of ten miles. She had never seen a motion picture and had never been photographed. Although she had seen a trolley car she never rode in one. She had one automobile ride in the later years of her life, but she did not like the experience and never repeated it.

NEW PUTNAM BUSINESS BLOCK

PUTNAM

NEW BUSINESS HOUSE WILL OPEN SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 25.—The business center of Putnam on next Saturday, by virtue of the formal opening of the Windham county home of Montgomery, Ward and company, will have a modern brick and steel, fireproof, four-story business block, located on the corner of Pomfret and Main streets in the heart of the trading district. The building which was recently completed is situated on the site of the former Central block, and is owned by Charles A. Seder, local realtor.

Its construction has been completed, with the exception of a few minor details. The building is a credit to the efforts of Mr. Seder. It is by far the finest of the Seder series of business blocks, three of which line Main street.

The contract for the construction of the Montgomery Ward block was let by Mr. Seder on Sept. 15, 1929. Shortly after the legal transactions had taken place, workmen began the task of razing the ancient Central block, which had been condemned many years before. With the debris of the old block cleared away, construction operations were immediately started on the new structure and within a few months the outline of the building took shape. Interior operations were performed during the winter months and stagings which shut off the view to passers-by were removed a few weeks ago, to reveal the Main street facade of the stately building.

The Putnam home of the Chicago mail order firm is 55 feet wide and 120 feet in length, with a full basement, two floors and a 1,500 square foot mezzanine. The front of the building is of tapestry brick with cast stone trimmings. Large show windows on the first floor and still larger windows on the second floor provide for an abundance of light in the day time, besides contributing largely to the attractiveness of the exterior.

The interior of the store is especially pleasing, the color scheme being chosen for its attractiveness and conforming with the ideas of the National Health association, with regard to the colors being blended so as to reflect light rays in such a manner as to eliminate the possibility of eye strain. The walls are finished in buff colored plaster with white ceilings. The woodwork is stained dark mahogany which matches the fixtures of the store.

The basement runs the entire length of the building and is finished the same as the main floor. Offices are maintained on the mezzanine, and rest rooms are furnished on the second floor.

The show windows on the main floor are especially attractive in design and color. The backs and sides are paneled in travertine with walnut pilasters and trims.

Everything about the building is modern to the most minute detail. The heating and plumbing facilities are of the best and most up-to-date fixtures and are certain to provide lasting comfort to patrons and employes.

The electric wiring and the distribution of outlets is one of the outstanding features of the building. The basement is finished with day-light tone fixtures and not a darkened corner is to be found anywhere within the block. The wiring and electrical fixture installation work was done by electrical students of the state trade school at Putnam, who worked under the direction of Mr. Dagnell, supervisor of that department. The artistry featured in every angle of the work is a credit to the boy engineers. Electrically operated money carriers run on tracks reaching from the cashier's desk on the mezzanine floor to every department in the building.

On Canal street side, directly in the rear of the building, is a modern elevator constructed along the safety lines, which runs four stories, servicing every floor. This will be used for delivery of freight.

The Putnam home of Montgomery, Ward and company is the last word in fireproof types of buildings. The north side of the structure is of solid brick. The main supporting beams throughout are of steel and with the exception of the woodwork finishings inside, all materials are fire-resisting. Thus the presence of the new block has eliminated, in part, the existing possibilities of a conflagration in the shopping district and will be an important factor in bringing about another reduction in the city's fire insurance rates.

Two entrances to the store are on Main street. Access to the basement and upper floors is by broad staircases so constructed, that the various departments are easily visited by the young and old without exertion.

Thus with the completion of the modern Seder building, Putnam's trading center advances another step toward the taking on of the aspect of the modern business district of the large city.

STOLEN CAR LOCATED BY HARTFORD POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 25.—A message received early this afternoon on the tel-type machine at the police department told of the recovery of the 1929 LaSalle sedan, stolen yesterday morning in a burglary at the service station of the Putnam Buick Sales company on Bundy street. The message was transmitted to the state police barracks at Danielson, who in turn advised Captain Dubreuil of the action of the Hartford police.

As far as could be learned this afternoon the car was abandoned when found, since Hartford police did not make mention of any arrests having taken place in connection with the recovery of the automobile.

Again this week the board showed the score to be knotted—8 all—at the windup of the weekly indoor sports tournament between the Masons and the Elks. Last night's round was played at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street and was well attended. The Elks continue to maintain a 12-point seasonal lead over their rivals and unless the Masons manage to close the breach within the next three weeks, the Elks will be very likely to clinch seasonal honors. The summary of last night's games follows: At bridge (Masons first) Holden and Miron defeated Brousseau and Miller; Warren and Dow defeated McIntyre and Gregoire; Merriam and Minor defeated Berth and Cavanaugh; Dean and Wheaton defeated Cotter and Murray; Sherman and Stonton defeated Benoit and King; Potter and Medbury defeated A. Averrill and Backus; Schoonover and Shaw defeated Duvert and P. agne; while deCoudres and Marov lost to Chadwick and Gollant; Morse and Geissler lost to Milot and Dupre; Chase and Johnson lost to Dupre and Larose; Duffy and Metcalf lost to Champlain and W. Averrill; Moss and Wolozin lost to Freeman and Lewis; Hawkins and Seward lost to Bourgeois and Wheatley; Mellor and Myers lost to Wheelock and Girard. At cribbage Loomis and Twigg defeated Rafferty and Wheaton; Lepire and Wheeler lost to Berthiaume and Tetreault.

Mrs. Elizabeth E. Williams, for many years a resident of the village of Harrisville, died last evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Woodson, in Brooklyn. Mrs. Williams was in her 83rd year. She had been in ill health for some months and her death was not wholly unexpected. She is the widow of Eugene Williams, who was for a number of years a resident of Harrisville.

A motion made in city court this morning to dismiss charges of keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell, which were made against Mrs. Odeline Tetreault of Powhatton street, was granted by Judge M. H. Geissler, who ruled that in reality there was no direct evidence of Mrs. Tetreault's intention of selling the liquors which were found in her home on the day of her arrest in North end liquor raids.

Mrs. Tetreault was represented by Attorney Irving H. Miron, who defended every alleged bootlegger arrested in the raids and was successful in having his clients found not guilty or have the cases against them nolled. Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson presented the case for the state.

George Beecher of Springfield, Mass., the man of many aliases, one of which is George Ford, will be discharged within a few days from St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic and will be brought to this city, where he will be arraigned in city court on charges of breach of the peace, carrying concealed weapons and assault upon an officer. The last charge is likely to be amended with the clause, "intent to kill." Beecher was a frequenter at a liquor dive in Killingly a few weeks ago, when the liquor squadron of the state police barracks at Danielson conducted a raid on the establishment. The Springfield man in an intoxicated state attempted to draw the concealed weapon from its holster to frustrate the raiding plans of the officers. Sergt. George L. Gardner fired a gas shell at the rum-crazed man, which effectively subdued him. He suffered injuries to his eyes from the effects of the gas which necessitated hospital attention.

Miss Elsie Gallant of Church street was a Providence visitor Monday.

Russell W. Sherman of Fremont street was in Norwich Tuesday evening.

Heavy rains of Monday night and Tuesday eliminated for a time the dangerous possibilities of forest fires originating in the timber lands surrounding the city. Several grass and brush fires have been called to the attention of the fire department within the past week.

A new system of preserving criminal records has been instituted at the police department.

Putnam, too, will return to the daylight saving system of time on April 27, it was said today. It is believed that the proposal to advance the clocks an hour on that date will receive the ratification of the common council.

There will be a large attendance of local fight fans at the bouts in Taftville Friday evening when two well-known Danielson boxers will be featured on the programme.

JEWETT CITY

SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE TO BE HELD AT LOCAL CHURCH

The six-church conference is to be held at the local Congregational church Wednesday, April 2nd. The speaker in the morning is Miss Lydia Hartig, pastor at Ekonk, and there will be a solo by Miss Sadie Thompson. The devotional exercises in the afternoon will be led by Rev. William Penner, of Taftville. Jason Lathrop, of Plainfield, will speak on the Heritage of America, based on his trip in the west.

The program at the Community club this week will be a Community Farm bureau meeting. Dr. E. A. Perregeau, state extension economist, will speak on "Cooperative Marketing as it Affects Farmers in Regard to Eggs." Sidney Edwards, director of marketing, will be heard on "Cooperative Marketing of Quality Products." There will be music by the Finnish band of Voluntown and by Morey's orchestra.

Miss Katherine Richardson, of Norwich, spent Tuesday at Mrs. R. A. Wilbur's.

Irving Thornton reports hearing a peep frog chorus Tuesday evening.

Mrs. G. H. Prior is to entertain the Ladies' Aid society at her home Thursday afternoon.

The committee in charge of the recent American Legion district meeting was W. H. Payne, George Rocheleau, Charles Campbell and Walter Seymour.

Backus Hospital Benefit

Miss Anna Russenas entertained at bridge for the benefit of the Backus hospital auxiliary Monday evening. There were four tables, the prizes going to Misses Pauline Peltier, Josephine Ambot and Stella Gaska. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Ralph Wilbur, a local amateur photographer, who takes a snap-shot now and then as a side line hobby, is rating qualification as an enlargement artist. A while ago he had a picture taken of himself which was at first but little larger than a postage stamp. Successive enlargements he has made, without sacrificing any detail, have brought the photograph up to almost life size, with the experiments still going strong.

The firemen, and those whose property was located in the brush and grass fire danger zone, were much relieved Tuesday evening. Following a day of light rainfalls, the danger is over for the present. High winds with dry woods and fields, for the past two weeks have caused a greater danger from fires than for several years.

The M. A. Gammino Construction Co. is constructing a new batch plant at the upper end of Mechanic street. The mixing will be done here for future road building between here and Bishop's.

Shore Dinner The Wager

The forms are in place for the first span of the actual roadway for the new bridge. Several little side wagers were laid Tuesday, the most interesting being that if the bridge cannot be driven over by an automobile August 1st, M. E. Shea takes the advisory board to Rocky Point for a shore dinner, all bills paid.

The local firm of Guillotte brothers was given the contract Tuesday for reconditioning twelve of the Fisk Rubber company's tenement houses.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

Mrs. William Carpenter has returned from Springfield, Mass., where she has been spending the winter with relatives.

Autos driven by Victor Stringer of this village and Alexander Heino, of Greene, R. I., were in collision here Sunday. No one was injured.

Miss Lois Stetson is assistant at the tea room after an absence of several weeks.

Wilfred Tortoishell, a former restourant keeper here, before moving to Norwich, is to move to Hackensack, N. J., where he has a position.

Master Billy Loring is ill.

When naval ships are passing Washington's tomb, Mt. Vernon, Va., the ship's bell is tolled and the ensign half-masted. When opposite the tomb taps are sounded on the bugle, the guard presents arms, officers and men stand at attention and salute. When the last note of taps fades into the distant hills the ensign is again mast-headed and the band plays the national anthem.

47 Years' Practice Taught Dr. Caldwell

Many things about Men and Women

DR. CALDWELL loved people. He studied the habits of his patients and tried to improve their ways of living. His observations over a long period of time convinced him many people were ruining their health by a careless choice of laxatives. Then he determined to write a prescription which would get at the cause of constipation and correct it quickly and safely.

How successful his efforts were is best shown by the fact that the prescription he wrote back in 1885 has become the world's most popular laxative! He prescribed a mixture of herbs and other pure ingredients now known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, in thousands of cases where bad breath, coated tongue, gas, headaches, biliousness, and lack of appetite, or energy showed him that the bowels of men, women or children were sluggish. It proved successful in the most obstinate cases. So men liked it. Old folks liked it because it never gripes. Children liked its pleasant taste. And everybody is pleased with the gentle way it accomplishes its purpose.

By 1888, the demand for this laxative was so great that the doctor permitted it to be bottled and sold by drugstores. Today you can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from any drugstore in the world.

STATE FOREST FIRES

The rain of Tuesday will do much to put a wet blanket over Connecticut for the checking of woodland fires and soaking the leaves and underbrush for a short time in a way to serve as a prevention against new ones.

When we stop to realize that there have been, as stated by State Forester Hawes, 85 forest fires up to the last week end in Connecticut this spring it must be apparent that the combination of dry conditions and careless people is unusually prominent and it is fully supported when it is declared that the record is a new one for thus early in the season.

With the fires racing over acres of woodland, threatening buildings, destroying homes, wiping out standing timber and burning the poles of telephone and telegraph companies, there is a seriousness about forest fires which deserves more attention than it seems to be getting.

For the most part brush and woodland fires are needless. They result in a majority of cases from too little regard for the dangers connected with various small fires, too little thought of the possibilities of dropping lighted matches and other firebrands in material that will quickly burst into flame and too slight respect for the menace which such acts may be to the property and lives of others.

When it is disclosed that one day's fires involved a loss of $10,000 or more it can be readily understood what hardships are thrown upon the owners of that property through the financial loss and the trouble occasioned. But, in addition, there was the work of fighting the fires which would not have been required had a bit of preventive thinking been done before the fires were started.

In the spring and fall more or less destruction of this kind is caused each year by such fires. The same ones are not always to blame, for one experience is usually enough for those who realize they have been responsible for such losses, but in view of the record already established thus early in 1930 it would appear that there are too many who are failing to profit from the unintentional or wilful acts of others, all because of the refusal to use an ounce of prevention.

CIRCLING THE CITIES

It is not a new thought that is being advocated by the state commissioner of highways in New York state when he recommends the building of highway routes that will circle instead of pass through cities. He has joined hands with others who have been advocating such a move and putting it into effect. He is, of course, in conflict with those communities which have been making determined fights against such by-passes in the belief that it was going to deprive those localities of some degree of business and advertising, but when he declares that it is his belief that such a method will be adopted in getting away from cities and thickly settled places he has much to support his contention.

Already the cities are suffering enough from the congestion that is furnished by their own motor vehicle traffic. They are being forced to stop parking, to widen streets, to establish one-way thoroughfares, to make boulevard regulations and to maintain a good sized traffic force in order to meet the situation. The problem is made much worse by the volume of through traffic that is added. Likewise it means a handicap to such traffic to wind its way through city streets with their traffic and respond to the signals, so much so that it is a welcome relief to traffic which has not reason for going into a city if it can find a way around it. It means the elimination of much annoyance and the saving of much time.

Many main highways are already established to include the cities and villages on its course. There was a time when localities looked upon such as bringing in more business. So far as accommodating those who are bound for trading centers, such highways are a blessing, but there is a considerable part of the traffic that will not stop and it doesn't want to be delayed. The construction of roads on the outskirts that will handle that traffic is the sensible solution. Instead of opposing it, cities should demand it, and it cannot fail to be realized that there are many opportunities for bettering the country roads in such a manner as to really serve this purpose. They would divert much of the traffic from the main highways and bring about a distribution that would be beneficial to all. Main highways are getting more and more congested because there are too few alternative routes. Country roads often furnish the shorter route but conditions prohibit their use.

FAVORING RESIDENTS

How to deal with the unemployed is a question that confronts various localities. There are cities which have come to the decision, even before recent unemployment conditions developed, that it was the part of wisdom for them to insist upon giving employment to their own residents in preference to those who lived elsewhere and get their living in the city.

That is an attitude that might produce various opinions, according to the way one happens to look at the situation. In insisting that all school teachers must be residents of the city, or in demanding that all city employes must be residents, means going contrary to a long-established practice. It might not always work, since there are times when it is impossible for a city to provide all that are required in special lines. In those instances the insistence might be that such employes must become residents, which would cover the case, but after permitting the old arrangement of living where one pleases there is more or less of a hardship to throw old employes out of work because they live in another town. The city that does may be looking after its own welfare but doing so at a belated hour.

When there is a demand, however, in the efforts to meet the unemployment situation that residents of a state should be given preference in the way of work there can be little opposition. East state is responsible for its own and it is not expected to shoulder the responsibilities of its neighbors or those on the other side of the continent. If the time comes that there is more work than can be handled by residents there would then be no hesitancy in taking care of all comers up to the saturation point.

There is a similarity in the viewpoint of the city that insists its work should be done by residents instead of non-residents and the state that figures its residents, or its unemployed, should be given preference when increasing payrolls or providing for new construction work. The injustice of having residents searching for employment when non-residents are being taken care of can be easily appreciated. With such a policy announced there would probably be a decided decrease in the accumulation of non-residents.

AT LONDON

When our delegates went to London no one knew what the outcome would be. The hope was that the conference would be successful, that the five nations could come to an understanding that would result in strengthening the peace of the world and reduce the competition in naval construction.

That hope hasn't been abandoned but after weeks of deliberations, discussion of plans and propositions and the facing of demands that seem impossible to grant, there comes the suggestion that the conference recess for a period of six months in the hope that an understanding can be reached between the countries which are now standing in the way of a five-power pact.

The conference has gotten to the point where there must be compromises. It cannot be expected that this will be all one-sided. It is apparent that there are differences and some of them were made known before the conference opened. But despite that there is an apparent unwillingness to come to terms. The recess idea has been advanced in the belief that time will be able to break down the indicated unwillingness to compromise. That may be the ultimate solution but there are reasons for believing that it will not be resorted to until all possible efforts have been exhausted.

There continues to be set forth the insistence that there is a desire for strengthening world peace, but there fails to be an accompanying willingness to meet the requirements. Just at present the most formidable situation is furnished by the attitude of France and Italy. France has ever been cautious and nervous. It was responsible for placing restrictions on the Washington conference, but it is to be sincerely hoped that it will not be the means of upsetting the London gathering and sending the delegates home without some accomplishment.

GREECE'S ANNIVERSARY

At home and throughout the world Greeks are celebrating the 100th anniversary of the independence of Greece. This celebration is in evidence in this country, for there are many of the Hellenic race in the cities of the United States.

It was back in 1821 that the Greeks got to the point where they could stand Turkish rule no longer. They were determined to end it and in March of that year they began a struggle that continued for the next six years until the Turks secured the aid of the Albanian leader, Ibrahim Pasha, in an effort to crush the Greeks by means of the army and navy which he was able to raise. The Greeks had to presented their cause that they got the aid of the British, French and Russians and through the combined operations the defeat of the Turks was accomplished and the success of the fight for independence established.

It was one of those victories which the Turks were loath to admit, but two years later there was signed the treaty of Adrianople in which independence was recognized and it was a few months later in 1830 that it became effective with the three nations which had aided the Greeks guaranteeing its autonomy.

Greece has undergone many changes and experienced plenty of strife since those days when it obtained its independence. It has grown in size and at times has obtained additional territory from the Turks. It is only natural that there should be extraordinary plans for the celebration of the important anniversary at home and elsewhere and nowhere could there be expected to be greater rejoicing in its behalf than in the United States where our own day of independence is the cause for so much celebrating and which struggle had so much influence upon the decision of the Greeks to obtain liberty.

OLD MAID'S PURCHASE

"I see you have the best spot again!" exclaimed artist Sue Blossom.

"Yes, but you shouldn't complain. You've heard that old line about the early bird, haven't you?" This from artist Jack Dalton, who at 6 o'clock in the morning already had several meaningless dabs on the canvas in front of him.

"I guess you're right," agreed Sue. "Next Saturday night I'm going to sleep out here and wake up with the first bird twitter. Then you can try your hand at painting over somebody's shoulder."

The subject to be painted was none other than beautiful Lazy Valley. The view was from a small ledge on the side of a wooded hill, facing the morning sun. Here was room for two artists and equipment, although one of them had to sit somewhat to the side and rear of whoever shared Studio Ledge, as it was called. For three Sunday mornings in a row Sue's tiny roadster had climbed the hill just a few minutes behind Jack Dalton's car. Chivalry wasn't mentioned. Lazy Valley presented a glorious spectacle in the early morning and if Cleopatra had come along after 6 o'clock with an easel, her regal daubing would have necessarily taken place to the left and rear of broad-shouldered, curly-haired artist Dalton. Sue neither expected nor received any better treatment.

They painted a while in silence. Artists, as a rule, aren't communicative. Sue and Jack were exceptions to this rule only at times. These times were brought about ordinarily through Sue's inherent bent toward mischief.

Jack was an impressionist. He tried to give the essential impression of a scene, character or landscape through the use of vivid hues, lines and shadings, with scant attention to detail or finish. This wasn't at all right with Sue, who thought that a cow ought to be painted to look like a cow and not like the Leaning Tower of Pisa or a folding bed. So she started what she hoped would be fireworks.

"Say, Jack," she asked, "what are you going to call that one? The Soul of a Love-Sick Shellfish or Parallelograms at Sunrise?"

"Neither," replied Jack, unruffled. "This is Lazy Valley Impression Number Four. Last Sunday's was Lazy Valley Impression Number Three. Can you guess what next Sunday's will be?"

"Sure," replied Sue, "it will be terrible. Why don't you paint pictures instead of nightmares?"

"Why don't you paint pictures instead of talking?" asked Jack.

"That was a good shot," applauded Sue. "But, really, I'm interested in your work. Now, for example, I think that's the loveliest red silo there in the middle of your canvas!"

"Any one with sound appreciation of art could see that what you call a silo is none other than a masterful interpretation of the morning sun hovering over Lazy Valley," stated Jack, as he slapped on a farmhouse with three nervous daubs.

"Bravo!" exclaimed Sue. "Now repeat that oration about nothing standard in art will live, only that which is original—"

"Nothing conventional," corrected Jack. "Nothing conventional in art will live. Only that which is daring, original in conception and treatment, as well as keenly analytical, will survive. And when I say survive I don't mean being sold for a hundred dollars."

"I wish I could sell a picture for a hundred dollars," said Sue, "I wouldn't care if an old maid did buy it."

"If you had a hundred dollars," Jack grinned, "I'd almost let you marry me."

"I wouldn't marry you under any circumstances," declared Sue. "You'd go around impressionizing the furniture with a paint brush until I wouldn't be able to tell the difference between a bookcase and a grand piano!"

A month later Wentworth academy began Local Artists' week. Sue Blossom's "Morning Sun on Wheat Fields" and other paintings hung just down the wall from "Lazy Valley Impressions," one to six, inclusive.

On the last day of the exhibit one of Sue's pictures was sold for an even $100 to a Miss Lucy Stonemere. Sue, excited, rushed to tell Jack Dalton.

"Cheer up!" exclaimed Sue. "Your stuff will live, but mine brought in the $100 for us to get married on!"

"If I promise to lay off painting zigzag lines on the furniture can I take you seriously on that proposition?" asked the painter of impressions.

"Yes, you can take me seriously," she said. "That is, if you'll let me spend my $100 on "Dalton's Lazy Valley Impression No. 6."

"That's all right with me," said Jack. "But No. 4 is better."

Spinster Lucy Stonemere stood across the exhibit hall, watching Jack and Sue.

"I wonder why that nephew of mine didn't want me to tell his lovely friend that it was his aunt who bought her charming picture?" Miss Stonemere asked herself. "And why did he insist that I shouldn't invite them to my house until at least three months after their honeymoon? Oh, well, their hearts, the picture will look lovely above the piano in my living-room, anyhow!" — Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 25—Speaker Nick Longworth's brief tribute to the memory of the man he had known and loved all his life, William Howard Taft, was an effective thing.

"I remember him well when I was my daughter's age and he was a student at Yale," he said. "My heart is heavy indeed."

On another day, merely inserted in the appendix of the Congressional Record, was another tribute to the dead man, this time to his constructive statesmanship far back in the dawning of his career in national public life. It was voiced by a Filipino who was then but a boy, Camilo Osias, junior resident commissioner from the islands.

Writing of Taft as first civil governor of the Philippines, he said:

"Taft was a big-hearted man. His genial nature was a big factor in winning the Filipino people's confidence in the aims and purposes of the American government. As governor, as secretary of war, as president of the United States, Taft held steadfastly to his Philippine policy, tersely expressed in five words which should be forever remembered:

" 'The Philippines for the Filipinos.' "

"Brown Brothers"

It remained also for this dark skinned, eloquent young man who is himself so much of a human document testifying to how the work Governor-General Taft set going over the Pacific has been carried on, to recall that all-but-forgotten Taft reference to the islanders as "brown brothers."

There was a day when that phrase was bandied about sarcastically. Osias recalled it and the time when "a little song" was popular at certain "hilarious stag parties for the purpose of making fun of Taft." The refrain ran:

"He may be a brother to William H. Taft,
But he ain't no brother of mine."

I wonder if those men who used to delight in singing that song do not now realize what pigmies they are by the side of that great and good man, who could look on his fellow man as his brother regardless of nationality or race?" as Osias' comment.

Fought Usury

Curiously enough, still another Taft tribute of an unexpected nature come from E. C. Folkes of the Virginia House of delegates. He recalls what he terms the "Taft formula," laid down as president in 1913 in signing a District of Columbia bill fixing a 12 per cent annual pawnshop loan rate, resisting great pressure for a veto.

"It certainly makes a living memorial (to Mr. Taft) in the hearts of the poor," Folkes wrote. "The Taft formula will yet be the law of the land."

"I am not satisfied that pawn brokers with sufficient capital cannot do legitimate business at the rate of 1 per cent a month." Mr. Taft then wrote. "The subject is one in respect to which an experiment in legislation may properly be made."

And the act still stands for the district.

"Belief in the Goodness of Others"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself" (Matthew 22:39).

Read: Matthew 22:34—40.

MEDITATION: This means, in part: thou shalt trust thy neighbor—believe in him. The person who is to get along with others must believe in their goodness, especially in their good intentions. Faith begets ground for faith. It is the truest interpreter. The only safe creed is: I believe that my neighbor is as good as I am. That ought not to be difficult, except for the Pharisee. Does not our personal experience convince us that there are not many people who are cowards or who do not seem to be trying to find the right and to do it? Belief that they are thus striving to serve the good as they see it will give us endless patience and consideration. This was Lincoln's way. If we can only believe that those who differ from us are as well intentioned as we are, we can always get along with them.

PRAYER: O Lord, we thank Thee for those who believe in us and trust us, and who by their generous faith and confidence are ever lifting us to higher levels of performance. May this our gratitude teach us to show a like spirit as we move among the companions of this day. Amen.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Flip Finds Out

Though it may cost both grief and pain,
Experience is always gain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Stiff-legged, growling deep down in his throat, lifting his upper lip to snarl and look ugly, Flip the Terrier was walking around Prickly Porky, the Porcupine. As he growled he told Prickly Porky what he was going to do to him. And all the time Prickly Porky didn't once show the least bit of fear. Gradually Flip realized this. Prickly Porky wasn't afraid. No, sir, Prickly Porky wasn't the least bit afraid.

Now, this should have been a warning to Flip. It wasn't. It simply made Flip angrier than ever. He felt that in a way Prickly Porky was showing him disrespect. Yes, sir, that was the way he felt about it. At first he hadn't intended to attack Prickly Porky, but now he intended to show this clumsy fellow that, big as he was, he was no match for a courageous little dog.

Flip was just preparing to make a sudden rush, in an effort to seize Prickly Porky by the back of the neck, when something queer happened. It quite upset Flip's dignity. You see, Prickly Porky, instead of advancing to meet him head first, suddenly turned and moved backwards toward Flip. At the same time he seemingly became twice as big as he was before. You see, he had raised the thousand little spears hidden in his coat. It was all so unexpected that Flip, backing away in a hurry, stumbled over his own feet and actually fell over backwards.

My, such an angry dog as Flip was then! He scrambled to his feet again and began to dance around Prickly Porky, watching for a chance to rush in and seize him. However, angry as he was, he did notice that Prickly Porky tried to keep back to him. This was something new in Flip's experience. All the other people with whom Flip had ever fought had always faced him. Only to run away did they ever turn back to him. But this queer fellow would back toward him instead of running away. It was a funny way of fighting and Flip didn't know just what to do.

However, Flip was by this time so thoroughly angry at being treated in this manner that he was determined to kill Prickly Porky. So he did his best to get Prickly Porky off guard by making short little rushes at him, now from this side and now from that. Somehow, he didn't want to give Prickly Porky a chance to use those big teeth of his, and so he kept watching for a chance to jump in from back of him. Poor Flip! There was no way for him to know that this was just what Prickly Porky wanted.

By and by Flip, moving about as swiftly as only a fox terrier can, saw, or thought he saw, a chance to rush in from behind Prickly Porky. He just started the rush, but he didn't finish it. No, sir, he didn't finish it. Something happened. Something dreadful happened! Flip felt a blow on the side of his face and then it was just as if a lot of redhot needles had been thrust into the tender flesh of his face and into his mouth, too. Never had Flip felt anything like that. Never did he want to feel anything like it again. He yelped right out. He couldn't help it. And he continued to yelp. You see, it was very, very painful. He didn't even notice that Prickly Porky paid no further attention to him, but shuffled off about his business.

Sadly Flip turned toward home. He had become aware that the pains in his face and in his mouth were from a lot of little things like barbed thorns that were sticking in his face and mouth. They were the little spears of Prickly Porky—quills, as they are called. One was sticking in the bottom of his right forefoot, so that he had to walk on three legs. How it had all happened he didn't know yet. But you know. You know that he had been slapped by Prickly Porky's tail.

YOUR HEALTH

The Dangerous Running Ear

By Lewis W. Oakes, M. D., Provo, Utah
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Discharge from an ear indicates, as a rule, that the drum is broken, and that there is disease of the middle ear. This condition is usually caused by some trouble in the nose or throat. It is often associated with teething, in infants; but the teething is not the cause. Certain alterations of circulation are produced, by successive eruption of teeth, in the tiny mouth. These disturbances may induce congestion of the Eustachian tubes. In the presence of such swelling, resistance of the baby tissues to infection is greatly decreased. Inflammation of the adenoids occurs, and extends up the Eustachian tube to the middle ear. Pus is formed, the ear drum breaks, from pressure behind it, since no drainage can now occur through the swollen Eustachian tube, and pus appears in the ear canal. In the young infant there may or may not be earache preceding rupture of the drum. With older children and adults there is always some pain; and it may be most excruciating.

Any running ear should have the early attention of an ear specialist. An aching ear should not be temporized with until it breaks, but should be cared for at once. The above applies to the teething baby just as surely as to any one. Without any realization of the enormity of their offense, some people are given to advising troubled parents that the child with a running ear will "grow out of it." Such advice is always dangerous and should be vigorously condemned.

If the cause of an infected ear be cought for early, and remedied, prompt recovery is the rule and the hearing is preserved, unless disease has already attacked the mastoid bone behind the ear. Where proper treatment is long delayed more serious trouble is invited. This may take the form of chronic deafness, acute mastoiditis, meningitis, or brain abscess. Of these, little may be done for the first, the second requires a major operation, the third is almost universally fatal. Brain abscess is also nearly always fatal, since it is rarely recognized until so late that operation is of little avail.

More consistent care of running ears will help much in the battle against deafness, and will save some lives.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Helping the Destitute

Mr. Editor: This season hundreds of destitute women and children have been cared for by the Protestant Episcopal City Mission society, and many men with dependents are being aided to find employment.

The distress is very great of those we cannot adequately help because of the society's limited income. The willingness of skilled men to work for a pittance, to keep their self-respect and care for those dependent upon them, is indeed pathetic.

I call this situation to the attention of those who wish to cooperate with the society in its activities for creating temporary employment when possible, and giving temporary relief when necessary.

Wherever its staff of more than 100 workers are stationed, in its own centers, and in the hospitals and city institutions, their efforts to rehabilitate people are impeded by the present conditions of unemployment.

Checks should be made to the treasurer, Eugene W. Stetson, and mailed to the headquarters of the society, 83 Bleecker street, New York city.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of good water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

DISCOVER NEW TRACES OF BIBLICAL DELUGE

PLAYERS BALK EFFORTS TO STANDARDIZE BRIDGE

CLEVELAND (AP)— Bridge players simply will not submit to a standardized game.

This has been discovered by William E. McKenney, manager of the American Bridge league, after an eight-year campaign to reduce varieties of bridge to one. The more he crusaded, the greater became the number of variations in the game.

Now the league has to publish 120 different types of forms to suit customers' needs. There are a dozen kinds of score cards, plus traveling score slips, cumulative score slips, entry blanks and tallies.

These serve for rubber auction, duplicate auction, pivot auction, progressive auction, rubber and progressive contract.

Some of these categories break into still others, all of which must have stationery equipment. More than a million copies of one score card were printed last year.

There's something unmatchable in Chrysler performance

Chrysler today is getting more out of engine horsepower, and doing more with engine horsepower than any other make of motor car is accomplishing.

There are engineering reasons for this. Mainly it is because of the unique design and construction of the new Chrysler Multi-Range four-speed transmission and gear shift, together with high-compression engines using Down-Draft carburetion—a principle that has demonstrated marvelous results in aviation.

In every car bearing the Chrysler name, you have the safety of internal-expanding hydraulic four-wheel brakes. And in addition, today's Chryslers offer the better riding qualities of new, luxurious bodies—with more elbow-room, more leg-room and more head-room—cradled from road shocks by a new type of equalizing spring suspension and rubber spring shackles, as well as hydraulic shock absorbers.

In outward design, a new smartness and grace; in interior trim, a consummate elegance.

DELIGHTFUL DINNER, ENTERTAINMENT AND DANCE GIVEN FOR RED ARROW BOOSTERS

Red Arrow Boosters of Norwich were given a delightful social event Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel by the Red Arrow club of Norwich merchants. The programme began with a turkey supper at 7 o'clock, served in the big dining room of the hotel where covers were laid for 85 and the tables were prettily decorated with spring flowers, including a big basket of flowers on the head table in front of Herman Sharpe, vice-president of the club, who was toastmaster.

After the singing of a verse of America, all took part in a roll call by giving their names as a means of promoting acquaintance and sociability and the evening was fairly launched in the fraternal spirit that was its keynote.

During the supper hour, Edward T. Connelly conducted a peppy programme of song numbers by the diners and himself furnished musical numbers with Michael J. Farrell and Nicholas J. Spelman. Mr. Farrell was heard in whistling imitations of bird calls and there was an entertaining pianologue by Raymond Kennedy, who is frequently heard over the radio from a Providence station.

A feature number of the evening was a toe dance, Fashionette, by Miss Helena Crandall, whose graceful interpretation was the signal for an insistent encore for which Miss Crandall gave an added number.

Max Hanover, treasurer of the club, was the speaker of the evening, thrilling his hearers as he spoke briefly and informally upon the subject of service, in which he said the people of the United States had presented to the world an unparalleled example of idealism in the help they had given to the persecuted Armenians, to the Japanese who were visited by the destruction of an earthquake and to those who had been brought to suffering through the World war. Since that war the American people have adopted the slogan of service, at home and abroad, service clubs have sprung up everywhere and the Red Arrow club is a service club, Mr. Hanover said. Through it our merchants not only give the highest quality at the lowest prices but they also return to their patrons a fair share of their profits. The Red Arrow boosters, he said, were also an integral part of this service and it was the hope of the club officers that all present would feel happier, healthier, wealthier and wiser when the evening was over.

He closed his remarks with some advice about the methods to be followed by the Boosters and wished them all unbounded success.

For the rest of the evening, until midnight, there was dancing for which Thumm's orchestra furnished an especially attractive programme.

The dinner entertainment was carried out under the direction of Mr. Hanover, treasurer of the club, assisted by the committee, which included George S. Powers, Julian L. Williams, Charles B. Gilbert, Charles Jacobson and Charles Sentler.

D., pastor of Park Congregational church, offered the blessing. The appetizing menu comprised cream of asparagus soup, roast spring lamb, riced potatoes, peas and carrots, beet salad, rolls, surprise dessert, coffee.

GAVE SCHOLARLY ADDRESS FOR WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE

Mrs. Juliana Shields Haskell, adviser to woman graduate students at Columbia university, was the speaker Tuesday afternoon at Peck library before the March meeting of the Norwich Women Voters' league. The coming of Mrs. Haskell, formerly of this city, daughter of Judge William H. Shields, as speaker for the meeting, drew an especially large attendance to enjoy her scholarly address on the life and writings of Thomas Mann, German author who was the winner of the Nobel prize.

Mrs. Haskell said it was her purpose to show that historically and spiritually there was another Germany, different from the one that went down to defeat in the World war. As a background for the life of Thomas Mann, she spoke of the founding of the free cities of Germany, their organization of the Hanseatic league, the purpose of which was primarily commercial, and out of which there came great merchant families, from one of which Thomas Mann was descended.

Mrs. Haskell went on to an instructive analysis and valuation of his life and writings for which she was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of her address.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Thomas M. Shields, president of the league, and an appropriation of $25 was voted towards the national memorial fund.

Mrs. Charlotte Gilman Perkins, vice-president of the league, introduced Mrs. Haskell, following two announcements that were made.

One was by Mrs. Nathan Gilman announcing the free public meeting at the Wauregan hotel this (Wednesday) evening when Miss Carrie Wyckoff-Ormsbee is to be the speaker under the auspices of a number of the women's organizations of the city. Her subject is to pertain to world peace.

District Superintendent Myron E. Genter of this city, has notified the Rev. GUEST RIDER SUES FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

Through her attorney, John T. Barry, Mrs. Julia Romanonak of this city, has brought suit in the superior court asking for damages of $10,000 against John Sak of this city. The action is brought as the result of injuries received by her in an automobile accident on the Norwich and New London highway on Nov. 22, 1929. The writ was filed here Tuesday with John H. Walker, clerk of the court.

Mrs. Romanonak in her complaint alleges that the accident resulted because of the reckless and heedless manner in which the machine was operated by Sak, with whom she and her 6-year old son were riding. The machine was alleged to have been driven off the road into a telephone pole, the force of the impact throwing her from the machine, rendering her unconscious. She claims that as a result of her injuries she has and always will have permanent and disfiguring scars on her head, face and chin.

Mrs. Romanonak also claims that she was confined to the hospital for 15 days and has been put to a large expense for hospital and medical attention; that she has been unable to perform her household duties since the accident or to take care of her four small children; that her husband was forced to remain from his work for nearly two months because of the condition and age of her children and that she forced to hire another woman to do her work.

PLANNING NEW HIGHWAY TO HAMMONASSET BEACH

According to announcement from the state highway department that branch of the state service is preparing to open up another route from Middletown to the sea. Plans are in the works for completing the hard surfacing of the road from Durham to Madison, through the villages of Rockland and North Madison, down to the Boston Post road and so on to Hammonasset park.

This road when finished will open up a picturesque section of Durham and Madison. It starts at the sources of the Hammonasset river and skirting the woodlands about Rockland goes on through the wild sections of Madison until it enters the well settled parts bordering on the post road.

The development of this highway is felt to be important as another route for not only those who find pleasure in automobile riding, but also for the farming sections to afford another connection with the main trunk lines. The road crosses another proposed east and west route at North Madison.

The highway department has not yet decided on the kind of road to be laid down, nor just when the work will begin, other than that it will be started some time this season.

TRUCK UPSET AFTER COLLISION WITH AUTO

When a Ford truck he was driving turned over on Main street near the Chelsea bank, Tuesday morning, George Seidel of Taftville escaped with a sprained wrist. The truck loaded with gasoline and oils, is owned by Smith Bros., of Taftville, dealers in gasoline. It was turned out of Cliff onto Main street, in the direction of Greeneville, when it collided with a Cadillac machine, owned and operated by Simon Mandell of 8 Goldberg avenue. The Mandell car was headed down Main street, towards Franklin square. The impact caused the oil truck to turn over on its side and a quantity of its cargo to be spilled on the highway. The front end of the Cadillac was badly damaged and a rear wheel of the truck was put out of commission.

A crew of five mechanics and a wrecker, were called to the scene and after nearly half an hour's work finally succeeded in righting the machine. A Mack truck, owned by a Mr. Dufresne of Jewett City, assisted in bringing the truck back onto its four wheels. During the half-hour auto traffic was kept moving fairly well, Officers John Carroll, Clifford Crary and Barney Keenan doing traffic duty.

CHILD STUDY GROUP HAS INTERESTING SESSION

The Child Study group of the Woman's City club held its monthly meeting Tuesday afternoon at the club room in the Wauregan hotel. The chairman of the group, Mrs. Edwin V. Ross, presented Miss Helen Crutcher, executive secretary of the Connecticut Society for Mental Hygiene as the leader of the discussion: "Every Child Needs an Allowance." In part, Miss Crutcher stated that every child needs an allowance because it teaches the value of money for financial security, gives them training in practical values, cultivates ingenuity and interests, helps them to develop a feeling of self respect and independence at the same time giving a knowledge of what parents have done. The way the child handles his allowance may give a good indication of certain personality traits that need attention, and also gives an appreciation of values other than money values. During the open discussion ,some interesting facts were revealed by the mothers of children who are given regular allowances. The meeting was most profitable and enlightening to all who attended.

LIQUOR PROVES UNDOING OF PATROLMAN SULLIVAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 26.—City Manager William A. Holt this afternoon rendered his finding in the case of Patrolman John P. Sullivan, who was given a hearing at the municipal building yesterday afternoon, as a result of charges preferred against him by Captain Charles A. Pinney, alleging conduct unbecoming an officer. The hearing followed accusation by Mrs. Theresa Grihi, wife of Oddena Grihi, rear of 26 Truman street.

City Manager Holt found the officer guilty as charged and ordered him suspended for 30 days, the suspension to start from March 22, the date on which Captain Pinney temporarily suspended the patrolman. Officer Sullivan was off duty last Friday night and had had several drinks of liquor, this fact he admitted. When on Truman street, which is a part of his beat when on duty, he observed two men enter the alley approaching the Grihi residence. The officer declared that he had been ordered by his superior officer to keep a watch of the house because it was believed that the law was being violated there. Shortly after the men disappeared in the alley, the officer followed, but said that he did not see the men there. Believing that the men entered the Grihi house he knocked at the entrance and when the door was opened by Mrs. Grihi, he entered. Sullivan said that he did not possess a search warrant and for that reason did not search the premises for the men, who, he believed, had entered the house. Mrs. Grihi said that the officer showed the effects of having been drinking when he obtained admission to her home and said that he had been there but a very short time before he made improper proposals to her, asking her to accompany him to one of the bedrooms. Sullivan, however, emphatically denied making any such proposal to the woman. The board, consisting of Judge Daniel M. Cronin, Deputy Judge John J. McGarry and Mayor Cornelius D. Twomey, which has the power to approve the dismissal of any officer tried on charges, listened to the testimony of the entire proceedings and at the close of the hearing made it known that they were not in favor of the officer being discharged. Officer Sullivan has been a member of the police department about 15 years and during that time has been but once held on charges.

TO "POINT-UP" APPETITE JUST STIMULATE BOWELS

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, gassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar preparation could do better work.

"My boy was taken sick when I was miles away from any doctor and I decided to try Dr. True's Elixir on my boy. Well, within a day's time he was just as well as ever—apparently a good laxative and worm expeller was all he needed. I am free from the worry of sickness in my family. I gladly recommend Dr. True's Elixir to everyone."

WESTERLY

NORWICH SPOTTER FAILS TO SECURE WOMAN'S CONVICTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 25.— The Tuesday session of Stonington town court before Judge William A. Wilcox, lasted the entire morning, the greater part of the time being occupied with the case of the Department of Connecticut State Police vs. Mary and Edward Putrowski of Old Mystic. The former was arrested March 3rd by Officer William E. MacKenzie for the sale of a half a pint of alcohol. The defendants were represented by Attorney Benjamin Hewitt of Mystic, and a plea of not guilty was entered. At the beginning of the trial counsel for the defense moved that the witnesses be excluded until called, stating that his authority was the Bible, a celebrated case in superior court when he and Maj. Hull were opposed by Judge Rathbun and a move which at the time proved successful for the defense. He said: "There will be no harm done in the exclusion of the 'stool pigeon'; let the man go far enough away so that he does not hear."

Officer MacKenzie testified that in company with an "investigator" and others he had gone to the Smith lane section of Old Mystic, had searched the investigator and then had given him a $5 bill, waiting at the head of the street. The man had returned soon with the half pint of alcohol in a bottle and $2.50 in change. The bottle was presented as evidence, it having been secured at about 7:15 on the evening of the Old Mystic visit.

Investigator Ernest Broucher, 19, residing with his sister, Albina Godair, on West Main street, Norwich, testified to visiting the Putrowski place in Old Mystic after the place had been described to him by "another man" and accompanying Officer MacKenzie to within several hundred yards of the house. He had entered the house with the man, whose name he did not know and while there had bought three drinks for this man, also had two for himself, before his departure with the alcohol, for which he paid $2.50.

On cross examination by defense counsel Broucher testified that the man who accompanied him was known to Mrs. Putrowski by the way she talked with him. Witness was asked to point out defendant in the court room and after some hesitancy pointed out the accused, saying that his difficulty was caused by her wearing black clothes at the time of his visit at the home. In reply to questions, witness stated that he had been arrested four times, one for trouble with a girl and three times for drunkenness.

The defendant made a general denial through a Polish interpreter to having ever before seen the investigator or to making the sale of the pint of alcohol. Other witnesses were her husband and her neighbors, Albert A. Haley and William E. Beckwith who testified as to the general good reputation of the accused. Judge Wilcox declared Mrs. Putrowski not guilty.

Harold E. Burdick, 21, of Old Mystic, was arrested for speeding on the Boston Post road, going at a rate of about 60 miles an hour. Judge Wilcox fined him $10 with costs of $12.95.

Edward K. Jacobs, 19, was arraigned on a charge of having violated the automobile laws in parking his car close to a fire hydrant on Coggswell street, Pawcatuck. Being a minor, James H. Weeks was appointed guardian. He was found guilty, fined $2 and the costs of court were $12.95.

Emanuel King of Stonington, charged with taking his number plates from one car and putting them on another was fined $10 and costs of $12.95.

John F. Christy, 58, of North Stonington, was arraigned on a charge of having improper markers on the left side of his car. He paid a fine of $5 and costs of $12.95.

TWO WITNESSES HELD NOW IN EPIFIONO SHOOTING CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 25—Epiro Epifiono, a patient at Westerly hospital suffering from a bullet wound above the heart as a result of shooting on the Stillmanville bridge early Monday when a revolver is alleged to have been fired at him by Joseph Serruta, was reported as more comfortable Tuesday. Examination of x-ray plates taken showed that no vulnerable spot was struck and that the bullet remains lodged in the body. Unless some complication arises his condition is not critical.

In a special session of the Third District court, before Judge Oliver H. Williams Tuesday morning, Rosario Dolce of Garden street, Pawcatuck, and Tony Christina of New London, Conn., were held as material witnesses and required to furnish bail in the sum of $2,500 each, for their appearance in the district court next Friday morning. Dolce was released on bail, but Christina was still being held Tuesday afternoon.

Serruta was arrested by the police following the shooting of Epifonio. The police say the affair followed a party at a house on Stillman avenue, where Surreta, Epifonio, Dolce and Christina were present. The authorities still decline to make known the motive for the shooting.

PANCIERA CHARGE DREAM OF NERVOUS WOMEN

An absolute nolle of the breach of peace complaint against Alec Panciera of East avenue, Westerly, was ordered at the session of the town court of Stonington Tuesday morning. Panciera, known in local boxing circles as "Hooky Jackson," was arrested several weeks ago when seen coming out of a yard on Lincoln avenue. A "Peeping Tom" had frightened the women of the village, and when Mrs. William Crandall and Mrs. Charles Brown and daughter saw the Westerly young man coming out from between two houses on the street they thought he must be the prowler sought by the police.

Panciera had just come out of one of the houses on the street and was crossing the Brown property when seen. Realizing that he was trespassing on private property, he failed to halt when members of the Brown family ordered him to, so that they notified Officer George Seidel who picked up Panciera as a suspicious person.

ERNEST COLE FOUND DEAD— RECENTLY OF CHESTNUT HILL

Ernest Cole, 58, was found dead in bed at his home, 109 Stillman avenue, Pawcatuck, at about 5 a. m. Tuesday. Patrolman George L. Seidel of Pawcatuck was notified and Medical Examiner Dr. H. M. Myers of Mystic was called and pronounced death due to heart trouble. Selectman Arthur P. Babcock of Pawcatuck was also notified of the sudden death. Mr. Cole is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Cole, they having come to Pawcatuck a few weeks ago from Chestnut Hill, Conn. A daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Barker, resides at 140 Oak street, Providence, and a sister lives in Versailles, Conn.

Burdick, D.D., pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh Day Baptist church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Dr. Burdick. The bearers were four sons, Albert F., J. Perry, John S., and E. Howard Clark, and two grandsons, Walter C., and Raymond H. Hiscox, all of Westerly.

Elmer C. Merritt, 47, of Ashaway, was arrested for having no permanent markers on the side of his car. He was fined $5 and costs of $12.95 which he paid.

John Stefanski, 31, of Pawcatuck, failed to have a proper windshield wiper. He was fined $5 and costs of $12.95.

JAMES MARTELL DROWNED IN PAWCATUCK RIVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 25—At the Wilcox coal dock on the Pawcatuck river at the rear of the Frank N. Wilcox Coal company's office Tuesday about 5 p. m., a driver for the coal company, Embert N. Eleazer, of 80 Oak street reported to the police that he had seen the body of a child sinking in the rapid current. Search was begun by dragging the river.

The childs cry attracted Eleazer's attention. He made a heroic effort to save the boy, almost having him in his grasp. The child proved to be James Martell, 13, son of Peter and Clara Martell, of 81 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, who was playing with his younger brother when he fell into the river. Shouts for assistance brought Patrolman George L. Seidel of Pawcatuck from West Broad street and efforts were made to recover the boy's body. The officer secured a partial hold of the body only to have it slip from his grasp.

A smelt fisherman, David Nugent was in his boat on the river and succeeded in pulling up the body with a boathook from the river bottom near the dock. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and employes from the South County Public Service Co. arrived with a pulmotor and worked nearly an hour in an endeavor to resuscitate the boy, who had been in the water for twenty minutes.

The medical examiner for the town of Stonington, Dr. H. M. Myers, of Mystic was called to Westerly to view the body and pronounced death due to drowning.

THE PORTEOUS & MITCHELL CO.

PELOQUIN-DUBOIS BOUT LIKELY TO BE FEATURE OF SHYMA SHOW

From all indications it would seem that when Rene Peloquin of Danielson renews his pugilistic feud with Romeo Dubois of New Haven in one of the star eight round bouts on the Shyma club card Friday night that local fans will see a bout that will be as good as any, if not the best bout, on the card. When the Mighty Midget of Danielson gets into action he is one little fighting rooster.

Rene is one sweet little scrapper and although little bigger than a pint of cider he carries a kick worthy of more potent fluid. The Danielson Midget fights from the first gong until the last and the wonder is that he can carry the fight to opponents who have the height and reach on him. It is his fighting courage and aggressiveness that carries him through to victory. Rene takes plenty of punishment in dealing out his shellac but he gets there just the same, his short arms pumping away like pistons from bell to bell.

This is Peloquin's second meeting with the New Haven Frenchman and should be a whirlwind bout. In the last fight which was a six rounder Peloquin after taking a neat pasting about the head for three rounds came through and won in a walk in the last half of the go. Dubois, who is not such a hard hitter, has a mean left jab that held Peloquin off for the early rounds but was useless to him during the last half. The New Haven lad is confident that he can take the Mighty Midget over the eight-round route as he claims that in the last fight he was not fully recovered from an operation which he underwent several weeks before. Last week Dubois was awarded a technical knockout over Tommy Graham of New Haven in a six rounder. Graham had beaten Dubois in a previous bout but Dubois was not in fighting trim.

Peloquin is training hard at his quarters in Danielson and is paying plenty of attention to perfecting a defense for that stinging left jab of Dubois'. Peloquin is confident that he can take Dubois the same as before as he knows his style of fighting and will get to work earlier in the bout.

All the local boys are hard at work, Young Guoin working out at the Army and Navy in Taftville, along with Koziel. Kop has been doing his boxing at the Hickey gym while Peloquin and Brouillard have been doing their stuff at Peloquin's gym in Danielson. Today will complete the hard work and Thursday and Friday will see them tapering off.

RAIN RAISES HAVOC WITH WOMEN'S SCORES

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 25.—(AP)—A cold wind-blown rainstorm this afternoon which named among its victims more than half the field, caused tournament officials of the Mid-South Women's championship event here to declare posting of today's scores optional and to announce that players who desired might play their second round over tomorrow with the finals slated for Thursday.

About half the players entered were caught on the fairways shortly after starting their rounds. This company included the American champion, Glenna Collett, Miss Marian Bennett, of New Britain, Conn., Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake of New Orleans and others.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, Haworth, N. J., star, who led the field at the end of yesterday's play with a 78, negotiated her round today before the rain began and turned in a 76 for a 36-hole total of 154, to lead those who posted scores today. Miss Orcutt said she would not play her round over tomorrow.

Miss Collett played through intermittent showers during her out nine for a 40, but the blustery wind and rain ruined her game on the inward nine and she took a bad 47.

Her 87 and the 80 of yesterday gave her 167 for the 36 holes. She said that she would play her second round over tomorrow.

Miss Bennett apparently had little trouble with the elements as she made her round in 80, one less than yesterday. Mrs. Lake also turned in a card showing one stroke less than her 92 yesterday.

Miss Orcutt never hit a longer ball than she did today. Consequently she was putting for pars on most of the holes.

SEVERAL MINOR CHANGES IN FOOTBALL RULES

NEW YORK, March 25—(AP)—Finding that some teams last fall were beating the stop rule on shift plays and others were wearing equipment the same color as the ball to trick opponents, the National Football Rules committee, today announced definite action to curb these practices. These were the most important results of the annual session of rule makers for 1930.

Instead of "approximately one second," the stop period on shift plays was changed to "a period of at least one second."

The count roughly measuring this moment of pause was increased from four to six and the referee was empowered to carry a split-second watch to assure himself that the rule is being obeyed.

Four pairs of eyes instead of one or two will be on a constant lookout for any and all violations of the rules next year, under a provision giving the referee, umpire, field judge and linesman "concurrent" jurisdiction over all fouls.

Deploring "unsportsmanlike tendencies" as represented by the use of camouflage in designing uniforms, the committee adopted a resolution which "deprecates the use of head protectors, jerseys or attachments which are so similar in color to the ball that they give the wearers an unfair and unsportsmanlike advantage over their opponents."

The resolution further "suggests that if such head protectors are worn, the solid color be broken by at least two cross strips of markedly contrasting color at least two inches in width, and that the solid color of such jerseys or attachments be definitely broken by stripes or numbers of markedly contrasting color."

In addition, the newly re-codified rules with the number of separate provisions reduced from 28 to 13, received its sixth and final revision at the hands of the members of the rules committee of the National Collgiate A. A. in their annual session last week end at Absecon, N. J.

AMERICANS HELP OXFORD GOLFERS TROUNCE CAMBRIDGE

HOYLAKE, Eng., March 25—(AP)—Oxford, captained by a stalwart young American supported by two other husky golfers from the United States, today emerged victorious in the first half of its 47th annual contest with Cambridge, winning the foursomes four matches to one. The Oxonians tomorrow need to win only four of the ten singles matches to register their first triumph over Cambridge since 1925.

Robert H. Baugh, Jr., Birmingham, Ala., captain of the Oxford team, in addition to giving a great exhibition of excellent golf play, paced his team advantageously.

Baugh and his teammate, Charles Sweeney, another American, had an easy time winning their 36 hole match from Eric Prain, captain of the Cambridge team and H. C. Langhurst, the margin of victory being ten up and eight to play.

Harry Scheftel, an American, with A. C. Marbles as a partner, defeated a Cambridge pair, I. K. McCrosty and R. B. Beare, three up and one to play.

The Americans today were long from the tee and putted well throughout.

YANKEES CLOSE TRAINING CAMP WITH 12-INNING WIN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25—(AP)—The New York Yankees and Boston Braves bade farewell to thir training camp today, with the American leaguers taking the last game of the series, 6 to 5, in 12 innings. The Braves, however, won the series, five to four games.

After Lazzeri had put the Yankees out in front with a home run in the first inning that scored two men ahead of him, the National league representatives came from behind to take the lead only to have the Yanks tie the score in the eighth. Two passes and a wild pitch by B Cunningham coupled with Chapman's sacrifice fly gave the New Yorkers the winning run in the 12th. Score:

Yankeess .... 300 000 020 001—6 10 2
Braves ...... 002 103 000 000—5 11 2

FIRE DEPARTMENT IS PREPARING FOR GAME

Plans for the strengthening of the Norwich Fire Department's baseball team are going on apace these days as the date of their "crucial" test with the Academy draws nigh. In fact, the game comes just two weeks from today, or on Wednesday, April 9.

The manager is keeping his lineup carefully guarded, intending to pull a big surprise at the last moment but from the few hints that have been dropped it can be seen that he, or his assistants are not idle these days. An elaborate scouting system to record every movement of the Academy on the occasion of its opening game, April 5, with the Richmond Radiators has been recruited from the ranks. These tried and true men expect to have the weakness of each and every Wildcat down to the last degree by gametime on that memorable Wednesday.

NEW LONDON CITY LEAGUE TO GO ON SPLIT SCHEDULE

The New London City league will operate on a split-season for 1930 with a four-team loop. Four of the six teams of the 1929 circuit have entered for the pennant chase, the Sub Base and Socony having dropped out. This year's battle will be fought out between the Boy's club, Ockfords, Fort Trumbull Stars and the Kaceys. The season will open Sunday, May 11 between the Stars and Boy's club.

This will be the first time that the two-seasons-in-one plan has been tried in Eastern Connecticut. The winners of each half will have a three in five game series for the championship.

Glick Beats Boldue

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)— Joe Glick, veteran New York lightweight, gained the decision over Georgie Balduc of New York, in the 10-round main bout at the Olympia A. C. tonight. Glick weighed 136 1-2; Balduc 137 1-2.

SHIRES MAKES PEACE WITH BASEBALL

CHICAGO, March 25—(AP)—Charles Arthur Shires finally became a first baseman in good standing today.

Thoroughly pentitent, the "Great One" capitulated to all demands made by Charles A. Comiskey, owner of the White Sox, and was rewarded with immediate reinstatement and a contract calling for $7,500 a year or exactly $17,500 less than he once named as his price for helping the team out of the doldrums of the American league.

When Shires left his Texas home last week, he said he was through with the White Sox and would play semi-pro baseball this summer and attempt to get on the voluntarily retired list. En route, however, he received some advice from some of baseball's older heads and thought again. Today he strolled into the White Sox offices, answered the questions Owner Comiskey had asked relative to his difficulties in the prize ring during the winter, promised to desist from fighting in and out of the ring and his contract and suspension troubles were over.

He left immediately for Texas. He will go home first and then report to Manager Donie Bush at the San Antonio Texas camp for duty.

Comiskey did not see the belligerent White Sox first sacker today but carried on his negotiations by proxy through Secretary Harry Grabiner. Secretary Grabiner refused to divulge what Shires' answers were to Comiskey's three questions on his prize fighting troubles, which were:

1—Who accused you of wrong-doing while in the boxing game?

2—Who suspended you?

3—Who produced the evidence that caused your reinstatement?

Shires was accused of attempting to "fix" a match with Battling Criss in Detroit, but was exonerated by the Michigan State Athletic commission. Later, "Dangerous Dan" Daly, his first knockout victim in the ring, charged he took a "dive" by request and the Illinois Athletic commission opened an investigation. Daly failed to appear at the hearing, however, and Shires was again exonerated. Daly was suspended for life in Illinois.

"I'm in the pink and ready for the gong" Shires said as he stuffed the contract in his pocket and started back to Texas.

The "Great One" may have another fight on his hands when he gets to the White Sox camp, however, as "Bud" Clancy has been playing a great game at first and his hitting has been pleasing to Manager Bush, who believes he can cure Clancy of his habit of getting the "hitless blues" during mid-season. Shires hit .312 last season until he was suspended for giving black eyes to Russell "Lena" Blackburne, then manager, and traveling secretary Lou Barbour

His signing marked the last of the 1930 White Sox holdouts as Outfielder Alex Metzler reported last week.

(By ukase of the city council of Willacoochee, Ga., it is unlawful for any male person to carry or go driving with any woman or girl between midnight and daylight unless good and sufficient reason can be given the city marshal.—News Item.)

Dear City Marshal of Willacoochee:

I see where you is empowered by a ukase to put all us men who are out after midnight with our girls in the hoosegow. If that word ukase means what I think it does I am ashamed of you and the city council. But let me tell you right now you ain't going to make this city any bigger or better by using them ukases to keep us boys in the house nights. And further if we see any of them on the street we'll take a poke at them.

And another thing, did you ever see my girl? Well, if you did you know that I don't go carrying her about the streets after midnight, or any other time for that matter. That order about carrying women and girls around is useless because if you knew the Willacoochee girls like I do you would know they can't be carried.

Now, Mr. Marshal, I'm asking you what I will do next Monday night. Me and the girl is going to a dance over in Pinebloom and as we are going in the flivver we won't be back until after midnight. And you know them flivvers are not dependable, they run outa gas, break down or have a flat tire at most inopportune times. I'll admit some fellers say they are outa gas when they're not, but that ain't my type. If I come into town I get pinched and if I stay out until daylight her old man will shoot me. And if I'm pinched I'll lose the girl because her folks said they had no use for a jailbird and if I get shot I lose out anyhow.

Now, Mr. Marshal, I ask you as man to man, what will I do. You being a young man with a way with the women yourself once, I ask you how you'd like an order like that. Can't you give me a special permit to be out after midnight, I won't tell anybody so you won't be pestered by the married men what are going out with other men's wives. Please answer quick.

Yours,
JOHN CRACKER.

P. S.—Since writing the above I've read over the law more thoroughly and find there's nothing said about walking with your girl. I'll drive the car as far as the city limits and walk the rest of the way. Never mind the permit. —J. C.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

The Academy beat Bulkeley, Saturday, May 28, 1904 at New London and did it proper, to the tune of 16 to 5. Collecting 19 hits against only four for the visitors the Red and White had an easy day. Every man on the team with the exception of the pitcher contributed to the batting spree. The letter m, for middle, instead of cf, is used for centerfield. Maybe we shouldn't mention it, but 16 errors were committed. Score:

ANOTHER SONNENBERG VICTIM GOES TO THE HOSPITAL

WORCESTER, Mass., March 25.—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, recognized in many states as world's heavyweight wrestling champion, retained his title here tonight when Count George Zarynoff of Russia was severely injured in being thrown from the ring and was unable to continue.

The accident occurred after one hour and eleven minutes of wrestling in which the Russian had all the better of the milling. Having Sonnenberg in apparent distress from a series of flying mares and headlocks, Zarynoff rushed after him.

The champion, backed up against the ropes, picked Zarynoff up with a front crotch hold and tossed him backward over the top strand of the ropes to the floor. Zarynoff struck an iron ring support near the bottom of his 15-foot drop and suffered a deep five-inch gash in his right arm. He was taken to the City hospital.

A crowd of nearly 6,000, the largest that ever saw an indoor sporting event here, attended.

URGING WORLD WAR VETERANS ON CLAIMS

Frank T. Hines, director of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, has sent out an urgent request that the attention of all World war veterans be called to the time limit for presentation of evidence in support of disability compensation claims as set forth in section 206 of the world war veterans' act, 1924, as amended May 29, 1928, which reads as follows:

"That no compensation shall be payable for death or disability which does not occur prior to or within one year after discharge or resignation from the service, except as provided in section 200 of this act, and except where there is an official record of the injury during service, at the time of separation from active service, or where prior to April 6, 1930, satisfactory evidence is furnished the bureau to establish that the injury was suffered or aggravated during active service. Where there is official record of injury during service, compensation shall be payable in accordance with the provisions of this title, for disability or death whenever occurring, proximately resulting from such injury."

Evidence submitted on or after April 6, 1930, may be considered, for the purpose of establishing service connection, only in the following classes of cases: (a) Where such evidence shows the death to have occurred or the disability to have developed to the extent of ten per cent or more during active service or within one year subsequent to the date of separation therefrom. (b) Where such evidence shows the disability to result from a disease or injury as specified in the second proviso of Section 200, world war veterans' act, 1924, as amended, relative to the presumption of service origin for disability from the diseases or injuries therein enumerated. (c) where there is an official record of the disease or injury during the service or at the time of separation from the service.

Evidence submitted on or before April 6, 1930 may not be considered in the adjudication of claims, for the purpose of establishing service connection, where none of the above three conditions are met.

However no evidence submitted will be rejected, but will be accepted and filed, and after it is submitted, if it is not admissable for consideration by reason of the operation of section 206, as amended, the veteran will be so advised.

Major T. J. Bannigan, Connecticut regional manager for the bureau, also wishes to impress on all veterans in the state having disabilities of any kind to file their claims at once and submit all possible medical data. He further urges them to get in touch with the following offices of the bureau in Connecticut: Regional office, No. 983 Main street, Hartford; post office building, New Haven; county court house building, Bridgeport. Also the veteran organizations and the Red Cross offices throughout the state. Further information and assistance in the preparation of these claims will be given at all these places.

PROPOSING NEW ROAD, EAST HAMPTON TO HADDAM

Another important bit of highway in Middlesex county is likely to be improved this season. This is the stretch of nearly five miles on the east side of the Connecticut river, over which East Hampton and Haddam have been in dispute many years. It is possible that the contracts for making this change will be among those offered for bidding early in the spring.

The proposed improvement explained by Representative Elwyn T. Clark, will include a new bridge over the Salmon river with a new layout for the road, crossing the river at about 300 feet below the present bridge and making a decided improvement in the accommodation to all who have occasion to do traveling in this part of the county.

It is planned to have this new piece of improved road connect with that leading to Moodus in East Haddam and known as Young street. The road will connect still further along with the Bingham highway through East Haddam, Lyme and Salem, to New London turnpike and on to Norwich.

It is planned that in time other parts of this highway east of the river will be improved so that those who wish to travel south will not have to run down through Portland center in order to continue. They will be able to go back of Sand hill and reach the improved road and then keep on to the Haddam bridge, or continue through Lyme. When the entire work is done those who come down from Hartford on the east side of the river will find hard surface roads all the way to the shore.

BALTIMORE AND BOSTON RUNNERS ANXIOUS TO ENTER DUWELL RACE

The date of the National 10 Mile A. A. U. championship run, to be held in Norwich on Memorial day, May 30, is over two months off but interest in the affair has already begun to stir in some parts of the country, other than Norwicch. With official announcement of the title race but a week old, the Duwells, sponsors of the event, yesterday received two requests for entry blanks. One of the requests came from a club at Baltimore, Md., and the other was from Boston. In both cases the writer made mention of the fact that he had read of the race and its proposed date in newspapers of their respective cities. Inasmuch as the entry blanks will not be sent out until the middle of April, both requests will be placed on file and the applicant advised that he will be taken care of at the proper time

While the entry blanks will not be ready for at least two weeks, clubs throughout the country will receive an announcement of the race within the next few days. The race committee of the Duwell club today will send out announcements to over 600 athletic clubs, located in the 48 states of the union. The local organization has a master list, showing the names of the various clubs about the country and through this list hope to reach practically all of the outstanding athletes of the country.

Asked last night just how many men the Duwells expect here for the national run, the chairman of the race committee, stated that there should be an entry of about 200, including the outstanding distance men of the country.

It was announced last night that before the week is over all of the organizations of the city and a large number of individuals will be appealed to for the donation of prizes or funds. Inasmuch as the coming event is the largest and most important affair of its kind ever secured for the Rose of New England there will be considerable expense involved in its conduct. It is hoped and expected that Norwich will pitch in and do its bit.

There is still some question as to whether the national run will be held on the road or on a track. As previously mentioned only time made on a track will be recognized by the A. A. U. when it considers official records, that being made on the road being recognized as a course record. However, the winner of the race, whether it is held on track or road, will be recognized as the national champion.

BULL MARKET ENCOUNTERED A BEAR RAID IN CLOSING HOURS OF SESSION

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Bulls ran headlong into a bear pit in today's stock market, in their blind haste to celebrate passage of the tariff bill by the senate, and the more cheerful tone of reports from the steel trade.

A roaring bull market that delayed the ticker nearly an hour developed in the early hours of the session, but the late ticker gave the bears their chance. Board room traders are still a little jumpy after the trying experiences of comparatively recent months, and with operations obscured by the late ticker, they had only to hear reports from the floor that a few issues were selling off to be stampeded into taking their profits.

Closing quotations displayed a fairly even mixture of gains and losses. The price index of 50 representative industrials closed a shade higher, recording a new high for 1930, but this was more than offset by a drop exceeding 2 points in the price index of 20 utilities. Trading tapered off considerably on the decline, but total sales aggregated 4,526,050, about 100,000 below the year's record.

Credit conditions eased a little, call money sagging to 3 1-2 per cent, after renewing at 4. Bankers acceptance rates, however, were slightly increased, dealers finding that the reductions of last week had been a little too drastic.

Bankers felt that conditions promised a plentiful supply of call money at reasonable rates for some time to come, but the firmer tone in bankers acceptances, together with continued strength in sterling exchange, made it seem less likely that the Federal Reserve bank will again follow the action of the Bank of England in reducing its rate.

F. W. Dodge's weekly building contract statistics were the most cheerful in a long time, showing a total volume of construction contracted during the week ended last Friday 29 per cent above the total of the previous week, and nearly as much above the like week of last year. Reports from the steel trade indicated that U. S. Steel was maintaining operations at 80 per cent of capacity this week, the first week in three that operations have not been curtailed. Operations of other steel companies, in the aggregate, declined only slightly. Estimates of crude oil production for last week indicate continued success in curtailment.

The early bull movement carried about 100 issues to new high levels for the year, including such issues as U. S. Steel, American Can, Eastman Kodak and American Telephone. Several issues presented isolated points of strength during the late selling, including Standard of N. J., Bethlehem Steel, Colorado Fuel and Iron, Air Reduction and A. M. Byers, which closed 2 to 6 points higher, and close to their best levels of the day.

Vanadium shot up 5 points, then dropped 10 from the top. Western Union dropped 13 points to a new 1930 low at 177, in response to the annual report, indicating a reduction in earnings this year. U. S. Steel closed off 2 points, and Pacific Lighting, Pacific Gas, J. I. Case, Underwood Elliott, Auburn, Goodyear, Standard Gas and Macy lost 2 to 8 points.

The selling movement reflected in part an increasing cautiousness in the tone of commission house advices. There has been a growing feeling among conservative observers that the advance has been proceeding too rapidly.

Commodities likewise turned downward. Wheat futures lost about 1 to 3 points, reflecting bearish foreign and domestic crop reports, and corn lost about half as much. The cotton market was somewhat unsettled, futures price closing irregular.

Sterling cables touched $4.87, up 1-8 cent, and the highest since early January.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Mar. 25 —(AP)—Treasury receipts for March 22 were $30,746,500.43; expenditures $63,735,666.91; balance $376,439,925.65.

COTTON

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 11 points higher to six lower. Spot steady; middling 15.80.

Construction contracts awarded in the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains from March 15, to 21, amounted to $135,990,440, compared with $105,158,400 for the preceding week, an increase of 29 per cent, and with $106,002,400 for the corresponding week of last year, according to the F. W. Dodge Corp. Since the first of January contracts have totaled $955,254,700, a daily rate of about 8 per cent below that prevailing during the same period last year.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Trading on the New York curb exchange set a new high record for the year today with a turnover of 1,363,500 shares but the bull movement, which sent scores of issues to new high levels for the year in the early trading, was checked in the last hour by a heavy volume of profit taking and short selling. In only a sprinkling of volatile issues were the day's gains entirely wiped out, although most of the leaders closed below their peak prices of the day. The previous record turnover was 1,346,200 shares on March 13.

Buying orders in today's market embraced a fairly broad list with the oils and utilities again giving the best demonstrations of group strength. The early demand for stocks received its chief impetus from a lowering of the call money rate and the passage of the senate tariff bill. The rapidity of the recent rise, however, obviously had weakened the technical position of many issues, and made them vulnerable to selling pressure.

United Gas issues were the leaders in point of activity, total transactions in the old and new stocks and warrants comprising about one-fifth of the day's entire volume of business. The old and new stocks closed with net gains of about a point each at 44 5-8 and 27 3-4, respectively, after having set new high records about a point above those levels. Lone Star Gas touched a new high at 43 1-2, Dixie Gas Utilities at 23 and American Natural Gas at 15 1-2, with merger and expansion rumors again the chief background for the rise.

Electric Bond & Share was again a laggard, showing a net loss of 1 5-8 points at 100 3-8. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Hartford Electric and Pennsylvania Water & Power, were pushed into new high ground. American Gas & Electric and American & Foreign Power Warrants turned heavy.

Oils made a further response to the reported reduction in crude oil production last week. Humble ran up more than 7 points to a new high at 114 3-8, but lost nearly half its gain. Indian Territorial, Ohio Oil and Standard Oils of Indiana and Ohio also reached new high ground while Gulf closed a point higher at 151 after having hit 154.

Revival of speculative activity in American Cyanamid "B", based on predictions of record-breaking earnings for the year ended June 30 next, sent that stock to a new high at 37, but it dropped back to 35 5-8, up 1 point net, at the close. Anglo Chilean Nitrate, Consolidated Laundries, Deere & Co. issues, Merchants & Manufacturers "A," Pacific Coast Biscuit issues, and Zonite were among the many other issues to sell at new peaks.

Investment Trust and Trading Corporation issues were irregular. General Realty & Utilities issues broke into new high ground, the annual report published after the close showing earnings of $1.62 a share last year, with a profit of $565,209 reported on stocks sold since the first of the year. Tri-Continental common also attained a new top.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Prices of numerous pivotal domestic bonds eased in an active market today. Several of the important rails lost as much as a point, while investment utilities, which ran a close race with the carriers in the bustling days of last week, also encountered selling. United States governments closed from two to eight thirty-seconds below the Monday final quotations.

The tendency of the market to seek lower ground was attributed largely to liquidation by banks. When money dropped to 2 per cent last week these institutions, which had been uninterested in bonds during the eighteen months prior to about February 1, bought with a rush, apparently in the belief, it was pointed out today, that a period of phenomenally cheap money had come for an indefinite sojourn. Subsequent developments indicated, however, that the low interest rates of last Thursday were only coincident with an unusual situation attendant upon the treasury financing and the income tax payments, and with money back to 4 and 3 1-2 per cent some of the securities purchased last week are finding their way back to the market.

Among the investment issues declining at least a point on fairly large turnovers were American Telephone 5 1-2s, Rock Island 4 1-2s, Great Northern 4 1-2s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas Prior Lien 5s, New York Central 6s and 3 1-2s, Montana Power 5s, the new Pere Marquette 4 1-2s, and Union Pacific 4 1-2s.

Losses of nearly a point appeared in International Telephone 5s, United States Rubber 5s, North American Edison 5s, Erie 5s and Chicago Great Western 4s. The last named rallied briskly early in the session, but closed nearly 3 points under its top.

On the other hand, Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s continued to show strength on reports of Van Sweringen purchases into the road. Green Bay & Wisconsin debenture "B" certificates sold up 2 points to 30, Keystone Telephone 5s rose 5, Florida East Coast 5s rallied 1 and Marion Steam Shovel 6s improved 6 points. Thus the little bullishness remaining in the market was in the low-priced issues.

Convertibles turned heavy in the late trading as stocks lost their gains. American Telephone 4 1-2s made a new high since the market break by touching 169, but the closing price of 166 3-4 was 3-8 below the previous final. Alleghany 5s of 1950 lost more than a point.

There were fractional declines in Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s, International Telephone 4 1-2s, New Haven 6s, Texas Corp., 5s and Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, with warrants.

Foreign bonds, on the whole, were well supported. Belgium 7s made the new high of 109 1-2, closing a point higher. Austrian 7s likewise gained a point on the day. Listings of Chile were active, but inquiry was readily supplied and the improvement was small.

Two railroads revealed plans for new financing. The Virginian Railway, which has a $5,000,000 issue of 5s in its treasury, asked authority to replace it with a 4 1-2 per cent loan.

The Nickel Plate requested permission to sell a $12,000,000 issue of 4 1-2s. Both are 50-year bonds and both will be offered at 94 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 25.—(AP)— Wheat prices suffered material setbacks today as a result of free selling and general slackening of demand. Snowfalls throughout a large part of domestic winter wheat territory were taken as presaging an increased crop and much attention was given to announcement that world shipments of wheat have been reduced to the smallest total of any week since 1925. Forecasts that spring wheat acreage in the United States and Canada would be curtailed respectively 10 and 6 per cent were current, but as an offset to bearish factors had little or no success.

Chicago closing prices were weak, 1-2 to 22 3-4 cents a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-2 to 1 1-2 cents down, oats 3-8 to 5-8 cents off and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to an equal advance.

Persistent selling pressure that manifest in wheat from the beginning widened out into something akin to a stop-loss flurry before trading was at an end. Relatively slow response which European quotations today made to advances yesterday on this side of the Atlantic did much to stimulate bearish sentiment here, and it was generally considered that the widespread heavy snows would be likely to benefit winter wheat by affording needed moisture, as well as protection against cold. Meanwhile export purchases of North American wheat amounted to only about 450,000 bushels, and this total was presumed to be altogether Canadian-grown.

Active buying support from farm board allies came into play in the wheat pit after price downturns apparently threatened to become acute. The buying on the part of the government-sponsored agencies did a good deal to steady the May delivery, but was comparatively ineffective as to the new crop months, July and September.

Notice that the Wheat Stabilization corporation, an auxiliary of the farm board, did not contemplate shipping any unsold wheat to European markets was also helpful in upholding the May price, and apparently tended likewise to give more firmness to the Liverpool market today at the last. Buying of Chicago new crop futures deliveries was at a low ebb, however, toward the close, which was at virtually the day's bottom level, with optimistic crop reports from Texas a particular bearish influence.

Corn and oats gave way with wheat. Provisions were steadied by upturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities:

NEW YORK, March 25.—(AP)—Steel operations throughout the country during the past week declined further to about 73 per cent of rated capacity, Dow, Jones & Co. reported today. This ratio is about 1 per cent below that of a week ago, and 3 per cent below that of two weeks ago. The reduction was attributed to curtailment of operations among the smaller companies. The U. S. Steel Corp. was said to be maintaining its operations at 80 per cent, the first time in the last three weeks that the rate has not been reduced.

The recently authorized reduction in the par value of the common stock of the Canadian Pacific Railway from $100 to $25, and the splitting up of the stock on a four-for-one basis has been approved by the railway committee of the Canadian house of commons. The plan to increase the number of directors to 24 also was approved.

Reports from the copper trade today indicate that foreign buying will show greater improvement in the next few weeks than domestic buying, although a fair improvement should be recorded in the latter, as spring and early summer construction programs get underway.

Pirnie, Simons & Co., investment bankers, of Springfield, Mass., Hartford, Conn., and Philadelphia, has purchased a controlling interest in Evans, Searles & Co., an investment banking house of Chicago.

ONE MAN HANDLES MOST OF THIS TOWN'S BUSINESS

SEATTLE (AP)—"One-horse" towns are not uncommon, but the state of Washington boasts a one-man town.

With the exception of a city council, which relies on him for direction, William Grant Parker is the man who rules the town of Bothell, 12 miles north of Seattle, Washington.

Parker, the town's only undertaker and cabinet maker, is mayor, chief of police, fire chief, deputy sheriff, deputy coroner and constable.

He is a big man, not only in a political way, but physically. He weighs 220 pounds and is six feet tall.

Parker's biggest achievement was the establishment of a volunteer fire department, which is recognized as one of the best rural departments in the state.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A double feature bill that makes everything that has gone before it take a back seat, opens today at the Palace theatre and will be continued three days there. The features include "The Woman Racket," featuring Tom Moore and Blanche Sweet, and "Wide Open," with the ever popular Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller in the feature roles.

"The Woman Racket" is a swift moving story built around a night club as a background. Here is the great old "Great White Way" in all its glitter and glamor, scintillating, alluring. Here is love and loyalty on one hand and coldly calculating emotion on the other. We see splendid devotion one minute and terrible selfishness the next.

This great picture, "The Woman Racket" is the story of a fast night club hostess who marries a policeman after she has had her fill of the hypocritical job of playing up to all the big butter and egg customers who patronize her club. She moves into his modest little flat, and for a time everything is rosy. Then come all the petty little economies of such a life, the scrimping and scraping and pinching that are inevitable. She begins to long again for the sables and diamonds, the rich foods, the silver dinner services and the snowy napery of the dining table. So she goes, and what a battle occurs then! Nobody should fail to come to the Palace and see how the story ends. It is a tremendous dramatic climax.

Fans who have laughed at Edward Everett Horton in "The Hottentot", "The Sap" and "The Aviator" will have plenty more laughing to do when they see him in "Wide Open." In this picture he is seen first as the meek and inventive bookkeeper, who is the butt of the office manager's gruffness, and who gets lots of guff and bossing from the star salesman. Then he has to go home with a cold in his nose or something, and lo and behold the fun starts. Such strange happenings as you never dreamed of, as a mysterious girl, a detective and other strange characters start to mix up in his affairs. The first thing poor Horton knows he has a wife, or at least a woman who says she's his wife, and believe us, he has an uproarious time before it's all straightened out again and everybody is in his proper place.

Broadway Theatre

Norwich is "show-minded," and with that in view, the Broadway management is booking the latest and biggest talking pictures, whether on a single or double-feature program. Any one of the Broadway's double features would be billed single at much larger houses, and the program starting today is no exception. "Roadhouse Nights" is an exciting story of the liquor "racket" in Chicago, where a little lakeshore town in the suburbs has been literally "taken over" by the racketeers who are running things to suit themselves. A clever reporter, sent out to investigate and locate the headquarters and leaders of the gang is successful, but an indiscreet phone message, while under the influence of his "evidence," calls for a bullet from the gang leader, and the message never gets through. Charles Ruggles, another scribe, is sent out to locate his pal, and runs into the net of Fred Kohler, the gang leader in his lair at the "River Inn." Warned by Helen Morgan the club hostess, Ruggles fakes a jag, and puts through a call to his office, with the gangster listening with ready gun. A meaningless jumble of words, covering a code message rapped out on the phone transmitter with a pencil, fools the gangster, but the code brings the coast-guard on the run, and while thrill upon thrill has piled up during the picture, the climax is a wow. The famous team of comics, Clayton Jackson and Durante, the Marx Brothers' only rivals, have a prominent place in the picture, with Durante especially carrying away the comedy honors. The companion picture, features the radio favorite, Rudy Vallee with his Connecticut Yankees, Marie Dressler and Sally Blane, in an amusing and entertaining story of a smalltown sheik who learned the clarinet and sax by mail, and by a nervy impersonation of the famous Ted Grant gets a foothold for himself and his tiny jazz band on the ladder to fame. Rudy has excellent opportunities for his crooning solos, and not only wins the heart of his smalltown sweetie, dainty Sally Blane, but will win new favor with his auditors. Marie Dressler at her best as a climbing society matron, has a wonderfully funny role, and Charles Sellon as a hick cop, and Eddie Nugent as one of Rudy's satellites, furnish additional comedy. The latest Fox movietone news is also shown. Saturday the event that all Norwich has been waiting for, the talking debut of screendom's most famous emotional star, Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie," will take place and record-breaking crowds are looked for.

WESTMINISTER

ANTHONY KIMINSKI IS FINED FOR GAME LAW VIOLATIONS

Anthony Kiminski, 38, of Lisbon, was arrested Thursday in South Canterbury by Deputy Warden Charles Colburn for violation of the game laws. Kiminski was held on three counts—hunting without a license, trapping on land without the consent of the owner and setting traps without his name attached. Kiminski was presented in the town court before Justice of the Peace Gould Colt, for a hearing. Kiminski, who recently returned from Florida, where he claims to have spent the winter, is of the hard boiled type. Asked by the justice if he had ever been arrested before, he replied, "Not in this state and that is all I need to tell you!" Further questioning brought out the fact that Kiminski was aware that he was breaking the law. He said he needed some money so took a chance. When taken into custody Kiminski had several muskrats in his possession and several traps he had just taken up. Kiminski pleaded guilty to all three counts and Judge Colt imposed a fine of $10 on each of two counts and $5 on the third count with costs, which totaled $40.60. Kiminski claimed he had no money and was remanded to the county jail in Brooklyn. Later his parents came to his assistance and paid his fine and he was released.

Friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mrs. Eunice Bingham Friday to help her celebrate her 79th birthday. Mrs. Bingham is remarkably active and thoroughly enjoyed entertaining her friends, who gather each year to wish her many happy returns of the day.

Special Custom Coachwork up to $15,000.00 on V-16 chassis. All prices, f. o. b. Detroit.

DESIGNED and built as are no other cars, these models, from the La Salle to the custom Cadillac V-16, offer a range in variety and choice not obtainable in the combined products of all other makers.

In Cadillac, Fisher and Fleetwood plants every consideration is given to the attainment of the highest degree of fineness and precision. No builder of automobiles so positively assures the purchaser:

1st, the highest known quality in a motor car.

2nd, uniformity of car behavior under all conditions.

3rd, proven safeguards in driving and control—the silent "Syncro-Mesh" transmission for the simplification of gear-shifting; safety-mechanical four-wheel brakes for more miles per hour with greater safety; harmonized steering for the effortless manipulation of these cars in congested traffic; and non-shattering Security-Plate Glass for your protection.

4th, service of a kind which only Cadillac and La Salle owners know—service stations in the United States and Canada provide a completely standardized service at prices limited by the factory, and available to every Cadillac or La Salle owner, no matter where he may be; plus a maintenance system which enables the owner to prevent trouble rather than pay for its correction.

5th, the most moderate first cost for any fine car, and operation and upkeep costs which over the years will prove less expensive than for any other car.

6th, the joyous satisfaction of possessing all that a motor car can give, and the pride of ownership of the finest and smartest of all cars.

[Sixteen-Cylinder Trials Cars Available]

The possibilities of eight-cylinder engines attain their maximum in Cadillac V-8 and La Salle V-8 power plants. Cadillac performance is now carried to new heights in the V-16. The only way you can realize how extraordinarily the V-16 performs is by riding in it or driving it. A telephone message will bring this car to your door.

The G. M. A. C. Deferred Payment Plan is available to all Cadillac or La Salle purchasers

SPRING FEVER 'GAG' GETS A RUDE JOLT

ATLANTA (AP)—There is no such thing as spring fever, says Dr. M. E. Winchester of the Georgia state board of health.

"It's entirely a mental thing—this spring fever business," declares the doctor. "The facts are that there is no physiological basis for it. It's a tradition, or something, that went out with hoop skirts.

"The reason people want to go into the woods on balmy spring days is because the woods are attractive to the eye, the ear, the nose and sense of feeling."

An emerald [illegible] as an orange was one of [illegible] that the Spanish adventurers found in an Indian village when they came to Colombia in the sixteenth century.

TEST ON PEACE AND WAR SHOWS STUDENTS DIVIDED

CHICAGO, (AP)—A survey among 1,400 students of the University of Chicago showed that those who knew war were less favorable to pacifism than non-combatants.

The survey, conducted by Prof. L. L. Thurstone, showed Catholics and Lutherans as the least pacifistic of the Christians. Jews were the most pacifistic. Students of foreign or mixed parentage were more pacifistic than native-born students.

POETRY

Winter Came Back

Winter, why did you come back
And lay your cold and bloodless hand
Upon the heart of Spring,
That throbbed so wildly
With the sweet, wild pulses
Of a new awakening?

Her fresh'ning loveliness
Did you so long to touch
And know the thrill of life
And did you yearn
To feel
The golden of Forsythia sprays
The velvet of magnolia blooms,
The charming gracefulness of daffodils?

Winter, why did you come back,
With this reminder
Of the ultimate?
This Spring was—O, so young,
And so divinely fair—
Could you not have waited,
And let Time tell Spring
Of her unescapable fate?

—Dorothy Whipple Fry, in Boston Transcript.

It Is!

A lot fo you folks may think that it's fine—
To be on the stage.
And it is;
To see your name shine out front on a sign,
Sounds rather nice,
And it is:

Oh! The life we lead is both happy and gay
Sing a song, tell a joke, and you're through for the day.
Go back to the hotel and climb in the hay;
Pretty soft, don't you think?
Well, it is.

You wear snappy clothes, you sleep until noon,
What a lovely existence
It is.
Then somebody knocks at the door of you room,
You think it's your breakfast—
It is.

Every hour of the day is a round of delight,
Everybody's your pal; and they sure treat you right.
You get three thousand per, every Saturday night,
You think it's a pipe dream;
IT IS!

—Phil Baker and Paul Gerard Smith, in Chicago Tribune.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Fafnir Bearing Company, New Britain.

The Fafnir Bearing company was started as an experimental department of The Hart & Cooley company in 1910 for the purpose of undertaking the manufacture of high grade ball bearings in this country.

In 1911 the company was incorporated with a capital of $100,00 with H. S. Hart as president, E. C. Goodwin as vice-president and E. H. Cooper as secretary and treasurer. At that time there were but seven men on the payroll. In view of the fact that most of the ball bearings used in this country were at that time imported from Europe, it was the policy of the management to follow as closely as possible European standards and methods. The officers at various times made trips of investigation to Germany and up to the time of the World war the company imported its steel from Germany and its steel balls from England.

The growth of the company was comparatively rapid and the outbreak of the great war put a stop to importations of foreign bearings and found the company in an excellent position to meet the demands of the domestic market with a product which had passed through the experimental stage. Since the war there has been an increasing distribution of ball bearings for general industrial purposes outside of the automotive field which was at first its principal outlet and the company has been a pioneer in the adaptation of ball bearings to general industrial uses.

In 1927 it developed a ball bearing spring shackle which bids fair to become standard equipment on the better class of automobiles. In 1929 it purchased the business of the Railway Motors corporation and is making a roller bearing which has proved its usefulness on many de luxe trains. At present the company is capitalized at $3,000,000, occupies a factory having a manufacturing space of 375,000 feet and has about 1200 employees. Its officers are as follows: E. H. Cooper, chairman of the board; Maurice Stanley, president; R. R. Searles, vice president; E. R. Carter, vice president; R. N. Hemenway, vice president; A. G. Way, secretary and treasurer; C. F. Stanley, assistant secretary; G. F. Atwater, assistant treasurer.

Quick Relief From Constipation

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache, torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Probationers Hike

Saturday afternoon sixteen members of the Probationers class of the Methodist Episcopal church enjoyed a hike to the top of Wauwecus hill, in charge of the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter. The young people intended to have a camp fire and hot dog roast, but the high winds made it inadvisable. They visited the farm of Frank Rose where they received a warm welcome and were given the freedom of the house as well as the farm. The lunch was prepared and served in the farm house. Following the lunch the young people enjoyed an hour and a half of outdoor games before the return hike was started. The meeting of Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with this church, held Friday night, was adjourned soon after the meeting opened that the scouts might go to Franklin to fight a forest fire. Assistant Scoutmaster Lewis E. Aldrich was in charge of the group to Franklin. Upon arrival at the fire it was found to be a house burning and the scouts were unable to render any help.

Under the direction of Mrs. Aldrich the Junior Vested choir sang "I am His and He Is Mine." At the morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "What Will You Hazard?" text Acts. 15:25-26, "Our beloved and Paul, men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord, Jesus Christ."

The entertainment committee, Elmer T. Pierson, Frank L. Arnold and Julian L. Williams, were in charge of the supper. The Symphony orchestra provided a concert program during the supper.

At 8 o'clock the business meeting was called to order and the reports of the various committees heard and accepted, as were the reports of the secretary and treasurer. The reports showed the club to be in excellent condition. The new board of officers was elected as follows:

President, Albert J. Bailey; vice president, Wilbur S. Williams; secretary, Frank I. Royce; treasurer, Frank B. Lathrop.

ALBERT J. BAILEY

Directors, three years, Elmer T. Pierson, Iver Anderson, Lloyd R. Cochran; two years, Everett S. Peckham; auditor, Harold P. Hull.

E. FRANK MORGAN CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Announcement has been made in New London of the candidacy of E. Frank Morgan, a former mayor of that city, for the place on the board of county commissioners in case of the resignation of George H. Bradford, who is now high sheriff of the county.

This gives each of the senatorial districts in the county a candidate for the place. George M. Charbonneau of this city from the 19th district, Frederick A. Beckwith of East Lyme from the 20th, and Mr. Morgan from the 18th.

If Mr. Bradford were to resign his county commissionership in the near future it is likely that Gov. John H. Trumbull would make an appointment to fill the vacancy. However, if the resignation of Bradford is not to be tendered until next November, it is hardly likely, in the opinion of most of the county republican leaders, that any executive appointment will be made, inasmuch as the legislature will convene in January, 1931, and that the governor would leave the appointment to that body. Any appointment that might be made in November would be effective only until Jauuary and it is this fact that leads to the belief that Governor Trumbull would refrain from interfering in the situation.

Under the regular procedure for selecting county commissioners, the representatives and senators elected in this county next November would hold a caucus shortly after the legislature convenes and would select a candidate for county commissioner, and the selection would be ratified by the general assembly. The power of the governor to make appointments of county commissioners is limited to such times as the general assembly is not in session and any such appointments that are made are effective only until the date the legislature convenes.

Sportsmen's Window Display

The Hanover-Curland company store on Franklin street has a seasonable window display that is attracting much admiring attention. It is devoted to sports, particularly fishing, as a pond with fish swimming in it is the central point of the display. A fisherman dabbles a line in the water and a variety of fishing paraphernalia is shown, while among the rocks and branches which make up the landscape are the stuffed figures of a coon, wildcat, pheasant and woodchuck.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Seidel and family, of Providence street, are entertaining Mrs. Meyer of New Brunswick, N. J.

Miss Helen G. Thompson of North Second avenue and Mrs. Charles T. Webster of North A street motored to Hartford on Tuesday.

Every second Thursday is "Church night" at the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church, when the teachers of the church school and the older scholars gather to listen to an inspiring talk by the pastor. The latter part of the evening is given over to recreation.

The Taftville fire companies have had a busy session for the past week, for not only have they been called out of town on a number of destructive fires but have been active in fighting brush fires which have been more numerous this year. Fire Company No. 2 was called out Monday afternoon for a threatening grass and brush fire near Maennerchor place, which was extinguished by chemical. On Monday a big fire in the woods in Lisbon broke out, and was reported to have burned over a large area over two miles in width. Still another fire was reported in the woods south of Hunters road and in the rear of St. Joseph's cemetery.

"Mortal Sin" was the topic chosen by Rev. Father Seydel, a member of the Redemptorist order of Boston, in his second evening address at Sacred Heart church Monday evening, where he is conducting a mission for the English speaking parishioners of the church. Rev. Father Seydel stressed the importance of the members of the parish being faithful in their attendance at the mission, and the benefits to be derived therefrom. He termed those who were careless and indifferent to this religious call as "spiritually dead," and the church bell was tolled in the same manner that it commemorates the departed, while special prayers were said by the congregation for the conversion of sinners. At the benediction of the blessed sacrament, the choir of the English speaking branch of the Children of Mary sodality sang.

Robert E. Cooper spent the week end with his relatives in Fall River, Mass.

Mrs. Earle M. Wood entertained at bridge at her home on North Third avenue Tuesday afternoon.

The lost letters advertised this week at the local post office are for Edmond J. Gaudette, Mrs. Dorothy Barritt, Mrs. J. R. Rhea and Thomas J. Welsch.

FOR MENTAL HYGIENE INSTITUTE AT COLEGE

A mental hygiene institute has been planned for three weeks this summer, lasting from June 30th to July 19th, under the auspices of the state department of health. The institute will be somewhat in the form of a summer school and during the three weeks' period 65 hours of lectures and seminars will be given. Arrangements have been made to hold this institute at Connecticut college at New London which has invited the state department of health to use the campus for this purpose and arrangements are being made to accommodate those who wish to attend the institute.

The course will be planned so as to interest visiting nurses, teachers, social workers, probation officers, physicians and all socially-minded persons of sufficient educational background so that they can obtain a working knowledge of mental hygiene. There will be no tuition, and expenses connected with the institute will be at a minimum.

NORWICH STATE HOSPITAL'S SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

The weekly bulletin of the state department of health announces that the latest sewage treatment plant at Connecticut's state institutions has just been placed in service at the Norwich state hospital. This system now serves a population of about 3,500 at the institution. Sewage which formerly was discharged without treatment into the Thames river is now treated in sedimentation tanks which remove most of the suspended solids. Separate digestion tanks are provided for the settled sewage sludge, and glass covered filter beds of sand are to be used for drying the digested sludge. This plant added to the modern sewage plants constructed in the past two or three years at the Middletown state hospital, Mansfield state training school, Connecticut Agricultural college and the state farm for women at Niantic, bears testimony to the efforts the state is making to do its share in relieving the pollution load on the waters of the state.

TRIAL POSTPONED BECAUSE WITNESS WAS ABSENT

The $25,000 suit brought in the superior court by Stephen Awezec of Montville against Frank W. Woodworth of New London, which was to have gone on trial before a jury there Tuesday, was put over until today (Wednesday) because of the absence of Detective Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh, one of the witnesses, who was out of town Tuesday on an extradition case for the police court.

The plaintiff claims that he has lost the sight of his left eye, had his right hand crushed so badly that it is permanently crippled, suffered a fractured skull and fractured collarbone and suffered other injuries as a result of an automobile accident Sept. 28, 1929, on the Norwich road near Gallows lane, in which the car occupied by Awezec and operated by Valliere was in collision with the car operated by the defendant. It is claimed that the defendant was negligent in turning into Gallows lane and into the Valliere car, which was attempting to pass the Woodworth car at the time.

PALACE THEATRE MAKES HIGH STAND IN WEEK

Norwich and the Palace theatre took an enviable place in the Warner Bros. drive as the Palace stood third in New England and 16th of the 20 leading theatres of the country for the week, according to the advice from headquarters that has been received by Manager R. B. Hamilton.

The record indicates that the Norwich public appreciates the line of pictures brought to the theatre by Manager Hamilton, often showing a picture before it has been released in New York as in the case of Montana Moon which was at the theatre this week.

Sues for $1,250 Damages

G. L. Bilderbeck of New London asks $1,250 damages from C. E. Schall, Inc., of New York, according to papers filed Tuesday with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court. The plaintiff claims this amount is due on work performed by the plaintiff in Shirley lane.

Damages of $2,000 are asked by the Konomoc Iron Works in a suit against Nicholas and Angelina Sammataro, all of New London, in another suit filed Tuesday. The action is based on the common counts.

CRUELTY, MISMANAGEMENT AT CONN. SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Findings of Special Commission Appointed By Gov. Trumbull to Investigate Charges—Find That All of the Officers Should Be Relieved From Duty—Edward S. Boyd, Superintendant, Has Tendered His Resignation to the Board of Trustees—Allegations of Cruelty and Immorality Made Against Officials of the School Are Branded As Untrue By the Board of Trustees.

MERIDEN, March 26.—(AP)—Verification of charges that corporal punishment has been carried to the extent of brutality, that the institution has been mismanaged, that practically all of the officers, including Supt. Edward S. Boyd, are incompetent and should be relieved from duty, are among the findings of the special commission appointed by Gov. John H. Trumbull to make a thorough investigation of the Connecticut school for boys, here.

The report, which bears the signatures of Judge George H. Day, of Hartford, and Judge Walter M. Pickett and William A. Hendrick, of New Haven, made public tonight, shows a most comprehensive study into every phase of the state institution. Based upon testimony taken at five hearings held at the school and another at the state reformatory in Cheshire, the report covers 23 pages and gives the impression of a careful and expert study of the entire situation.

Ninety-five persons were interviewed by the governor's board. Of them 36 were present and 25 recent inmates of the school, 31 were present officers of the school and three others who are not connected with the institution. Its findings are summed up in twelve ponts the text of which follows:

"1—That section 1801 of the general statutes, revision of 1918, be amended to reduce the board of trustees to seven, or preferably five, members, to be appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate from the state at large, and to provide that the governor may remove any of the trustees for cause. This is in accordance with statutory provisions relating to other like institutions of this state, and the reduction in the size of the board should create a more definite sense of individual responsibility.

"2—That the superintendent be relieved from office.

"3—That the force of officers and supervisors be re-organized at the first possible moment. Some of them are totally unfit to occupy their present positions. The harm they have it in their power to do should be avoided by their immediate elimination. Others should be dismissed as soon as properly qualified employes can be secured for their places.

"4—That the staff be allowed four full days off duty in each month, distributed as the necessities of administration make most convenient.

"5—That the additional cottage units for which appropriation was made at the last general assembly be erected at once. This should permit the abandonment of the old south division for dormitory purposes.

"6—That the present tentative plan for the erection of a combined hospital and receiving building be made a reality at the earliest possible date.

"7—That a full time staff physician with psychiatric experience be added to the personnel.

"8—That the abnormal inmates be segregated and placed under especially competent supervision until transferred to some other institution.

"9—That the food schedules of the institution be submitted from time to time to a competent dietitian for advice and approval.

"10—That a definite program of supervised recreation, to employ the leisure time of the inmates in competitive and organized athletics or other suitable activities, be adopted.

"11—That the industrial program of the institution be substantially expanded.

"12—That corporal punishment, if retained, be inflicted only by the superintendent in person; and that a detailed report in writing of each such instance, setting out the offense for which the punishment was inflicted and an adequate description of the punishment, be filed with the board of trustees at their next meeting."

Some of the persons appearing before the board its finding declares to have been unreliable, with the submission of what it called exaggerated claims. In the main, however, it declares that its conclusions are based on facts admitted by officers of the institution or in other instances upon such convincing and complete corroboration as to be inescapable. Much transpired in the school of which the responsible heads were ignorant, but it was their duty to know and prevent it, the finding holds.

As to Supt. Boyd, to whom credit was given for every consideration and co-operation in making its investigation, the board found him "an honorable man, who has endeavored to operate the school as the state intended.'"

However, the board finds, "he has been unfortunate in his staff selections, unaware of much that he should have known, handicaped by ill health, and so confident of the integrity of his own purposes that he has placed confidence in his own men."

Further, it finds that the rule pertaining to the inflicting of corporal punishment, according to statements by inmates and the admission of supervisors and other officers clearly establish that this rule has been repeatedly violated and that instances of tyranny and ill-temper were abundantly established and demonstrated the unfit character of many of the officers.

BOYD RESIGNS AS SUPT. OF SCHOOL FOR BOYS

MERIDEN, March 26.—(AP)—Edward S. Boyd, superintendent of the Connecticut school for boys here, whose administration has been under fire recently, has submitted his resignation to the board of trustees, Dr. J. D. Eggleston, president of the board announced tonight.

No action has been taken on the resignation, which was tendered for acceptance at the pleasure of the board. Unqualified endorsement of Mr. Boyd's administration of the school's affairs was given by the trustees, however, in their report, made public tonight, on various charges made against the institution's officials.

The text of Mr. Boyd's resignation follows:

"I am again tendering the board, as I have previously, verbally, my resignation as superintendent of the school, to take effect at the pleasure of the board.

"The difficulties of health under which I have been working for some time have been well known to you, and it seems advisable for the best interests of the boys to set this in writing at this time."

"Respectfully,
"EDWARD S. BOYD."

ALLEGATIONS DENIED BY OFFICIALS OF THE SCHOOL

MERIDEN, March 26—(AP)—The board of trustees of the Connecticut state school for boys, in its report to Gov. John H. Trumbull of the investigation of the charges made by the board of public welfare, branded as untrue practically all the allegations of cruelty and immorality made against officials of the school.

They show pique at the appointment by the governor of a special commission to investigate the charges in these words:

"While the trustees of this board welcome at all times any investigation of its acts or criticism of the administrators under it, they cannot help but regret that your excellency should have lacked confidence in the board's ability, honesty and integrity and to faithfully disclose any situation which it found to exist.'

The report states that the sensational reports given out are largely without foundation in fact. The report reads:

"Brutality does not prevail in this institution. Corporal punishment, as provided by law, has been inflicted, but in the presence of witnesses, and according to the testimony before us, has not been brutal. In only one instance have we found possible brutal punishment; even this has been denied by the person charged, but has been supported by the testimony of four boys, all of whom, however, have a different version of the affair.'

The report speaks very highly of Edward S. Boyd, the superintendent, saying:

"He is a kindly, fatherly, Christian gentleman of the old school, and would not, with his knowledge, permit any boy under his jurisdiction to be treated unfairly or with brutality. We believe him to be thoroughly conscientious and competent. We consider him to be endowed with qualities of mind and heart which make him peculiarly fitted as an executive of an institution of juvenile delinquents. We acknowledge to the public our complete confidence in him."

RADIO ADDRESS BY CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—A veteran suffrage campaigner in a nationwide radio address today told crusaders in the woman's cause who gathered around luncheon tables to celebrate the tenth aniversary of woman suffrage that the spirit of hatred was responsible for most of the woes of the nation and the world.

Upon this, Carrie Chapman Catt placed the blame for the national prohibition furore, for the long debate over the tariff and for the protracted discussion at the London naval conference. She was the principal speaker.

Mrs. Catt told the story of Eddystone lighthouse where one man lived in the basement and one in the tower for six months never speaking because they hated each other.

"It certainly illustrates the predicament of our nation when wets have taken to the cellar and dries to the tower," said Mrs. Catt.

Mrs. Catt also outlined "odds and ends of suffrage" including laws for working women, peace problems, and citizenship problems, which, she said younger women must work out.

TALKED FROM GENOA, ITALY TO SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA

GENOA, Italy, March 26—(AP)—Guglielmo Marconi stood in the radio room of his yacht Electra, here this morning, and pressed a small key.

Eleven thousand miles away, in Sydney, Australia, a man spoke into a radio telephone:

"Our lights are on, thanks to you. Hurrah!"

Thus did the inventor of the wireless transmit enough energy to flash on thousands of lamps and open an electrical exposition in Sydney.

The inventor, dressed in a blue yachtsman's uniform, was surrounded by a score of newspapermen as he made the experiment, and after pressing the key he carried on a two-way telephone conversation with Sydney over short waves.

The Associated Press representative, Andrue Berding, talked to Sydney after Marconi. He heard the voice of the Australian as plainly as if it were coming from Genoa.

After the experiment, Marconi received many telegrams of congratulation, some from the United States.

SHOT AND KILLED HIS DAUGHTERS, THEN HIMSELF

NEWTON, Ia., March 26—(AP)—George McKinney, 52, today shot and killed his daughters, Artie Dora, 25 and Gladys, 12, and then shot himself in the hand. He drove his automobile from his home at Mitchellville where the shooting took place, to Newton, and gave himself up to the sheriff.

McKinney told officials that "something had been telling him for two years" to kill his daughters.

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, March 26.—(AP)—A dispatch from Novisad said that a Stradivarius violin valued at $100,000 had been sold to an unnamed American through an American agent at Novisad. The violin, which was the property of a merchant named Schubian, was signed by Stradivarius and dated 1735.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, March 26.—(AP)—First Secretary Grummon of the American legation called on M. Leger, legal adviser to the federated patriotic groups, and assured him that there was no possible chance of a slip-up in putting into effect the Hoover commission's plan for electing a neutral temporary president in Haiti.

PROVINCETOWN THREATENED BY GENERAL CONFLAGRATION

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., March 26.—(AP)—Fire starting in the high school building threatened a general conflagration here late tonight. The high school was destroyed with a loss estimated at $150,000. The Center Methodist church and about ten houses caught fire from sparks borne on a high wind.

Firemen from down Cape Cod as far as Chatham and Hyannis came to the aid of the local forces. The high school is located in the village center surrounded by houses, churches and other public buildings.

One of the first houses to catch fire was the John King residence, one of the finest in town. It was damaged to the extent of about $5,000. The roof of the Center Methodist church was showered by sparks and was badly damaged. Roof fires scattered through the neighborhood kept firemen frantically busy.

The fire started in the basement of the high school from a cause as yet undetermined. It was first discovered by Mrs. James Brown, who lives opposite, under the Pilgrim monument hill.

NICHOLAS F. BRADY REPORTED "VERY LOW"

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Nicholas F. Brady, chairman of the board of the New York Edison company, confined to his home with an attack of arthritis, was "very low" tonight, Dr. William J. Maloney reported in a bulletin.

Cardinal Hayes visited the Brady home during the evening and entered the sick room, but Brady was in a coma and did not recognize the cardinal.

Brady's condition had been reported improved earlier in the day.

GUNMAN FOUND GUILTY OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 26.—(AP)—Daniel Grosso, New York gunman, tried for the slaying of John Ens in a $50,000 mail robbery in October, 1926, was found guilty of first degree murder today and sentenced to die in the electric chair the week of May 5.

Grosso was the seventh member of the gang. Two were sentenced to life imprisonment, two confessed and were given ten-year terms. Two were slain.

BODIES OF TWO MEN FOUND, WITH HANDS BOUND

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 26—(AP)—The bodies of two men, their hands and feet securely tied, were found in a large coupe on a road just outside the city tonight by William Larkin, a Brecksville constable, police reported.

The automobile had been standing in a field near the road since early this morning, Larkin said. Cleveland police advanced the belief that the men were slain to pay a gangland debt of underworld law.

BRADFORD HAS RESIGNED AS COUNTY COMMISSIONER

HARTFORD, March 26.—(AP)—George R. Bradford of Montville, who was recently appointed sheriff of New London county, has sent his resignation as county commissioner to Gov. John H. SNOW CLOSES MOUNTAIN PASSES TO MOTOR TRAFFIC

DENVER, Colo., March 26.—(AP)—Winter's encore of the last few days has left the area from Montana to New Mexico blanketed with snow. All the higher mountain passes were reported closed to motor traffic tonight despite efforts of highway patrols to keep them open.

Leadville, Colo. reported 10 inches of snow.

Record Snowfall In The Middle West

Chicago Registered a Fall of 18.5 Inches At 3 P. M. Yesterday—Traffic Paralyzed.

CHICAGO, March 26—(AP)—Approaching the 50th hour tonight a p[illegible] winter storm which already has s[illegible]ed all records for central states [illegible] fall, continued unabated.

Snow fell through the day t[illegible] all attempts to clear highw[illegible] or maintain transportation schedules. At 3 o'clock the weather bureau in Chicago registered a fall of 18.5 inches, eclipsing a record set January 7, 1917, by 3.6 inches.

Indication of the extent of traffic paralysis came in telegraphic reports to the Chicago Motor club late today, showing roads generally impassable in the territory bounded by Milwaukee, Galesburg, Ill., St. Louis, Evansville, Ind., Cincinnati, Columbus, Toledo and Detroit.

The weather bureau predicted cessation of the snow after dark tonight.

The city's most serious problem was milk. Only half the usual supply was carried into the metropolitan center today and officials of the Pure Milk association said continuance of the storm would spell milk famine tomorrow.

Chicago schools were closed at noon when it became apparent no more than 16 per cent attendance could be maintained.

The day, in Chicago, at least, was free of known fatalities, but there were several minor traffic accidents and one woman was severely injured.

In Evanston, police were searching snow drifts for Sheldon Brumbaugh, 2½ year old art student, who started home alone after a slight heart attack in a tea room. It is feared he suffered another such attack with no aid available.

TO ATTEMPT TO FORM NEW POLISH CABINET

WARSAW, Poland, March 26.—(AP)—Jean Pilsudski, brother of Marshal Pilsudski and a member of the government bloc in the coalition, today was asked to form a cabinet. He accepted.

M. Pilsudski will try to organize a government to replace that of Casimir Bartel, who resigned March 14.

Professor Szymanski, president of the senate, failed to form a cabinet because the diet refused to accept conditions laid down by Marshal Pilsudski, whom he had asked to become minister of war.

Marshal Pilsudski, former dictator and "strong man" of Poland, had specified that the diet cease interfering with the selection of persons entering the cabinet or appointed to government posts; that it not interfere in execution of the budget after approval by that body; that it cancel the treasury law obliging the government to ask the diet's permission for expenditures over budget estimates, and that it adjourn for at least six months.

WOULD COMPROMISE TARIFF BILL FLEXIBLE PROVISION

WASHINGTON, March 26.—(AP)—A drive for solution of troubles over the flexible provision of the tariff bill was begun today with Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, an administration republican, proposing a compromise on this dispute between the senate and the house and the president.

This controversy is regarded at the capitol as the big problem in the way of an early agreement between the senate and house in the forthcoming conferences on the tariff. Senator Vandenberg's proposal was advanced in a letter to Chairman Smoot, of the senate conferees.

The Michigan senator advocated retention of the present law, as demanded by President Hoover, allowing the president power to modify tariff rates, but he would give over this power to congress, as provided in the senate bill, when congress is in session.

TWO CANDIDATES WOULD RUN ON WET PLATFORM

BOSTON, March 26—(AP)—Massachusetts tonight had two senatorial candidates seeking election on platforms calling for repeal of federal prohibition, one a democrat, State Representative Roland D. Sawyer, of Ware, a Congregationalist minister, and the other, Eben S. Draper, of Hopedale, a former state senator and a republican.

Draper, announced his candidacy some time ago, but until today, his stand on prohibition was undefined.

Last night, in announcing his candidacy, Rev. Sawyer placed himself on record unqualifiedly for repeal of prohibition and taxed Draper with being "evasive" on that issue.

RAIDERS GOT LIQUOR MEANT FOR SPEAKEASY

NEW ORLEANS, March 26—(AP)—John Elms, liquor delivery man, today drove up in front of a speakeasy in Fourth street while prohibition agents were padlocking the place.

"I've got a car of liquor to deliver here," said Elms.

"Well, we'll take it," said the agents. John went to jail.

New Presiding Bishop Of Episcopal Church

Rt. Rev. James De Wolf Per[illegible] D. D., of Rhode Is[illegible]l[illegible]cted By the House [illegible]hops.

[illegible]CAGO, March 26.—(AP)—The Rt. [illegible] James De Wolf Perry, D.D., of [illegible]de Island, was elected presiding [illegible]shop of the Episcopal church in America today by the House of Bishops.

Bishop Perry was chosen on the seventh ballot by the convention, which is meeting in St. James cathedral. He received 69 votes, one more than the majority of 68 needed. There are 134 bishops eligible to vote, but only 84 were present at the balloting, the storm having barred the others from attending.

The Episcopal prelates were called by their dean, Bishop William Leonard of Ohio, to choose a presiding bishop to succeed the Most Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson of Chicago, who died last month. Bishop Frederick Reese of Georgia sat as temporary chairman of the session. Balloting began at noon and the result was announced just after 5 p. m. The names of 17 candidates were proposed.

Bishop Perry's first charge was as assistant at Christ church, Springfield, Mass., where he served from 1895 until 1897. Following this he was successively rector of Christ church, Fitchburg, Mass., 1897 to 1904, and of St. Paul's church, New Haven, Conn., from 1904 until 1911. He was consecrated Bishop of Rhode Island on Jan. 6, 1911.

Bishop Perry is just now conspicuous as chairman of the committee which at a February meeting of the Episcopal church's national council presented a plan for reorganization of the council and its various departments. This plan was unanimously adopted. It provides in part for the relieving of the presiding bishop of some of the strain attached to that office.

Bishop Perry has on several occasions taken an earnest stand for the laboring man in strikes and other labor difficulties in the New England mills.

Bishop Perry is a Phi Kappa Sigma and a member of the Society of the Cincinnati. He was married on Jan. 2, 1908, to Miss Edith Dean Weir of New Haven.

Bishop Perry was born at Germantown, Pa., Oct. 3, 1871, where his father, the late Rev. James De Wolf Perry, was rector of Calvary Episcopal church. He is descended from an old New England family.

MISSOURI CONVICTS REBEL AGAINST "IRISH STEW"

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 26—(AP)—Rebelling against "Irish stew" and demanding "fried meat" for their lunch, approximately 750 of the 4,000 convicts in the Missouri penitentiary mutinied for two hours this afternoon in the prison dining hall. They finally were quieted without violence after Warden Leslie Rudolph promised to improve the menu if there was anything wrong.

Subsequent investigation by Warden Rudolph brought announcement that the meal "probably was not what it should have been,' and that the "potatoes in the stew were slightly raw."

Two hours later the same 750 prisoners returned in orderly manner to the dining room and without further objection quietly ate the scheduled evening meal of stewed prunes, bread, syrup and coffee.

The prison was quiet tonight with guards vigilant to meet any emergency although no further trouble was anticipated by prison officials.

The spontaneous outbreak, which began at the noon hour and continued until 2:30 p. m., was not an organized revolt, according to the warden, who said there apparently were no ring leaders.

PIPE LIGHTER PROVIDED FOR RAILWAY LABORERS

GLASGOW, Scotland, March 26.—(AP)—A professional pipe lighter has been employed here to keep street railway laborers from wasting their time.

This man is kept on the spot where the men are working and his sole duty is to refill and light the men's pipes as fast as they go out. His job was established by an efficiency expert who found the men wasted too much time in lighting their own pipes.

The only catch to it is that the men have to furnish their own tobacco and matches.

AGED SQUAW COMMITTED MURDER TO BREAK A SPELL

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 26.—(AP)—Nancy Bowen, aged Indian, told a white man's court today how she had killed Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, French artist's wife, to break a spell she thought the white woman had cast over Nancy's people.

Hours of questioning by defense and prosecution attorneys failed to swerve the aged woman from her assertion that she beat and chloroformed the wife of Henri Marchand after hearing from the woman's own lips that she was a witch.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF LIQUOR SALES A FAILURE

According to E. C. Drury, a Former Premier of Ontario Province—Predicted Before the House Judiciary Committee That Canada Eventually Would Return to Complete Prohibition—John J. Lentz, President of the American Insurance Union, Said Mortality Had Decreased Under Prohibition and That the Dry Laws Had Been Benificial to the American People.

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—Government control of liquor sales in Canada was described as an "absolute failure" by E. C. Drury, a former premier of Ontario province, who predicted at prohibition hearings before the house judiciary committee today that the dominion eventually would return to complete prohibition.

"Whatever the solution of the drink problem may be," the Canadian asserted, "it is not government control.'

Drury and John J. Lentz, of Columbus, president of the American Insurance Union and a former member of the house of representatives, were the only two witnesses who testified for the dry forces today.

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, was scheduled to climax the day with an attack on the proponents of the measure to repeal the 18th amendment. He had distributed copies of his remarks earlier in the day but when Mrs. Lenna Lowe Yost, general of the dry forces, presented him, Chairman Graham adjourned the committee meeting. He said the drys would be given next Wednesday in which to complete presentation of their witnesses.

Mr. Graham also made known that a recess of about two weeks might be taken before the wets are permitted to offer rebuttal testimony.

Drawing his conclusions from insurance statistics, Lentz said mortality had decreased under prohibition and that the dry laws had proved of widespread benefit to the American people. Insurance companies have found, he said, that total abstainers live an average of about four years longer than liquor drinkers.

Explaining that he had been requested by prohibitionists in the United States to give an account of the Canadian liquor situation, former Premier Drury related the various changes in liquor administration that occurred in his country.

He pointed out that at no time had there been complete prohibition in the Dominion. The manufacture of spirits was not prohibited at the time when the laws were most strict

"It was important to an understanding of the situation, he said, to realize that each province of Canada had different laws for the regulation of retail sale and that the Dominion government limited its legislation to control of manufacturing and inter-province and foreign shipment.

Drury said he did not think the liquor question would continue as at present, because of what he termed popular dissatisfaction and an increase of drinking in homes, hotel bedrooms and elsewhere and the enormous growth of the annual liquor bill which he said last year totalled $192,000,000.

Liquor drinking, he added, was no longer a man's vice but that women and children were exposed to it, due, he said, to the system of government control. The Canadian said that while government liquor store system was supposed to control liquor, most Canadian provinces had "not really even a pretense at government control."

"It is government sale pure and simple," he added.

Drury expressed the hope that the next time the Dominion government adopted prohibition it would abolish the manufacture of liquors as well as prohibiting transportation and retail sale.

Drury said the bill before the Canadian parliament to prevent the legal exportation of liquor to the United States would be enacted. He said the measure was not only a favor to a friendly nation to aid it in enforcing its own laws but it would rid the Canadian borders of an undesirable criminal element.

He was not certain that bootlegging would be abolished, but that its presence would be easier to observe and stamp out than now.

Under questioning Drury expressed an opinion that most of the liquor exported from Canada reached the United States.

Drury stressed the point that nonresident tourists consumed as much liquor in a few days as a native did in a year. He said that he had seen boats being loaded with liquor in the day time presumably to be smuggled into the United States. The drink bill of the Dominion, he estimated, was $192,000,000 a year of which more than $150,000,000 was expended by natives. Social drinking in the home, he said, was "vastly on the increase" throughout the Dominion.

Tomorrow the judiciary committee is to meet in executive session to give consideration to several of the bills recommended by the Wickersham commission for further strengthening of law enforcement.

While the session was in progress today, a measure by Chairman Graham was introduced to authorize the printing of 10,000 extra copies of the present hearings.

Drury placed himself on record as favoring a direct vote of the people on liquor policy, entirely separate from other political considerations. He said this had been the traditional method in Canada, largely because it was feared that if the issue were thrown in campaigns, the liquor interests would gain a dangerous foothold in the political machinery.

During cross examination, the Canadian was asked by Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, if government sale of liquor had not brought prosperity. The New York read statistics showing a steady gain in Canadian postal savings during the period of government control.

"It is also a fact that roosters crow just before sunrise, but that is not why the sun rises," Drury replied, and Laguardia told him the remark "fits well in this record."

FORMER BASEBALL PLAYER FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 26.—(AP)—For the second time within seven months, Samuel (Red) Crane, a former major league baseball player tonight heard a jury return a verdict of second degree murder against him. Crane was on trial for the killing of John D. Oren, a brick salesman.

Last September, a jury returned a similar verdict against Crane for the killing of Miss Della Lyter, state highway department employe. Oren and Miss Lyter, a former friend of Crane, were shot and fatally wounded last August 3 while seated in a hotel here.

The jury deliberated four hours. The verdict carries a penalty of 10 to 20 years.

Crane had played ball with the Philadelphia and Washington teams of the American league and with the Cincinnati and Brooklyn clubs of the National league. He also played in the American association, the International and the Pacific Coast leagues.

EXPLOSION OF GAS KILLED TWELVE MINERS

ARNETTSVILLE, W. Va., March 26.—(AP)—Twelve miners perished today in the dark recesses of the Yukon mine of the Crown Coal company here in an explosion of gas. Nineteen men were in the mine at the time and seven escaped unhurt.

The blast occurred about 4,000 feet from the slope entrance in what is known as Number 9 right heading, and the miners who met death were laboring in that portion of the workings. The ones who escaped were unaware of the explosion until they reached the outside.

The bodies all had been removed from the workings tonight. Some were badly scorched. Only a small section of the mine was damaged.

The dead included J. H. Livingston, night foreman. Among the other casualties were four Negroes. Only four of the men who were killed leave families, the rest having been unmarried. Sisco Franco, trackman, is survived by the largest family, his widow and four children.

REPORT 3,000 BOOTLEGGERS WORKED IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, March 26—(AP)—Charges of graft and crime in Washington once more attracted congressional attention today as Representative Gibson, republican, Vermont, reported to a house committee that a three-year investigation showed 3,000 bootleggers operated here.

Meanwhile, federal prohibition agents were investigating a claim that some eastern high school students were spending their lunch money in speakeasies. This allegation was made by a street car conductor, Henry W. Lynn, in a house hearing on a proposal to reduce trolley fares for children.

ENDEAVORED TO ROB A PENNILESS BANK

WEST ALEXANDRIA, Ohio, March 26.—(AP)—Two banking men sat in the First National bank here today chatting about money that used to be there. Two other men, with criminal intentions, walked in and roughly ordered "Hands up!"

The bankers, Charles Draper, receiver for the bank, and a neighbor bank's cashier, looked at each other and shook their heads.

"Can't you see you're being held up?" explained one of the robbers.

"That's too bad," said Draper. "This bank has been broke since a year ago. The cashier who was here then killed himself. There's not a penny in the vaults."

Just the same the robbers wanted to see for themselves. They searched—and found what the receiver had promised—precisely nothing but dust and a musty odor.

The robbers, still somewhat incredulous, backed out the door, put up their guns and rode away.

INJUNCTION SOUGHT BY WOODMEN OF AMERICA

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 26.—(AP)—A bill for injunction to restrain opponents of the proposed higher insurance rates announced by the Modern Woodmen of America from attempting to stop the enforcement of the new schedule, was filed in federal court today by Glenn Kenderdine, a member of the society.

The supreme court of Illinois at the last session held that the higher rates of the society were legal and were necessary to keep the fraternal insurance group in a solvent condition. Several groups of the membership, however, have asked for a rehearing of the case by the supreme court charging collusion, fraud, and violation of the federal constitution in the rate change.

WOMAN FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH IN SNOWDRIFT

MATTOON, Ill., March 26—(AP)—A mother set out yesterday in a blinding snow storm to get to a school to bring her children safely home.

Today the body of Mrs. Oscar Folts was found frozen in a snow drift—not far from the school.

Her children were found safe in the school. They had remained there overnight.

SHERIFF HAD TO BORROW MONEY FROM PRISONER

PEORIA, Ill., March 26.—(AP)—Forced by the snow storm to abandon their automobile while taking five prisoners to the state farm at Vandalia, two deputy sheriffs had to borrow money from one of the prisoners to reach their destination by train. The prisoner was sentenced on a bad check charge.

DRIVE ON IN HARTFORD FOR REPEAL OF CONNECTICUT DRY ENFORCEMENT LAWS

HARTFORD, March 26—(AP)—A determined drive for the repeal of the Connecticut prohibition enforcement laws got under way here today, with statements by Mayor Walter E. Batterson that he favored the movement and by Aldermen Robert Claffey and Rocco D. Pallotti that they would introduce a joint resolution at the next meeting of the board of aldermen which would place the body on record as favoring the repeal. In addition to these official developments, many prominent Hartford citizens, members of both political parties, stated that the time had come for Connecticut to strike at the prohibition law and that the most effective blow at first would be the repeal of the state enabling acts.

Such a move, if successful, would repeal statutes passed by the general assembly in 1921, and would take the enforcement of the prohibition law out of the hands of the local police, unless they cared to co-operate with the federal agents, and out of the state courts. With this act repealed, it is held, such proceedings as now are under way in Hartford county in the form of a grand jury probe directed by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, would be impossible.

The move here today is believed to have grown from the general indignation experienced here at the grand jury action in trying to force Mayor Batterson to tell where he bought his liquor.

That the issue is destined to be an important one in the fall campaign was indicated by a statement issued by Mayor Batterson this morning, in which he said, "prohibition can't be kept in the background as a political issue in Connecticut or in Hartford much longer. I think that when people next go to the polls they are going to register how they feel about it."

LOCAL MERCHANTS HOLD SPRING OPENING TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 26.—Throngs are expected on Willimantic's business streets Thursday evening, the opening night of the annual spring opening of the Willimantic stores.

The progressive stores, gaily bedecked in new merchandise colorfully displayed in a flood of lights, will hold open door to the public from 7 to 9 o'clock. There will be concert music furnished by Wheeler's band and a general spirit of good will, bordering on one of gaiety, will pervade the window-shopping tour of the crowd.

While the effort and expense involved in special window trims is fully expected to bring results along that line that will supercede anything of the kind ever attempted here, the merchants also call attention to the interiors of the stores. Inside of the stores costly new stocks of the 1930 spring merchandise in all lines of business will be found attractively shown. The merchants, acting through the Retail Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce, give assurance that no undue sales pressure will be brought to bear on the visitors of tonight's opening show.

The merchants of Willimantic have long held a wide reputation for progressiveness and friendliness and it is the friendly rather than the grasping hand that will greet visitors to their stores.

As a special feature, a gift-giving offer is being made by 52 of the leading merchants, the offer lasting throughout the spring opening. Any person calling at one of these stores Thursday evening, Friday or Saturday and Saturday evening, will share in this opportunity to receive a gift—one given without obligation.

Each store is giving one of these gifts and it will be displayed in a show window of the store during the three days of the opening. The gifts will be given away Saturday evening.

PUTNAM

STOLEN CAR BROUGHT HERE FROM HARTFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 26.—Sergt. A. J. Sponcey of the police department and Frederick M. Bruce, proprietor of the Putnam Buick Sales company, returned to the city from Hartford at noon today with the LaSalle sedan which was stolen from the Buick service station Sunday evening. The car was recovered by the Hartford police, who said they found it abandoned on a public parking grounds.

Mr. Bruce said that the thieves were very considerate of the car. The car was in perfect condition and from all appearances the only mileage it has covered was the distance between Putnam and Hartford—60 miles. All the valuable accessories, which could have easily been stripped and sold, were untouched.

Sergeant Sponcey said today that Hartford police had received no clues that would lead to the identity of those who stole the vehicle. They were particularly careful in seeing that no finger prints were left about the car and not one article that would aid in the undoing of the thieves was found in the car.

ROTARIANS HEAR OF NEEDS AT HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 26.—Rotarians listened to an interesting talk this noon given by Miss Nellie T. Bloxham, superintendent of the Day Kimball hospital, at the weekly meeting and luncheon of the club at the Putnam Inn. Miss Bloxham told of the establishment of the Day Kimball in 1896 and related other interesting historical facts concerning eastern Windham county's medical institution which has facilities, under normal circumstances, to care for 50 patients. In the time of emergency and distress, by improvising the corridors for wards, beds have been given to 65 patients. Miss Bloxham has always been a strong advocate of a nurses' home for the hospital. She pointed out that in the event of a home for the nurses being erected, the bed capacity of the institution would be increased by 35 and the total patient accommodations would be raised to 85.

Since the institution of the Day Kimball hospital in 1896, more than 17,000 patients have received treatment there, Miss Bloxham said. Of this number nearly 27 per cent of all cases attended were done on a charity basis and another large percentage of the total number of cases have been paid for only in part. An interesting part of Miss Bloxham's address was her description of a normal day's work at the hospital, in which she told of tonsil clinics, accidents, operations and the regular routine. At the close of her talk, Miss Bloxham was accorded a rising vote of thanks by the members of the club. At the close of Miss Bloxham's talk Alexander Gilman, vice-president of the Rotary club and a member of the board of trustees of the Day Kimball hospital, spoke briefly on the existing plans being made for a nurses' home for the hospital. Mr. Gilman said that a fund has already been started for this purpose, but is not sufficiently large to complete the proposed building. He intimated that the board of trustees have plans for a drive now under consideration, and asked the cooperation of the members of the Rotary club in furthering the financial campaign, should it be necessary to resort to this method of raising the additional money. Every member appeared enthusiastically inclined and assured Mr. Gilman that the club would support the project 100 per cent.

Visitors at today's meeting were Frank Thatcher of Hyannis, Mass., Oscar Hillman of North Attleboro, Mass., and Henry P. Dubuc of Danielson.

Despite the inclement weather of Tuesday evening, there was a large attendance at the presentation, "Grandma Pulls the Strings," at the high school auditorium, which was given under the auspices of the Putnam Parent-Teacher association. The play, which was followed by dancing in the gymnasium, netted a profitable return.

Interior construction now in progress on the new banking home of the Cargill Trust company on Main street will not be completed until about June 1, it was said today by an official of the bank. The fact that there is no time limit clause in the contract accounts for the late date of completion. Quality workmanship and not speed in completing the building, is the essence of the contract. The exterior work on the modernistic bank block is complete, adding a touch of beauty to that section of Main street.

The heavy showers Tuesday evening were accompanied by sharp, vivid flashes of lightning and heavy claps of thunder which sent theatre-goers scurrying to cover at about 9:30 o'clock. Rules for membership in the proposed league are few. Boys playing on league teams must be enrolled in grammar schools or must be of grammar school age. March 22, at 10 o'clock, two cars collided near Mr. Waldo's. A Dodge truck which carries milk from Ashford to Hartford, driven by John Tremko, was on the left-hand side of the road when a Buick driven by Alphonse Cardo of Hartford approached. Mr. Cardo swung over to the left side. At the same time Mr. Tremko righted his truck and the result was nearly a head-on collision. Mr. Cardo's car was considerably damaged. The case was taken to court Tuesday morning and Justice of the Peace Byron Houston fined Mr. Tremko for failure to grant the right of way, costs and fine totaling $26.90, and Mr. Cardo for failure to grant right of way. The fine was nolled and the costs were $11.70. Both paid.

He was the youngest son of Benjamin and Nancy Chamberlain Potter and was born Dec. 1, 1852, at the Potter home in English Neighborhood. For many years he taught school and for a time was connected with the Reform school at Randalls Island, N. Y. While there he met Miss Alice L. NEW LAB TO RECORD ELECTRICITY IN AIR

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The first complete laboratory in the United States for recording atmospheric electricity has been completed here.

It is a specially designed structure to protect instruments used to measure electrical conductivity of the air. The outside resembles a shed built to admit wind from every direction.

Inside is a box-shaped building of masonry, with walls two feet thick. Within this box is another, made of solid concrete, and separated from the outer box by an air corridor two feet thick.

Entrance is through a short hall with outer and inner doors. The outer door is closed before the inner one is opened. This last door opens into the room where instruments are housed in total darkness.

Space also has been provided for measuring electrical currents within the earth. The observatory cost $8,000 and was erected co-operatively by the federal division of terrestrial magnetism and seismology and the Carnegie institution.

A. K. Ludy of the federal magnetic observatory will make the observations.

Negative Root Tip

Austin, Tex. (AP)—The tips of an onion's roots, says Gordon Marsh of the University of Texas, usually show a slight negative charge of electricity. Higher up the root is positive.

W. L. HARRINGTON'S WORK IS SUBJECT OF A WRITE-UP

Wheaton L. Harrington of Greene, R. I., a clerk in charge of the mail cars on the Federal express, was in town recently to make a friendly call on E. H. Hiscox, who was in charge of the letter pouch table in his crew for 20 years on Train 32. A story written for a Boston paper last week, which Mr. Harrington gave to his friend read:

The heaviest mail of the month was going out tonight; it was coming into two sixty-foot cars and a thirty-foot car—two cars and a half, they call it in the Railway Mail Service—and the clerk in charge, Wheaton Harrington, was checking the pouches as they arrived against a long list of the names of places from which pouches were due. A dozen men stood in this car, eight more in the next, another in the half-car which was for newspapers. These men wore old clothes; some had old hats or caps on; each a long brass chain from his belt and on the end of the chain a key to unlock the pouches. They moved in an aisle between pouches that hung, wide open, on iron piping, or they stood in front of tables on which mail was piled, or they flitted letters into boxes before them. They had been here since five o'clock sorting the mail.

All they had to do was distribute this mail that poured into their cars in a growing flood.

This train to which their cars would be attached (an engine was now picking them up) was not the Federal to them; it was 173. It was about to carry mail that would be distributed on the first delivery to outlying routes in New York city in the morning. It had mail for New York state, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia and the stations through New England on its way. At 11:30 Number 31 would follow it. At 11:30 from New York Number 32, the heaviest mail train in the world, would leave for Boston.

The pouches kept coming in. In one car eight men were sorting nothing but mail for New York city. They had to know every postal station in New York and the streets that each one feeds. The New York city mail comes in raw and must be sorted for these postal stations from which it goes home.

The New York city clerks must know the hundreds of thousands of addresses to which mail in Greater Manhattan is sent every night, and that knowledge must be instantly available.

On the Move

They are fighting every minute against time. At 7:59.45 the clerk at the door called "O. K." The mail was all aboard. The Federal, 173, straightened against its couplings. It began to move.

Maps, schedules and schemes these men have to know. They work a week on the trains and lay off a week to study. Between eighteen and thirty-five they are eligible to take the civil service examination for the railway mail service. They are examined first on geography, reading of addresses, plain composition, and there is a five per cent preference for war veterans. If a man passes, his name goes on the eligible list, from which he is certified for appointment. Then there is a form to fill out and a second physical examination, for physically a man must be pretty nearly right to stand the pace of the work. If he passes all these tests he is told how hard a proposition he is up against. If he still wants the job he is taken. Three to four years is the average time to remain a substitute and men usually stick after they have got through the first six months. The retirement age is sixty-two with 30 years service. Three and one-half per cent is deducted annually from the postal clerk's salary to provide for his retirement. The salary of a regular, grade 5 mail clerk is $2,450 a year.

A CALIFORNIA RAINBOW EXCITES ADMIRATION

From Forest Hill hotel, Pacific Grove, Cal., March 7, the Ross tourists write:

The day before yesterday we left Santa Barbara via El Camino road (the King's highway). The road soon led us along the ocean front, sometimes very near the surf. This was a rolling country, with mountains on the east and the ocean on west. Just after leaving Goleta we came to oil wells, the Barnsdall and the Rio Grand oil companies.

The soil in this neighborhood is very black. Some of these wells were on high hills and others were 50 rods or more into the ocean. North of Gariota we ran into a rain storm, and the pass of the same name. This pass was very easy for no grade was more than the grade at Dearnley's store.

The mountain pass north of Santa Margarita was of a different order; here we began to go up and up, with hairpin turns. At times just as we would get to a sharp turn we could see nothing but the sky ahead of us. The grade over this pass, we were told, averaged 10 degrees. Across the deep canyons we could see a train of about 10 freight cars going north; at times this train would disappear in a tunnel, at other times we could see both engines, one in front and the other pushing, the middle of the train being in a short tunnel. We gained on the train and had to go much higher, for when we reached the summit, we could look down a thousand or more feet and see the mouth of the last tunnel.

We were glad to get over this pass at the time, for as we reached the front of the grade it began to rain, a sort of cloud burst (no thunder or lightning) just rain. We could not see ahead, and dared not stop for fear someone would crash into us from the rear. In about ten minutes the sun was shining. Then we saw the finest rainbow I ever saw, a complete bow and what we do not often see, the lavender on the lower part of this great arch. The north end of the rainbow was in some live oak trees and moss hanging from the limbs was all the colors of the rainbow.

I suppose a Californian would have told us that they had the finest rainbows in the world in California.

In the mountains or foothills the people seemed to be in the chicken business. On reaching level ground we came to hog raising farms. Hundreds of pigs of all sizes and ages in the fields. They seemed to be grazing on the alfalfa and other vegetation.

We found Paso Robels like a great many towns in California, rather new or raw—very ambitious of course. For instance, a garage that would hold several hundred automobiles—I think there may have been twenty-five cars in all when I drove in.

Yesterday we came up the Salinas valley. This valley is very wide in places, mountainous on both sides of the valley. The tops of the mountains were in the clouds all the morning, in the afternoon we could see the peaks, except where the mountain was very high.

This is a very rich valley in fruit, (no oranges, too far north, I think) vegetables and dairy farming.

A man told me that he raised three crops of lettuce a year and had about a hundred acres in that crop.

Peach trees were in full bloom and the hillsides where these orchards were the most numerous were brilliant indeed. There were oil (crude oil) burners in the orchards, for I thing they fear frosts at times.

Nearly all of the houses had planted on the north and west sides evergreen trees and high hedges as windbreaks. The cold wind from the ocean is at times very disagreeable on account of the dampness.

The houses are rather small, with large barns. For a hundred miles south of the city of Salinas we passed through a dairy section.

Every few miles were factories for using the milk. Condensed, evaporated and powdered milk were prepared here.

The cows were all Holsteins (black and white). I saw only one Ayrshire in the thousands of cows grazing in alfalfa or being fed in "tie-ups" out of doors.

We saw men mowing alfalfa and others raking and carting it, and feeding the cows at the tie-ups.

I asked a farmer how many times he cut alfalfa. He said he did not know; whenever he wanted feed for his cows, he took what was the most suitable at the time. The season made a little difference, yet as all the land was irrigated, it did not vary much from year to year.

H told me that the cows were seldom in the barn except in wet weather. "In fact," he said, "I could not get all my cows in the barns at one time."

These cows all looked well and were very clean, and the contrast between the black and the white was quite striking.

The cultivated fields were of great acreage and a team working half across, it was impossible to tell if they were mules or horses.

Occasionally there were orchards of cherry trees in bloom; the pear trees were not in bloom.

I think I have given you an agricultural letter.

Tomorrow we expect to be in San Francisco, where I hope we will hear from home as we have not heard for sometime.

ROSS

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut,

S. Curtis & Son, Inc., Sandy Hook

In the quiet of the deep woods in Sandy Hook, Conn., 84 years ago, a little brook turned a small wooden paddle to furnish motive power for the machines of the original Curtis factory. Today is exactly the same spot, the modern, busy box manufacturing plant of S. Curtis & Son, Inc. turns out thousands of folding paper boxes. Motive power comes from electricity furnished by a paddle wheel turned by that same stream; not a crude wooden paddle as in earlier days, but a scientifically constructed steel wheel, generates the most of the power used. In times of capacity production, the increased power necessary comes from an auxiliary steam engine.

That's representative of the unique operation of the S. Curtis & Son plant—thoroughly modern and up-to-the-minute—and yet influenced by the old fashioned pride of quality that has grown from its many years of history.

When Samuel, John and Julius Curtis opened the original factory in 1845, James K. Polk had just become president of the United States with the catchphrase "The re-annexation of Texas and the re-occupation of Oregon." Combs and buttons made from pressed horns and hoofs were the first products. Through the years the business remained stable and solid, always with the Curtis family at the helm. In 1880, Samuel Curtis and his son, Henry G. Curtis, adopted the firm name of S. Curtis & Son, which name remains unchanged today. Since 1902 the factory has been devoted to the production of folding paper boxes, a large market for these being found in the numerous manufactures of the New England states. William R. Curtis, now the president of the company, took over the business in 1913. Since then it has grown rapidly. It was incorporated in 1924 and today is producing in carload lots, folding paper boxes for many of our largest and most representative concerns.

The old factory was struck by lightning and burned down July 20, 1920. On the same site a thoroughly modern fire-proof building was built and equipped with the most modern machinery.

A visitor to the trim little plant nestled among the Connecticut hills is impressed with the modern equipment which is so important a factor in turning out high quality goods at attractive prices. Here machinery of the latest type and huge capacity, from the big power presses which cut, crease and print the boxes, to the automatic gluer with its uncanny human ability to fold and glue up hundreds of blanks per minute eliminates costly human labor and makes possible the production of various sizes and shapes of boxes with minute accuracy and at low cost.

Prompt delivery is another feature in the carefully considered plan of service and speedy, powerful motor trucks convey the Curtis product to customers' receiving platforms within a constantly increasing radius.

The present officers are: William R. Curtis, president and treasurer; Herbert H. Cutler, secretary.

AIR TRAVEL POPULARITY GROWING ON WEST COAST

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Increasing popularity of air travel with Americans is shown by rapidly growing figures for airplane passengers in California.

The new San Francisco bay air ferry carried in the first 30 days of operation, 11,378 passengers, which is practically equal to the total passenger traffic on planes in the whole United States during the 30 days a year ago.

The department of commerce estimate for 1929 set the monthly passenger total for stunts, sightseeing and other commercial purposes at 12,500.

Air Fund Enriches Schools

NEW YORK—(AP)—The award of $300,000 to the Georgia School of Technology for an aeronautical engineering center in the south as the final act of the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, raised its grants to educational institutions to a total of $1,492,000.

SKULL OF 'PEKING' WOMAN SPURS NEW HUNT FOR EDEN

PEIPING (AP)—The skull of the "Peking woman" bears out the theory that man's birthplace lies buried in Asia, says Dr. A. W. Grabau, chief paleontologist of the Chinese geological survey.

An expedition to search for this lost garden is expected to start from here next summer. Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews of the American museum of natural history hopes to lead such a search.

After years of exploring in Mongolia he found the site where he thinks it possible that man's remains could have been preserved for more than a million years.

Dr. Grabau's belief that Asia was the original Eden is based on suppositions that 20 million years ago there occured "one of the most stupendous physical events in history" the upheaval that created the Himalaya mountains.

South of the mountains the climate remained warm, man indolent and unprogressive, Dr. Grabau contends. That site, with whatever story it contains, now lies buried three miles deep under sands that for millions of years have blown over it.

North of the Himalayas the climate turned cold, man had to learn work, find fire, live in the open. From there he migrated all over the world.

One branch went to England and is represented by the Piltdown skull. Another, it is believed, came eastward and to one of its women belongs the newly found Peking skull, which seems to be contemporaneous with and somewhat like the Piltdown fossil.

While living in this Mongolian home, Dr. Grabau believes, man learned to quarrel and to protect himelf by forming the clan system.

PICTURE OF A PEAK GOAL OF PHOTOGRAPHER

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton, O. (AP)—Taking a picture of a mountain 250 miles distant is the next goal of Capt. A. W. Stevens of the army air corps, holder of the record distance shot of 227 miles.

Captain Stevens says the attempt probably will be made in June with some towering peak of the Rockies as the camera's bjective, and a seat in an airplane two or three miles aloft carrying the camera.

The peak at which he "shoots" probably will be invisible to the eye, the big camera being pointed by calculation much as a big gun is handled.

The 227-mile record was made last fall. Infra red rays, half heat and half light, penetrated to the camera's lens and outlined clearly the distant objecive, which ws Mt. Ranier, Wash.

The picture was taken while Captain Stevens was 17,000 feet above a point near the middle of the state of Oregon.

June and December are the best months for such pictures, says Capt. Stevens. He doubts that pictures can be taken from a distance beyond 250 miles because of the earth's curvature.

The army cameraman suspects, however, that there nay be sufficient curvature of light rays through the bending powers of the atmosphere to give perhaps an "inkling" of objects a short distance beyond and below the horizon.

Special plates to be used on Steven's next attempt are being prepared. Lt. John Corkille, who has been pilot on previous distance-shooting expeditions may be assigned for the flights.

SAND ISN'T JUST SAND; IT HAS FAMILY TRAITS

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—Sand is divided into families, which are not at ali alike, and its family characteristics become important in steel molding.

Water laid sands are somewhat sharp and angular in shape. Wind blown sands are smooth and rounded.

Various characteristics are described in a report to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers by A. H. Dierker, research engineer of Ohio State univerity.

"Sinter" Means Roast

IRONTON, Minn. (AP)—"Sintering", in iron-ore practice, means mixing fine ores with fuel and burning under induced draft. In copper and lead metallurgy it is calied roasting.

French Talkies Win Turks

ISTANBUL— (AP) —A controversy over the relative merits of American and French talkies is being waged in Turkey, with the odds very much against the former. The first French talkie is running here with such overwhelming success that the local papers are unanimous in asking for more French and fewer American films.

ARMENIANS QUIT DROUGHT RIDDEN TURKISH FARMS

ISTANBUL,—(AP)—What appears to be a general exodus of Armenians from the Turkish interior, is underway, though they remain 60,000 strong in this metropolis.

The rumor circulating here that the Turkish government had issued a general order for the 10,000 or more Armenians still in Anatolia to leave the country districts before spring of this year and migrate to the larger Turkish cities, has been denied by competent Turkish authorities and by leaders of the Armenian community here.

An apparent cause of the migration is the improverished condition of Anatolia where three successive summers of drought ruined the crops of Turks and Armenians alike.

Moslem Turkish refugees from Thrace and the Balkans, to whom the Turkish government alloted lands in Anatolia, bear witness to the present hard times in the Turkish interior for many of them have returned to refugee camps in mosque court-yards of Istanbul and others have gone back to their old homes.

This winter 570 Armenians from the Cesarea and Tokak regions and from villages in the province of Sivas such as Zara, Kotchissar, Divrik, Kangal and Manjinik, have arrived, group by small group, in this city. The majority are obviously poverty-stricken but show no evidence of ill-treatment during their exodus from Anatolia.

Shelter and where possible employment, are being procured for them by the local Armenian community of about 60,000 persons, many of whom are well-to-do merchants.

The greater stream of Armenian migration is flowing towards Syria. During the past year approximately 5,000 Armenians left the Turkish interior, especially Malatia, Diarbekir and other eastern regions, for Syria, and it is believed that several thousand more will follow in 1930.

LABOR PREMIER MOVES FROM ORNATE MANSION

CANBERRA— (AP) —James Henry Scullin, labor party premier, has ordered the ornate "white House" of Australia turned over to the department of the auditor general while he himself resides at an hotel.

Although Ramsay MacDonald did not hesitate to move into historic 10 Downing Street when he became prime minister of Great Britain, his local counterpart could not see the richly furnished national mansion as a proper residence for the head of an administration which came into power on the votes of the lowly.

So all the rich furnishings are going into storage and the lofty rooms are being filled with desks, swivel chairs, filing cabinets and other paraphernalia of the commonwealth's bookkeepers.

A canopy of smoke is said to increase New York's temperature several degrees.

DANIELSON

COUNTY Y. M. C. A. TO SPONSOR SEVERAL BASEBALL LEAGUES

(Special to The Bulletin).

DANIELSON, March 26—There's $80,000 a year in it if you make good, and try and do it! The foregoing line is not intended to be discouraging, but more in the way of pointing out the possibilities of baseball as a career. It is also by way of announcing that L. Edwin Hill, Windham County Y. M. C. A. secretary, with headquarters here, has an idea in his mind. It is spring. There are going to be several baseball leagues around here if Secretary Hill's plans work out right. The boys who play in these leagues are to be of grammar school age. At least four teams are needed to make up each league group. There should be at least one or two in Danielson, Brooklyn and vicinity. There will be another set of teams in the Putnam territory, possibly others in other parts of the county.

Here is a big chance for the youngsters who like baseball and want to play it. There is an opportunity here for the development of another Babe Ruth, King of Swat, and in line to draw down $80,000, for hitting out home runs and running around the bases for a few months. Maybe there is an embryo Babe Ruth or two in hiding around here. If this is true, the ambitious boy or boys should step out front and sign up for the season. Secretary Hill will be pleased to receive applications from those who would be in the teams of the league ... to form, and who would bat their way to fame and fortune. It seems, the baseball fans here say, well worth trying.

Sarah Dumini

Sarah Dumini, 66, died last night at the home on Dyer street, after having been ill with a heart affliction for a long time. She was born in Farnham, P. Q., but had lived in this country for years. She leaves a brother, Joseph, and two sisters, Mrs. Philias Chaput and Mrs. Cora Gazette, all of Natick, R. I.

Students of Killingly high school have in course preparation for presentation on an April date an operetta entitled The Quest of The Gypsy. Miss M. Louise Perkins of the high school faculty is directing the rehearsals. The event is arranged in the interest of the high school orchestra and the athletic association of the school.

County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield announces the release of an additional 70 imported English pheasants in Windham county, making a total of 216 of cock pheasants turned loose in the territory mentioned within a comparatively short period. Releases have been made in territory under observation during the winter season by game officials seeking to locate the habitat of hen pheasants, and with consideration for proper cover, this in reference to the kind of territory pheasants need to fare well when at large. The cock pheasants are released primarily for breeding purposes. This work is being done at the instance of the state fish and game commission, subjected to more or less unreasonable criticism recently in eastern Connecticut.

In the old days even the critics didn't have the ghost of a chance of going afield in the fall season, as they will go next fall, to shoot an imported cock pheasant. They never saw a pheasant in this territory a generation back, or less. But they do like to shoot them, and will, without ever thinking they ever would have the chance of doing so if the fish and game commission were not on the job, in season and out, using the license fees that have been declared high by some, to give sportsmen something to shoot at instead of just walking around through the woods.

The old adage was something along the line of "tell it to Sweeney." This morning before Judge W. Fenner Woodward there was something approximately a reversal of that old saw. It may have been "Sweeney told."

In any event, James E. Sweeney of Webster, arrested in this town at the week end, a time ago, for operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated came to court this morning, pleaded guilty to the charge against him and was fined $100 and costs, $50 of the fine being remitted. William Syrzeliwicz, Dudley, Mass., just at Webster's back door, and a companion of Sweeney at the time of the latter's arrest, was also in court, was fined $1 and costs, a total of $11.50.

As the result of the jam on which the Webster and Dudley men found themselves in court, Joseph Mazur, who lives on the Maple street route into Dayville, and close to that village, also came to court this morning. It appears that Sweeney told the state officer who arrested him where he had been and what he had been doing. Mazur's arrest, after a raid by state officers, resulted.

This morning in court Mazur was charged with sales of intoxicating liquor to Sweeney and Syrzeliwicz, and was fined $50 on each count. He also was charged with keeping with intent to sell, and on this count Judge Woodward sentenced him to serve 30 days in jail, the execution of the sentence being suspended. Mazur paid the court $116.25 and costs.

Like it or not, the seasonal electrical storm period is underway. There broke over this territory last night a severe disturbance, accompanied by heavy rain, that had many a person ducking and bowing as vivid flashes of lightning, followed by reverberating thunder, apparently officially announced that spring is here, and how! Mild weather followed the storm today. It is held by many that spring never really gets underway until after a rattling old thunderstorm. If that be true, supporters of this idea may start planting their gardens. It was rough, weatherwise, hereabouts, last night. Too rough for the peace of mind of many people.

Last evening, at the Congregational church parish house, there were meetings of the Tri-Y girls and Hi-Y boys. Following the meeting of each group there was a joint gathering during which a social period afforded much of interest to all concerned. L. Edwin Hill, county Y. M. C. A. secretary, with headquarters here, was in attendance. Misses Mildred Tillinghast, Marion Pellett and Cora Browne, of the Hi-Y girls, had much to do with the success of the meeting.

The proposal that the borough lines be extended to embrace much property built up within the past decade, or more, outside the present lines of the borough, makes no great hit with those who would be brought within the fold. On the other hand, it is none too popular with numbers of property owners within the present borough limits. And that being as it is, one may rest reasonably assured that something that hardly anyone wants, of a public nature, is not likely to become a reality in 1930, at least.

It appears that extension of the borough area is a dead issue for the time being. Public opinion and general business conditions are both factors in killing off the project for the present.

It has been lucidly pointed out that there are good arguments for and against extension of the borough lines. It is possible that the compensation in the way of tax revenue might be offset by expense accounts created in giving property owners that might be brought within the borough limits borough privileges, in the way of cost of sewer extensions, fire-plugs and what not. The whole proposition appears to be over the dam for the present.

Rev. Edward Shelley, M. S., a former curate of St. James' parish and member of the mission band of the Missionary Order of LaSalette, is staying at the parish rectory here for a few days.

Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church will preach Thursday evening at the union Lenten service under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches at the Methodist Episcopal church.

FORTUNE GROWS IN IDLENESS AS HEIRS CLAIM IT

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— A million dollars without an owner is the subject of a court suit in St. Louis.

Lost to use, the money is idle. It can't even be given away or otherwise disposed of in its present status.

All this happened because the west grew up.

The money was left by Bryan Mullanphy, a rich, eccentric bachelor who was mayor of St. Louis during the floodtide of the westward-ho movement.

Himself the son of a pioneer, Mullanphy watched travelers trek westward through St. Louis. Noting suffering and privation in their ranks, he bought supplies for them and repaired their schooners.

One-third of his fortune, according to the will he left at his death in 1851, was left to the city of St. Louis "to constitute a fund to furnish relief to poor immigrants and travelers coming to St. Louis on their way, bona fide, to settle in the west."

The bequest then consisted of real estate valued then at $500,000. It has been tangled in litigation for 80 years since then. The fund fell into disuse when immigration laws stemmed the flow of penniless settlers.

With the idle fund now totaling more than $1,000,000, a group of Mullanphy heirs, representing descendants from his five sisters, seek to dissolve the charity trust.

Opposing their request, the city contends the will made no provision for revision to heirs, and asks that the fund be given to charities consistent with Mullanphy's origonal wishes.

SEARCH FOR EIELSON WINS WINGS FOR NOVICE PILOT

FAIRBANKS, Alaska—(AP)—Harold Gillam is called a "natural born flier" now.

When Carl Ben Eielson disappeared in Siberia, Gillam, a Fairbanks youth, was only a novice pilot.

Eielson had taught him what he knew about flying but there were only 200 hours of solo work to his credit in a small plane of his own, when pilots concentrated to search for the lost aeronaut.

"Give me a plane and let me go," Gillam pleaded. Pilots were few and an open cockpit biplane was turned over to the comparatively inexperienced youth.

When bad weather lifted, the veteran Joe Crossman and the youngster Gillam pointed to the region where Eielson had last been reported. On their eighth flight the wreck of the lost plane was found.

Today Gillam ranks as a regular member of the little group of Alaskan airways pilots.

BRITISH AVIATORS HOPE TO TOPPLE AIR SPEED MARK

FELIXSTOWE, England —(AP)— Great Britian soon will seek to establish a new airplane speed record. Either Flight-Lieutenant Stainforth, or Squadron Leader Orlebar who were members of the high speed flight detailed for the Schneider trophy contest last summer, will be selected to pilot the machine.

The airplane is a Gloster-Napier machine built for the last Schneider cup race but not used because of a defect in the gasoline feeding system. That difficulty has now been overcome and the makers of the airplane are confident it will do 270 miles per hour.

The existing record of 357.7 miles per hour was established by Squadron Leader Orlebar at Calshot last September.

MAN-EATING BEAR FAMILY TO BE SOUGHT IN ALASKA

KODIAK, Alaska—(AP)—A whole family of Kodiak bears, father, mother, Teddy and Sadie, are wanted by the state museum at Springfield, Ill., so that residents of the plains can come and gaze on the largest man-eating animals in the world.

To that end, C. H. Barr, of Springfield museum, will be here in May with Mrs. Barr. The two will penetrate the wilds of Kodiak island under the leadership of Charles Madsen of the Kodiak Guides' association in search of the brown animals which sometimes grow to weigh a ton.

GIRLS LEAD BOY PUPILS IN UNDERSTANDING BIBLE

ST. CHARLES, Mo. (AP)—Parents now may determine how quickly a child is likely to grasp the meaning of a Biblical quotation.

For eight-year-olds the chances of understanding are found to average 42 in 100 and for 16-year-old intelligence 83, with a regular increase in ages between.

This finding is reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Ralph T. Case of Lindenwood college. The analysis is a guide in selecting passages for children in selecting passages for children which shall be readily understandable.

Tests were tried upon 3,200 school children in four representative Iowa school systems. Dr. Case found "there proved to be a slightly superior comprehension on the part of girls at every mental age."

FROG FARM "RACKET" HEREBY IS EXPOSED

WASHINGTON (AP)—This is an official frog story.

"Each year we receive a large volume of requests for information on frog farming," says Lewis Radcliffe, deputy commissioner of fisheries, in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

"In general it appears that the principal source of revenue of allegedly successful frog farmers is derived from furnishing for a monetary consideration alleged secrets of how to grow frogs successfully.

"I do not contend frog farming is impossible, for one may develop means of supplementing natural conditions so as to increase productivity."

AMERICANS DISCOVER NEW SWISS CHEESE FLAVORER

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Enter a newly found flavor-maker for Swiss cheese.

The name is Streptococcus Thermophilus Orla-Jensen, a family of bacteria, and for short scientists have named the three flavor-making members of the family C-1, C-2 and H.

How these bacteria are used as starters for making better Swiss cheese, and making it in America, too, is told by four members of the U. S. Bureau of Dairy Industry in a report to the Society of American Bacteriologists. These experimenters are W. C. Frazier, L. A. Burkey, K. J. Matheson and P. D. Watson.

C-2 they say, "has been beneficial to cheese by improving texture, flavor and consequently score, grade and selling price. It has also been possible to prevent defects."

STUDENTS CAN DISMANTLE NEW TYPE OF X-RAY TUBE

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. —(AP)— A new type of x-ray tube which students can dismantle and put together again in 15 minutes has been developed by W. M. Roberds, physics instructor at the University of Arkansas.

It was designed primarily for demonstration purposes in his classes. Roberds says it can be converted into any one of three types of tubes —an ionized gas x-ray tube, a Coolidge type tube, or an ordinary electron type tube.

Its cost is considerably less than the ordinary tube.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS 'SEEN' BY PUPILS IN BLIND SCHOOL

MUSKOGEE, Okla.—(AP)—Through sensitive fingers children in the Oklahoma School for Blind are learning to "see" birds and animals.

In a museum of natural history, recently established at the institution, the children are being taught the comparative sizes and apparent characteristics of animals and birds common to the "seeing" world.

Taxidermists and the state game commission are assisting in supplying specimens. Clay models of birds and smaller animals, which the blind pupils are required to make, are a part of the instruction.

The annual ladies' night was observed Wednesday by Narragansett commandery, No. 21, K. T., with a turkey dinner followed by a theatre party, dancing and cards at the Commandery Armory hall and asylum, Masonic hall. At 6 o'clock one hundred and fifty sir knights and guests in the church school room of Christ Episcopal church assembled for dinner served by the Woman's guild of the church. The tables were pleasingly decorated with flowers. At the close of the dinner a large basket of roses was presented Mrs. Francis M. Johnson, wife of Commander F. M. Johnson of Narragansett commandery in behalf of the commandery, the presentation being made by Past Commander Col. Arthur N. Nash. At the head table was also seated Generalissimo George E. Leonard, Captain General Fred W. Harvey and other commandery officers, their wives and guests. A center section of the United theatre on Canal street, having been reserved, was occupied by the assemblage at 8:15 for the feature motion picture "No, No, Nanette" and other pictures. At the commandery armory dancing followed with a three-piece orchestra. Punch and wafers were served. In the large room a dozen tables of bridge were in play for those who preferred cards to dancing. The committee was P. E. Sir Carl E. Burdick, recorder, chairman; P. E. Sir Arthur N. Nash, master of ceremonies; P. E. Sir David A. Lowry, assistant master of ceremonies; Sir Ronald C. LINDBERG FINALLY PAYS FINE AND COSTS OF $20

J. E. Lindberg, of Providence, was before Judge Oliver H. Williams Wednesday morning in a special session of Third District court, charged with a breach of the fishing and game laws of Rhode Island. The defendant was apprehended several weeks ago by R. I. Fish and Game Deputies Dr. Edwin R. Lewis and John H. Farnsworth and ordered to appear in Third District court. Following this summons the accused walked out of the courtroom before his case was called. A warrant was issued for his arrest. Having been located in Charlestown by State Trooper John F. Kennedy, he was taken into custody at Warren by a member of the state police and brought to Westerly. On his plea of guilty Judge Williams fined him $10 and costs totaling $20, which he paid.

Four years later, in 1871, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, with their family, moved to this country and settled in Westerly.

Bridgham; "The Part of the W. C. T. U.," Mrs. W. H. Lamb; "Our Responsibility," Mrs. Mary S. Brown.

The second night of play in the West Mystic Parent-Teacher association elimination bridge whist showed the following players and their scores: Table 1—C. LaFerier and Mrs. J. Cooper, 1,226; J. Irving and Mrs. C. Cutler, 2,575—Margin, 1,291. Table 2—H. P. Earnshaw and Mrs. S. A. Boylen, 2,220; Mrs. K. Bennett and Mrs. William White, 2,179—Margin, 41. Table 3—Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kinney, 1,706; R. Burrows and Mrs. A. Talbot, 2,072—Margin, 366. Table 4—Mrs. H. Hill and Mrs. M. Benjamin, 2,017; Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Gay, 1,940—Margin, 77. Table 5—H. Barstow and Miss Sweet, 2,687; H. Allyn and Mrs. H. Ritzle, 1,833—Margin, 854. Table 6—Mr. and Mrs. S. Z. Chessebro, 2,383; Mr. and Mrs. S. Stewart, Jr., 2,111—Margin, 272. Table 7—Mr. and Mrs. G. Grant, 2,688; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gremley, 1,299—Margin, 1,389. Table 8—Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Grinnell, 1,066; H. Ritzie and Mrs. A. H. Wilson, 2,798—Margin, 1,732.

In Monday night's score, one mistake was made when the scores were given out, that one being on Table 1, C. LaFerier and Mrs. J. Cooper, 2,827, against John Wheeler and Mrs. J. Holt, 2,772. This last score should have been 2,072, thus making LaFerier and Mrs. Cooper the winners and entitled to play Tuesday evening. Another mistake was that Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Gay's score was given out as 3,797. It should have been 2,797.

That COLD

Colds come suddenly. You can often end them just as quickly! Take Bayer Aspirin the moment you've caught one. A single sneeze should be the signal, or the first sign of congestion or headache, or soreness. Exposure to cold and wet isn't half so serious when you've learned to protect yourself with Bayer Aspirin. For the speedy relief of colds, headaches, neuralgic or neuritic pain, and even the acute suffering caused by rheumatism, there is nothing so sure and so safe as genuine Aspirin tablets stamped Bayer. They make a marvelous gargle, too. See proven directions in every package.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Turn this package over and read the back

THE WORDS on the back of the package still mean what they say. No "extras," which do not contribute to the quality of the smoke, are included in the price of Camels. Just the utmost smoke-enjoyment that modern science can put into a cigarette.

That statement was on the first package of Camels manufactured and has been on every one of the billions of Camel packages sold from that day to this. When it was first written, other cigarette manufacturers were giving away flags, pictures of actresses, pictures of ball players—almost anything that would make the smoker think he was getting something extra for his money. The makers of Camels believed the smoker wanted a cigarette sold strictly on its merits, with all of its cost put into quality—a cigarette made of such excellent tobaccos—so perfectly blended—so mellow—so fragrant—that it would win its own way.

The vast popularity of Camels is a tribute to that four-square policy.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Flip Seeks His Master

It is the law that in some way,
For all mistakes we have to pay.
—Flip the Terrier.

Walking on three legs, whimpering, whining and now and then yelping a little, Flip the Terrier headed up the Lone Little Path through the Green Forest on his way home. He had hardly started when Bowser the Hound joined him. Bowser gave him one look, opened his mouth to say something, and then closed it without speaking. He had been going to say, "Didn't I warn you to leave that fellow alone?" But he didn't say it. Years before he had himself had just such an experience with Prickly Porky the Porcupine. He knew just how poor little Flip was feeling. He knew more than that. He knew how Flip was going to feel when those quills were pulled out of his face and mouth and foot.

He started to follow Bowser around the barn.

So Bowser had only sympathy for Flip. He trotted along by his side and did his best to let Flip know how sorry he felt. So at last they reached Farmer Brown's dooryard. Then Bowser became active. He ran this way and that way, looking for his master, Farmer Brown's Boy. He found him out in the cowyard, back of the barn. He began to bark and run a few steps, as much as to say, "Come follow me." Farmer Brown's Boy seem to understand. "Well, Bowser," said he, "what is it this time? Have you found something you want me to see?" He started to follow Bowser around the barn.

Such a pathetic little dog as Flip was, sitting on the doorstep of the house, with one little paw held up and his face on one side filled with the little spears of Prickly Porky the Porcupine. Farmer Brown's Boy was filled with pity. He knew just what poor little Flip was suffering and would have to suffer. You see, he had pulled quills out before.

"You poor little rascal!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy, as he gently picked Flip up and examined him. "I'm surprised that Bowser allowed you to meddle with Prickly Porky." He looked at Bowser severely as he said this. Of course, Bowser didn't understand, so he merely wagged his tail. Meanwhile, Flip was whimpering softly. He just couldn't help it. No, sir, he couldn't help it. He just had to whimper.

"Let me see," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "Since the last time I had to pull any quills out of a dog I have heard of a new treatment. Somebody has told me that if I will put wood ashes around the quills and let them remain in a little while, the quills will become softened and will pull out much more easily. Anyway, it is worth trying."

So Farmer Brown's Boy went into the house and got some wood ashes from the fireplace. Then he wet Flip's face where the quills were and the foot in which the quill was sticking. Then he put on the wood ashes. He also applied some of the ashes in Flip's mouth where the quills were. He then held Flip quietly for some time, all the time talking to him. Finally he took Flip out to the barn. There he got some pinchers and got Farmer Brown to help him. While Farmer Brown's Boy held Flip, Farmer Brown began pulling out the quills. Poor Flip yelped and struggled as each one was pulled out. But badly as the pulling of those quills hurt, it would have hurt much more but for those ashes; for Farmer Brown's Boy saw right away that those quills had softened and came out much more easily than had the ones he had pulled out of Bowser once.

When the last quill was out, Farmer Brown's Boy gently bathed the sore place. He washed away all the ashes and then he put on a healing salve. Then he put Flip down. A more shamefaced dog you never saw than Flip.

RADIO MAKES CROPS GROW; DOUBLES FARM PRODUCTION

BERLIN—(AP)—Radio makes crops grow at double speed in experiments announced by Dr. Fritz Hildebrandt, Berlin physicist.

In a field of poor fertility he treated seeds of beans, sunflower, radishes, melons and tomatoes with short radio waves ranging from half a millimeter to 30 centi-meters. The seeds were exposed to the waves for for 15 minutes.

Radishes, he says, ripened in two weeks, compared with untreated seed which failed to show bulbous root formation even after four weeks. The ripening period of tomatoes was reduced from seven or eight months to three.

Untreated kohlrabi seed showed no bulb formation whatever, but treated seed produced substantial kohlrabi. Dr. Hildebrandt says similar results were obtained with other vegetables and plants.

ONLY ONE THING TO DO

When the tariff bill gets to the conference stage, as it will in time, it may be the disposition of some to ask what the attitude of the president is in regard to the various changes.

It will be recalled that there were those in the senate who displayed much anxiety over how the president felt about certain schedules, even indicating surprise that he was not telling the senate what he wanted done, and professing astonishment that he didn't furnish some inkling as to what he approved or disapproved concerning certain features of the house bill. President Hoover, before and during the early days of tariff discussion by the senate, indicated why he called a special session of congress and let it be known that there was need of a revision in order to do justice to agriculture and to industry where conditions warranted it. He took the opportunity of disclosing his attitude in regard to the removal of the flexible provision of the tariff bill and he expressed his opposition against the idea of writing into the bill the export debenture plan. Beyond that he did not commit himself in definite terms. He did not put himself in the position where it could be said that he was dictating to congress what it should do, and in the conference for the adjustment of differences it is not going to be possible to say that the president wanted this or that done.

The fact is that the tariff bill is not a measure that the president has personally prompted with the exception of the two matters just referred to. It cannot be said that he ordered congress to do one thing or another. He has pointed out good reasons why the debenture plan should not be adopted. He has presented convincing arguments for the retention of the flexible clause and it will be impossible for the conference committee to ignore his views thereon in coming to a decision.

The house is opposed to both of them. The senate, through the coalition, has favored them and that controlling influence has displayed more or less glee over the fact that it was able to temporarily put the president in a hole. It is thus evident that the conference committee can have only one idea as to what should be done about these features of the senate bill. They must go along with whatever else is slated for the discard.

FASTER STEAMSHIPS

All the records these days are not being made in the air. Faster flying machines, faster dirigibles, faster automobiles are being built, but also faster steamships.

Just at the present time the honors seem to rest with the new Europa. It has made the westward crossing from Cherbourg to New York 18 minutes faster than any other ship. It has established a record on its maiden voyage. It has exceeded the record made by its sister ship, the Bremen. It hasn't cut off so much of the time that there can be no expectation of lowering it by either itself or the Bremen, but it has reduced the time sufficiently to increase interest in steamship speed and to stimulate the rivalry for the honor of operating the fastest ship.

The initial trip of a ship is not always the one on which it makes its best speed, although record runs were made by both the Bremen and the Europa, but it was a fact which cannot be overlooked that the Europa was declared to be facing strong winds and bad weather during the early part of its trip, so that its performance under those conditions is such as to indicate that under what might be termed favorable conditions it could be expected to do much better. Thus there are reasons for believing that more in the way of time reduction can be expected from both the new German ships.

In addition to that it is reasonable to suppose that other countries will be manifesting quite as keen an interest in topping the German record. The Mauretania retained the honor for many years and it isn't admitted now that it has done its best, but the title of queen of the Atlantic is much coveted and ship construction can be expected to be undertaken with the view of securing it, so that the German ships will do well to make the most of their leadership while they have it.

It was only last year that much talk was indulged in concerning a four-day liner, the reduction in time to be accomplished by cutting some distance on each end of the run and building a faster type of vessel. The German ships haven't changed the terminals and they haven't covered the distance in four days, but they are well under five and they may be much nearer four before the year ends. A much better performance is likely if they are pressed.

BE PREPARED ON CENSUS

If you were to wait until the day you carried your income tax return to the collector before looking up the answers to the various questions on the blank it would be next to impossible for you to fill out your return.

If you wait until the census taker comes to the house before giving a little thought to the questions he is going to ask and the proper answers to those questions, it may prove a bit bothersome to the one questioned and unsatisfactory to the one asking the questions.

There is a limited time in which the census is to be taken. Each enumerator has a certain territory to cover within the given time and he is expected to do a complete job and to get the cooperation of the people. Do the best he can, he will find certain houses to which he will have to make more than one visit, but it is possible for the householder to do much to prevent extra trips and eliminate second calls by knowing in advance what is to be asked and being prepared to answer it.

It will be unfortunate if there are those who harbor the idea that they are not obliged to answer the questions. That attitude should not be displayed. It represents a wrong beginning. Census takers will be expected to use diplomacy in their efforts and do whatever is possible to get the cooperation of the people. It is for their interest to do so and it means the easiest and quickest way for the householder to give all possible assistance, but it is to be realized that the enumerator has the law with him and can get his answers through that channel if it becomes necessary.

By being prepared with the answers, by ascertaining what the questions are and placing the answers after them so that they can be given to the enumerator by anyone in the household who happens to be at home when he calls, there will be eliminated all chances of inaccuracies, such as would accompany hurried guesswork and the ordeal of complying with the census requirements will be quickly over and forgotten, for it is to be remembered that the answers to the questions must be held in strict confidence by the census takers. It is thus a case of helping yourself and avoiding uncertainties by being prepared to give the enumerator a courteous reception and prompt and definite answers.

THE MERIDEN SCHOOL

When it became apparent to Governor Trumbull that conditions at the Meriden School for Boys, or reports concerning conditions there, were not what they should be he set in motion an investigation that was intended to get at the bottom of the situation, to determine what the facts were and whether the charges could be substantiated.

That commission has acted promptly, gone thoroughly into all phases of the matter, given faithful attention to the requirements regardless of the criticisms that were hurled at it because it wasn't broadcasting its activities and presented its findings in accordance with what was to be expected.

That report bears out the contentions that have been made concerning conditions at the school. The recommendations are intended, if followed, to put an end to them. They are the views of an impartial body of investigators, based upon a careful inquiry into the conduct of the institution. They differ from the finding that has been given by the board of trustees, who have their responsibility for the institution and its work and who are, of course, directly concerned.

With the governor's commission sustaining the charges, the resignation of the superintendent was inevitable. That gives indication of the housecleaning that can be expected there in view of the commission's report, a report which upholds the claims which were made by the welfare bureau of the state.

It is a deplorable situation when conditions in a state institution will not stand scrutiny, but from the effective manner in which the governor has gone after the facts in the matter it can be expected that he will insist upon a continuation of his policy and bring about the reformation that is needed in the conduct of that school. If judgment has been withheld until the verdict has been rendered, it is clear now that the time has come for corrective action and that it will follow.

PERILOUS PLACES

Concerning the cases of persons who were struck and killed while leaving an electric car and while fixing a tire by the roadside, the registrar of motor vehicles in Massachusetts declares that cases of that character "are becoming so common that everyone either leaving a trolley car or attempting to change a tire by the roadside does so in peril of his life."

There is a decided difference between the two kinds of accidents. We are not certain whether Massachusetts requires it, but in this state it is a violation of the law for a motorist to pass a street car while discharging or receiving passengers, except slowly and at a distance of ten feet. Autos are supposed to come to a stop under such conditions, though it isn't always obeyed.

With the changing of a tire there is not any violation of a law involved except a deliberate trespass upon the rights of others. The driver who has to change either tire on the left hand side of his car and stops his car in the lane of traffic to do so puts himself in a position of peril which he must recognize. He may jump and duck around in such a way as to add to that peril and contribute to an unintentional accident. He makes a serious mistake unless he drives his car as far off the highway as possible and thus protects himself and places no dependence upon the other fellow's generosity.

When it comes to passengers leaving trolley cars there should be little or no excuse for accidents if laws are obeyed or enforced. When it comes to changing tires the motorist must and should rely upon his own protection. This doesn't mean that he isn't entitled to fair treatment, but that he should see that he doesn't put himself in the path of more trouble.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The weatherman sent rain at the right time but the prevention of woodland fires ought not to hinge upon rain.

The man on the corner says: The wetness or dryness of spring hasn't anything to do with the prohibition question.

It must be a bit disconcerting to that bunch of insurgents in the senate to think they know nothing objectionable to Judge Parker. How much they will be able to trump up before confirmation remains to be seen.

A MATTER OF COMMON SENSE

"Mary," said that young lady's mother one day, "why don't you go down to Mrs. Millen's Domestic Science school and learn to cook?"

"Nonsense," responded Mary, looking up from the fashion magazine where she was getting ideas for her trousseau, "why should I spend my perfectly good time before my wedding taking cooking lessons when I can play bridge or see a matinee every afternoon? Besides, any girl who can read a cook book can cook—cooking's a matter of common sense."

"I wish you'd go for at least a month—" began Mrs. Boyd, but Mary was engrossed in fashions in wedding veils and paid no more attention.

Time passed and in the course of the next few months Mary was married. For awhile she and George lived in a hotel while they decided on an apartment. At last they found one—a darling little affair with living room, dining room, bedroom and kitchenette. And, strange but true, that four by four miniature kitchen was about the first kitchen Mary ever had stepped into. Her life had been too full of music and drama and Elizabethan literature and bridge teas for her to spend any time at all in her mother's kitchen. And anyway, as Mary always said, "any girl with common sense can cook."

The first day in their new home Mary was filled with ambition. She would cook dinner for George with her own hands. Her first dinner! George must have his favorite dishes—and mashed potatoes were among George's favorites.

"Cook the potatoes until done, then mash with a potato masher," read Mary in her little cook book. Mary cooked the potatoes "for just ages" and at last decided they were tender. "Mash with a potato masher." "A potato masher," mused Mary. "I wonder what that looks like." She looked through her kitchen equipment and not being able to decide this important question, she called up her grandmother, whom she knew to be the essence of discretion.

"A potato masher?" queried grandmother over the wire. "Why, it looks like—" And she proceeded to give Mary a description of that article.

"No," said Mary, "I'm sure I haven't one of those. But I must have mashed potatoes for George. Can't I use something else?"

"Riced potatoes are much the same," said her grandmother. "Have you a potato ricer?" And in answer to Mary's question, "What's it like?" her grandmother proceeded to give as adequate a description as possible.

"Oh, yes," said Mary brightly. "I have one! I'll make riced potatoes for George!"

So Mary got out her "potato ricer" and began the arduous task of ricing her boiling hot potatoes. It was some job. Mary toiled and worked and burned her poor little fingers on hot potatoes, while the "ricer" demanded its toll. When George arrived Mary was shaking back tears and nursing burned and bloody fingers but her sacrifice was not in vain. Before her was a pile of stone cold—albeit duly riced potatoes.

"What's the meal?" asked George. "This mess!" Mary dissolved into tears. "You brute!" she wailed. "After I went without lunch and spent the entire afternoon making you riced potatoes—"

"Riced potatoes!" exclaimed George. He picked up the instrument of torture. "Don't tell me you tried to rice the potatoes on a vegetable grater!" Mary sat up.

"A vegetable grater!" she cried.

"Never mind," went on George, adding insult to injury as he viewed what was to have been his dinner. "I'm not very hungry. I had a big lunch. Let's go out and grab a sandwich somewhere."

"Mary," said her mother next morning over the telephone, "I have tickets to the matinee. Put on your hat and hurry over."

"I'm sorry, mother," said Mary firmly, "I won't be able to go. I've just enrolled in Mrs. Millen's domestic science classes and my first lesson is this afternoon."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 26—Despite its vastly increased importance since the world war, the job of assistant secretary of war went a-begging quite a time. It had been vacant more than three months, when this was written, ever since the last incumbent, Pat Hurley of Oklahoma, was promoted to cabinet rank as war secretary.

Just what difficulties the white house has encountered in finding a man to its taste has not been disclosed. There are numerous indications, however, that the "little cabinet" vacancy has been offered to a number of men and been turned down on the plea they could not afford to make the necessary financial sacrifice.

The Bystander also hears that the Wall street crash results have figured in the situation, several prospective appointees to the assistant secretaryship having declined on the ground that they were too badly plucked in that affair to leave profitable private jobs for low pay public service.

New Patriots

Mr. Hoover is still intent on finding additional "new patriots" for key jobs he has to offer in the federal service. If he was not in search of a "big man" in industrial life to become second in command in the war department but was content to move along old fashioned political lines of least resistance, no doubt he could fill the place over night. Almost any republican senator would be glad to oblige with a suggestion.

Since the war, however, the war department assistant's job has completely changed. It is no longer looked upon as most little cabinet posts used to be as a reward of merit for a young and coming chap in somebody's personal political set up.

That official now has definite tasks assigned to him by law. He heads the whole vast mechanism of "industrial mobilization" planning for possible future wars written into the national defense act.

Non-Veterans

When President Harding set up his cabinet and little cabinet, it was evident and little cabinet, it was evident that the war department junior job was specifically set aside for a world war veteran. J. Mayhew Wainwright of New York, now a member of congress, who saw active service in both the Spanish and World wars, came in with Secretary Weeks on that theory.

He was followed in due course by Dwight Davis of Missouri, now governor general of the Philippines and who took over the war portfolio when Mr. Weeks died, and who also had a fine World war record; then by Hanford MacNider of Iowa, an important figure in the American Legion; by C. B. Robbins, also of Iowa and an ex-service man, and finally, by Pat Hurley, another war veteran. There was good ex-soldier vote politics in all of those selections.

It remains to be seen whether Mr. Hoover is to change things in that regard. Gossip has it that first proffers of the vacancy, at any rate, were made to non-veterans.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

In China

Mr. Editor: Here comes a letter from this land of "make-believe." This is Chinese New Year, but the government would make believe it is abolished and forbids its celebration. But it IS Chinese New Year. Fire-crackers boom as of old. People in their best "go-to-meetin's" greet their friends with "Kong-hai fah-tsai" — "Congratulations and abounding wealth." Stores are closed. Nanking's order is ignored. You can't change 1000-year old customs of 450 million people in a night. But this is not the only make-believe. Nanking makes believe China is unified. It "ain't." China is split into smithereens. Chang Fa-kwei in Kwangsi is fighting Nanking. Yen Hsi-shan has Shansi and Chihli and rules well. Chang Hsueh-liang lords it over Manchuria. Tang Seng-chi keeps a hornet's nest buzzing in Honan. Yong Yoh-dziang sways Shensi. Szechuen goes its own way, and other rebels keep the capitol on "pins and needles." Yet Nanking has repeatedly reported each of these discordant ones overcome or won over. But it is only make-believe to hood-wink the world. Chiang Kai-shek is the "conqueror of the north and the unifier of China." But what he seems to have done was done mostly with Russian brains and capital until he took Nanking. After that the rest was won by squeezing money from people in the rear of the "fighting lines" and buying enemy commanders in front. There was hardly one worth-the-name battle fought. It was mostly victory by purchase and buying of victory takes the gloss off the glory. If Nanking had the money now she could purchase all her present enemies. But what's the use? Soon there would be awarms of other enemies. It's profitable to be an enemy of Nanking! China had to humble herself before Russia, for Russian officers could not be bought. But in China the "itching palm" is conspicuous. Remember this and you can understand much about the wars in this "squeezer-greaser" land. China is getting worse and worse. Property rights are gone. Life is unsafe. Business is paralyzed. Freedom of the press and speech has vanished. Loyalty and obedience are not. Liberty is dead. Bandits abound. But Nanking makes believe all is "as fine as pie" and issues pious reports. Among officials there are doubtless sincere ones who would put things right but the make-believes predominate and block every move for good. But don't judge harshly. Most officials are sons of the laboring class and of the newly-rich. They are young and inexperienced. They pay great attention to trivial things and neglect great things. If, in our Washington, it's said "He that is without GIN among you let him first cast a stone," can we condemn heathen China? We hope that some day China striplings will tire of "playing house" and will get down to horse sense.

But I'm getting away from the New Year. Gambling is everywhere. Superstition is rife. Money is wasted that might relieve famine suffering. Every temple is crowded with people offering incense, candles, paper-money and prayers to all the gods. They pray most for wealth. That prayer is not make-believe. They want wealth, and they worship the god-of-wealth with all their hearts. Every home has one made of wood, mud, or of paper but he is "Dzai-zen" all the same. When business gets poor in China they say the god-of-wealth has gone to America. The paper Dzai-zen is interesting. The god's throne is a big ingot of gold set with jewels. Mountains of gold are at the god's left and Silver Hill is at his right. In front of him is a great bowl of jewels. On Silver Hill is the money tree, a shake of which will shower you untold wealth. Over Dzai-zen's head is "Foh"—blessedness. All around are his servants ready to carry wealth to those whom the god favors. This god is very amenable to flattery and he who flatters best gets most. But he too is make-believe.

May the true God-of-Wealth prosper you and friends in all good.

Yours longingly for a sincere and prosperous China,

(Rev.) H. G. C. HALLOCK.

YOUR HEALTH

Heads Up

By Robert H. Riley, M. D., Baltimore
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In cold weather the temptation to shut out the air and slump into warm quarters is general. It would be a good thing if each of us could develop as pronounced an appetite for fresh air as we have for our favorite foods and then should insist upon having that appetite satisfied. We know when we are "food hungry," but half the time when we are drowsy or droopy, we don't realize that what we are really suffering from is "air hunger."

A good many of our daily dozens call for a round of breathing exercises at an open window in the early morning. This is thoroughly worth while, but we don't want it to end there. Deep breathing should be a habit. For the effect of deep breathing is cumulative, like the house that Jack built. You cannot breathe in deeply, satisfying your hunger for fresh, clean air and sit or stand into slouchy position. To enjoy to the full your draught of fresh air in-doors or out-of-doors, you have to hold your head up.

Almost unconsciously, this brings the whole framework of the body into better position—shoulders back, chest out, abdomen flat. This in turn gives greater room for expansion of the lungs, free action of the heart, and better circulation of the blood; insures better digestion through the toning up of the muscles supporting the whole digestive apparatus. In other words, deep breathing helps to tone up the whole mechanism, and it has another effect—it tones up the courage and self respect of the individual who habitually practices it.

Out of a total of 3,755 children from five to seven years old who were examined by the Bureau of Child Hygiene during the spring and summer months, 288 had marked postural defects. That was one out of every fifteen. While much of the bad posture of young children is due to undernourishment (not lack of food, but poorly balanced meals), in the older boys and girls and in grown-ups it is generally due to habitual slouching or slumping, contracting the chest, taking in an inadequate supply of air, getting into bad habits of sitting, standing and walking.

Deep breathing, fresh air, and good posture are aids in keeping fit. So HEADS UP! Try it and see for yourself what happens.

"Charity for Others' Failings"

Scripture: Memory Verse: "Looking to thyself, lest thou be tempted" (Galatians 6:1).

Read: Galatians 6:1-10.

Meditation: Self-knowledge should give one charity. With all one's good resolutions one blunders and fails and thrusts his fingers ofttimes "into the heart strings of a friend." But a man does not wish to be judged by chance misplays. He wants to be interpreted in the light of his best. We all crave the magnanimous judgments of others. Portia speaks for all—

"We do pray for mercy,
And this same prayer doth teach us all to render
The deeds of mercy."

Men, frail and faulty, may by the grace of God become wise and gentle. In the closing sentence of a book of stories of abnormal men and women the author, a detective, says: "As in a dream I hear a soft, far-away murmur 'Let him that is without sin among you cast the first stone.'"

Prayer: O Thou to whom we look for mercy in the hour of our shortcomings, teach us to show the mercy that we seek, and to practice the gentle judgments that we crave. Out of our need for charity, we would bring the mind of charity to our fellow men. Amen.

Stories That Recall Others

"Same Here"

Four-year-old Bobby and his daddy visited the corner drug store. When the customary order of an ice cream and a lemon phosphate was given, the lad said:

"Oh, no, daddy, I want a lemon false face, too."

Germs and Tucks

Three-year-old Clarence's contacts are mostly with grownups, so he has acquired a mature viewpoint. To a visiting relative who had a cold and coughed, he said:

"Aunt Anna, you have germs in your throat and you have tucks in your neck," the latter suggested by the lady's embonpoint.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Mountains That Reveal Pages of History

Five hundred is the limit to a history of the United States which former President Coolidge has been asked to write as a legend to accompany the Herculean figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt, being carved on the rocky face of Mt. Rushmore, South Dakota.

Darius, King of the Persians, and Mr. Coolidge's predecessor in mountain inscribing by the margin of nearly 2,500 years, used 5,000 words for a history of his empire.

To the Mt. Rushmore history there has been assigned 9,000 square feet; Darius was cramped in about 800 square feet and was compelled to use a part of the space for translations into two other languages.

"Darius' inscriptions at Behistun; the records of conquerors from Rameses II down to the French in 1860 at the Nahr-el-Kelb, Syria; and the Lion of Lucern, Switzerland; are three notable mountain memorials," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographical society.

"Mountains are the oldest tablets man ever tried to write upon," continues the bulletin. "But his very oldest 'writings' are inside, not outside, of mountains. Pictures of the elk, mammoth, and many strange beasts painted on the sides of subterranean chambers in northern Spain are the work of prehistoric cavemen who lived 50,000 years.

"The famous cliffs of Nahr el-Kelb (Dog River), just north of Beyrouth, have served for 3,000 years as a guest book for visiting invaders.

"Names of conquerors and their remarks cover the rock like autographs and verses fill the pages of an old album. The 'parade' of generals supplies a brief and significant history of Palestine and Syria, which have always formed a bridge for marching hosts: Rameses II, King of Egypt, 1230 B. C.; Shalmaneser, King of Assyria, 860 B. C.; Tiglath-Pileser, King of Assyria, 727 B. C. Sennacherib, King of Babylonia, 681 B. C.; Esarhaddon, King of Assyria, 668 B. C. Germanicus, representative of Marcus Aurelius, Emperor of Rome, 161 A. D.; Selim, Sultan of the Ottoman Empire, 1566 A. D.; Emir Beshir, Turkish General, 1838 A. D., and marshals of France, Expeditionary Force, 1860, A. D.

"The Lion of Lucern is a recent memorial and one familiar to tourists. In a niche of native rock lies a dying lion on a spear and shield. Below are carved names of 26 officers who, with 760 privates, are memorialized as members of the Swiss guard that gave their lives in the defence of Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette in the Tuileries at the beginning of the French revolution.

"The comments of Darius about himself, on the mountain at Behistun, overlooking the ancient road from Bagdad to Ecbatana (Hamadan), have acquired an importance quite out of proportion to their text. For two centuries the Behistun inscriptions proved a mystery that challenged scholars. Steps leading to the translation of the writings make one of the best mystery stories of archaeology. Final success in reading the cuneiform sentences gave the key to the whole literature of Babylonia. What the Rosetta stone did to reveal the enigma of Egyptian hieroglyphics, the Darius inscription did for cuneiform writing.

"Cuneiform writing is a shorthand style made up of arrow-shaped marks. Copies of the mysterious Behistun 'broadside' were brought to Europe by Pietro della Valle, 300 years ago. Generations of scholars puzzled over pages of impressions not unlike hen tracks. One man deciphered eleven signs, another added knowledge of seven more. Still there were not enough until Rawlinson, an English army officer, working independently, went to Behistun on leave. He copied much of the text, working on a ledge 18 inches wide. A misstep would have sent him rolling down the 500-foot precipice.

"Rawlinson, laboring alone, solved the great cuneiform puzzle and translated Darius' 5,000-word, mountain-engraved history which begins:

"'I am Darius, the great king, the king of kings, the King of Persia, the king of the provinces, the son of Hystaspes, the grandson of Arames, the Achaemenian,' and so on, at considerable length.

"Much of Darius' message is devoted to the putting down of revolts in various provinces. Nine revolt leaders are carved in the rock above the legend, with ropes around their necks. The entire text is a Gargantuan boast of a primitive tyrant whose human weaknesses peep out only once or twice.

"'There is also much else,' proclaims Darius with sudden modesty, 'that hath been done by me which is not graven in this inscription; on this account it hath not been inscribed lest he who shall read this inscription hereafter should then hold that which hath been done by me to be too much and should not believe it, but should take it to be lies.'

"Rawlinson and the scholars who pegged away at the cypher were on no thankless job. Darius memorialized them, too. Near the end of the text found: 'Thus saith Darius, the King: If thou shalt not conceal this edict, but shall publish it to the world, then may Aura Mazda (sun god) be thy friend, may thy house be numerous, and mayest thou thyself be long-lived.'"

PORTUGUESE JAILS JAMMED WITH ALL SORTS OF QUACKS

LISBON.—(AP)—Portuguese police have been filling up the jails of Lisbon and other cities of the republic with fortune tellers, weavers of magic spells and other charlatans who have been preying upon the illiterate masses. The campaign has been directed too toward the villages and rural communities but progress there has been slower.

Raids on the city quarters of practitioners of the old black arts have produced truck loads of paraphernalia as well as a miscellaneous collection of medicine phials, skulls, bones, dried toads and herbs and other properties used in gouging fat fees from the credulous.

Newspapers, cooperating with the authorities in the effort to stamp out such practices, have exposed all the stock tricks of the charlatans and have told how some of them managed to get as much as $20 for a single consultation. The real contents of "love powders" and of concoctions warranted to drive away an unwelcome suitor from a house possessed of an attractive marriageable daughter, have been told in print with the advice that those who read should spread the information among the illiterate.

Much of the campaign has been directed against the "herb doctors." Instances in which the "remedies" of these quacks have been fatal to their patients have been exploited and the futility of their methods has been emphasized.

No "Hamburger" In Berlin

BERLIN—(AP)—What used to be called "liberty steak" in America during the war is not, as one might imagine, known here by a 100 per cent German name. Those who eat "hamburger" in Berlin get it by ordering "Deutsches Beefsteak." The way to get sauerkraut, however, is to ask for sauerkraut.

OBITUARY

Mrs. William S. Congdon

After a short illness, Mrs. Sarah Greene Thomas Congdon, widow of William S. Congdon, died Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at her home, No 82 McKinley avenue, in her 76th year Mrs. Congdon was born at Portsmouth, R. I., but had lived in Norwich for many years. Her husband, the late William S. Congdon, was a member of the law firm of Tenny and Congdon, well-known lawyers of this city. She was a member of Park Congregational church. A son, Herbert Congdon, died in 1901. Surviving Mrs. Congdon are a daughter, Mrs. Walter E. Gilbert of this city, and two grandchildren, Donald A., and Esther Gilbert, of this city.

Mrs. Congdon's residence had been for so many years on McKinley avenue, corner of Perkins avenue, that she had become known to a wide circle of friends and had seen many changes in that section of Norwich. Of these, and of the development of the city she always spoke most interestingly. While her activities were chiefly confined to the duties of her home, especially in later years, she retained many of the friendships made when her husband was a prominent Norwich attorney and when both were identified with public and social affairs of the town and with the interests of Park Congregational church.

AMERICAN LEGION STATE COMMANDER SPEAKS FOR INCREASED MEMBERSHIP

Convincing reasons why every ex-service man, who is not now affiliated with the American Legion, should join this organization at once, were given by W. S. Alexander of Meriden, state commander, in a spirited and interesting address delivered Wednesday evening under the auspices of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, at an open meeting at Buckingham Memorial. The meeting was attended by a large gathering of members, ex-service men and friends of the organization, including His Honor Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and First Selectman William S. Murray, who also spoke and welcomed the state commander to the city. The post commander, Patrick McMahon, introduced the speakers.

That the American Legion organization is one of the anchors of the nation at the present time, was the opinion of Mayor Robbins, in view of its past records in helping to hold the country steadfast and true to its purpose. I have great faith in and am a great admirer of the American Legion, said Mayor Robbins, but it seems to me that a city of this size should have three or four times as many members of this organization as there are at present. In my opinion it is just as much the duty of the ex-service men to become members of the American Legion, as it was to take up arms and fight in the World war, said the moyor, who concluded by saying that some of the dangers that lurk here today are greater than in the war.

In speaking of the small proportion of ex-service members who are affiliated with the local organization First Selectman Murray said that I would consider it an honor and privilege, if I were eligible, to become a part of the American Legion. There are certain benefits veterans are entitled to, both nationally and statewise, said the first selectman, one of which is tax exemption, which cannot be received until his discharge is recorded at the town clerk's. Those who fought in the World war and are eligible should deem it a privilege to join an organization of this character, concluded the first selectman.

State Commander Speaks

An outstanding accomplishment of the American Legion was the consolidation of the Veterans bureaus, an agency that dispenses millions of dollars among families of ex-service men, said State Commander Alexander. About 850,000 service men failed to file applications for adjusted service compensation, said the state commander, so the American Legion asked for a time limit, which was granted. This was secured through organised effort. The American Legion is the basic organization with which all ex-service men should become affiliated, no matter how many like organisations they are associated with.

After touching briefly upon the aims and principles of the organization State Commander Alexander gave a graphic and touching picture of the cemetery near the Argonne forests where are buried 16,000 American citizens who made the supreme sacrifice in the World war. The graves are marked with row upon row of white marble crosses, he said, the sight being one of the most impressive that he had seen in his visit to the cemeteries across the waters two years ago.

The state commander appealed to the local members to make every effort to secure additional members, so that when the national commander makes his report on membership at the national convention in October, it will be an eloquent one.

The state commander pointed out that 56,000 mental cases are definitely connected with the World war and that the peak of these cases will not be reached until 1947. There are not beds enough in the country to care for these cases, he said, in referring to the hospitalization programme of the legion. It was because of the efforts of the American Legion that the Rogers bill was recently passed, which calls for an appropriation of 15 million dollars for 6,000 additional beds for these mental cases.

In closing the state commander pointed out that the larger membership the organization has the more benefits will be secured for those who served their country in time of war.

ENDORSES RESOLUTION TO STRENGTHEN ANTI-WAR MOVES

An audience of 50 at the Wauregan hotel ballroom Wednesday evening, who heard Miss Carrie Wyckoff-Ormsbee speak upon "The Present Opportunity of the United States in World Affairs," voted endorsement of a resolution to petition President Hoover to urge upon the United States delegates at the London meeting the advisability of a consultative clause which would enable the powers to obtain the greatest possible reduction of armaments.

Miss Wyckoff-Ormsbee spoke under the auspices of the National Council for Prevention of War, the meeting being arranged for by Mrs. Nathan Gilman and sponsored by a number of the women's organizations of the city. Mrs. Gilman opened the meeting and presented State Attorney Arthur M Brown, who introduced the speaker and expressed his own conviction that it was absurd to say that disputes between nations could not be settled around a table by compromise and agreement just as disputes between individuals are settled.

Miss Wyckoff-Ormsbee declared that the Kellogg peace pact has released a growing public sentiment against war but we must be on the alert, individually and nationally, to stop any gaps through which war might creep in. We are spending over twice as much for national defense as before the World war, whereas the test of our belief in the peace pact should show in a reduction in the expense of armaments. Herbert Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald, she said, have advanced the front line trenches and we must help them to hold the advance. We should say we must have our peace machinery so strengthened that our leaders may turn to it rather than to war-like measures in case of the danger of war. The economic strength of the United States is a call to leadership to the effort to outlaw war, which will be in line with our historic attitude from George Washington on.

FATHER-SON BANQUET BY UNITED CHURCH

With a spirit of true fellowship prevailing the father and son banquet held Wednesday evening at the Community house by the fathers and their sons of the United Congregational church was one of the outstanding social events of the church so far this season. The seating capacity of the long tables, arranged in horse-shoe fashion in the social rooms, were taxed to capacity. It was an informal gathering with remarks by various men attending, punctuated by two interesting talks by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, the pastor, and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent at Uncas-on-Thames.

The tables had candles for decorations and the appetizing menu served was pot-roast, boiled potato, string beans, sponge cake with strawberries, cold slaw, ice cream and coffee. A pleasing feature of the gathering was a delightful programme of music supplied by the Boys' band under direction of John M. Swahn.

The committee of arrangements comprised Marcus Leith, chairman, Dr. Robert G. Urquhart, Earl Whitehead, William Hunnigan and Robert H. Montgomery, and the entertainment committee was Edward A. Rich and Dr. Hugh B. Campbell.

The supper committee included Mrs. Frederick H. Lester, chairman, and Mrs. Marcus Leith, co-chairman, with Mrs. Edward A. Rich, Mrs. A. J. Sinay, Mrs. F. S. Armstrong, Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson and Miss Marion Campbell.

The waitresses, in charge of Miss Elizabeth F. Pullen, were the Misses Suzanne Higgins, Frances Hill, Mary Lewellyn, Nancy Pitcher, Doris Krohn, Elizabeth Cherry, Eleanor and Elizabeth Sargent, Beatrice, Mary and Helen Spicer, Cora Button, Natalie Holden, Ruth and Annie LaPierre, Jean Leslie, Nalda McDonald, Mary Kerr, Wilma Stanton, Madeline Spaulding, Julia John, Anita Armstrong, Lucile Hayden and Louise Dziomba.

Moving pictures showing the national contests held at Detroit and other interesting events held in connection with model airplane work will be shown. Admission will be free to the pow-wow and circus, for all boys over 10 years of age and parents are also welcome to attend. If any boys have already built models and wish to bring them to the circus and fly them, they may do so; perhaps the circus men can help to improve the models.

APPLIED PENALTIES FOR BREAKING GAME LAWS

Connecticut courts extended little sympathy to violators of the fish and game laws during 1929, according to a report on the activities of state game wardens submitted by Chief Warden A. J. Williamson to John W. Titcomb, superintendent of fisheries and game. Of 929 persons arrested for various offenses, 907 were convicted and fined. Sixty-three regulations or laws were disobeyed by the violators, and the fines and court costs amounted to $14,075.79. The number of arrests was the largest for any year in the history of the state, Warden Williamson reports. A previous high record was established in 1928, when 775 persons were arrested. The increased activities last year covered all counties, and arrests were made in 147 of the 169 towns of the state.

In Hartford county, 141 arrests were made in 27 out of 29 towns; in New Haven county, 151 arrests were made in 24 out of 27 towns; in New London county, 147 arrests were made in 19 out of 21 towns; in Fairfield county, 197 arrests were made in 23 out of 23 towns; in Windham county, 87 arrests were made in 15 towns; in Litchfield county, 112 arrests were made in 22 out of 26 towns; in Middlesex county, 16 arrests were made in six out of 15 towns, and in Tolland county, 68 arrests were made in 12 out of 13 towns.

Offenders against the fishing laws were most numerous, there being 463. The violators of hunting laws numbered 449, and 17 persons were arrested for infractions of general regulations. The most frequent offense was angling without a license, this charge resulting in 170 arrests. Eighty-four persons were held for keeping fish shorter than the length allowed by law. Forty were found with unlawful hooks or lines.

Thirty-six went fishing in waters restricted to domestic use. Thirty-six were in possession of short blue crabs. Sixteen were fishing out of season. Others were arrested for violating such laws as angling in closed waters; spearing and netting in trout streams; spearing species other than eels and suckers; operating unregistered or unlawful gear; selling egg-bearing sponge crabs; stealing lobsters, and drawing seines in restricted waters.

Failure to secure a license was also the most frequent offense against the hunting and trapping laws. Eighty-nine persons were arrested on this charge and 87 of them were convicted in court. The use of unlawful traps resulted in 49 arrests, the hunting of ducks after sunset caused 39, and hunting out of season, 33. Other laws frequently violated were: Hunting deer, 32 arrests; aliens hunting or carrying arms, 34; failure to attend traps, 10; hunting non-game or song birds, 20; possessing hen pheasants, 11; Sunday hunting (also applies to carrying gun on Sunday), 16; trapping without landowner's consent, 13; unlawful possession of deer, 17; unlawful use of motor vehicle lights, 11. Twenty other types of hunting violations are listed in the report, besides general violations, such as failure to carry license, loaning license or button, procuring license by false statement, and juvenile delinquency cases.

Warden Williamson reports that he does not believe the increase in arrests was caused by an increase in violations. It was due more, he says, to the liberal allowance allotted for warden service, and a new policy of employing full-time wardens which has allowed better and more extensive patrols in all sections of the state.

In addition to the enforcement of the game laws, the wardens assist in many other ways. They were instrumental in saving a large number of trout which were rescued from brooks during dry weather. They also rescued more than 5,000 yellow perch from a pond which was drained. They helped build retaining ponds for trout, repaired broken drains in ponds, made a complete survey of pheasant covers, charting those on topographical maps.

A number of brush fires were put out by the wardens, who also assisted in fighting forest fires. They located several stolen cars which had been abandoned in back roads. They were also able to locate loot which had been hidden by burglars, and turned it over to the police.

The cost of this service is about $82,000 per year.

PATROL LEADERS HOLD ENTHUSIASTIC SESSION

The opening session of the patrol leaders' training course, held Wednesday evening in Boy Scout headquarters was declared by the leaders attending to be a wow. The meeting opened with the taking of enrollment. Thirty-two leaders were in attendance representing every troop in the city. According to the sponsoring committee composed of Walter Weidman, Will Collins and H. Downer Johnson, Jr., any patrol leader in good standing may enroll in the course upon the recommendation of his scoutmaster. Assistant patrol leaders may attend the course only as substitutes for patrol leaders unable to attend. Acting patrol leaders and senior patrol leaders are eligible.

According to the committee, the plan of the course will follow rather closely the patrol leaders' handbook.

Wednesday night leaders were mixed up to form four patrols. Each leader selected a color from a hat. The reds then went to one corner, the greens to another, the blues to another, the yellows to another. Each patrol selected an animal yell demonstrating the name of their patrol. Names chosen were: Flying eagle, snake, beaver and panther.

The subject for discussion for this meeting was "The Patrol Leader And His Job," which was led by Emery Davis, boy's work secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Davis closed the discussion by calling attention to the creed of a patrol leader.

Following the meeting the scouts enjoyed a string eating contest for eats and apples. The next session of the course will be held Wednesday, April 2, Room 215 Thayer Bldg. A hike is planned for the near future. Leaders in attendance at this session were: Will Collins, H. Downer Johnson, Walter Weidman, Cecil Wetherbee and John Sellman.

Every scoutmaster in the city, it is hoped, will appear during the course to give instruction to the leaders in those phases of scouting which they have specialized. Adult leaders are invited to visit the course and observe the work going on.

CHEWINK SAILOR IN HOSPITAL AFTER CRASH

With a crash that sent him flying through the top of his Auburn cabriolet, Frank B. Miller, 27, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Chewink at the submarine base at Groton, ploughed into a parked car on North Main street in the vicinity of Charles A. Mueller's gasoline station, 263-267 North Main street about 7 o'clock Wednesday evening.

Miller was taken to the Backus hospital in the ambulance. He was in a semi-conscious condition after the accident, with concussion of the brain, contusion and abrasions of the head and right arm. His condition improved through the night.

The machine he hit was an Essex touring car owned by Mueller and it was reported that it was knocked forward 45 feet, while Miller's car ran 30 feet after the crash and Miller was picked up behind the back wheels of his own car which probably ran over him. The Mueller machine had a wheel smashed and the body almost torn from the chassis and the sailor's machine was badly wrecked.

Sergeant Matthew Delaney, Officers Quinn and Dunion made an investigation of the accident and when Miller gets out of the hospital he will have a reckless driving charge made against him to answer in the city court.

Harry N. Stearns, 65, law partner of Congressman Frederick W. Dallinger, died at the Phillips house, Boston.

About That Great Sport Archery.

Archery has been known since the earliest writings of history. The history of archery is the history of man. The majority of even the most savage tribes ever discovered used the bow as a means of procuring food, as well as for defense and offense. The lute, oldest of musical instruments, is said by some to have had its origin in the twanging of the bow cord. Most ancient bows were short, rarely exceeding five feet in length and usually were four feet long. They were shot by pulling the chord to the body, rather than to the jaw, as with the English long-bow. The Egyptians used the bow mainly in the chase, instead of in war. The Greek and Roman bows were usually of horn, as were also most Oriental bows.

The long bow as a valuable weapon was introduced by the Normans into England at Hastings, where it had such a terrible effect on the English. The English at once adopted it as a national weapon and soon excelled their conquerors in its use. The bow, as then found in England, was the ordinary short bow, which had an extremely short range and small power compared with the long-bow. From the time of the adoption of the long-bow, until the advent of gunpowder, the "cloth yard shaft" whispered across the pages of history. The British yeomen drew bows from 75 to 90 pounds, and were capable of shooting an extreme flight of about 400 yards. One English king made a law forbidding the use of a bow with a range of less than 200 yards. The average bow was capable of killing a heavily dressed man at that distance. Only the heaviest and finest Spanish armor could withstand the English shaft at less distance. When an enemy, suffocating from heat and exhaustion, loosened his breast plate and opened the visor of his helmet, he quickly received a shaft through the best opening. Some marksmen were credited with, splitting a small sapling at a hundred paces, so it was not much trouble to hit a man's head at a greater distance.

The English long bow did more than any other weapon to establish the rights and privileges of the common people, in which we, as Americans, take pride. The boy who takes up archery is therefore enrolling himself in an ancient and distinguished company, whose records and achievements he will feel privileged to show in proportion as he is loyal to the noble old sport and becomes proficient in it.

Archery is called "Kings of sports as well as the sport of kings." It requires the greatest skill, strength, keen eyes and steady nerves. More credit is due an expert archer, especially one who makes his own tackle, than to an expert rifleman, who requires only steady nerves and good eyes. Any one has strength enough to pull the trigger of a gun, but few have strength enough to pull even a 50 pound bow.

SPEAKS TO ROTARY ON AMERICAN LEGION AIMS

W. S. Alexander, of Meriden, state commander of the American Legion, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon on the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Alexander, who served overseas as a captain in the 104th Inf., 26th Div., took for his subject The Aims of the American Legion. He was introduced by Charles W. Taggart. Commander Alexander said in part:

What is the American Legion, what is its extent, what is its power, what does it stand for and what has it done —These are questions that are sometimes asked by some of our citizens not so much now as ten years ago because the American Legion has definitely established itself in the hearts of the people. It is the citizen soldiery of America, organized for the good of America. In eleven years it has developed from a tentative idea into the greatest patriotic institution in the republic.

Its aims and purposes are best explained and outlined in the preamble to its constitution, "For God and country we associate ourselves together for the following purposes:

To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United tates of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate pure Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the great war; to inculcate a sense of individvual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy and to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

The ten clauses in the preamble cover everything this nation has been, is the hopes to be. They challenge not only all Legionnaires but all other Americans to greater fidelity to God and to country. They bring full realization of everyone's duty and responsibility to the war's veterans and veterans' needy dependents.

At the business session President Frank R. Murdy presided and F. Russell Smith and Frank G. Aubrey were the song leaders. Several communications from other clubs were read. The Willimantic club announced the candidacy of Richard E. Dodge for governor of the 30th district.

Harold D. Larrabee, in charge of the program for the club for April announced the program as follows:

April 2—Educational facilities of Norwich with Henry A. Tirrell, E. J. Graham and Walter F. Lester as speakers on the junior high school.

April 9—International service meeting in charge of William G. Park.

April 16—Our State Parks with E. L. Bronson of the state park commission as speaker.

April 23—A. E. Payson will speak on the making of Thermos bottles.

April 30—Ladies' Night.

John E. Sellman and Ellis H. Thayer were appointed song leaders for the month.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

FOREIGNERS LOSE SOFT SNAP JOBS IN CHINA

SHANGHAI—(AP)—The day when a foreigner could obtain a good job with the Chinese Government and amass a tidy sum in a few years is over.

Highly trained Chinese are replacing foreign employees in almost every branch of the government service and a month seldom passes but what several foreigners who thought they had life jobs, see their posts turned over to Chinese.

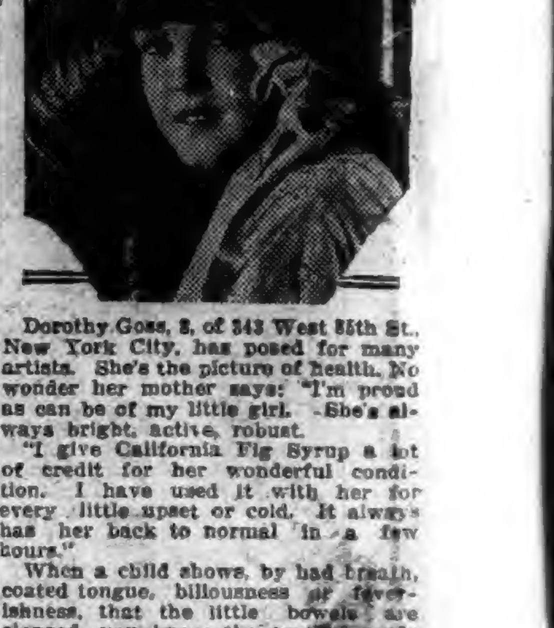
Proud Mother!



Dorothy Goss, 8, of 343 West 85th St., New York City, has posed for many artists. She's the picture of health. No wonder her mother says: "I'm proud as can be of my little girl. She's always bright, active, robust.

"I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for her wonderful condition. I have used it with her for every little upset or cold. It always has her back to normal in a few hours."

When a child shows, by bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or feverishness, that the little bowels are clogged, you know the system needs a prompt cleansing.

California Fig Syrup does the work quickly and gently. In addition, it helps tone and strengthen weak bowels and stomach. So it gives lasting help.

The word California marks the genuine; the pure vegetable product loved by children and pronounced safe and effective by doctors.

Relief from Gas Stomach Pains Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. For example, Mrs. Ellen White says: "For years I suffered from indigestion. I got no relief from anything until I took Tanlac. After my fourth bottle, I feel like a new person and have a fine appetite."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you. Accept no substitute.

Oust That Tired Spring Feeling

Heavier meals in winter, less fresh air and exercise. Spring finds one short-winded, listless, headachy, with weak ailing kidneys, backache, rheumatic pains, sleep-disturbing night calls. Take Foley Pills diuretic. Active, revivifying, they put urinary processes to work in a natural way, filtering the blood of those poisonous waste matters that cause a heavy drain on the vitality—a menace to health. Ask for Foley Pills diuretic. For sale at Lee & Osgood's.

LINE SPANS CHANNEL IN 20,000 FLIGHTS

LONDON—(AP)—Twenty-one years mirror the advances of aviation.

In 1909 the French aeronaut, Louis Bleriot, made the first flight across the English channel. It was an epochal achievement.

Today the books of a British line operating between London and Pairs reveal the completion of 5,000,000 miles of cross-channel flying on schedules. The total represents nearly 20,000 flights.

SETTING OF BROKEN BONES MADE EASIER BY PICTURES

PARIS—(AP)—Broken bones can be seen so clearly through a new French apparatus that they may be set without moving the patient from his couch.

The invention gives both a face and a profile view which are projected on a radioscopic screen by x-rays. The author, Professor Pascalis, says:

"Broken legs dating back 40 days and badly reduced have been reset with the aid of the invention in a few minutes."

The device is described in the Siecle Medical, an eight page bimonthly newspaper.

Itoms Collide

NEW YORK—(AP)—Collisions of atoms, too small to be seen with the most powerful microscope are detected sometimes by the lines they produce in a spectrum of light.

BROUILLARD-BROWN BOUT WILL BE HARD SLUGGING MATCH

Lou Brouillard, dispenser of dynamite from Danielson, has never been beaten in a local ring. But, and there is plenty of emphasis on that word "but," he has not met such a tough boy as Mule Brown of New Haven. Dynamite Lou and The Mule tangle tomorrow night in one of the eight-round star bouts of the Shyma card club at Taftville. And what a fight it will be, both sluggers with a determination to earn their money in quick time.

Brown has displayed his wares in he eastern part of the state on more than one occasion and always has looked like a real fighter. Brouillard since deserting the amateur ranks a year ago has had a rapid rise in pugilistic combat and has gained quite a reputation as a hitter. Fans, after seeing both Brown and Brouillard in action, started clamoring for a match between these two boys. Charlie Brown, manager of The Mule, likewise pleaded for a bout for his boy with Brouillard. The promoters of the card listened and the match was made.

As in all bouts where the boxers are evenly matched there is a wide divergence in opinion. Some claim that Brown, although a hard hitter, will be unable to do much against the left-handed Danielson boy. Others are confident that Brown will carry the fight to Brouillard and beat him to the punch. There is no doubt that who ever wins the fans are going to get action in great big portions.

The local boys wound up their training yesterday and will confine themselves to light work and drying out today. Young Guoin is confident that he can take Young Corries the same as he has his other opponents. The Taftville boy is gaining plenty of experience and the local fans are much interested in him. Johnny Kop is all set for Joe Barre of Fall River while Al Koziol is anxious to renew his battle with Freddie Bender, another Fall River boy.

The card has been built simply to provide action for the fans and the promoters have gotten together a card that would be hard to duplicate if real punching is wanted. Every bout on the card will be a slugging match and it would not be surprising to see any of them end in a knockout.

EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS TO PUTNAM COUNTRY CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 26—The lodge of the Putnam Country club on the old Lake road south of the city is undergoing extensive renovations. When completed, the club-house will be one of the finest of its kind in the state. The plans adopted, call for the raising of the roof of the main building to make it a two-story structure.

The west side of the added story will contain Dutch dormer windows, which will give the house a most attractive appearance. On the second floor there will be a ladies' locker room, lavatories and a rest room. In another portion of the floor residential quarters for the club professional and his wife will be constructed. They will reside at the club at all times. The presence of some responsible party living at the country club the year round will be a new feature this season.

Alterations will also be made on the first floor of the present building. In the men's locker room, arrangements planned include new marble showers, another new feature. A luncheon room will also be built on the first floor. The operation of this new facility will be supervised by the wife of the golf professional, Byron D. Bugbee, a member of the board of governors, said this afternoon that work on the clubhouse would be completed shortly ater the opening of the coming season.

AN OUTSIDER WINS LINCOLNSHIRE HANDICAP

LINCOLN, England, March 26—(AP)—A French-bred outsider, M. Boussac's Leonidas II, won the Lincolnshire handicap over the mile distance here today to open England's flat racing season with a sensational upset. It was the 74th running of the first big stake race of the year and the third victory for a French owner since the war.

Leonidas II, held at 66 to one in the betting only last night, confounded the form players to show the way to a field of 31 thoroughbreds in the £1,000 stake. Another outsider, Culsean, owned by J. McLean, was second, three lengths behind the winner, and a third, Sir G. Noble's Night Error, took third place.

HORNE UNDERGOES BRAIN OPERATION AFTER BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, March 26—(AP)—Condition of Oliver Horne, of New York, University of Pennsylvania boxing captain, operated upon for a clot on the brain, was said by university hospital physicians tonight to be satisfactory, although still serious.

Horne was taken to the hospital after he had suffered considerable punishment in his semi-final 160-pound class bout with William Struble, of Pennsylvania State, in the intercollegiate championships here last Saturday.

AL BEAUREGARD GIVEN VERDICT OVER DURANO

(Special to The Bulletin)

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., March 26—Al Beauregard of Norwich, Conn., won a clean-cut decision over Mickey Durano of New York in an eight round semi-final on the card here tonight. Beauregard won his bout through his aggressiveness and had Durano on the defensive practically all of the bout. Beauregard took six of the eight rounds by good margins. Durano was a tall rangy boy with a long jabbing left hand that bothered the Norwich boy in the early rounds.

ERNEST RAMSAY TO BE PRO AT PUTNAM CLUB

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 26—At a recent meeting of the board of governors of the Putnam Country club, Ernest Ramsay, professional at the municipal golf course in Springfield, Mass., was named to succeed Chester E. "Chet" Irwin, professional at the local club last year, whose resignation became effective at the close of the 1929 season.

J. Dyer Potter, a member of the board of governors said this morning that in selecting Mr. Ramsay to succeed Mr. Irwin, the board feels that it has placed a reliable man in charge of the club and the course. Mr. Ramsay is a young man. He is married and has had a number of years experience as an amateur and professional golfer. He is reputed to be an excellent player and instructor and is a master club-maker.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay will arrive in Putnam on April 1, and will reside at the club house on the Park street extension road, as soon as extensive alterations being made on the club are completed. Mrs. Ramsay will have charge of the new club restaurant to be opened this season. She is an experienced grill mistress and during her husband's service at the Springfield course, directed a successful enterprise of this nature there.

BITGOOD RETURNS TO COACH AGGIE TRACKMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, March 26—Paul E. Bitgood, coach of the Connecticut Aggie varsity track team, has returned to Storrs after spending the greater part of the college year on leave at Springfield college where he was engaged in graduate work, and the squad will be under his direction for the remainder of the season.

The track coach had a meeting of the squad as soon as he returned and outlined the season's objectives and a schedule of practice for his men.

Material for the team is not abundant, and the absence of veterans from the squad has largely affected the team's chances for an unusually successful season. Chubbuck, White, Barnes, and Gwin have shown good form to date. Chubbuck, who was star center on the Aggie quintet and who holds several college and intercollegiate records, is the mainstay of the Aggie team. He is entered in the Pean relay in the discus and decathlon events.

The schedule for the Aggie track team is as follows: April 25, Norwich university, at Northfield, Vt.; May 3, Rhode Island State at Kingston, R. I.; May 17, E. I. A. A. meet, at Worcester, Mass.; May 20, Trinity college, at Hartford; May 24, N. E. I. A. A meet, at Boston, Mass.

OXFORD'S GOLFERS WIN AGAIN FROM CAMBRIDGE

HOYLAKE, Eng., March 25—(AP)—Led by three youthful Americans, whose long hitting and accurate putting caused the gallerites to wonder why at least one of them was not on the Walker cup team, the Oxford golfers defeated Cambridge today for the first time since 1926.

Oxford, captained by Robert H. Baugh, Jr., Rhodes scholar from Birmingham, Ala., won by a score of 12 matches to 3, taking four of yesterday's five foursomes and eight of the ten singles today.

Captain Baugh took the measure of Eric Prain, Cambridge leader by a margin of 4 and 3. Another hard driver from the United States, Charles Sweeney, of New York and London, overwhelmed W. C. Carr, of Cambridge, 6 and 5, while the third member of the Yankee trio, Harry Scheftel, of New York and Paris, emerged victorious over J. D. Kerr, of Cambridge, one up, after an uphill battle.

CARNERA FLATTENS TRAFTON IN 54 SECONDS OF FIGHTING

KANSAS CITY, March 26—(AP)—It took Primo Carnera just 54 seconds here tonight to flatten George Trafton, Chicago heavyweight aspirant who became the twelfth knockout victim of the ponderous Italian in his American boxing campaign.

The prodigious Primo used only half a dozen blows to win one of his shortest fights on record. Trafton, whose chief claim to ring fame was a victory over Art "The Great" Shires, who has gone back to first-baseing for the Chicago White Sox, was knocked down three times in rapid succession and seemed satisfied to remain prone the last time.

Carnera weighed 271 1-2 pounds and appeared bigger alongside Trafton, a former football player who scaled 229.

WATTS POSTS $1,000 TO CHALLENGE BATTALINO

HARTFORD, March 26—(AP)—State Boxing Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue, announced tonight that he had received a check for $1,000 from Ed Fitzgerald, manager of Timmy Watts, who wants to meet "Bat" Battalino, of Hartford for the world's featherweight championship. The check was sent with his challenge to confirm Watts' and his manager's good intentions of going through with the bout if arrangements could be made. Watts has defeated some of the best featherweights in his campaign in the south and has fought several times in Connecticut, one of his recent feats being a victory over Sammy Gelber, at New Haven. He was described by Commissioner Donohue as a "logical contender."

PHILLIES DOWN THEIR HOME TOWN OPPONENTS

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 26—(AP)—Scoring their first victory over a major league opponent, this year, the Philadelphia Nationals spilled the world champion Philadelphia Athletics today, 5 to 2.

"Sugar" Sweetland featured the game for the Phillies, pitching brilliantly for his five inning term. Lefty O'Doul crashed two doubles for the Phils and Jimmy Dykes had two hard hit doubles for the champions. Score:

You've all heard about the stories of the absent-minded professor and the queer things he did. But here's one that will tie any of them—and it's true.

In an Eastern Connecticut city is a young man, married not so long ago, and very much in love with his wife as all newly married men should be.

Never does this young man leave his home without imprinting one of those husbandly kisses on her brow. And after a year of married bliss these kisses have become a habit as well as a thing of pleasure.

It makes no difference if he is just going across the street to mail a letter or to the office, friend wife is kissed, and it might be said in passing that she enjoys it too.

Into the home, not so long ago, came a little stranger. Wrong, again. The husband bought a little puppy. As the dog grew he was taught to shake hands and do nice things that nice dogs are taught.

Now the husband had an added duty. After kissing his wife he shakes hands with the dog and the little fellow watches his master as he goes down the street. This has become a rite in the family.

But, as in all well regulated families especially married ones, the man committed a faux pas. It came to this trio of playmates like a bolt from the blue.

The man, under the pressure of business, which is as good an excuse as any, was in one of those absent-minded moods the other morning. You know, when he looks at you he just don't seem to see you, a far-away look in his eye.

Breakfast over, the man grabs his hat and starts for the door. Friend wife is a little tardy in being there but the dog is waiting for his handshake.

The man whose mind is anything but on the things of the moment sees the dog. His subconscious mind tells him something should be done.

He did it. He stooped and implanted a resounding kiss on the furry brow of the dog. Which was most surprised, man or beast, would be hard to tell. If dogs laugh it is safe to say there was a canine chuckle.

But there was a real peal of human laughter from the other side of the room. Friend wife had seen the performance. "You better come over and shake hands with me now, to make it complete," said she.

A very much chagrined husband was brought sharply back from his day-dreaming.

He kissed his wife and shook hands with the dog in the approved routine of farewell.

GAMMAS TO REPRESENT NORWICH IN STATE LEAGUE

The Gammas club, two-time champs of the local Church league, will represent Norwich in the state Church league basketball tournament to be held within the next week or so. Competition will start in a few days with each team playing in its drawn opponent at home and abroad. Norwich has drawn Hartford for its opposition.

This is the first time Norwich has been entered in this competition but the Gammas, who have romped through the local loop with ease both in 1929 and 1930, seem to be capable of carrying the Rose City banner.

MAUREEN ORCUTT LEADS GLENNA BY 10 STROKES

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 26.—(AP)—Lounging comfortably around the clubhouse today, Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., saw her brilliant 154 for the first 36 holes of the women's Mid-South golf tournament here withstand the assaults of a half dozen entries, including the American champion, Miss Glenna Collett, and retain the lead at the end of the second round play.

The tall blonde shot-maker from New Jersey shot a great 78 yesterday before the gale and rain set in.

Glenna Collett faced weather conditions today almost as bad as yesterday. A cold, driving windstorm swept the links as she made her round in 84, three strokes less than she took yesterday. The 84 with her 80 Monday placed her in fifth position with 164, ten strokes behind the leader.

The American champion had only six par holes today. Her driving was erratic, her approaches short and she needed three putts on one green. Her round today practically eliminated her from championship consideration.

Her card:

Par Out ....34 448 544—35
Collett Out ....445 544 745—43
Par In ....345 463 434—36—71
Collett In ....445 474 544—41—84

Three other scores made in spite of the elements yesterday placed their owners in the forefront and within striking distance of the leader. Four strokes behind Miss Orcutt is Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, with 160, while Marian Bennett, young star from New England, is third with 161. Mrs. John Arends, of Chicago, is next with 165, while Miss Collett dropping from second place at the end of the first round, is fifth at the completion of the 36 holes play.

Among others at the top are Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, with 166 and Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., with 168. Playing her worst tournament golf in many months, Helen Hicks, Hewlitt, L. I., star, was 16 strokes behind the leader with 170.

None of the other golfers who played their rounds over today had a chance at the title. Helen Morrison, Pittsburgh, added a 104 to her 97 Monday for 201; Mrs. E. G. Fauntleroy of Lake Forest, Ill., added a 105 to her first round 90 for 195; Elizabeth Grover, of Southern Pines, had 110 to couple with her 108 Monday for 218, while Mary Olmstead, of Southern Pines, had 124 today to add to her 133, Monday for a 257.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

NEW SAFE FUMIGANTS PROTECT STORED GRAIN

Continued search for effective fumigants which are non-inflammable and non-explosive has resulted in the development of several new fumigants which show much promise, according to specialists of teh U. S. department of agriculture. Insect damage to stored grain amounts to many millions of dollars annually, and farmers bear a large part of the loss.

Carbon disulphide has long been the standard fumigant for exterminating such insect pests as the corn weevil and grain moths which infest wheat in storage. This fumigant is cheap and effective, but it is highly inflammable, and the gas produced is explosive. Consequently, many farmers have been reluctant to use it although suffering heavy losses every year.

Among the newer and safer fumigants are mixtures of carbon disulphide with materials which are non-inflammable such as carbon tetrachloride. One such mixture consists of a small proportion of carbon disulphide in carbon tetrachloride, to which may be added a small quantity of sulphur dioxide or other chemicals. Some of these mixtures are relatively free from fire hazard.

Another new fumigant is made from ethylene dichloride and carbon tetrachloride. This produces a gas that can be used safely where carbon disulphide would be dangerous. The ethylene dichloride, a colorless liquid with an odor resembling chloroform, is the active ingredient in this mixture.

Ethylene oxide, a gas recently developed by the bureau of entomology in cooperation with the bureau of chemistry and soils, shows promise of being an excellent fumigant for stored grain when used in combination with carbon dioxide. The carbon dioxide is added to reduce fire hazards, and at the same time increase the effectiveness of the fumigant. Seven parts of carbon dioxide are used with one part of ethylene oxide.

In spite of the fact that carbon disulphide is highly inflammable. Its cheapness and effectiveness combine to make it perhaps the best fumigant for farmers, whose grain bins are usually located some distance from other buildings. The department specialists feel that the new fumigants, at their present stage of development, will appeal more to grain dealers and elevator men, who face much greater fire hazards.

KIDNEY WORM IS EXPENSIVE PEST OF SWINE INDUSTRY

Hog producers, especially in the south, lose millions of dollars each year from depredations of the swine kidney worm, an internal parasite. The kidney worm causes abscess conditions and scar tissue in the kidney, kidney fat, lungs, liver, pancreas and parts of the muscular tissue of swine. The injuries not only interfere with growth and development of pigs, but result also in extensive condemnations of these parts of the carcass on post-mortem examination in federally inspected meat-packing establishments. The pest lives for a part of its life cycle in the soil, so infestation may be prevented to a considerable degree by having the pigs farrowed in clean pens and raising them on clean soil.

Scientists of the bureau of animal husbandry, U. S. department of agriculture, say the parasite may affect swine of all ages and is spread by eggs voided by infected animals. The eggs hatch in the soil and the young worms are picked by young pigs or by mature hogs. Control measures, therefore, in part consist of sanitary methods of management, such as keeping new pigs in clean fields which are high and well drained and have not been pastured by swine for at least a year, or in fields which have been plowed and are growing a cultivated crop.

Another aid in controlling the pest is the use of sanitary watering equipment and self-feeders in the pens during the suckling period. These practical devices reduce much of the infection that may be spread by infected sows. Properly balanced rations which include a mineral mixture of tankage, salt, and ground limestone promote rapid and even and early maturity. Control measures strike at the weak points of the life cycle of the parasite and make effective methods known of preventing losses from kidney worms.

POULTRY REQUIRES MINERALS IN FEED

Minerals are as essential in the poultry ration as proteins, or carbohydrates, or any of the vitamins, but they will only serve the functions for which nature intended them and will not take the place of any of the other necessary part of the ration in the opinion of Dr. R. W. Bethke of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment station.

Mineral feeding may be overdone, he says and poultrymen should use discretion and common sense in making up their poultry ration. He warns poultrymen not to take stock in the claims of salesmen that minerals would take the place of such things as vitamins or meat scrap in their ration. Although the different minerals show different degrees of availability in the chemistry laboratory they do not show differences in the growth of the chicks. Egg shell formation seems to be best when the minerals are fed in the carbonate form.

Dr. Bethke seriously questions whether there is any difference in the results produced from feeding so-called "organic" or "inorganic" minerals. He says that the question of whether they are "organic" or "inorganic" depends on the individual point of view. Too little mineral matter in the ration results in leg weakness or rickets in the growing chick which cannot be overcome by cod-liver oil or sun light. Meat scrap and milk contain large quantities of calcium and phosphorous so when these are included in the ration the supply of minerals from other sources need not be as great as when most of the ration is made up of grains. Grain and protein supplements contain enough of the essential mineral elements, except calcium and phosphorus, so that they need not be provided for separately in the ration.

NITROGEN MOST SATISFACTORY AS A FERTILIZER

From the results of tests it would seem that a rational program for vineyards would include annual applications of quickly available nitrogen for more and better fruit, and for greater cane and leaf growth; and phosphorous for the stimulation of better stands of green-manure crops, which in turn favorably affect soil tillage, Professor F. E. Gladwin of the Geneva (N. Y.) experiment station advises.

Some growers assert that they can make a little money with grapes selling at $40 a ton, provided that they can grow normal to slightly above yields of fruit that will grade U. S. No. 1 table, Professor Gladwin says. For other growers to make a profit, double the selling price would be required, though the two groups might make the same expenditures in growing.

Long-continued fertilizer, manure, and green-manure tests with the concord grapes have plainly shown that the quickly available nitrogen has produced larger yields than either potassium or phosphorous, or both; and that the fruit from the nitrogen-treated vines was in excess of no fertilizer. When the costs of the fertilizer treatments have been charged against the increase in its use, there has been in most seasons a substantial profit. The total gain over the entire period is many times the fertilizer expenditure. The nitrogen-fertilized grapes have surpassed those from the other treatments in quality.

Potassium has contributed but little to increased yields, or fruit of superior quality as compared to no treatment. Phosphorous has not been measurable either in fruit or growth of cane. Green-manures have not affected fruit production or cane growth, but have improved soil texture, thus facilitating tillage operations. Phosphorous has favored the growth of most of the green-manure crops tested.

ADVISES AN EARLY SPRAY FOR PSYLLA

The "early bird" long has been held in high regard for being on the spot at the opportune time to seize the worm, but pear growers will probably put their trust in early sprays, particularly oil sprays, when they learn of their advantages in combating the troublesome pear psylla as outlined in a statement prepared by F. H. Hartzell, associate entomologist at the New York state experiment station who has made a special study of the control of psylla with oils. The psylla is regarded as the worst insect pest of pears encountered in eastern orchards and if left to itself, often results in almost total loss of marketable fruit.

"Oil sprays should be applied to pear trees in the spring before growth starts but after danger of severe freezing weather is past," says Mr. Hartzell. "If adult psylla are present on the trees, spraying should be done during the first warm spring days. The buds may be somewhat swollen, but little of the yellowish green areas should be apparent on the bud scales. Unless there is danger of the buds advancing too rapidly, it is desirable to have the temperature at about 55 degrees.

"It is important that the oil be on the trees before many eggs are laid, even though the oil residue will kill the young psyllas as they hatch. A single thorough application of an oil spray, covering every part of the tree, including the trunk and watersprouts, will give adequate protection against psylla at least until July. Should the insects appear on the trees at that time, they can be controlled with nicotine sprays.

An Idea For Retailers

SUCCESS lies not so much in location and lines carried—though these are important—as in the ability to recognize unusual opportunities and the ambition to take advantage of them.

For instance, here's a proven principle in business. While new customers are necessary to replace those who quit buying for one reason or another, the most prolific source o' business is the regular customer list

So, every time you make a sale, why not slip into the delivery package a little friendly printed reminder of the lines you sell, their merits from this or that standpoint. It will be the means of many an extra sale on the customer's next visit to the store

Then, just another step to new sources of business. Employ two or three dependable boys to carry that same printed message to the homes in your neighborhood. Try it. You'll be surprised at the profitable returns.

BULL MOVEMENT IN UTILITY ISSUES FEATURE OF THE MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—A roaring bull movement in the utility shares developed in today's stock market, reminiscent of that of the closing months of the so-called Coolidge-Hoover market, powerful speculators for the rise turned to the utility shares late in the session after strenuous efforts in other sections of the list began to encounter considerable resistance.

The tape reeled off dozens of transactions of 5,000 to 35,000 shares. These wholesale operations boosted the day's sales across the 5,000,000 mark for the first time since December 20.

The day's bull movement was primarily a movement of selected stocks. Oils were for the most part allowed to lag, although Standard of New Jersey was sent up a couple of points further into new high ground. Rails were largely neglected, and activity in the industrial shares was discriminating.

The day's business news was definitely more cheerful, and feeling that with the first signs of the spring upturn appearing, the time was ripe for a demonstration that would attract wide attention, the bull party let loose its choicest fireworks.

The weekly freight car loadings figures were decidedly more cheerful than those of recent weeks.

The weekly steel trade reviews, while rather conservative in tone, pointed to a slight increase in steel production this week as a cheering development, after the succession of declines since mid-February.

Such shares as American Power and Light, American Water Works, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and Light, North American, Public Service of N. J., United Corp. and United Gas Improvement rose 3 to 9 points to new high for the recovery. Western Union regained all but a fraction of yesterday's 12 point drop. General Electric was an active feature of the industrials, rising more than 2 points to a new 1930 high at 80 1-4, a block of 36,000 shares changing hands on the way up. Commercial Solvents was also turned over in huge volume, rising about 2 points to a new peak. A. M. Byers rose about 5 points to a new high, but lost half its gain later. The American Tobacco shares, Corn Products, Raybestos Manhattan, Bullard Co., Checker Cab, and Westinghouse Electric sold up 3 to 7 points. U. S. Steel closed only about a point higher. A wide sprinkling of stocks closed lower, including Goodyear and United Carbon, off 2 and 3 points. Losses of a point or so were numerous.

Credit conditions showed little change. Call money eased a little, renewing at 3 1-2 per cent, and holding at that level through the day. Time money and bankers acceptances were firm at the higher rate inaugurated this week.

It was regarded as a foregone conclusion that brokers loans tomorrow would show a sharp gain. Wall street understands that federal reserve officials do not favor a further reduction in the rediscount rate.

Commodities were mostly steady. Wheat closed 1-4 to 3-4 of a cent higher, influenced by bullish weather and crop reports. Corn closed practically unchanged. Cotton futures were $1 higher to 50 cents a bale lower.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Both sterling and francs reacted a little from their recent high levels, sterling cables ruling at $4.86 3-4, off 1-4. The Canadian dollar which went to a slight premium on Monday, was at a discount of 1-16 of a cent.

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Reports were in circulation today that the United Aircraft & Transport Corp., holding company for a number of aeronautical concerns, was negotiating for acquisition of the National Air Transport, Inc. Stocks of both companies were particularly strong on the New York Stock exchange. National Air Transport operates air mail routes between Chicago and New York and Chicago and Dallas.

The net operating income of the Central railroad of New Jersey for February amounted to $520,729, compared with $697,674 in the corresponding month of last year.

Directors of the Florsheim Shoe Co., of Chicago, have authorized a reduction in the outstanding preferred stock from $5,741,000 to $4,231,000.

The Fox Film Corp., has extended the expiration date of the rights to subscribe to new stock and debenture bonds to April 10.

The American Tobacco Co. reports that the February sales of its leading brand of cigarettes approximated 429,000,000 more than in February, 1929, bringing the gain for the first two months of the year to about 1,128,000,000.

With the automobile tire factories at Akron, Ohio, and elsewhere showing increased operation, members of the rubber exchange of New York have correspondingly increased their estimates of crude rubber consumption for the month. They now figure that between 38,000 and 39,000 tons will be used, compared with previous estimates ranging between 37,000 and 38,000 tons.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—A spectacular buying movement in the power and light stocks, more than a dozen of which moved into new high ground, featured the irregularly higher price movement in today's curb market, total sales set a new high record for the year at 1,724,800 shares.

American Light & Traction soared 23 points to a new high record at 308 on the announcement of a 4 for 1 stock splitup, but fell back to 296 at the close. The new stock was admitted to trading on a "when issued" basis and sold between 73 and 75. Electric Bond & Share, which has been lying rather dormant for several days, shot up nearly 7 points to a new high above 107. Electric Power & Light optional warrants soared more than 10 points in sympathy with the rise in the stock on the "big board" and retained all but a point of their gain.

American Gas & Electric ran up more than 7 points to a new top at 151 1-4. Cities Service crossed 40 for the first time this year. New 1930 highs also were registered by Middle West Utilities preferred, Pennsylvania Water & Power, Peoples Light & Power "A," United Corporation warrants and United Light & Power "A." Natural gas stocks quieted down somewhat, United Gas closing unchanged while Lone Star was pushed up to another new top.

Oils made further progress in the face of some profit-taking in recent strong spots. Humble ran up more than 5 points to a new high above 116, and lost about a point of its gain. Indian Territorial, Ohio Oil and Standard Oil of Kansas broke into new high ground but Standard Oil of Ohio dropped 4 1-2 points. Unofficial predictions of higher crude and gasoline prices accompanied the advance in this group.

Deere & Co. (old stock) scored a spectacular gain of 45 points by touching a new high at 715, which contrasts with the year's low of 435. The new stock soared 10 points to 147 but lost 2 points of its gain. A. O. Smith was another sensational performer, closing 17 1-4 points higher at 240, after touching a new top at 244 1-2. American Chain, General Alloys, Insurance Co. of North America, Irving Air Chute, St. Regis Paper and Sentry Safety Control were among the many specialties to sell at their best prices of the year.

Public participation in the curb market has shown a marked expansion during the past week as a result of the strong buying support accorded the utility, oil and other leading issues. Buying orders are reported to have been particularly heavy from middle and far western points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 26—(AP)—Unaware that the government report issued after the close would make a relatively bearish exhibit as to intended plantings, wheat traders advanced prices today. Private advance estimates were that official figures on prospective domestic spring wheat acreage this season would show a reduction of about 10 per cent, whereas the government report put the expected total at 20,107,000 acres, against 20,973,000 acres last year. Today's upturns in wheat values were ascribed largely to buying on the part of farm board allies and to urgent need of rain southwest.

Wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 7-8 cents higher. Corn closed unchanged to 1-4 cent off, oats 1-8-3-8 cents up, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Lively upturns in wheat values came about after early setbacks that resulted from weakness of Liverpool quotations. Commission houses that took the buying side of the market based their action chiefly on reports that dry areas in Oklahoma and Kansas were badly short of moisture. Sedgwick county, Kansas, noted that dearth of moisture has been severe for 60 days past, and that the country would have the smallest wheat crop since the World war. Blaine county, Oklahoma, one of the largest wheat producers in that state, complained that many wheat fields were put into cotton, and that the outlook was for a light yield of wheat.

Forecasts of snow for Kansas and Oklahoma, however, led to considerable selling of wheat. In addition export demand for North American wheat was disappointing, total purchases being only about 200,000 bushels and exclusively Canadian. Another bearish factor was announcement that France might have as much as 16,000,000 bushels of wheat available yet this season for export. Contributing likewise to nervousness in the market here was an unusual amount of spread transactions between May and July, with numerous traders selling May and buying July. Purchases for government sponsored agencies apparently were confined to the May delivery.

Corn and oats derived firmness from the fact that weather conditions were extremely unfavorable for corn movements as well as field work.

Provisions tended upward, influenced by the trend of hog values.

Closing indemnities:

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 26—(AP)—Turnover in bonds listed on the New York Stock exchange was the smallest in about three weeks today. Prices held firm. Considerable interest was shown in new issues, but most of this buying appeared to be with new funds and consequently seasoned obligations suffered only slightly, if at all, from switching operations.

The strongest group was the foreign section, where several new highs were recorded, among them Belgium 7s and German Republic 7s. The last named bond was very active, rising to 109 7-8 against its previous high of 109. The close of 109 3-8 represented a net gain of 3-8.

Money was steady. Call loans remained at the renewal figure of 3 1-2 on the anniversary of the 20 per cent rate, while time loans were virtually unchanged.

Convertibles traded quietly until the last half hour when the bullish enthusiasm for stocks carried a few of the bonds higher. American Telephone 4 1-2s were conspicuous in this advance, soaring 2 3-4 points to the new 1930 peak of 169 1-2 for a net gain of 3 3-4. Commercial Investment Trust 5 1-2s rose nearly 2 points. Texas corporation 5s advanced fractionally.

The market for the rails was rather thin. A few of the utilities were active.

WANTED: OWNER FOR ONE OLD WAR FLEET

BIZERTA, Tunis—(AP)—This city has in its harbor a fleet of warships which nobody seems to own or care about.

The fleet includes a dozen ironclads which before the war were formidable fighters. They were then part of the fleet of the Russian Czar, and later were captured by General Wrangel.

When General Wrangel abandoned his effort to overthrow the Bolsheviks, the fleet came to Bizerta. This was in November, 1920. They have been here ever since.

France proposed to sell the vessels in 1923. They then were valued at $300,000,000. But the U. S. S. R. notified France that the fleet was soviet property.

France answered that she recognized this but until she also recognized the soviet government, the later could not have the fleet—and in the meantime France did not guarantee to keep the ships in condition.

This was a diplomatic answer—France's terms for the recognition of Russia included the payment of $600,000,000 Russian imperial bonds owned in France. These negotiations came to nothing.

When France finally recognized the soviet, there was some doubt whether the fleet was worth moving to Russia to sell for junk. There is still more doubt today.

SIR WALTER RALIGH

In 1584, with a grant of land from Queen Elizabeth, Raleigh formed a settlement of one hundred colonists in Roanoke, in the new land named Virginia. Sir Walter introduced tobacco to the nobles of England. In later years tobacco passed as legal tender in Virginia. The object of our well-equipped organization is to attend to every detail of the ceremony with polite, degnified ability.

POETRY

Good Old Vermont Times

Gorry! how the times have changed
 Sense I was a shaver;
If some king would bring 'em back
 He'd confer a favor;
F'rinstance, wish I had some ham
 With a cob-coal flavor.

Wouldn't mind to crank the churn
 'Pon a Juney morning,
Or to see saltpeter, salt
 And beef around for corning;
Better than be scart to death
 By some scorcher's horning.

Often wish I owned a crock
 Of lawful piccalilli;
'Nough red pepper in it so
 'Twouldn't swaller chilly;
Isn't much to eat or drink
 Sense we walloped Willie.

Could I go to school again,
 Wouldn't mind the going,
'Twouldn't cost the town a cent
 For the to-and-froing.
Copper toes would trudge right on
 Crosslots through the mowing.

Chilblains used to smart a bit,
 Didn't block the game, though;
Down we'd fall and bark a shin,
 But we wasn't lame, though;
Roads sometimes was glareful ice,
 S'lectmen wa'n't to blame, though.

Haven't took a codfish home,
 Wrapped in clean brown paper,
For so long I've plumb forgot
 How I done the caper;
Haven't scraped my boots for years—
 Hain't no boots nor scraper.

All old times are always good,
 Says an English poet;
Guess he's right, the times I've seen
 Seem to sorter show it;
Never mind, while I can talk
 Let the blamed times go it.

—Daniel L. Cady, in Burlington Daily News.

Sunshine

Sing a song of sunshine;
 Smile a bit, and see
How much less of sorrow
 In the world there'll be.
Send the light of laughter
 Tinkling through your tears—
Send a song of sunshine
 Singing down the years.

Sing a song of sunshine;
 You should never let
Gloom enshroud your spirit;
 You should never fret
Over trifling troubles
 Here today and gone—
Sing a song of sunshine,
 Then keep singing on.

Sing a song of sunshine;
 Let sweet nature teach
That, though days be many,
 There's joy for each.
When your own heart's aching
 Dully through and through,
Cheer some soul who suffers
 More by half than you.

Sing a song of sunshine;
 Brothers, do you hear?
Sunshine puts a rainbow
 Into every tear.
Though the skies be cloudy
 Play they're clear and blue—
Keep a song of sunshine
 In the heart of you.

—Strickland W. Gillilan.

She's A Champion

Santa Monica's oldest civic leader is one of the city's best story tellers. In a contest in story telling, Mrs. D. G. Stephens, at 92, would be a formidable competitor. Who would not back her with the story she told Tuesday evening, before the welfare council?

It illustrates how far behind many people are in understanding social service work. By the time they comprehend some of the fundamentals the ship of service has moved miles ahead.

A stuttering Irish sailor tried repeatedly to tell the captain something but could not get it out of his system until the officer in exasperation, shouted at him: "Well sing it then." He sang:

"Should old acquaintance be forgot, and never brought to mind,
Your good old cook fell overboard and is twenty miles behind."

Palace Theater

"Wide Open" and "The Woman Racket" are the two pictures which compose the big double feature bill playing at the Palace theater at this time. The first of them is another great comedy involving Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller, while in the second one we meet our old friends, Tom Moore and Blanche Sweet, again.

You've laughed at Horton before. You've howled as you've watched him in "The Sap," "The Aviator" and "The Hottentot." Well you haven't seen a thing yet. Ask anybody who went to the opening performance yesterday. You will be told that Horton in the role of a sort of weak-kneed bookkeeper is a perfect scream.

Horton plays the part of timid Simon Haldane, a man who liked to be left alone, and who was of an inventive turn of mind, only nobody seemed to give him much credit for the brains he had. In fact he was considered pretty much of a dead loss by everybody, and somehow, after taking a look at him, you could hardly blame the world for thinking what it did of him. But one day he gets a cold in his nose, sniffles like a weakfish and goes home. Then the excitement begins, and oh boy what excitement there is! Before it's all over you'll be holding your sides and gasping with laughter and admiration as fate plays with the poor bookkeeper, almost puts him down for the count a couple of times, but eventually—but come and see for yourself.

"The Woman Racket" is an unusual drama. It gets away from the old hackneyed themes and presents life in the raw. Here is the situation. A night club hostess, tired of her life, eager to get away from all the glare and glitter of her work, ready for anything. She meets and marries a policeman, settles down for awhile, becomes tired of the humdrum life, and makes up her mind to fly the coop. She flies, with a millionaire, back to her old club and to the old life again. Then occurs a battle—one side love and loyalty, the other the Underworld! Fighting to hold her, while her husband struggles to get her back. It is a stirring theme!

Starting Saturday the Palace presents the famous Eddie Dowling in "Blaze o' Glory," a grand romance of the sea.

Broadway Theatre

Again forging to the front with a gigantic double-feature program the Broadway entertained crowds yesterday with "Roadhouse Nights," a gripping story of the bootleg racket in the home of racketeering, Chicago and its suburbs. Charles Ruggles, that sociable souse, is well cast as a boozy reporter sent out to investigate the disappearance of a brother-scribe who had investigated the racket, not wisely but too well, and who had stopped a sudden bullet. Fred Kohler is the gang-leader, cool, calm, deliberate but ruthless. Helen Morgan displays her charms as a cabaret hostess, and that famous team of comics, Clayton, Jackson and Durante, rivals of the Marx Brothers, deliver some side-splitting comedy. Thrills follow laughs in rapid succession in this stirring and timely drama. In the companion picture, Rudy Vallee, that sensational "crooner," makes his first featured screen appearance in "The Vagabond Lover," an interesting story of a "mail-order" musician, who faked his identity to secure a society engagement with his little jazz band and made a tremendous hit, forging rapidly ahead and winning a beautiful girl with his magic voice. Sally Blane, a dainty newcomer, is the girl and Marie Dressler is at her best as a newly rich society climber with "ambitions." The latest Fox movietone news is an added feature of the program which continues through today and tomorrow. The youngsters of the city are all excited over the special show for their benefit Saturday morning, when Hoot Gibson's first talking western picture, "The Long, Long Trail," together with the initial chapter of the thrilling serial play "Tarzan, the Tiger," and other short subjects will be shown. Grown-ups are waiting with no less anxiety for Greta Garbo's initial talking appearance in the tremendous drama Anna Christie at the Saturday matinee.

Breed Theatre

Millions of admirers of the dainty and piquant artiste Janet Gaynor, of 7th Heaven and Sunnyside Up fame, will thrill to her voice coming from the screen when "Christina," Fox Movietone, opens today at the Breed theatre.

It's a long awaited treat to hear the voice of the famous Fox player, a voice which has been characterized by reviewers as "having a soul."

"Christina," based on a story by Tristram Tupper, is a little Dutch girl living on a quaint island in the Zuyder Zee who finds the Prince Charming she has dreamed of in the person of "Jan" (Charles Morton), chief equestrian in a circus which visits the little island. A romance develops, also jealousy on the part of the woman who owns the circus and is in love with "Jan."

The climax comes on the day "Christina" has set apart for her wedding. "Jan" fails to arrive, detained by a jealous rival (Lucy Dorraine). Sooner than break the heart of her blind father, "Christina" decides to go through the wedding ceremony with a local suitor for her hand. This series of incidents calls not alone for the best artistry of little Miss Gaynor but has added drama of potence when her voice is heard.

William K. Howard directed this Fox Movietone talking picture in which Janet Gaynor is featured, and the members of the supporting cast who speak their parts include Charles Morton, Rudolph Schildkraut and Harry Cording.

"Chintz Cottage"

Chintz Cottage, a three act comedy written by Beulah King, and to be presented at Bushnel Chapel by the 3-G Girls of the Central Baptist church on Friday evening, March 28th, promises to provide an unusual evening's entertainment.

Minty, a charmingly attractive girl of twenty, played by Mrs. William Wyman and bored with society, comes from the city to rusticate in the remote village of Meadowbank. She brings with her a maid, which part is played by Mrs. Louis Allen and settles down for a stay of peace and quiet. Then the lid blows off and one exciting event falls on another to start the climax. Minty does not rest but gets a change and incidentally falls heir to a husband. The heroine is Minty's aunt, Miss Tillington, played by Miss Ely Patridge, is "boss" with a matrimonial eye on Mr. Kent. The part of Mr. Kent is played by Mr. William Spencer, well known local contractor. Peter, played by Mr. George Phillips, is the innocent cause for most of the brains while his sister Grace, played by Mrs. John Kingston, helps him in and out of several predicaments. Mrs. Dean, Mr. Kent's sister-in-law is played by Mrs. Henry Jatkowske and Mrs. Dean's part, though short is an excellent bit.

Don't miss seeing this comedy. Tickets can be obtained from class members or at the door.

End Eczema Tortures Forever

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to stop the itching and torture of Eczema instantly, and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from any embarrassing or disfiguring skin trouble would be wise to banish it before it reaches a more or less chronic stage.

Ask any first-class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time, and furthermore, if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. By applying night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

What do you think is needed in this recipe for Hot Chocolate?

Put 2 squares chocolate and a pinch of salt in a saucepan with 1 cup cold water. Boil one minute, stirring the chocolate until it melts. Now add 3 cups milk and heat without boiling. Beat with egg-beater and serve at once.

Anybody who makes hot chocolate frequently knows that sugar is needed in this recipe. Two to four tablespoonfuls according to taste. It is sugar that makes this popular beverage enjoyable.

The taste-appeal of many other foods can be improved by the use of sugar. Sugar on fruits and cereals makes them more inviting and appetising. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt in cooking vegetables improves their flavor so that you eat them with relish. Try a dash of sugar in French dressing.

Doctors and dietitians approve this use of sugar as a flavor even in the preparation of children's meals. There is no reason for essential foods with their vitamins, mineral salts and roughage coming to the table tasteless or flat. And remember that wholesome desserts—puddings, custards, cakes and ice cream have their place in the normal diet. The Sugar Institute.

GREENEVILLE

The Cubs defeated the Greeneville Outlaws Wednesday afternoon on the Shetucket campus diamond by the score of 18 to 17. The features of the game were the heavy hitting of Soboluski for the winners and Varonicke for the losing team. The lineup for the Cubs was as follows: Christiansen, c; Donovan, p; Kirby, 1b; Oullette, 2b; Quinley, 3b; Soboluski, ss; Atchinson, rf; Quinn, rf; Ryan, cf; Michalowski, lf. Pino Quinn was the umpire.

The regular Lenten devotions were observed at St. Mary's Memorial church Wednesday evening. Rev. Arthur Sullivan read the rosary and offered Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament. Rev. Fr. Morriaty of Hartford gave a very inspiring sermon relating to One Church.

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT DIES AT PROVIDENCE

Mrs. Mary Carroll and daughter, Miss Mary Carroll, have returned to their home at 146 Prospect street, after attending the funeral of Mrs. Carroll's niece, Mrs. William Margaret Cavanaugh Sheehan, which was held Wednesday morning from her late home at Providence. Mrs. Sheehan was a former resident of Greeneville, where she was very well known and had a wide circle of friends.

Gold Piece For Birthday

A birthday party was held Saturday evening at the home of Leon Parkhurst of 105 Roath street, in honor of his birthday. The room was prettily decorated in pink, yellow and green. Games, music and dancing were enjoyed. During the evening a gold piece was presented to Mr. Parkhurst. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Florence Parkhurst, assisted by Miss Ethel Parkhurst. Among those present were: Lea LeBel, Blanche Fournier, Alice St. Laurent, Edith Jennes, Anna Cubanski, Stella St. Laurent, Dorothy Jennes, Celia Coderre, Roberta Kinney, Bernice Coderre, Bernice Cedrone, Irene Bentley, Ethel Parkhurst, Florence Parkhurst, Harold Kinne, William Sebastian, Stanley Seraber, William Burnell, Harold Doolley, Chauncey Geer, Francis Herbert, Jack Stewart, Arthur Crooks and Raymond, Clarence, Leon and Edward Parkhurst.

TAFTVILLE

The members of the Fifty-Fifty club gave a clever one act comedy entitled "Parlor Tricks" in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church Tuesday evening, before a large audience. Those taking part were Miss Mary Martin, Miss Lena Martin, Miss Yvette Fontaine, Miss Erna Seifert, Miss Simone Phaneuf and Miss Diane Gouin. Richard Oat also entertained with guitar selections. After the play, which was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience, cake and coffee were served. The social evening was under the auspices of the teachers of the church school and the proceeds were for the benefit of the school treasury.

The week of April 6th to 12th will be set aside in American Legion circles as past officers' week. Special meetings will be held throughout the state and Peter Gallan post, No. 104, will be right in line with a big meeting scheduled to be held at the Naturalization club. It is planned to serve an old fashioned Rhode Island clam chowder under the direction of Comrade Eribeck, and there is to be a speaker from state headquarters, an orchestra and a song leader. All former service men have been invited to attend and it is the earnest wish of the committee that all members of the post be present on Monday, April 7th. Three applications have been accepted for the CMTC and it is hoped that there will be many more by the end of the week.

Rev. Father Seydel of Boston, who is conducting a week's mission for the English speaking members of Sacred Heart church, addressed a large congregation Tuesday evening. The missioner is a member of the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer, generally known as the Redemptorist order, which devotes itself mainly to the preaching of missions. It was founded by St. Alphonsus Ligouri in 1732. The saint wished to form a band of apostolic men who should "preach the Gospel to the poor." The order was approved by Pope Benedict XIV, and has always been distinctly a missionary society. Its members take the usual three vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, and bind themselves also to a vow of perseverance, that is, to remain in the order until death. They are to be found in nearly all the countries of the Roman Catholic world, and they are engaged in missionary labor in many pagan lands.

The preacher took for his topic "Matrimony and the Christian Home," and delivered a most eloquent sermon regarding the church's teachings on matrimony. He asked his hearers to heed the solemn admonition of the Saviour, "Those whom God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." The service came to a close with benediction of the blessed sacrament, with the pastor, Rev. Frederick R. DesSurreault, officiating; the music being by the choir, composed of the members of the English speaking branch of the Children of Mary sodality.

Mrs. Daniel Sweetser of Haverhill, Mass., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Grant and family of the Old Canterbury turnpike.

Mrs. Aubrey Potter and Mrs. John Atterbury motored to Willimantic Tuesday evening to attend a surprise party.

"HIGH BROWS" NO LONGER POPULAR, SAYS STYLIST

Miss May Piper Spear, style expert of the Women's Radio Institute, who appeared Wednesday afternoon at Reid and Hughes store, says that "high-brows" (speaking of millinery) are becoming "passe."

"It's good news for many of us, who've been struggling with the severity of the off-the-brow hat to know that brimmed hats are in again," stated Miss Spear. "The high-brow type of hats are out of the picture entirely. Designers have cleverly manipulated to give an off-the-forehead appearance of many of the brimmed hats, but this 1930 adaptation is not so trying to face.

"With the new and important feminine trend in fashions, a certain amount of trimming is to be expected. But just now hat trimming is confining itself to a discreet use of little feather ornaments or flat bows.

"Materials are as varied as the hat styles themselves. Undoubtedly the many straws displayed show which way the fashion wind blows."

WITHDRAWN FROM DOCKET AFTER SETTLEMENT MADE

Notice has been filed with Clerk John H. Walker that the $10,000 suit brought by Alfred Muench of this city, as administrator of the estate of Charles Muench, late of Norwich, against Malcolm H. Austin of Norwich and Montville, has been withdrawn without costs from the docket of the superior court. This action was taken following a settlement for the reported sum of $4,500, made out of court. The suit arose as the result of the death of Charles Muench on the Norwich and New London highway when struck by a car owned and operated by Austin on Sept. 21, 1929.

CENTRAL VERMONT HAS 1,000 AUTOMOBILE CARS

Pursuing its policy of bringing the railroad up to a high standard of operating efficiency, the Central Vermont railway, a subsidiary of the Canadian National system, has announced delivery of 1,000 specially constructed automobile cars, this following upon the placing in service of ten new freight locomotives that are the largest in New England.

Vice President George A. Gaston stated that the new cars are for use between the middle west and New England points over the Grand Trunk-Central Vermont route.

Speaker at Sales Congress

How to Average an Application Per Call was the topic of an address delivered by Louis M. Crandall of this city, at the 10th annual New England Sales congress, under the auspices of the Boston Life Underwriters association, at Ford hall, Boston, several days ago. In his talk, Mr. Crandall said, that if asked for a definition of salesmanship he would say that it was "Wisdom in action that brings satisfaction."

Mr. Crandall will speak Friday at Bridgeport at the monthly dinner meeting of the Bridgeport Life Underwriters association.

WEST END COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION TO PETITION FOR THREE YEAR PROGRAMME

The West End Community association has a three year programme on which it will prepare petitions to be presented to the common council so as to have these matters placed in the next city budget.

Approval of this programme was expressed at a meeting of the association held Wednesday evening at the Elizabeth street school house, at which President George R. Gifford, presided and the three year programme was discussed.

The association will propose that the city government will meet its requests over a period of three years. In the first year it will ask the improvement of Asylum street from Starr street to Newton street. This section covers the part of the street that does not already have a hard surfaced highway.

In the second year, it will be asked that the city improve Dunham street, putting in a hard surface for the entire length of the street, which at present is often practically impassible at various seasons of the year, due to its muddy condition in spots.

For the third year it is to be proposed that the city provide a new fire station to take the place of the West Main street station. The association will advocate a site some where at the top of the West Side hill.

The meeting also voted to have School Superintendent E. J. Graham address a mass meeting on the subject of the junior high school. The date for this meeting will probably be April 16.

A minsterl show that the association is to carry out was also under discusion at the meeting.

ASKS WHAT COMMUNITY SERVICE BY LEGION POST

Each American Legion post commander in this state will be called upon within a few weeks by the national commander, O. L. Bodenhamer, according to an announcement at national headquarters in Indianapolis, Ind., to report what his post has accomplished on, or above, the minimum program of service to his community, outlined in a recent letter sent to R. O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion. The replies will be compiled in a report which will be made to the national convention, and to congress, in accordance with the charter granted the Legion by congress.

The five activities in the spring program for the Legion consisted of the following:

1—Organize and sponsor at least one Boy Scout troop, making it the best in the community concerned.

2—Organize and foster junior baseball, according to the Legion program—getting every boy, within proper ages, to play according to the Legion rules.

3—Promote a "Safety First" campaign.

4—Install, or help install, a park or playground, where the kiddies can play this summer.

5—Mark your town—see that the name of your city is painted on the top of some building for the benefit of aviators.

The national commander emphasized his desire that every post perform at least five such activities, and if any post had performed one or more of the five listed, that others be substituted.

The membership effort, which has been satisfactory so far in 1930, will reach a climax on April 7 in many states, or departments, with the close of a spring "Round Up," and the minimum program of community service is in the nature of a spring celebration and is in addition to the regular, or, continuous, program of legislative effort, service to the disabled, child welfare, and other work.

LIMIT FOR FILING COMPENSATION CLAIMS

A warning was issued Wednesday by Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, of this city, calling attention to the fact that April 6 is the final time for filing claims for compensation for disability incurred during war service.

It is also the final date for the submission of evidence to support claims on disabilities other than nervous and mental diseases, spinal meningitis, active tuberculosis, paralysis agitans, encephalitis lethargica and amoebic dysentery, unless there is an official record of the injury during service or at the time of discharge.

These limitations are provided in the World war veterans' act as it now stands. The Johnson bill, sponsored by the Legion, now pending in congress, for amending the World war veterans' act, provides for striking out these limitations. The passage of this bill at the present session of congress, however, is not yet a certainty, and the national commander is therefore urging all World war veterans who believe they are entitled to compensation for service-connected disabilities to get their claims on file with the United States veterans' bureau. Doing so now will protect their rights under existing laws should congress fail to strike out the limitations now imposed.

JURY HEARING $25,000 SUIT BY MONTVILLE MAN

Trial of the $25,000 suit brought by Stephen Awezec of Montville against Frank W. Woodworth of New London started before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court at New London Wednesday afternoon.

The suit is a result of an automobile accident Sept. 28, 1929. The plaintiff claims he was riding in a car operated by Alfred Valliere when the Woodworth automobile turned suddenly to the left to enter Gallows lane on the Norwich road and crashed into the Valliere car.

Awezec claims that he was critically injured and that he lost the sight of his left eye, suffered permanent injuries to his right hand, and a fracture of the collarbone besides other injuries.

Awezec is represented by Shields and Shields and Woodworth by Attorneys A. B. O'Keefe and Thomas F. Mitchell.

BRINGS $10,000 SUIT FOR HIS SON'S DEATH

Damages of $10,000 are sought by John Holmgren, from the Corticelli Silk company of New London, as a result of the death of his son, James Holmgren, July 10, 1929, after being struck by a truck, owned by the defendant and operated by Cyrus Branch, an employe of the silk concern. The suit is brought in the superior court for this county and is returnable in April.

Fire Call For Smoking Chimney

Shortly after 1 o'clock Wednesday the fire department was called out by telephone for a supposed fire in the house at No. 59 Cedar street, owned and occupied by Michael Dasrelli. There was considerable smoke on the lower floor of the house but this was found due to the fact that a chimney was filled with soot. Chief Henry R. Taft and Squad A responded to the call.

The suits are a result of an unusual accident which occurred Dec. 13, 1929 at Bank street, and Jefferson avenue, when an automobile owned by Wilkinson and operated by Therrien was left parked on Town hill in New London and through some defect in the application or condition of the brakes the car rolled down the hill and struck and injured the plaintiffs who were standing on the sidewalk at Bank street and Jefferson avenue.

JURY GIVES VERDICTS FOR TWO NORWICH PLAINTIFFS

Paul J. Dumont, trolley car conductor of this city was awarded $850 damages and his wife, Jennie T. Dumont was awarded $125 by a jury at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the superior court at New London in their suit against the Eastern Connecticut Motor Sales company of this city.

The suit arose from an accident here May 14, 1929, when, the plaintiffs alleged, an automobile owned by the defendant and operated by Nelson D. Theroux, salesman for the defendant, crossed the highway and crashed into an automobile, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Dumont, which it was claimed, was at a stop at the time of the crash and far to its own side of the road.

It was claimed that the Dumont automobile was demolished in the crash and that both Mr. and Mrs. Dumont suffered severe injuries, the former claiming he was unable to work for eight weeks and the latter claiming it was necessary to employ a maid for several weeks.

The testimony revealed that Theroux's driver's license was under suspension at the time of the crash. As salesman for the Eastern Connecticut Motor Sales corporation he had Henry Gennes drive for him while making demonstrations but on the night in question Gennes had got out of the car and Theroux was alleged to have driven it himself.

Trial of the case started Tuesday morning. Included among the witnesses were: Dr. John W. Callahan, Arthur J. Shaw, Robert Pellerin, Henry Gennes, Harry Rosoff and Jennie T. Dumont. Attorney G. Curtis Morgan, counsel for the plaintiff, rested his case at 3:20 and Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, counsel for the defendant, rested at 4:10.

Judge Avery charged the jury when court opened Wednesday morning, submitting the case to the jury at 10:58.

A motion for non-suit was denied by Judge Avery before he charged the jury.

VOL. LXXII—No. 75 | NORWICH, CONN., FRIDAY, MARCH 28, 1930. | TWENTY PAGES—160 COLUMNS | PRICE TWO CENTS

INCOME TAX WILL EXCEED $550,000,000 ESTIMATED

First Quarter Payments Had Reached $542,432,341 Last Tuesday—Total March 25 Was $36,000,000 Less Than Collected In the Same Number of Days In March Last Year—Returns Indicate Collections For the Month Will Be About $50,000,000 Less Than the $601,000,000 Collected Last March.

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP)—Receipts from the first quarter's payment of the tax on 1929 incomes were shown today to have reached $542,432,341 on last Tuesday.

This was taken at the treasury as an indication that the estimates of the department of a total of more than $550,000,000 for the month would be borne out.

The collections on March 25 were $9,783,624, which left the total $36,000,000 less than collected in the same number of days in last March and the indicated aggregate for the month approximately $50,000,000 less than the $601,000,000 collected in March of last year.

At the time the tax reduction was decided upon treasury experts had predicted that there would be a surplus of $225,000,000 at the end of the 1930 fiscal year. The tax reduction, however, was estimated to amount to $160,000,000, half of which would come out of the 1930 fiscal year and the other half out of the 1931 fiscal year. This left an indicated surplus of $145,000,000. Since the farm board has been given $100,000,000 but there is a possibility that this money will not be expended until after next June 30.

With an indicated surplus of $45,000,000 if the farm board appropriation is used this year any unexpected appropriations by congress would endanger the balance and a large expenditure might wipe it out. If tax receipts for the second quarter, however, come up to the expectations aroused by the first quarter's receipts the government will end the fiscal year with its budget balanced.

Regardless of the outlook for balancing the budget the government's building program will be carried on for the remainder of the year at an increased speed. The money to provide for this will come out of the treasury over a period of years and will not affect the present year for which appropriations already have been made.

In addition to starting new projects under the terms of the Keyes-Elliott bill passed this week the treasury plans to spend $50,000,000 or more from former appropriations in carrying on this work which will include 50 to 100 projects authorized before but not started.

EAST HAMPTON WOMAN HAD BEEN IN SECLUSION 57 YEARS

EAST HAMPTON, Conn., March 27.—(AP)—To continue for the present her seclusion of 57 years, was the wish of Miss Lillie Wilson, 60, tonight.

After her father, Peter Wilson, 96, has been buried, she said, perhaps she will emerge into the world whose wonders of electric lights, newspapers, trains and high buildings are unknown to her.

Peter, who tilled his soil by hand, died Tuesday night and will be buried tomorrow. A squad of state police will be on guard to warn away strangers, reporters and camera men who attempted today to pierce the veil of solitude surrounding the weather-beaten farmhouse at Middle Haddam.

When his daughter went to a Middletown hospital to visit him shortly before her father's death, it was the first time she had left the farm in 57 years. Never before had she seen an electric light.

Peter ruled her at home with an iron hand. No visitors were permitted and newspapers were banned. He himself made only occasional trips to town. He left an estate of about $50,000.

Miss Lillie expected two sisters, Miss Minna Erickson and Miss Phoebe Wilson, to arrive tonight. They left home years ago, it is said, because of their parents' stern rule.

Peter will be buried in the Hurd Park cemetery near his home.

ANOTHER REVOLT IN MISSOURI PENITENTIARY

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 27.—(AP)—More than 1,300 convicts in the Missouri penitentiary today revolted, the second uprising within 24 hours. The trouble was speedily put down with the use of tear bombs and clubs. About 400 of these most rebellious prisoners were subdued and drastic disciplinary measures were put into effect tonight to prevent further disorders.

Twenty convicts were injured, none seriously, in the outbreak at noon in the main prison dining room after 750 convicts had refused to leave the hall. Prison guards and state militiamen dislodged about 400 of them after 720 others had fled outside under threat of an attack.

Earlier in the day a strike against work by over 500 convicts had forced suspension of operations at prison factories and about 40 per cent of the penitentiary's population had been locked in cells.

No shots were fired during the riot but machine guns were stationed on the prison court, scene of the disorder. The convicts had no weapons.

MOULTHROPE AND LALONE RETURNING TO CONNECTICUT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Thirty minutes after they had been sentenced today to life imprisonment in the penitentiary for the killing of a policeman, Watson Moulthrope and Roland Lalone were on a train back to the Connecticut prison to finish serving terms from which they escaped two months ago.

Edward J. Hickey, Hartford county detective, who secured extradition papers signed by Gov. Doyle E. Carlton at the request of Gov. John Trumbull, of Connecticut, was in charge of the prisoners. Hickey also had in custody Leo Landry, another escaped Connecticut convict, who turned state's evidence. He was not tried for the slaying.

ANXIETY FOR SAFETY OF MISSIONARIES IN KANCHOW

SHANGHAI, March 27.—(AP)—Fears for the safety of sixteen American Catholic missionaries at Kanchow, Kiangsi province, continued to run high in missionary circles here, notwithstanding reports from Canton and Nanking that the bandit and communist armies besieging the city had been dispersed by nationalist government troops.

Mission headquarters also were anxious regarding three Spanish women missionaries, captured by Chinese bandits Feb. 18 in northern Kiangsi and reported killed.

SENATE TO RESTRICT LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Senate leaders have agreed on a restricted legislative program for the rest of the session looking toward adjournment by June 1.

The schedule slated for enactment is confined—aside from the tariff measure and appropriation bills—to the pending proposals to place Muscle Shoals under government operation, to transfer prohibition enforcement to the justice department and to reorganize the federal power commission.

SCULPTOR MARCHAND TELLS OF INTIMACY WITHOUT LOVE

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 27—(AP)—Henry Marchand, sculptor and museum expert, took the witness stand today to tell of an intimacy without love with Lila Jimerson, Seneca Indian on trial for plotting the murder of his wife.

His relations, he told the jury and a packed court room, were established and maintained in the name of "professional necessity". They constituted his method of getting a reluctant model to pose for his Indian museum groups. The method, Marchand testified, had been used with other Indians in other places, notably on a Canadian reservation.

He did not know he told the court, that Lila, disappointed when his attentions ceased, had plotted, as charged by the state, with Nancy Bowen, the Cayuga, to kill Clothilde Marchand.

He did not know, he testified, that Lila had used these to convince the Indian that the little French woman was a white witch who had placed a curse on Chief "Charlie Sanders," her husband, and killed him, and would do the same for her.

He did not know, when he was motoring with Lila Jimerson on the afternoon of the murder, that old Nancy was at the moment beating his wife with a hammer and smothering her. The Marchands had married 33 years ago.

Never at any time in the ten or twelve years he had known Lila, or the two years of their intimacy, Marchand said, had there been any word of marriage between them.

COUPLE DEAD AS RESULT OF DOUBLE SHOOTING

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27—(AP)—Dr. Reisheil M. Gobo, 38, orthopedic physician of this city, and Mrs. Margaret Bitner, 35, of Summerstown, near here, mother of five children and employed by Dr. Goho, were dead here tonight as the result of a double shooting in Dr. Goho's office.

Dr. Goho ran into a physician's office adjacent to his store and told the doctor he had shot himself. The physician found a wound in his neck and summoned an ambulance. The physician died ten minutes after he was admitted to a hospital. He made no statement.

When police arrived at the store they found Mrs. Bitner's body lying in a chair at the rear and a revolver from which five shots had been fired.

Dr. Goho was shot as he attempted to flee from the building. Police said they believed the woman, after shooting her employer, walked to the rear and then shot herself through the heart probably dying instantly.

Dr. Goho is survived by his widow and two children.

Mrs. Bitner had been employed by Dr. Goho for the last 10 years.

FIVE MEN AND THREE BOATS MISSING SINCE MONDAY

MIAMI, Fla., March 27—(AP)—Five men and three boats that had been missing since they left Nassau for Miami Monday were back in Nassau today, according to information received by Hugh Williams, custodian of the coast guard patrol base here. Williams said he did not know that the boats had put into the Bahaman port until he was told they had been there since Monday.

The boats were three of eight that were seized recently during a raid on the coast guard patrol storage base. They later were recovered by government agents. Three of the five men aboard were agents.

Sturm of a manslaughter charge growing out of the death of Mrs. Ruth Weir of East Orange, N. J.

The 49-year-old physician's attorneys, James E. C. Murray and Julius Silver, immediately began a separate indictment charging performance of an illegal operation be dismissed.

HOW WOMAN KNEW MAN WAS TRYING TO KISS HER

PONTIAC, Mich., March 27—(AP)—He who gets fresh occasionally gets slapped, but he may also get the decision.

Lewis Boley learned this when he was brought before Judge H. R. Holland on a charge of attempting to kiss Mrs. Ida Rozenbloom right in the middle of a dance hall.

The court asked Mrs. Rozenbloom how she knew Boley was trying to kiss her.

"I'm married," she replied, "and I know how my husband acts."

"What happened then?" she was asked.

"I slapped him and he slapped me back, and I slapped him again and he slapped me back."

The statutes were consulted but Boley's case was apparently without precedent here. He was released.

MORE REGULAR WORK IN COTTON INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—The Cotton Textile Institute, Inc., has sent Secretary of Commerce Lamont a report saying cotton mills representing more than half the productive capacity of the industry in the United States had subscribed to a program for more uniformity in running time and more regular employment.

The institute said it had been advised that mill executives in New England and the south representing 422,901 looms and 13,494,396 spindles had subscribed to the standards of the program which was recommended to the cotton textile industry by 24 mill executives after a conference with department of commerce officials last January 16.

"This represents approximately 59 per cent of the looms and 54 per cent of the spindles in place in the United States," said the report.

Ont. Liquor System Found Satisfactory

Opinion of Public Was Shown In the Result of the Last Election, Premier Says.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Government control of liquor in Canada will be defended by Premier George Howard Ferguson of Ontario province, if he accepts an invitation from the wet forces to testify before the house judiciary committee in answer to charges by former Premier E. C. Drury, of Ontario, that the system "is an absolute failure."

Plans to invite Ferguson were announced late today by Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, in charge of wet witnesses. He also stated that Pierre S. Dupont, of Wilmington, Delaware, industrial magnate, would be a rebuttal witness to answer charges of dry advocates who assailed him in the hearings.

The house judiciary committee favorably reported the first of the law enforcement commission's recommendations to strengthen the dry laws by authorizing the institution of padlock proceedings against speakeasies, night clubs and other places where liquor is illegally dispensed. The measure would authorize absentee service of summons through publication and posting.

The judiciary committee also considered the Stobbs bill to modify the Jones law by defining misdemeanors and fixing the maximum penalty for first and slight offenses at not more than six months in jail and a fine of $500. The committee will consider several other measures recommended by the enforcement commission to relieve congested federal courts next Thursday.

Appearing for the dry forces yesterday, Drury said bootlegging, drinking in the home, liquor consumption and crime had increased in the dominion under government liquor control. In answer to this, Premier Ferguson said in Toronto, that "the best evidence of satisfaction of the public of Ontario as to the law is shown in the result of the last election."

A move to carry out another recommendation of the law enforcement commission was made late today by Representative Hudson, republican, Michigan, a dry. He introduced a bill to create a border patrol, combining the coast guard, customs and immigration agencies.

The measure also would provide that any vessel or vehicle forfeited to the government after being seized while transporting merchandise illegally into the country be converted to the use of the patrol.

PREMIER OF ONT. WOULD DECLINE INVITATION

TORONTO, Ont., March 27.—(AP)—Premier Howard Ferguson of Ontario indicated today that he would decline if an invitation were tendered him to appear before the judiciary committee of the United States house of representatives in its investigation of prohibition conditions.

"I am sure the committee will realize," he said, "that it is undesirable that the prime minister of this province should attempt to influence the trend of legislation in a friendly foreign country."

FOUR CHILDREN DEAD OF GAS ASPHYXIATION

FREDERICK, Md., March 27—(AP)—The lives of four children, ranging in age from 16 months to eight years, were snuffed out by gas this afternoon, during a twenty minute absence of their mother from the house where they were playing.

The children, Mary Lucille, 8; Myrtle Estelle, 5; Elda Yvonne, 3, and Helen, 16-months, all were found on the floor of the kitchen of the home of Mrs. Joseph H. Bussard, sister of their mother, Mrs. Leslie Shields of Boyd.

Physicians and firemen using inhalators worked over the children for several hours in vain efforts to resuscitate them, even though they already had been pronounced dead by physicians who were called immediately after the bodies were found.

Mrs. Shields had come here to the home of her sister following a quarrel with her husband this morning. The sister was away from home and later Mrs. Shields went to the adjoining house, remaining away but 20 minutes, she said. When she returned she found the bodies and every jet in the kitchen stove open.

Judge Erickson interrupted, "You go to jail for five days for contempt of court."

Nicholas F. Brady Dead At Age Of 51

Gout and Heart Desease Caused Death of Prominent New York Financier.

NEW YORK, March 27—(AP)—Nicholas F. Brady, chairman of the board of the New York Edison company, director of numerous other corporations and a prominent Catholic layman, died at his home here today following an attack of arthritis complicated by heart disease. He was 51 years old.

Mr. Brady had been ill since September, but it was only recently that his condition became serious. Yesterday he lapsed into a coma, but rallied this morning and was reported improved only an hour or two before his death.

In addition to his activities in the New York Edison company, Mr. Brady was a director of the United Electric Light and Power company, the National City company, the National City bank, and the Anaconda Copper company.

An extensive contributor to Catholic charities, he was known as one of the leading Catholic laymen of the United States. He held numerous decorations from Rome, the latest being Ordine Supreme Del Christo of the first class.

In 1926, Mr. Brady gave Pope Pius $1,000,000 for use in the Catholic church and made numerous other Catholic contributions including an altar to St. Teresa at St. Patrick's cathedral here. In recent years he spent much of his time on his Italian estate located just beyond the boundaries of the Vatican state.

During the World war he saw service on the Italian front for almost a year, serving with the American Red Cross with the title of major.

Mr. Brady was born in Albany, N. Y., Oct. 25, 1878 and was graduated from Yale university in 1899. Then came his entrance into the public service activities founded by his father, Anthony N. Brady, who had begun his business career as a neighborhood merchant in Albany. Young Brady joined the New York Edison company, serving in various capacities and eventually succeeding his father as president.

He also succeeded to the executive control of the resources left by his father, whose estate was valued at $77,000,000, and in a little more than ten years after his college graduation was a prominent figure in more than 25 light and heat and transportation corporations and as many banks allied with them.

The list of such companies in which he had holdings and exercised a measure of control increased until his death. His business affairs were conducted unostentatiously and, except when actions were brought against him or his companies in court, he was never conspicuous in public.

DROWNED HER THREE SONS AND THEN HANGED HERSELF

HARRIMAN, Tenn., March 27.—(AP)—A 28-year-old mother hanged herself in her log cabin home and drowned or smothered to death her three young sons some time last night at D'Armond, a hamlet near here, John Hendrix, chief of police of Harriman, said today.

Hendrix said the mother, Mrs. Dorothy Welsh, left a note addressed to an aunt, Lizzie Hammond, saying she was in trouble and asking her aunt to forgive her for her act.

Her husband, Sherman Welsh, left this section recently to find work in railroad yards in Cincinnati. Hendrix said his investigation indicated that Mr. and Mrs. Welsh were on good terms and that the husband recently had sent money for the support of his wife and their three children, Freddie, 8; Edgar, 7, and Sherman, 6.

Relatives today found the body of Mrs. Welsh hanging from a rafter in the kitchen of her little house at D'Armond, and recovered the bodies of the children from a pond near the home. The body of each child was wrapped in blankets, tied at each end.

PLENARY SESSION NAVAL CONFERENCE ON APRIL 4

LONDON, March 27.—(AP)—Active preparation of a treaty to preserve peace in the Mediterranean began today, as an indirect method of bringing France and Italy into a five-power disarmament pact at the London naval conference.

An experts' committee, including Sir Robert Van Sittart, for the British, and Rene Massigli, for the French, was established to draft a Mediterranean treaty which would guarantee French security anew and still not commit Great Britain beyond the obligations already implied in articles 11 and 16, of the league of nations covenant.

The United States and Japan will be expected to approve the pact and to participate in a consultative capacity in the event of threat of war in the Mediterranean.

The conference will devote the next several days to studying that treaty and then, on April 4, the delegations will meet in St. James' palace for the first plenary session in five weeks. Full reports of the technical and political phases of conference work will be made.

CONFESSED MURDER OF MAN WHO GAVE HIM A RIDE

CHRISTIANSBURG, Va., March 27.—(AP)—Self-composed and choosing his words with an exactness that belied his shabby appearance, a 21-year-old wanderer told Montgomery county authorities here tonight how he shot Charles Latham, New York lodging house proprietor, on the outskirts of Christiansburg, last night after Latham had befriended him by allowing him to ride in his automobile from Knoxville, Tenn.

The young hitch-hiker gave his name as James Evans. He gave authorities the name of his home town in the midwest on condition that they would not divulge it to newspapers.

Latham was at the point of death in a Christiansburg hospital late tonight, and attending physicians said they did not think he would survive until morning.

M'NEIL ELECTED DEM. NAT'L COMMITTEEMAN FROM CONN.

Bridgeport Man Received 48 Votes to 10 For Albert N. Phillips, Jr.—David E. FitzGerald of New Haven Refused to Vote, Maintaining That the Proceeding Was Not Regular — FitzGerald Contended That Spellacy's Resignation Should Go to the National Committee and When Accepted the State Committee Could Fill the Vacancy.

HARTFORD, March 27.—(AP)—Archibald McNeil, Jr., of Bridgeport, was elected democratic national committeeman from Connecticut to succeed Thomas J. Spellacy by the state committee, this afternoon. He will serve until the national convention in 1932.

The state committee decided to have its observance of Thomas Jefferson day next month in a single state meeting in preference to congressional district gatherings.

The election of McNeil has been forecast as was the opposition which developed on the part of former State Chairman David E. Fitzgerald, of New Haven, to the committee taking action. His claim was that Mr. Spellacy's resignation rightly should go to the national committee and when accepted the state committee could fill that vacancy.

Mr. Fitzgerald fought stubbornly to carry his point but he experienced, with State Chairman James J. Walsh, one of the few defeats on a question of committee procedure he has sustained in his many years of committee service.

The meeting followed a luncheon. Ernest Woodworth, of Coventry, proposed by Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch, was elected member from the 35th district, to the place formerly held by Ozra G. Hanks, deceased.

The matter of Mr. Spellacy's resignation was then called up as being the business to which occasioned the meeting.

Mr. Fitzgerald claimed that resignation of a national committeeman must go to the national body which has greater powers than the state committee. He said national committeemen are elected at a national convention from nominations made by state delegations to that convention. A member is governed by rules of the national committee and responsible to it. As an analogy, he said, a state committee member could not resign to a town committee chairman. He claimed that when Mr. Cummings, predecessor to Mr. Spellacy, resigned to the national committee and sent a letter to the state chairman of that acion. Mr. Fitzgerald contended that if a vacancy existed the state committee could nominate but election must come in the national committee, just as a few minutes before the state committee had elected a member in the 35th district. He asked if the committee was going to do business in a "haphazard or orderly manner."

The point being made that the resignation was not before the committee the letter which Mr. Spellacy sent to Chairman Walsh last fall, was read.

William R. Palmer, of Oxford, said that to doubt the right of the state committee to act, was to question Mr. Spellacy's knowledge of correct procedure. His recollection was that Mr. Cummings resigned to the committee and Mr. Spellacy was thereupon elected.

Mrs. Mahoney, of Shelton, moved to table the resignation. The chair said the motion to table was not debatable when former Senator Joseph Tone, of New Haven, rose to object. John A. Cornell, of Bridgeport, made the point of order that the resignation was not before the committee. The chair ruled the point not well taken. Long discussion followed and at the end the chair was not sustained, 23 ayes and 29 noes.

Mr. Fitzgerald tried to have action deferred until the resignation had gone to the national committee and the state committee notified that a vacancy existed.

Philip Troup, New Haven, offered a resolution as an amendment to accept the resignation with an appreciation of the services of Mr. Spellacy, but the chair ruled this was not germane to the motion, and Mr. Troup withdrew it. Discussion followed but Mr. Fitzgerald lost; only 19 voting with him and 33 against.

Mr. Troup's resolution, re-offered, was accepted over the protest of Mr. Fitzgerald that it was not properly before the committee. Adoption was with few votes against it.

Nominations for committeeman were called for and John A. Walsh, of Stamford, offered the name of Albert N. Phillips, Jr., and Mr. Cornell that of Mr. McNeil.

The vote by roll call was McNeil, 48 votes, Phillips, 10, and Mr. Fitzgerald refusing to vote maintaining the proceeding was not regular.

In calling the roll of members at the opening a proxy was offered for Mrs. J. J. Carter, 12th district, her husband having it. Point of order was made that a man may not represent a woman. The committee accepted the proxy. The matter of a change in rules to prevent a man from holding a woman's proxy, or vice versa, was brought up. Dr. Edward G. Dolan, of Manchester, claimed that such a rule would be a party one to be made in state convention. Others regarded it as a committee rule. The proposed change was voted down.

On the matter of observance of Thomas Jefferson day on April 14, Chairman Walsh was instructed to name a committee to work with the state committee of which Augustine Lonergan is chairman by appointment of Gov. Trumbull.

Mr. McNeil accepted the election in a brief address pledging his best in the interest of the party, the state and the committee.

The matter of re-apportionment on which delegates to state conventions are elected was referred to the state convention to adjust for the 1932 conventions.

WARM SPELL FOLLOWS SNOWFALL IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 27—(AP)—Winter's post mortem left spring in a melting mood—and Chicago in slush.

Warmth from the sun, bringing welcome contrast to the two past days of chilly blasts and swirling snows, caused water literally to pour from the city's skyscrapers and left the streets filled with mushy dirt and ice.

Business and transportation, both all but paralyzed during the storm which brought a record of 19.2 inches of snow, were rapidly being restored to normal operation and the whole city was rejoicing at one piece of good luck which blew in with the proverbial ill wind—jobs for 40,000 men clearing away the slush and chopping through the packed drifts.

Heavy icicles hanging from loop buildings menaced pedestrians. Police, fearful they would break by their own weight, blocked off sidewalks a block at a time while workmen chopped down the dangerous cones.

School board officials announced they would open all schools tomorrow. It was expected every street in the city and every highway leading into the city would be passable for traffic in the morning.

All the main thoroughfares were open tongiht.

GOLD MEDAL PRESENTED DR. HUGO ECKENER

Flanked by the flags of America and Germany and the historic banner of the society which Peary carried to the North pole, the dirigible skipper joined the ranks of ten other pioneers, including Charles A. Lindbergh, Floyd Bennett and Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who entered through aeronautical achievement.

In accepting the "exceptional honor," he said the glory was shared with his officers and crew and the United States navy department, "without whose support we could not have been successful."

GERMAN CABINET QUIT ON UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

BERLIN, March 27—(AP)—The coalition government of Chancellor Hermann Mueller, after surviving the stormy seas of post war German politics for 21 months and recently bringing the Young reparations plan safely through the Reichstag, crashed today on one of the many rocks threatening it in its financial program.

The cabinet resigned when its component parties failed to agree on an unemployment insurance question. President Von Hindenburg accepted the resignation, requesting the ministers to remain in office until a new cabinet could be formed.

Dr. Heinrich Bruening, a centrist member of the reichstag and one of the outstanding leaders of his party, was reported to have been suggested by Chancellor Mueller for the task of forming a new government.

A resignation of the Mueller cabinet was far from being unexpected. Political circles had long believed that all that was holding it together was the necessity of seeing the Young plan through the Reichstag, and consolidating the achievements of the late Foreign Minister Gustave Stresemann in European politics.

SUCCESSFUL OPERATION FOR APPENDICITIS AT SEA

S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The skill of three American physicians in performing an appendicitis operation on the high seas today, saved the life of Andre Guinier, of Paris, who is making his first trip to America.

Guinier was operated on while the ship was 750 miles distant from New York, after Captain A. B. Randall had ordered the engines stopped long enough to make the work of the doctors easier. Dr. W. C. Ballard, ship's surgeon, applied the knife, and was assisted by Roy P. Sandidge, of the U. S. department of health, and Dr. Louis Feldman, of Chicago. The patient was out of danger tonight.

OVER 60 ATTEND FARMERS' HOME-MAKING MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 27—The Windham County Farmers' association and the Windham Farmers' club, with the co-operation of the Connecticut Dairymen's association held the annual Windham county agricultural and home-making institute at Guilford Smith hall in South Windham Wednesday with an attendance of over 60 men and women. Fred Rosebrooks of this city, chairman of the arrangements committee, presided over the morning and afternoon sessions.

The institute convened at 10.30 o'clock when Harold Kelsey of Middlesex county, secretary of the State Holstein-Friesian association spoke on Herd Improvements. Luncheon followed and at 1 o'clock C. Marsden Brown, Middlesex county farmer, talked on Crop Improvements. Professor W. M. Esten, head of the bacteriology department at the Connecticut Agricultural college, who was to have spoken on Soil Bacteriology, was unable to be present and was replaced by County Agent Raymond E. Wing of Putnam. Agent Wing used as his subject. The Survey of Farms in Windham County.

At 2 o'clock Catherine Mara of Windham, director of the work of the 4-H clubs, introduced 14 members of the 4-H club of Windham who gave most interesting accounts of their home projects. In another part of the hall the women gathered in a home-making session and listened to an address by Alexander Maitland, superintendent of the J. R. Gladding estate in Thompson, who talked on Improving the Home Grounds. The attendance included about 20 from the town of Windham.

The fine old 12-room residence with large ell and adjoining shed, owned and occupied by Horace Edward Avery on South street, South Coventry, was levelled to the ground by fire Wednesday night. Nearly all of the contents, including wearing apparel of Mr. Avery and his son Delos and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avery, the former's brother and wife, were destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avery have been spending the winter in the house. A preliminary investigation disclosed that the fire probably started from a defective chimney in the ell.

Louis Glendenning, a neighbor, discovered the fire about 9 o'clock. At that time the flames were breaking through the side and roof of the house. Mr. Avery and his son were in South Coventry village attending a whist party. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avery were asleep and were aroused by Mr. Glendenning and other neighbors. They hurried into their clothing and rushed from the building. A telephone alarm and the fact that the blaze could be seen for a distance of nearly 2 miles brought many men to the scene but nothing could be done owing to the lack of fire-fighting apparatus. Efforts were confined to saving two automobiles parked in the shed and a few household articles. The barn was saved by an adverse wind that carried the sparks and heat in the opposite direction. Mr. Avery, a farmer by occupation, had resided on the place about 9 years. He estimated his loss at over $6,000, none of which is covered by insurance.

The use of the radio as part of the regular school work in the rural schools of this section, coming under the supervision of Supervisor Levi T. Garrison, meets with the full approval of Miss Margaret Harrison, director of radio studies for Teachers' college, Columbia university, N. Y. Miss Harrison comments favorably on the use of the radio in the rural schools in a letter to Supervisor Garrison stating that she was particularly impressed in a recent visit to the schools with the intelligent and sensible way the teachers were using radio, making it a real means of study rather than as one of entertainment. "It pleased me to see that the schools near Willimantic are forging ahead in a true pioneer spirit," writes Miss Harrison.

By virtue of past accomplishment, the musical treat to be given at the high school auditorium next week by the 40-voice Mendelssohn Male chorus of Waterbury, under the auspices of the Lions club, is expected to prove one of the outstanding attractions of its kind this season. The concert is given for the benefit of the 21 blind persons of this city and vicinty in line with one of the major objectives of Lionism. The finely trained voices appear in a program that carries from the strictly classical and sacred to the modern, including Negro spirituals, popular ballads and humorous songs. G. Loring Burwell of Waterbury, district governor of Lionism, is director of the chorus. President John H. Wilcox of the local Lions reports a gratifying advance sale of tickets.

MERCHANTS TO DISCUSS NEW CLOSING HOURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 27.—When members of the Danielson chamber of commerce assemble for their April meeting next Tuesday evening one matter that will get their consideration pertains to changing the time that stores here close on evenings when they remain open after 6 o'clock. These evenings are Monday and Saturday and at times evenings before holidays. Under the proposed plan the stores would close at 9 o'clock Monday evenings and on Saturdays at 9:30, instead of at 10 o'clock.

The chamber also will take up the matter of daylight saving, which will become effective in many cities of the east on Sunday, April 27.

The Merchants' committee also will recommend for faithful support of the solicitation agreement, and request that no proposals for subscriptions be supported until approved officially.

Announcement is made that the second Friendly Indian Pow-wow of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. will be held on Saturday, April 12, at the Plainfield Community house. Churches are welcome to send boys to enjoy what is really the only younger boys' large get-together in Windham county.

The program is open at 10 in the morning, and the first hour will be devoted to athletics, including basketball. There is to be a 50-yard dash, open to all; running broad jump, open; four-man relay, three teams; basketball, one team from each Y. M. C. A.; 11 a. m. aquatics—30-yard dash, eight entries allowed from each association; under-water swim, from each "Y"; plunge for distance, unlimited entries; six-man relay, one team from each Y. M. C. A.; exhibition of swimming by Plainfield boys under the direction of LeRoy Dissinger, director of the Community house. General swim to follow events. Dinner and rest period. James R. Walsh town tax collector, has issued formal notice of the period during which he will be collecting this year's tax. A period of one month from April 21 will be allowed property owners to make settlement. During that time Collector Walsh, for the convenience of taxpayers and at designated times, will visit Goodyear, Elmville, Dayville, Ballouville, Pineville, Attawaugan, East Killingly and South Killingly, as well as being at his office here at specified times for the collection of taxes in this part of the town. This year the tax is 28 mills.

Very considerable interest was displayed today in the one-day farm management school held at Grange hall in South Killingly under the auspices of the County Farmers' association and the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college. Prof. A. W. Manchester and P. L. Putnam of the college conducted the sessions, held morning and afternoon. During the basket lunch period coffee was served by women of South Killingly.

Next Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Killingly Woman's club the annual entertainment for the children will be presented. Miss Harriet W. Goode will lecture at the high school assembly hall on New England Birds and Wild Flowers. The lecture will be illustrated with 100 beautifully colored slides.

His friends here are interested in and pleased over the fact that Gabby Hartnett, first string catcher for the Chicago Cubs, National league champions, is catching regularly in the pre-season exhibition games. Last year Hartnett, whose home is in Millville, Mass., was out of the game practically the entire season with a lame arm.

This morning State Officer John Murphy ordered Clifford Wilde, resident near the Killingly-Plainfield line on the Wauregan road, to appear in the Killingly town court. The state officer found Wilde operating a loaded old Ford truck that had no registration markers, and Wilde also was without an operator's license.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing has announced two plowing demonstrations for early April dates, a prime consideration for holding these being the teaching of how plowing should be done to be most effective in the battle now on in various areas in this state against the European cornborer. Woodstock and Canterbury are the towns selected as locations for the demonstrations, and the dates April 10 and 11, the first date being assigned Woodstock. Mr. Wing points out that farmers will be shown how to properly adjust their plows to do the most effective work in the fight against the borers and also actually plowing demonstrations.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 27.—A fine of $25 and costs of court was paid by Timothy F. Quinn of Danielson in the city court this morning when found guilty of issuing a fraudulent check. Quinn was before Judge M. H. Geissler and was represented by Attorney Harry E. Back of Danielson. Quinn pleaded guilty to the charge and met his obligation to the court at once. On two previous occasions Quinn fell into the toils of the law by his practice of issuing checks which turned out to be worthless. He was arrested by State Officer Royal V. Scranton of Danielson barracks Monday upon a complaint of Anthony Goulet of Killingly avenue.

Workmen in the employ of Mauro and Argentieri, Providence contractors are engaged in the excavation of land on Oak hill, this week, which is to be the site of the foundation for the one million gallon capacity steel standpipe soon to be part of the municipal water system. The foundation is to be 45 feet in diameter. Within the circle a concrete platform 24 inches deep, will be laid. The steel standpipe which will tower 80 feet above the ground will be erected upon the completion of the foundation work, which according to contract must be finished in 35 working days. The tank is to be made by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works and will be shipped east within a few weeks. The reconstruction programme of the city water system involves much work which will take place during the summer months and will provide employment for a number of workers. The work will be supervised by the board of commissioners of the water department. The launching of the project this week, marks the end of the innumerable controversies and arguments between the concrete and steel factions and sees the beginning of activities which at length will bring about an adequate water protective system for the city.

Judge M. H. Geissler, secretary of the Putnam Building and Loan association said today that 14 shares, the remainder of the fifth series, issued by the association in January 1918 will mature on April 1. The closing of the fifth series next week has given way to the opening of a new series known as the 29th, which were opened for subscription on January 1. The financial report of the secretary of the association for the fiscal year ending January 1, showed the organization, which was instituted in 1916 to be in excellent standing.

Plans are progressing rapidly for the second annual fashion show to be held in Putnam at the state armory on April 5. THE PALMER EXTENSION

Years after the Canadian backers of the railroad extension from Palmer to Providence spent millions in getting rights of way, grading and preparing for the construction of the line, a sentiment has grown up in Rhode Island to acquire such title as is needed, get an extension of the charter and go ahead with the project.

The idea now is that such additional railroad facilities would be of much advantage to Providence and would encourage the development of the port because of the export business that could be done there, especially in the handling of grain. It is maintained that it will open up a new route and offer competition which does not now prevail.

The desire for any development that might come from a new railroad connection is a logical one, but it would appear that the advocates of the new move are carried away as much by an enthusiastic presentation of the possibilities as by the prospects that are actually in view.

It is to be realized that the extension would parallel a branch of the New Haven road for a considerable part of the distance and would gain connection with the Central Vermont at Palmer. Hopes that the port of Providence would attract Canadian shipments are maintained, but it is to be realized that there is already an outlet in southern New England for just such shipments. There are no advantages offered at Providence that have not been available at New London for years and years. There has been no lack of an opportunity to ship grain through New London if it were desired. As a matter of fact, Portland, Me., has gotten the preference in this direction when winter closed Canadian ports, but in recent years even that has disappeared because Canadian ports were able to take care of most of the business. Thus if Portland, with rails laid and elevators established, and New London, with the additional rail outlet from Canada doing business, are not getting this business which Providence covets it seems that the Rhode Island city has a justified longing but one that gives slight prospect of fulfillment, even if they build the extension.

When the New Haven directors tell Providence that they are ready to cooperate to the limit, but that it needs a steamship line and elevators more than it needs a new railroad, there may be some self-interest displayed but it is unquestionably based upon good judgment.

OCEAN SPEED, PORT DELAYS

It is quite the natural thing that Boston should be desirous of sharing in some of the bigger and faster trans-Atlantic shipping. It can point out that ships having a terminal in that city would be able to make much better time in crossing, that passengers would be ashore many hours ahead of those aboard vessels bound for New York and that the distance between cities could be covered much more speedily by train than by boat.

If it were possible for Boston to give assurance that it would be possible for vessels to get through quarantine, to their piers, and the passengers through customs faster than it is now possible in New York there would be an added inducement in its plea for increased utilization of that port.

In connection with the speeding-up of trans-Atlantic liners in order to make quicker crossings, attention is being called to the fact that rapid transportation is being furnished on the ocean but there are serious delays in leaving and getting into ports and getting away from the vessels which overcomes the advantage furnished by the speedy ship. It is not a new complaint, it simply gets added attention because of the contrast with the faster liners.

What the outcome will be of the action which has been taken through the appointment of a commission to study the situation and make recommendations is a question, but it should be possible to disclose the merits of the idea that the customs inspection be carried out while the liner is on its way to this country. That would provide plenty of time for finding out what is what and the questioning of the passengers, if necessary, and upon the arrival of the ship in port the passengers would be ready to depart and not be detained for various parts of the day, according to whether they were the first or last in line. Those who have violated or defied regulations must expect that they will be detained, but those who have complied with the provisions, kept within the law and have received an o. k., would appreciate the opportunity to be on their way. They do not like the idea of being hustled across the Atlantic only to have the advantage gained completely removed by port delays.

SMUGGLED LIQUOR

In the fight for the enforcement of prohibition in this country it has been recognized that determined efforts must be made to deal with the smugglers, those who bring liquor into the country contrary to law by landing it on our shores or putting it across the borders. The fight to accomplish the stopping of such smuggling has been a long and persistent one. It hasn't accomplished all that was sought. The capture of large cargoes from rum runners is frequently reported, showing that the business is still being carried on. How many succeed where those who are caught fail is not known, beyond the fact that liquor of most any kind that is wanted can be obtained by paying the price asked.

In order to reduce the amount that is brought across the Canadian border a new treaty is being sought. By this there would be prohibited the issuance of clearance papers for liquor cargoes destined for this country. Such clearances are given now and it is for the purpose of placing the added obstacle of complying with Canadian law that the new arrangement is being sought.

It has been found possible to circumvent the dry law of this country by those who are willing to take the chances of getting caught. They have made a profitable business smuggling liquor and if the new treaty is enacted it will impose upon such persons the task of clearing their liquor for other than American points and then delivering it where storm, lack of water or other easily furnished reasons force them. This might also make the participants more desperate, but in view of all that has been done in efforts to stop the smuggling it probably would not stop it all.

Whatever is done in the way of enforcement is aimed at the reduction of the amount of liquor brought into the country. Thus if there is an appreciable amount of curtailment there would be reason for considering that the treaty arrangement was accomplishing something. But whether the treaty would actually do all that is expected of it, or whether it would mean a resort to other avenues of defying the law would have to await the test. It is indicated that Canadian help is needed if different conditions are to prevail, but that doesn't necessarily mean that it can be stopped.

THE PRESIDENT AND THE TARIFF

It is inevitable that there should be speculation as to what the president will do with the tariff bill. As a matter of fact, there is no bill before him. He hasn't as yet gotten a chance to decide what he will do with it and he will not have until the conference committee has submitted its report and action has been taken by both branches of congress upon such a compromise as it reaches. Then there will be an opportunity to guess what the president will do.

It can be recognized now that he is opposed to the debenture plan and has declared repeatedly for the retention of the flexible feature. There is no reason to suppose that he has changed his mind in this respect, although it is possible that he would be favorable to the compromise in regard to the latter which has been suggested by Senator Vandenburg of Michigan and by which the flexibility would be under the control of congress when in session but under the president's direction at other times.

The conference committee, when it gets the bill and after it learns more definitely about the house's attitude, can be expected to smooth out a certain number of the unfavorable features of the bill, to readjust recognized inequalities and to whip into shape a bill that will be reasonably sure of presidential approval.

It is recognized, of course, that it lies within the power of the president to veto or accept it. That is fully understood by congress and congress knows what it would mean to present to the president a tariff bill which he could not approve. Having indicated what he believes highly undesirable, it can hardly be expected that he would give his sanction to a bill which contained them. Thus if the bill as presented to him should contain those denounced features, it is reasonable to infer what his course will be.

POSSESSION OF FIREARMS

There is much to be said on both sides regarding the carrying of pistols. It is generally conceded that if it wasn't for the criminals there would be no need of toting them and, on the other hand, it is realized that if a person cannot protect himself he is certainly in a helpless situation.

The statement is frequently made that if less firearms were carried there would be less crime and less shootings, and it will have to be admitted, for it can be realized that if it were the case that everyone carried a gun all kinds of difficulties would be subject to adjustment in that manner rather than by recourse to peaceful settlement through the law.

For some years New York has had a law which places a heavy penalty upon those found with firearms for which they have no permit. Even that state has raised the cry that the threatened public is given no chance to protect itself against robbers and other criminals, but when the effort was made to secure a law prohibiting the carrying of pistols by any person except peace officers it encountered such a protest that it was withdrawn. It was apparent to the father of the bill that the public recognized that the denial of the permit was simply playing further into the hands of the criminals, who are not and would not be respecters of the law.

Theoretically such a law might be fine, but experiences with the evasions of the existing permit law and the inability to keep firearms out of the hands of the criminal class make it impractical to think of denying the general, law-abiding public a chance to defend itself.

GERALDINE'S ESCAPE

Geraldine was delicate. So was her mother. So were her grandmother and her aunts. She had been born into an atmosphere which was refined and fragile. She was too delicate to make mud pies when a baby. All her relatives said that a child as delicate as Geraldine would get pneumonia if associated with wet sand and that bramble pricks might lead to blood poisoning. So she never gathered wild flowers nor hop toads nor brought home pockets full of queer, sharp stones which might scratch nor stuck burdocks together into doll furniture nor did anything but be a little lady.

Naturally she grew still more delicate. She was ethereally pretty, but there was the lurking sadness in her gray eyes that belongs by right to those who cannot plunge into life with zest. She went to a private school because her family murmured that the child simply would die in a rough public school. She was too delicate for their rude, shrieking games and hobbledehoy jubilations. She must be educated gently, carefully.

They did not let her roller-skate. One of the aunts had a friend who had a daughter who roller-skated and her skate had slipped and she cracked her head and never was quite the same again—you know. And the winter they visited another aunt up in the Wisconsin hills Geraldine's mother had been horrified when her child, for once with a sparkle in her eyes, dashed—yes, actually dashed—in and said she was going coasting down Half-Mile hill that led to the icy river.

"Think what the speed might do to your heart," her mother had gasped. It ended in Geraldine obediently sitting by the fire reading a new book, trying not to hear the faint shouts and screams of laughter echoing from Half-Mile hill. When she began to grow up and think for herself, habit was pretty well ingrained. If all your life you have had your skippy heart, your delicate bones and fragile lungs presented to your attention daily you grow to regard them with interest, not to say sad respect. She wished frequently that she was like other people strong and husky. Golf and tennis were not even considered. Anyhow, they made one red and blowsy looking. Naturally Geraldine had no boy friends. They hadn't time to pause in their headlong rush and while they admitted that she was decidedly and unusually pretty, what good was a pretty girl who couldn't or wouldn't do any of the things that every one else was doing? The girls themselves bestowed a somewhat patronizing friendship upon her.

When she was 18, it took a three-day family caucus for permission to be given for her to visit some distant cousins. They lived in a small town in the next state which certainly sounded calm, peaceful and safe. The family was dubious, however, up to the minute the train pulled out with Geraldine aboard, actually pale with the excitement of her first trip anywhere alone. There were so many farewell messages about not doing this and to remember that her head whirled.

Every night while she was gone her aunts wondered whether she would remember to pull up the extra eiderdown at the foot of her bed. Her mother hoped she would continue to take her daily nap and her grandmother sent her a large box of cough drops in case she contracted a cold. Geraldine's letters were vague and they rather wondered when her two weeks stretched into a month.

The day she was due to return it was raining and they met the train with her rubbers, a raincoat and an umbrella. She never could stand sudden weather changes. They were struck absolutely dumb when she dropped off the train without a coat, in a sleeveless dress, arms brown, face to match and a lot of color in it. She did not seem to notice that it was raining and appeared very interested in a young man who followed her carrying strange things. There was a tennis racket, a bag of golf clubs and sundry boxes and bags.

"I had so much stuff," Geraldine informed her astounded family in a ringing voice that was new to them, "that Charlie—this is Charlie Denson, mother—said he'd help me home, and he's going to stay over a day or so on his way east. Charlie taught me golf and tennis at the country club, and I can paddle a boat and swim and I've learned to drive a car. And, Charlie says—"

There is no use going on with the horrible story. In spite of everything her family could do, Geraldine refused to remain a sweet, delicate girl any longer and is having the time of her life. You ought to hear the things the family has to say about this frightful younger generation. On the whole, Charlie did a good job and he's claiming his reward this fall, six bridesmaids and everything.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Senator George Moses certainly has the gift of tongues, so to speak. Spicy bits drop from his lips at times, on or off the senate floor, that are circulated in cloak room and gallery with great glee. Take those remarks creating the order of the sons of the wild jackass. He would have been famous for that alone.

Yet who would suspect that this senatorial wisecracker was at heart possessed of a passion for house cleaning? Who could visualize this brisk and sprightly New Englander with the out-thrust, belligerent chin, eyes always snapping with battle fire and tongue poised to shoot sarcastic shafts on the slightest provocation, as the super housemaid of the senate, beset with the major problems of scrubbing brush and broom?

Housekeeper

Yet such he is. As chairman of the senate rules committee he became also housekeeper-in-chief of the senate office building. And he found, apparently, that housekeepers he succeeded had been woefully remiss for years with their spring house cleaning.

"That building has never been cleaned from the time it was first occupied to the present minute," Housekeeper Moses thundered at a sub-committee from which he demanded an increased housekeeping allowance for the year, a sum raised from $98,000 to $228,000.

"Do senators want it kept as it should be, or go back to the old practice where floors were mopped with dirty mops and never scoured; where no office was ever dusted; where the laundering of covers that are on the chairs and pillows of the couches was not done?

"There has not been a rug bought for the building since it was opened. One senator thanked me for new rugs in his office. They are not new rugs; they are rugs that have been washed, and they look like new."

Among other things, Housekeeper Moses had to deal with an army of cockroaches which seemed to enjoy senatorial society. And being Moses, he just ordered it done, put 40 or 50 more scrubbers to work, started a rug laundry and took his chances of wheedling the money out of congress to pay for it all.

"If I cannot get it, I suppose there will be some litigation by which I may be compelled to get it, somehow," he told the committee, with an implication that he didn't care a hoot anyhow.

No Cockroaches

Big, slow-moving Wesley Jones of Washington, committee chairman, had not noticed the Moses improvements.

"My rooms are no different from what they were last year," he said.

"They must be," snapped Housekeeper George.

"I cannot see it. They are about the same."

"There is a very great difference."

"I really do not see it."

"There are no cockroaches now."

"Well, I never saw one," said Jones.

But Housekeeper Moses got his money, just the same.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Fish And Game Proposition

Mr. Editor: A long article appeared in this morning's Bulletin purporting to show the amount of money spent for game wardens in the state of Connecticut and the work which they had done. Nearly $80,000 have been spent for game wardens, and a large part of it has been spent for maintaining the "prussianized" system of game wardens to mulct fees out of some unfortunate sportsman who might technically violate some of these million regulations which nobody knows except Mr. Titcomb — and these he carries in his inside pocket. This is some "russianized" bureaucracy in the state of Connecticut. We no longer live in good old Connecticut. Today we are living under a rule with all of our time freedom shot to pieces.

Why not spend all of these thousands of dollars on fish propogation instead of spending it on brass-buttoned gun-carriers? At the present rates for seven or eight inch trout, the state of Connecticut could purchase over 60,000 of this type of fish for stocking its streams with this money paid to game wardens. Why wouldn't that be a sensible thing to do with this money? The poachers or technical violators wouldn't take that many fish out of the streams in the next ten years. Wouldn't there be some sense in spending the money that way instead of in this absurd manner?

It is certainly retty galling to see the way the money is spent by this extravagant and incompetent bureau, especially when you think the money is being taken out of the pockets of the workers and the people who want to get a little fresh air by traveling in the woods or on the streams.

Think of the Connecticut license fee today! It is the largest in any New England state by nearly three times and the largest in any adjoining state equally by three times. It makes one wonder if the department of fish and game has suddenly gone crazy on the subject of license fees—or do they need an investigation to see what the trouble is? Such fees as these are ridiculous in the state of Connecticut when you think that last year there was practically nothing to hunt. Partridge could not be shot, quail were prohibited, rabbits were threatened with "tularaemia" so that nobody wanted to hunt them and what was left? Woodcock you could shoot for about two weeks and there were practically none, a few or no pheasants which the state had scattered around. One might have just as much fun by going out and shooting a hen in the back yard.

Senator Walcott had a long article in last month's issue of "Field and Stream" trying to justify this extortion practiced by the state of Connecticut on the sportsman. The article also showed pictures of two instances—one of the game warden checking up the license of the fisherman and the other one of the warden sticking his nose into the basket of a sportsman to see the size of his fish. Those pictures might appeal to the senator who wrote the article and seems to think that this system is a good one, but I doubt if there is any sportsman in the state of Connecticut to whom that makes a very strong appeal. At the same time, the senator suggests that if we want good hunting in the state of Connecticut, (and in the name of goodness, where is the good hunting in the state of Connecticut? It is evident that he does not know anything about the kind of hunting there is here as he is in Washington, that is sure.) he intimates that there must be another raise in license fees. What for? To have the hunting even worse, because after the raise we have got in license fees, the hunting is poorer. It may be that there are so many game wardens with their guns tucked around their belts that they are shooting all the game, because nobody else is getting any.

The senator also said in the article that the first day of fishing there were 10,000 trout taken out of the streams in the state of Connecticut and that in order to replace them, it would take $25,000. How does he figure that out? At the prevailing rate that we can purchase trout, 10,000 trout would not cost $15,000 and they can be bought right here at the Carolina hatcheries at the figure named. So why try to fool the sportsman with such figures?

About all the sportsmen get out of the raise of license fees is a state full of game wardens to use up their money and the town clerks to take 35c of it—which is 1-8 of the entire fee (a piece of rot in itself). If the fish and game commission were on its job, no such condition would exist. And besides this a mess of propaganda in newspapers and magazines is about all that the sportsman gets for the high prices which he pays for his license.

The associations should get busy and interview every man who runs for the legislature this year and definitely find out where he stands upon these questions. The senator or representative running for office, who does not meet the requirements, should be made to feel the penalties. What Connecticut needs in place of this mess of extravagance and incompetence and worthless propaganda, is an efficient administration of the fish and game laws and very much less laws. The less laws, the less [illegible] and the best governed state is the one with the least laws.

Sportsmen! Find out who is going to run for representative in the next general assembly. Question them carefully and see if they are with you or against you. Connecticut sportsmen should not be oppressed any more than any other New England or adjoining state sportsmen should be by such extortion in the way of license fees.

SPORTSMAN.

Norwich On The Air

Mr. Editor:—I have read with interest articles in The Norwich Bulletin to the effect that Norwich is to be put on the air for a period of ten weeks by the Norwich chamber of commerce. It sounds fine to the average layman—there are strings to it however, as in all things put on by the chamber of commerce.

First of all there is the question of finance. Who is going to pay for these ten lovely weeks? It costs money, and real money, to advertise, especially over the radio. As usual the poor merchant will suffer. He is being ask to pay for this and the amount is over $3000, something better than $300 per night. That puts this lovely "effort" in a different light. The merchant as usual is being asked to pay—and pay he does.

This money might well be spent to better advantage. The Hartford broadcasting station is all very well insofar as it goes. But it hasn't the drawing power nor the advertising value of the New York stations. The chamber of commerce talks about six "million" people listening in. That means those within the boundaries of Connecticut mostly. And those same people are all pretty well acquainted with the Rose of New England. Does the merchant think that he is going to immediately be rewarded or blessed with such additional business from these six million? No he won't, and that he will find out in due course. Furthermore, it would have to be some talk that would hold the attention of people for a half-hour. Norwich people will listen in out of curiosity but the average outsider will only tune out so much "static." Amos and Andy have won the praise and applause of hundreds of thousands, but, please note, they do not talk about historical facts, nor geographical descriptions. They don't even mention the toothpaste. Doesn't that show something. I think it does.

I think it is unjust to ask the people to pay this large sum of money on a thing of this sort. If the chamber of commerce had resources in the thousands, and by that I don't mean one or two thousand either, it would be one thing. They could then pay for it and honestly earn any praise which might come therefrom. But to ask the citizens to give, when times are so hard and so many are out of work, just where does the "credit" fall?

SKEPTICAL MERCHANT.

YOUR HEALTH

Obesity Remedies

By Alec N. Thomson, M. D., Brooklyn.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

There may be a difference of opinion between individual physicians on some of the details of the method to be followed in reducing weight. There can be no question that, as stated by the National Better Business Bureau "reducing remedies in the form of bath salts, foam baths, chewing gums, soaps, creams, pills, wafers, and tablets have been extensively advertised during recent times. Some of these preparations are for external application, while others are to be taken internally, but in all instances they are represented as 'safe, harmless, and efficient' remedies which require no arduous exercise and no starvation diet."

The opinion of a number of physicians who are specialists was obtained by the bureau in order to provide publishers with basic information and justify the following conclusions:

1. Safe and scientific treatment of obesity requires a physical examination by a physician.
2. Safe and scientific treatment of obesity requires careful supervision of a physician during treatment.
3. Safe and scientific treatment of obesity requires periodical physical examination by a physician during treatment to safeguard the health of the patient.
4. Exercise and diet are fundamental in the treatment of obesity but neither exercise nor diet can be safely prescribed without an examination by a physician both before and during treatment.
5. External remedies for use in hot baths are without scientific basis.
6. Rubbing and massaging will reduce the outer layer of fat to a limited degree, but the lubricants used in the process possess no fat-reducing properties.
7. The use of laxative tablets as a home treatment for obesity is unscientific.
8. The use of desiccated thyroid as a home treatment is dangerous to health and contrary to the public interest."

People who try to substitute cheap and easy methods of caring for their health for the intelligent advice of medical experts are in the same class of gullibility as those who take stock market tips from the janitor, and they lose out just about as often.

"Looking for the Good"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "If there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4:8).

Read: Matthew 16:13-20.

MEDITATION: In other words, look for the good in others and you will find it! Jesus was always looking for the admirable which He felt was in every soul, though sometimes hidden. There are many old tales among the Cheyenne Indians of one Wihio. On one occasion, through forgetfulness, he lost his eyes. He begged one from a mouse and one from a buffalo. Henceforth he went through life with one big eye and one little one. Indians are not moralists. The white man would use such a tale as this to enforce a teaching: Have one big eye with which to look at men's excellences and one small eye for their defects.

PRAYER: "O Father, dispose us to a sincere sympathy with all men, not only to see extraordinary excellence with joy, but to take pleasure in the humblest improvements of our fellow creatures. Incline us to respect the feelings of others so that we may never wound any heart nor depress a human being."

Adapted from W. E. Channing.

Little Talks on Thrift

Two Million Americans Above 65 Now Objects Of Charity

An authority on old age dependence states that there are now 2,000,000 individuals in this country above the age of 65 who are wholly or partly dependent on others for their support. After a survey of the situation among the aged poor in America the man responsible for these statistics says:

"Thrift and habits of saving on the part of individuals constitute one of the most important bulwarks against old age dependency but in my opinion something more, something over and above individual thrift is necessary if we are to abolish old age dependency. I refer to an old age insurance or pension system which I believe, would unquestionably raise the general standards of living and eliminate the fear of old age."

Perhaps, as is here indicated, a national old age pension law is advisable but it is not the purpose of this article to go into this point.

We must not forget that society has its obligations to the unfortunate individual. But what are the obligations of the individual to his own interests?

As long as people are taught that thrift means merely saving money and that all the individual need concern himself about is putting money in a bank, we shall continue to hear the sorry stories of old age dependents.

Manifestly, our greatest need is for individuals to understand that true thrift consists of planning an economically successful life. This means that in addition to saving money, time must be employed in the development of an increased earning capacity; good health must be conserved to vestments must be made that will yield a dependable income; insurance must be carried to protect one's self in case of accident or illness and to safeguard the future of one's dependents; and that when one's earning capacity is secure provision must be made against the time when old age or adversity arrive.

When the public ceases to regard thrift merely as saving money and learns to appraise is from the broader aspects as here pointed out, we shall have reached the period in our national life when old age dependency is much less a public problem than it is today.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

MOTHERS ARE LEARNNG USES OF MAGNESIA

From the beginning of expectancy until baby is weaned. That's the time Phillips Milk of Magnesia performs the greatest service for many women.

It relieves the expectant mother's nausea, heartburn, "morning sickness," inclination to vomit; helps her digestion. Its mild but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement!

Phillips Milk of Magnesia is better than lime water for neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding. A teaspoonful of it does the work of a half pint of lime water. It is a mild laxative; harmless, almost tasteless.

All drug stores have Phillips Milk of Magnesia in generous 25c and 50c bottles. Always insist on the genuine, endorsed by physicians for 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

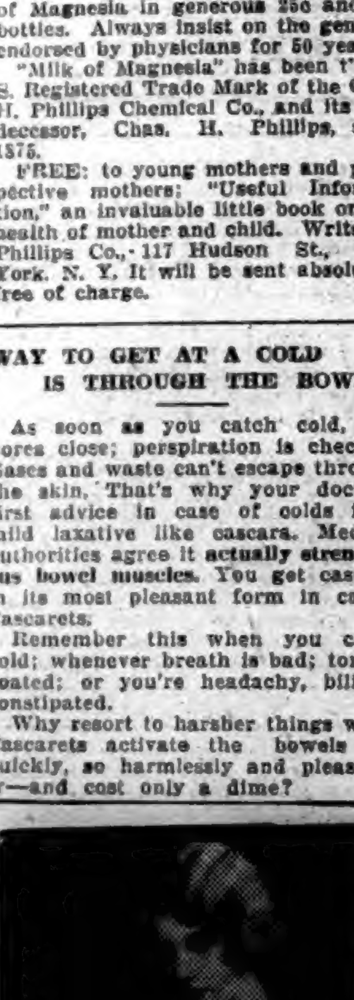
FREE: to young mothers and prospective mothers: "Useful Information," an invaluable little book on the health of mother and child. Write the Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent absolutely free of charge.

WAY TO GET AT A COLD IS THROUGH THE BOWELS

As soon as you catch cold, the pores close; perspiration is checked. Gases and waste can't escape through the skin. That's why your doctor's first advice in case of colds is a mild laxative like cascara. Medical authorities agree it actually strengthens bowel muscles. You get cascara in its most pleasant form in candy Cascarets.

Remember this when you catch cold; whenever breath is bad; tongue coated; or you're headachy, bilious, constipated.

Why resort to harsher things when Cascarets activate the bowels so quickly, so harmlessly and pleasantly—and cost only a dime?



Beautiful hair!

Modern hair dressers arrange the hair so beautifully that it's bound to attract attention. That's why it's so important to guard its color and lustre; keep it in perfect condition.

There is no surer, simpler way to do this than with Danderine. Each time you use your brush, just moisten it with this delicately fragranced liquid. Then as you draw it through your hair, it removes the excess oil; brings out the natural color; makes the hair fairly sparkle with new life and lustre.

How much easier it is to arrange the hair afterwards. How it stays in place. And try "setting" the waves with Danderine. They stay in so much longer.

Danderine quickly dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition; helps the hair to grow long, silky and abundant!

OBITUARY.

Charles J. Abell.

Charles Judson Abell, a life long resident of Lebanon, died Wednesday evening at the Hartford hospital after an illness of about two months. He was born in Lebanon, Sept. 25, 1848, the youngest son of James Madison and Sarah E. Congdon Abell. At the time of his death he was town clerk and treasurer of Lebanon, having held this office for 38 years and had served as chairman of the republican town committee for 46 years. He also had held the office of selectman, assessor, board of relief, tax collector, and he represented Lebanon in the general assembly of 1883. He also served 11 years on the board of directors of N. E. M. F. A., and three years as president of the New London County Farm and Home Bureau.

He was united in marriage with Lucy Williams Robinson, daughter of Harlow and Elizabeth Loomis Robinson, on April 4, 1872. Her death occurred Oct. 17, 1928. To this union were born seven children, six of whom are still living, three daughters and three sons, Mrs. Edward C. Hall of Union City, Clara L. Abell of Detroit, Michigan, Sarah L. and Frederick M. Abell, of Lebanon, Charles H. Abell of New Britain and John W. Abell of Torrington. Mr. Abell leaves also four granddaughters and five grandsons.

By the death of Mr. Abell the town of Lebanon is bereft of the services of a true friend of the people. In the varied activities of a long public career he exhibited unselfish devotion, unwearied industry and absolute purity of purpose. The efficient administration of justice and whatever stood in his judgment for the betterment of his town and his increasing efforts to that end, were irradiated with the charm and helpful influence of a spirit of kindliness and good will which made fellowship with him a most tender and abiding memory.

Mrs. Dennis J. Galvin, mother of Rev. Myles P. Galvin, assistant pastor at St. Patrick's church, this city, died at 7 o'clock Thursday morning in Waterbury, following a long illness, her death being caused by heart disease. In 1872 at the old Immaculate Conception church, Waterbury, she was united in marriage with Dennis J. Galvin. Mr. and Mrs. Galvin celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Jan. 17, 1922.

MEETING IN GREENEVILLE SECTION ENDORSES JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PLAN

A gathering taxing the primary grade room of Greeneville grammar school building attended the meeting Thursday evening over the junior high school plan which has been presented before Norwich taxpayers.

The meeting was opened by School Superintendent Edward J. Graham, who presented facts relating to the crowded conditions which prevail in the local schools, and the present needs of a junior high school. Three members of the school board, Walter F. Lester, Edward G. McKay and Robert McNeely, spoke also, telling of a survey which they took concerning housing the pupils and the proposition that they are up against, owing to the crowded conditions which exist at the Norwich Free Academy. They also dwelt upon the cost of the two junior high schools which they have in view, placing one in the Greeneville district, while the second school would be in the central district, to help overcome the crowded condition which prevails at the Broadway and Broad street schools.

During Supt. Graham's talk he quoted the following from Dean W. Holmes of the graduate school of education at Harvard:

"The junior high school movement is based on the following central thesis or conviction; namely, that the large majority of the children in grades seven, eight, and nine, can profit by a more varied, a better co-ordinated, and a more carefully individualized scheme of instruction than we can give them in our traditional organization of eight elementary grades and four secondary grades. The plan is to gather the pupils of grades seven and eight of the elementary schools and grade nine of the high school into separate buildings; to put them under specially selected teachers; to give them a program which permits election of some of the subjects (a modern foreign language, e. g) heretofore taught only in the high school; to provide advantages by way of laboratories, rooms for special instruction (shop work or cooking, e. g.), facilities for physical education, and the like, which can not be duplicated for small groups in all the elementary schools; and to administer the whole plan so that the children get more intelligent and helpful guidance throughout this critical period in their development.

"The chief aim of the junior high school should be to educate more effectively the children with which it is dealing, not to advance them more rapidly or drill them more skilfully for what is to come. If junior high school children are happier and more healthy, if they are more actively interested in what they are doing in school, if their curiosity and imagination are stimulated, if their sympathies and powers of co-operation are enlarged and the range of their information and understanding extended, the junior high school has succeeded."

After many questions had been asked by the audience and answered by the school board, a vote was taken to determine the feeling of the Greeneville district towards the proposed project and those present voted almost unanimously in favor of the proposition.

The following figures show the increase in the last few years of grammar school graduates entering the Academy and the number of pupils registered in the seventh and eighth grades of the town grammar schools:

Graduates Grammar School	Entered Academy	Pct.

Number of pupils registered in the seventh and eighth grades: Year 1919, 613; year 1924, 609; year 1925, 622; year 1926, 643; year 1927, 709; year 1928, 828; year 1929, 852.

RADIO SPEAKER ADVISES ABOUT DRINKING WATER

Upon the subject, Drinking Safely, Warren J. Scott, director of the bureau of sanitary engineering of the state department of health, was the radio broadcast speaker at noon Thursday.

In part he said: It may surprise some to know that about 85 per cent of the population of Connecticut is served with water from public water systems, and of this number, 81 per cent drinks water that is chlorinated and 25 per cent drinks water that is filtered. Chlorination consists of adding chlorine to the water to destroy disease germs that may get by other protecters of sand destroys disease bacteria and also reduces the color and turbidity tive measures. Filtration through layof the water. Spraying the water into the air or aeration helps to remove objectionable tastes from water. So does filtration. Operation of chlorination and filtration plants on public water supplies is checked up by the state department of health several times a year.

Objectionable tastes and odors in water may be due to the decomposing of leaves or other vegetable matter in a reservoir, to small plant or animal growths in the water, to deposition of material in mains which are not flushed, to an excess of chlorine, to newly painted water mains or standpipes, or to other harmless sources. Sometimes the correction of an objectionable taste condition in water may be simple. For example, a fishy taste in water may be due to a growth of algae which can be destroyed by the addition of copper sulphate to the water in the reservoir. More careful regulation of chlorine dosage will avoid chlorine tastes. In some cases, objectionable taste or odor conditions in water may necessitate extensive treatment such as filtration and aeration.

Remember that you can usually tell nothing about the safety of a water by its appearance or taste. Practically all objectionable taste and odor conditions are due to harmless sources. Well, you may ask, if we can't tell by looking at the water whether it's safe, how can we tell? We can't analyze it as we travel around. The answer is that the best safeguard is to use your common sense. When you can secure water from a public water supply, do so, because it is regularly analyzed and supervised by local officials and the state department of health. If you have occasion to drink water from a well or spring in the rural districts, make sure that there is no opportunity for surface water to flow into it through poorly constructed cover or sides and that there are no dangerous sources of human pollution nearby. If you have to drink water from a surface stream or a poorly protected well or spring, boil it for five minutes and then you will be sure that the disease germs are destroyed. Any persons interested in detailed information about "Private Water Supplies" may secure a complete pamphlet on the subject by writing to the Connecticut state department of health.

MISSIONARY SPEAKER MET THE MAHATMA IN INDIA

Miss Mabel E. Emerson, associate foreign secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, who is to be the speaker at the Congregational Women's Missionary luncheon at the Community house this (Friday) afternoon, has recently returned from a year's touring of the work of her board in Africa, India and the Near East.

While in India she visited the Mahatma, now leading a pacific revolt against the British government. Miss Emerson states that Gandhi is much like his pictures, except that his face lights up as he talks, changing his expression. Sitting busily spinning, he discussed with this American woman the problems facing, not only his own country of India, but Turkey and America. The American Negro, he told Miss Emerson, is not as well off legally, in his opinion, as the out-caste of India, who is treated with less "inhumanity."

"We have nothing like lynching in India," Gandhi added.

At Ifafa, South Africa, Miss Emerson received her real African welcome when nearly 200 students from the famous Christian missionary school at Inanda, founded for Zulu girls 60 years ago by an American woman, Mary "Mother" Kelley Edwards, sang as only Africans can sing. "Their rich, mellow voices singing in five parts, without accompaniment, brought tears to my eyes," Miss Emerson declares. "I have decided that if there are heavenly choirs, the black people will not need any of our help."

The burial was at Maplewood cemetery and Rev. Mr. Foster conducted the committal service. The bearers were John, Thomas and Harry Washburn and Richard Woodworth. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Undertaker C. A. Gager had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Bernard W. Ryan

With many relatives and friends present, the funeral of Mrs. Bernard W. Ryan was held Thursday morning at 8:15 o'clock at her home, No. 5 Huntington place, and at 9 o'clock there was a mass of requiem at St. Patrick's church, Rev. John J. Reilly, celebrant. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and was assisted in the singing by Roderick F. Sullivan.

At the offertory Mr. Sullivan and Mr. LaFontaine sang De Profundis and as a waiting hymn Mr. Sullivan sang Jesus, Lover of My Soul. The recessional number was Chopin's Funeral March.

The interment was in the family plot at St. Joseph's cemetery and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May had charge of the committal service. Dr. Clarence M. Thompson, James M. Mara, William Delaney, Frederick Fratus, Edward Jensen and Henry Lyon were the bearers. A number of the graduate nurses of the W. W. Backus hospital training school, members of the present hospital staff, and people from Providence, New York, Boston, New Haven, Pawtucket, Putnam, New London and New Bedford were present at the funeral. The floral tributes were numerous and very beautiful. Undertakers Corcoran and Lyons were in charge of the funeral arrangements.

An Appreciation.

Those who knew and loved Madeline Fields Ryan were startled, almost to the point of unbelief, on reading a notice in Tuesday morning's Bulletin. It was hard to believe that one so thoughtful of others, so without thought of herself, so needed, so useful, so vibrant with life, had gone away with "our little sister, Death."

Her kindness was far-reaching. She heard and gladly [illegible] upon her sympathy or her skill. Distance, inconvenience, cold, heat, seemed not to exist, if she could serve.

Once, when some one found fault with her for doing a disagreeable piece of work for a forlorn, elderly person, she answered: "How can any one fail to seize a chance to help the old! Why, we shall all be old sometime. When that time comes, and others are doing for us, how shall we feel, if we haven't deserved it?"

But that ripe old age is not to be hers. In her strong, young womanhood, in the midst of happy activities, she—everyone's friend—has reached the end of a full, unselfish life.

It has been said that we live in deeds, not in years. But that standard, her short life was complete, finished. And yet, not finished, for "to live in hearts we leave behind, is not to die."

James F. Torrance

The funeral of James F. Torrance, who died at Fishers Island, was held Thursday afternoon at his residence at 105 Atwater avenue, Derby. Burial was in Oak Cliff cemetery in that city.

Attorney Torrance, who had retired and had been living at Fishers Island at his summer home for some time, was formerly judge of probate and prosecuting attorney for Derby. He married Miss Mary Campbell Witter, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. William Witter, of Norwich.

ROBERT W. LANE DIES AT WESLEYAN INFIRMARY

Robert William Lane of Mystic, a student at Wesleyan university, Middletown, died at the college infirmary Thursday morning from bronchial pneumonia. He had been ill but a few days.

He was born in Mystic, Aug. 12, 1911, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lane. He received his early education at Noank grammar school, was graduated with honors from Bulkeley high school, New London, in 1929, and was a freshman at Wesleyan university. He was a member of the Bulkeley band while attending that school.

Two years ago the boy was saved from drowning by his uncle, Ernest Davis, while they were lobstering and for this heroism Mr. Davis received a Carnegie medal.

Young Lane won a freshman swimming letter at the college recently. He was one of the most popular students in his class, a member of Delta Pau Delta fraternity and was otherwise prominent. He was one of the most popular young men in Noank village and his death is keenly felt by all. Surviving him at Noank, besides his parents, is a younger brother, Adrian; his grandmother, Mrs. Jane Wilbur, and two great-uncles, Ernest and Elmer Davis. He was a grandson of Mrs. Lane and the late William T. Lane of Norwich, a nephew of Mrs. George R. Fellows of Norwich Town, Richard E. Lane of Sturtevant avenue, Norwich; also of William Kingsbury Lane of Brooklyn, N. Y., and of Fred Lane of Charleston, S. C.

His father, George C. Lane, is a former resident of Laurel Hill avenue, Norwich, has been a well-known newspaperman in Mystic and Noank, a former merchant at Stafford Springs, for a time was postmaster on Fishers Island and is now a bond salesman.

ADDRESSES AND MESSAGES FOR SPIRITUALISM ANNIVERSARY

Congregations that filled the Spiritual academy on Park street attended the services held there Thursday afternoon and evening in celebrating the 82nd anniversary of the birth of modern Spiritualism.

Three speakers and mediums, Mrs. Amelia Adams, N. S. T., of Haverhill, Mass., Mrs. Mary E. Birchenough of Providence and George A. MacIlroy of Winthrop, Mass., who were on the programme, offered much of great interest to their congregations by their addresses and their giving of messages which were clear cut and readily recognized.

Charles A. Dowsett presided at the services and in the afternoon the anniversary address was by Mr. MacIlroy who spoke upon the power and gift of spirits from a text in the 13th chapter of Corinthians. The messages were by Mrs. Adams, who is a flower medium, and by Mrs. Birchenough.

At the evening service, Mrs. Birchenough spoke upon the topic, Come Let Us Reason Together, and the messages were given by the other two mediums.

The musical part of the services was especially pleasing, Mrs. Josephine Stewart being the soloist. Her sweet soprano voice was heard at its best and her singing was an inspiration to those who heard her. At the morning service she rendered "In a Monastery Garden," with violin and piano accompaniment by Mrs. Dowsett and Mr. Dowsett, and her second number was "Little Gray Home We Love Best." In the evening she was heard in an excellent rendering of "Sylvia" by Speaks and Mrs. Dowsett played the violin solo "Sweet Mystery of Life," which she rendered with deep feeling.

Between the services a cold meat and salad supper was served in the social room at the academy.

The platform was beautifully decorated with flowers, all of which were sent as memorial gifts. In attendance at the services was a large party from Providence and visitors from several cities in this state.

RUM RUNNERS CAUGHT BY PUTNAM POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 27 — Sacratis George and John T. Cudworth, alleged Southbridge rum runners, are under arrest in this city tonight on charges of owning and transporting liquors. In the state of Rhode Island they are wanted on charges of passing counterfeit money. Both men are being detained at Putnam for appearance in court tomorrow morning, after which they will be turned over to the federal authorities. Twelve 5-gallon cans were seized by the police.

The arrest of the two rum runners was brought about at 10 o'clock tonight when Officers Page and Wallen of the local police stopped the rum transport on the Providence road about one mile north of the city. The car answered all descriptions furnished by the Rhode Island police and the two men were immediately placed under arrest. While en route to the police station George who was riding in the rear seat unbeknown to the police began to toss five gallon cans of alcohol off to the side of the road. He had unloaded 12 cans before the police became aware of George's presence in the rear of the car. The alcohol, however, was recovered.

After questioning at the police station George admitted ownership of the liquor and Cudworth was placed on a charge of transporting. Both men were questioned by Rhode Island authorities in connection with passing three $20 counterfeit bills. They said they had passed the bills, but did not realize they were counterfeit.

PLENTY OF SLUGGING EXPECTED AT SHYMA BOUTS TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S CARD
Three Star Bouts of Eight Rounds
Al Koziol of Norwich vs. Freddie Bender of Fall River
Lou Brouillard of Danielson vs. Mule Brown of New Haven
Rene Pelequin of Danielson vs. Romeo Dubois of New Haven
Six Round Preliminary
Johnny Kop of Norwich vs. Joe Barre of Fall River
Four Round Preliminary
Young Gucin of Taftville vs. Young Corries of Fall River

Action is written all over the above card which will be put on by the Shyma club at Parish hall tonight. Without doubt this card is one of the best cards ever to be staged in Eastern Connecticut and will bristle with torrid action from start to finish.

The three star bouts are indeed stellar attractions, any one of them would make a good main bout anywhere in the state. Topping the card, not because it will be the best bout of the evening, but because Koziol is a Norwich boy, is the Koziol-Bender bout. It is not the first meeting of the two boys but the third and whoever wins it will hold the edge on his opponent. Bender holds a decision over the local lad and Koziol in his turn has taken a verdict from Bender. The odd part of it is that both won over the other by large margins, so anything can be expected in tonight's bout. Bender is the general favorite, but Koziol in his last bout did not look so hot.

The second star bout brings together Lou Brouillard of Danielson and Mule Brown of New Haven, two sluggers of the first water. Both boys have been going strong and winning their bouts by large margins. The other night Brouillard stopped Joe Garvey, Clinton barrister, in the fifth round of an eight-round semi-final at Worcester. Brouillard floored Garvey several times before sinking him in the fifth. Brown has proven a tougher boy than Garvey as he has a reputation of hitting with the kick of a mule, hence his cognomen.

Rene Pelequin of Danielson will renew his feud with Romeo Dubois of New Haven which he started here several weeks ago. In that encounter, Pelequin won a close decision but Dubois claims that he had been weakened by an operation he underwent a short time before. The bout tonight will be over the eight-round route and may come to a different conclusion.

In the six-round preliminary Johnny Kop of Norwich clashes with Joe Barre of Fall River. There is plenty of interest in this bout due to the fact that Barre holds a decision over Koziol when these boys met some time ago. A victory over Barre will raise Kop's stock quite a little and the local boy is out to do that.

In the opener Young Gucin of Taftville is slated to meet Young Corries of Fall River. There is some question as to Gucin's being able to box tonight as he has had an ulcerated tooth earlier in the week and was forced to have the tooth extracted. There will be another opponent for Corries on hand to take Gucin's place if he can not fight.

The tickets have been going well and there is a large number on sale at the box office and there will be plenty of room for all.

"BIG ED" WALSH IS IN CRITICAL CONDITION AT MERIDEN

MERIDEN, March 27—(AP)—"Big Ed" Walsh, Chicago White Sox pitching immortal of more than two decades ago, was fighting for his life in the Meriden hospital tonight, after an operation for appendicitis and peritonitis this afternoon.

His physician, Dr. I. S. Otis, said tonight that Walsh was a "very sick man," but that he held out strong hopes for his recovery. He said that the operation disclosed that Walsh had a ruptured appendix and that peritonitis had set in. It will be several days, he said, before the climax is reached.

Walsh, now a scout for the White Sox, whom he served so brilliantly on the mound in the past, was stricken Tuesday while returning from the south, where he had been visiting various major league training camps. He arrived home Wednesday afternoon and this morning Dr. John B. Stoddard was called to his home in South Meriden and advised an immediate operation. Dr. Otis performed the operation, assisted by Dr. Stoddard.

The former spit-ball artist has two sons trying for major league stardom this season—"Young Ed" with the White Sox, and Bob, who has been given a trial with the New York Yankees.

Ranked with the pitching stars of all time, Walsh touched the high spot of his spectacular career in 1908, when he won 40 games for the White Sox and participated in 65 contests. In 1906, pitching against the Chicago Cubs in world series competition, he established a record by fanning 12 batters—a mark which endured until Howard Ehmke of the Athletics turned back 13 Cubs on strikes in the opening game of the 1929 world series classic. In Walsh's epic, he won by a score of 3-0, allowing only two hits.

TRAFTON SUSPENDED FOR NOT PUTTING UP A BATTLE

KANSAS CITY, March 27—(AP)—George Trafton, Chicago heavyweight boxer and former football player, was indefinitely suspended by the Missouri boxing commission today for failure to offer any semblance of fight in his bout last night with Primo Carnera, the Italian.

Announcement of the suspension, which is expected to extend to other states affiliated with the National Boxing association, was made by Harry Davis, Kansas City member of the state commission.

While not criticizing Carnera for the outcome of the bout, Davis said the Italian would not be permitted to box in Missouri again unless a "worthy opponent" is produced.

The European invader, who under the crafty management of the French boxing stable owner, Leon See, has collected more than $100,000 by bowling over a dozen selected second and third rate foes on his tour of the United States, is scheduled to sacrifice Jack McAuliffe, one of the ancients of the industry, at Denver, tomorrow night.

This despite the ruling of the Colorado boxing commission that the venerable Jack was not a "suitable opponent" for Primo. The West Side A. C. of Denver obtained a court injunction restraining the Colorado commission from interfering with the spectacle.

ACADEMY STARS MAKE GOOD ON COLLEGE SQUADS

It has become the rule rather than the exception within the last few years for Academy baseball stars to make their college teams.

For a considerable space of time, an ex-Red and Whiteser, in varsity baseball regalia was not a common sight. Those were the years when the Academy was in the doldrums, calling it a big year if things split even. But now it is different.

Pheno Tombari was the first of the Academy players of the "new era," that is, within the last four or five years since the Wildcats rose to the top rung in the state, to make good. Pheno was elected captain of the 1927 Frosh team at Conn. Aggies. He played shortstop and turned in a good year. He is now being counted on by Coach Dole to bolster up his infield.

There have been others, too, including Lloyd Jarvis, of last year's freshman team at Holy Cross; Staffy Climaski and Mace Goldblatt, of last year's Frosh at William and Mary; Billy Tyrell, on the 1929 yearling nine at Wesleyan; in fact, just about every N. F. A. boy who has gone to college and taken the time to try out has made the team.

As an example of this we can take last year's nine. Six of the team graduated, Buck LaCroix, Hal Cummings, Jack Marks, Amos Tombari, Louie Green and Fred Fagan. LaCroix and Marks are almost certain regulars for the frosh at William and Mary, and Fagan, although he is undecided about going out, is regarded very favorably at Conn. Aggies. The others are not at college. In addition to LaCroix and Marks, Johnny Greene, star, who graduated in 1928, is almost a sure bet to make the William and Mary Frosh.

Burning out star players in high school seems to be a great fault in many places but that apparently does not apply to the Wildcats.

MISS ORCUTT WINS MID-SOUTH TOURNEY

SOUTHERN PINES, March 27—(AP)—Maureen Orcutt, of Haworth, N. J., metropolitan champion, won the second annual mid-south golf championship for women here today over a field of golfers which included the national champion, Glenna Collett, and several members of the American team which soon will sail for Europe.

The metropolitan champion's 241 led Glenna's 244 for the 54 holes.

Mrs. O. E. Hill, Kansas City, made a game struggle but two disastrous holes put her out of the running. She turned in an 85 today for a total of 245 and third place.

In fourth place came Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, Ohio, with an aggregate of 248.

Edith Quier, Reading, Pa., a member and Helen Hicks, Hewlett, L. I., were bracketed at 251.

ATHLETICS BOW BEFORE THE PITCHING OF BRAVES

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 27—(AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics bowed to the Boston Braves 5 to 3 today in one of the most exciting games of the training season.

For six innings Harry Seibold, Philadelphia boy who twirls for the Braves, held his own with Lefty Groves, A's hurler. Then Groves wilted and a combination of singles by Sisler, Moore, Berger and Maguire produced three runs. In the seventh the Braves added two more, Sisler starting the damage with a two bagger.

In the ninth, Chick Galloway made his first appearance in a game in two years. He batted for Rommel of the A's and bounced to the pitcher. Score:

Boston .... 000 003 200—5 10 0
Athletics ...... 000 000 [illegible]—3 [illegible]

Seibold, Brandt, Jones and Spohrer; Grove, Rommel and Cochrane and Schang.

MARQUARD'S TEAM NOSES OUT YANKEES IN NINTH

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 27—(AP)—Rube Marquard's Jacksonville Tars rallied in the ninth to defeat the New York Yankees 4 to 3 today. Pinch Hitter Huttos' double in the ninth scored the tying runs for the Florida nine.

Herb Pennock, the startling Yankee hurler, was played for five runs before he gave way to Henderson, who finished the contest. The Yanks have now lost eight of their 14 exhibition games.

(Opera singers and actors who buy applause in Vienna must provide a minimum wage of two hot dogs with mustard for each of the hired claquers.—News Item.)

Scene—Hall where the Claquers Union of Vienna meets. Members are gathered to discuss the wage situation. The chief claquer is making a speech to the union members.

"Fellow Claquers, we are here tonight to take action on a matter of the gravest importance—our wages. We are underpaid and these performers who are hiring us at a mere pittance are reaping the benefits. If it wasn't for us and our big hands where would these opera singers be? How many favorable press notices has Signor Gargieloud got because of the applause we gave him? It wasn't his singing that did it, it was our hands and our 'Bravos.' If it wasn't for us he'd be selling fish down on the quay or calling trains in the train sheds. Do they appreciate it? No, a thousand times no.

"Didn't I meet Signor Gargieloud on the street yesterday and show him my union card and ask him to give us a raise in wages? What did he do but puff his garlic-reeking breath in my face and laugh. Mind you, he laughed at us, us who have made him what he is today. Are we going to stand it? No, I repeat it, No.

"What do we get for going to these theatres and sitting through two hours of agony listening to the screeching and mouthings of these alleged singers? I'll admit we get free seats, but they're not comfortable. I'll admit we get free beer, but it's not of the best. I'll admit it costs us nothing to check our coats, but even at that I've lost two this winter. And what about our consciences? Shouldn't we have compensation for going to the theatres and applauding when we know we should be raspberrying? I told Signor Gargieloud and his troupe of trained brayers that, and he said he didn't care, he could get plenty of non-union claquers. And look what he's done, he's advertised for claques. Let me read you the advertisement.

"'Wanted: 300 men to act as claquers at the Theatre Comique. Must have big hands and bass voices. Those with evening clothes given preference. Apply to Signor Gargieloud. Highest wages paid.'

"Can you imagine that? What will he get; nothing but amateurs who will applaud in the wrong place, and I hope they do. Now take us professionals. Look at the many hours we have spent in claquing. We're experts at union claquing, the patter claque and the crescendo claquing. Can these non-union men do it? Aren't our hands hard and calloused through years of the year? What can these soft-handed novices do? Nothing, I say.

"Our demand of a minimum wage of two hot dogs with mustard is not excessive. And our maximum demand of six hot dogs and a glass of seidel beer for those who have evening clothes is just. I have drawn up the wage scale and I will read it to you: For gallery claquers—two hot dogs with mustard; balcony claquers—three hot dogs and glass of beer; pit claquers with evening clothes—six hot dogs and seidel of beer.

"Does that meet with your approval? All in favor give a big 'Bravo' and contrary minded a raspberry. The Bravos have it. Now if there is no further business the committee will confer with the actors' committee and present our demands. If they are not accepted we will declare a strike and picket the theatres.

"The meeting is adjourned."

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years.)

One of the finest games of the 1890 season was played on Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Greeneville grounds when the Norwich Players defeated the Hackett-Cathcart Co. team of New York, 3 to 1. Both teams played to win and some brilliant work was seen, according to the files.

Only seven hits were made in this game, five by the visitors and two by Norwich, both made by Gardner, shortstop. The features outside of the battery work were the fielding of Gardner and Long for Norwich. The attendance was good, about a thousand being on hand, a good portion of whom were ladies.

KLARMAN SIGNS WITH NEW HAVEN E. L. CLUB

Klinky Klarman, former Hillhouse high and Holy Cross athlete, has signed with the New Haven Profs for a tryout. Klarman has appeared here twice against the Academy, with Hillhouse in 1927 when N. F. A. was beaten, 2 to 1 and again last spring as a member of the Holy Cross Frosh. Klarman has played both the infield and outfield but is to be groomed for a pitching job with the Eastern leaguers. Klarman was varsity quarterback on Holy Cross last fall but dropped out of school. Also with New Haven is Walter Lindner, former Deep River high pitcher. Bridgeport has Johnny Michaels, former Harding flinger and Hartford has Bernie Hewitt, former Chapman Tech infielder, giving somewhat of a Connecticut high school tinge to the training camps.

PICARD LEADS FIELD IN FIRST ROUND OF N-S GOLF TOURNEY

PINEHURST, N. C., March 27—(AP)—More than 100 golfers, led by Henry Picard of Charleston, S. C., smashed par in the $5,000 North and South open today. With bad weather continuing, the South Carolina pro posted a 146 for the 36 holes and gained a one-stroke lead.

Today's play saw Horton Smith, defending champion, throw eight strokes behind the leader, with 78 this morning and 76 this afternoon.

Paul Runyan of Bloomfield, N. J., shot hard this afternoon for a 72, which included six birdies.

Tied for second place with the tournament half over were Frank Walsh of Chicago and the veteran Tommy Armour of Detroit. They had 147's.

Bracketed at 150 were Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del., Herman Barron, Port Chester, N. Y., and Mike Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., while another quartet recorded 151's. This company included Joe Turnesa of Elmsford, N. Y., George Martin and Tony Manero, both unattached.

Runyan was bracketed with Whiffy Cox, Brooklyn, tonight, with 149. "Bobby" Cruickshank, of Purchase, N. Y., also had 150.

After a bad 78 this morning, Al Espinosa, Chicago, fared better in the afternoon with a 73, and 151 total. Ross Somerville, London, Ont., and Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J., also posted this score for their efforts.

Former open champion, Johnny Farrell of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Dugan Aycock, Charlotte, N. C., took 153's while Horton Smith, Cyril Walker of Paramus, N. J., and Fairley Clark of Savannah, Ga., had 154's. This group also included Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J., amateur, who led the simon pures at the halfway post.

Harry Cooper, unattached, needed 155 strokes, while Denny Shute, young veteran of Columbus, Ohio, sensation, Clarence Gamber of Detroit, Mich., and the veteran Fred McLeod of Washington took 156. Tom Kerrigan of New York was seemingly out of the money with a 160, while Roland Hancock of Lynchburg, Va., Billy Burke of Greenwich, Conn., and Charles Gray of Augusta, Ga., were three strokes behind Kerrigan.

No qualifying score is necessary in the tournament and all players who turned in scores are eligible to compete tomorrow for the victor's $1,500 share of the plunder.

Pitching Worries Howley

ORLANDO, Fla., March 27—(AP)—Pitching, one of the greatest needs of the Cincinnati Reds during the past few seasons, still is a cause for worry and Manager Dan Howley's problem now is further complicated as the time approaches for selecting those hurlers he will retain for the championship season.

Howley has 18 pitchers on his staff and plans to keep nine or ten throughout the year.

The Reds will go to Lakeland tomorrow for a game with the Columbus Senators and also will encounter the Detroit team here Sunday.

Indians Weak With Bats

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 27—(AP)—Manager Peckinpaugh is expected to issue an order to his Cleveland Indians in training here that they prolong their batting exercises.

In the game between the regulars and the New Orleans Pelicans yesterday, the regulars were outbatted. The defeat of the regulars could not be attributed altogether to the work of Walter Miller and Joe Shaute, Cleveland's two holdover southpaws, although their twirling indicated a need for improvement.

Although Miller managed to hold them to some extent, the Pelicans were able to hit too freely when Shaute took the mound in the sixth inning.

Wilby Eliminated

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., March 27—(AP)—Rogers high school of Newport, R. I., defeated Wilby high school of Waterbury, Conn., 32 to 31, here tonight, and marked up the first victory of the eleventh annual eastern basketball tournament. This was the first of four games scheduled tonight by eight championship teams from the northeastern states.

A Challenge.

The R. G. S. would like a game with any basketball team between the ages of 13 to 15, in Norwich, Taftville or Greeneville, on any Saturday or Sunday. Please answer through The Bulletin.

In the eight round semi-final, Ruddy Marshall, New York, 156 1-2, outpointed Sid Tracey, New York, 159, six rounds.

Jimmy O'Brien, Bridgeport, 146, scored a technical knockout over Alex Tourain, New Haven, 137, in the third round of a scheduled six round fight.

ALEXANDER'S HOMER SAVES GAME FOR DETROIT

TAMPA, Fla., March 27—(AP)—Dale Alexander saved Detroit Tigers another defeat by a minor league outfit this afternoon when he slapped the ball out of the lot with Westling on base to beat the Toronto Leafs in the tenth inning, 6 to 4.

Herring and Hogsett pitched for the Bengals. Herring twirled sterling baseball, allowing only one hit, a homer by Richardson, in five innings. Hogsett displayed a world of stuff on the ball, but was lacking in control. He granted five passes and struck one batter during his reign on the mound. Score:

Detroit .... 100 020 010 2—6 8 0
Toronto .... 100 001 101 0—4 6 3

Hogsett, Herring and Rensa; Niggeling, Vick, A. Phillips, Cantrell and Wise.

BABE HERMAN MAKES PEACE WITH DODGERS

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 27 (AP)—Babe Herman, hard hitting Brooklyn right fielder who has been a persistent holdout, sent word today from New Orleans that he will report to Manager Wilbert Robinson at the training camp in Clearwater tomorrow.

Herman has not yet settled his contract dispute but it is believed he will accept the club's terms when he reports. The Babe, who was runner-up for National league batting honors last year, demanded a salary of $25,000 but two weeks ago reduced the figures to $18,000. The club refused to compromise. Robinson's offer was $15,000.

LARGE CROWDS VISIT THE LOCAL STORES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 27.—Local residents mingled with several hundred visitors from eastern and central Connecticut in the window-shopping and interior-tour of Willimantic stores which kept open house tonight on the first evening of the annual spring opening.

The beautiful new spring merchandise, just released for public display in all lines of business, attracted favorable comment from the crowd and there was prospect of many tentative purchases. The gift-giving feature, which is to conclude with the presentation of these gifts by 52 merchants Saturday evening, attracted much attention as indicated by the large number of people who indicated a desire to become a prospective recipient of one of these valuable gifts.

The march of the crowd up and down the business center was enlivened during the evening by music, furnished at different localities by Wheeler's band. Some of the stores, including Tubridy-Weldon's and the newly remodeled Willimantic Lumber and Coal company, building, gave carnations to the women visitors. An unestimated number of people crowded in continuous procession through the beautiful new display rooms of the Willimantic Lumber and Coal company and expressed great admiration at the excellent showing made in the architecture of the building, which was brilliantly illuminated tonight by a floodlight. P. J. Twomey, head of the concern here, and his associates, were highly congratulated on the results obtained. The display of unfinished furniture, garden and lawn furnishings and builders' hardware and paints, was most effective.

Fred Peaces of Chestnut Hill, who was placed on three months probation some months ago in superior court for issuing fraudulent checks, was arrested at his place of employment on a similar charge for which he is expected to be arraigned in police court Friday. There are two counts in the present charge, involving the passing of worthless checks amounting to about $16 and $10, respectively, on local merchants. The arrest was made by Officer John Killourey and Peaces was booked at headquarters by Capt. Frank McLean.

N. F. A. TRACK TEAM HAS 12 MEETS

A schedule of 12 meets, with the possible addition of two more, was announced Thursday for the 1930 Academy track team by Coach John P. Murphy. Five of the meets are at home and two of the strongest schools in the state, Hillhouse of New Haven and Hartford high, are named as newcomers to appear on the local track.

The season opens April 18 with Putnam high here and closes with an opponent, as yet unnamed, the early part of June. There are three newcomers, altogether on the schedule, Suffield prep at Suffield being listed in addition to the Hartford and New Haven schools. The annual meet with Bulkeley, ancient rivals, will be staged at the campus Monday, May 5.

The schedule is one of the strongest ever outlined for an Academy track squad and should give the Wildcats a chance for a strong bid at the state title.

The crack relay teams of the Red and White are entered in three of the major meets of the east, going to Brown for the New England relays to defend their half-mile title won last spring; to Boston, on April 19, and to the Kingston relays May 14. Coach Murphy is also endeavoring to take his team to the Penn relays at Philadelphia in April.

The schedule follows:

April 18—Putnam at Norwich (tentative)
April 19—New England meet at Boston.
April 29—Stonington at Norwich.
April 30—Chapman Tech at New London.
May 5—Bulkeley at Norwich.
May 10—Kingston relays at Kingston, R. I. (Rhode Island State college).
May 14—Hartford Public high at Norwich.
May 17—Suffield prep at Suffield.
May 21 — Eastern Conn.-Western Rhode Island league meet at Storrs.
May 24—State interscholastics at New Haven.
May 27—Hillhouse high at Norwich.
May 30—Rhode Island relays at Brown.

A meet with Westerly in May and some other school in June are the ones on the fire.

The squad has been working out daily and Coach Murphy figures his team is beginning to shape up and should be in tip-top condition for the opening meet. Practice will be held every day next week during the spring vacation.

Sera, in the broad and high jumps; Rootes, in the dashes; Wood, in the mile; Kivlin in the quarter and half miles; DeBarros, in the half mile and Wojstasiak in the shot put, have been doing exceptionally well in the early tryouts.

LIBERTY HILL

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Roberts and Mrs. Roberts' sister, of Durham, Conn., were callers on Mr. and Mrs. John Kinnaird Sunday afternoon.

A community supper and entertainment was held in the church rooms Friday, under the auspices of Liberty Hill C. E. society, with readings by Miss Laura Green, Mrs. Alvin Green, Milo Davoll, E. C. Payson and Rev. J. H. Knott. The supper consisted of meat pie, mashed potato, rolls, pickles, pie, cake and coffee, and popcorn balls.

Visitors at the Gables Sunday afternoon were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Abell and their recently married son and his wife of Windsor.

Tuesday's welcome rain put out all forest fires. One big fire, off Pine street, Columbia Sunday, was put out by about a hundred men. It was set by a man starting a brush fire. One Monday extended from Tobacco street to the railroad. Fire Warden Gurdon Chappell called men and put it out. This was started by a brush fire. It is hard to understand why men will start a fire when everything is so dry.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Kennedy and their son and daughter, and Mrs. Kennedy's mother, Mrs. E. A. Stiles, of Monson, Mass., were guests of Mrs. Kennedy's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Stiles at the Liberty club house over the week end.

Rev. J. H. Knott at the Exeter-Liberty Hill church Sunday morning used a text found in Zechariah VII-5. Mrs. Horace Foote had charge of the evening C. E. service.

WINDHAM

The girls' 4-H club, the Jolly Cookers, held their achievement program at the school auditorium on the 18th with parents and friends of the girls as guests. Katherine March, Julia Ellison, Joyce Smith, Anna Sekorski, Hannah Spokesfields, Lea Coughl, Evelyn and Edith Rood and Annie Wilcox have completed the year's work and were presented certificates. Mildred Olson gave a history of the club. Katherine Mara gave an interesting talk on the county camp at Woodstock. Four members demonstrated an exercise taught by Miss Macdonald, the state nurse. Mrs. J. Raymond Smith, local leader, presented a program for 1930 and sixteen girls signed. Mrs. Marian Mills, Windham county 4-H club agent, showed screen pictures of outstanding members in 4-H work. After the program sandwiches, cookies and cocoa were served.

A supper of ham, mashed potatoes, turnip, rolls, cup cakes, ice cream and coffee were served Friday evening by the men of the Congregational church, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Harvey and Mrs. Daniel Tugger. Hyacinths, green candles and pink bordered napkins made the tables attractive.

Mrs. W. S. Kelsey of Reading, Mass., called on friends in town Monday.

Mrs. Ira Martin of Pawtucket is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Harvey.

Miss Mary Bennett of Middletown was the week end guest of Mrs. H. C. Lathrop.

The subject of Rev. E. L. Smiley's excellent sermon Sunday was Broad Horizons. The bass solo in the anthem was sung by Earle M. Harvey. There were 55 present.

WEATHER VAGARIES KEPT PEOPLE GUESSING

There were numerous flurries of snow in Westerly Thursday but the most severe weather prevailed at the noon hour, when the sky became overcast with heavy clouds so that electric lights had to be turned on. The darkened sky was filled with large snowflakes which obscured the vision of auto drivers and high wind made pedestrian traffic difficult. The various snow and wind storms alternated with bright sunshine and the flakes melted almost as soon as they struck the ground. The noon expresses on the New Haven railroad making the Westerly station stop were late in arriving. A snow flurry at 4 p. m. whitened the ground for a short time.

MOOSUP

HAROLD G. KENYON EARNS A FINE, UNUSUAL AWARD

A Pittsfield, Mass., paper says:

Harold G. Kenyon, formerly of Moosup, is among five employes of the General Electric Co., of Pittsfield, Mass., to receive the award under the Charles A. Coffin foundation, in recognition of exceptional work done during 1929 in saving money for the company or in contributing to its efficiency. The awards were made by Manager E. A. Wagner at a recent special meeting for employes in the plant auditorium.

The citation consists of a certificate of merit and a substantial sum of money. In the case of several of the men, their achievement consists of suggestions which mean a definite annual saving of $100,000 by his work in the recipients are factory workers, one is an engineer, one a laboratory worker and one a division superintendent.

Mr. Kenyon has under his supervision the following divisions: Wire, foundry, pattern shop, tank welding, moulded insulation, textolite base, tube rolling and the power plant, employing about 2,000. It was in the wire division where he brought about an annual saving of 100,000 by his work in improving manufacturing methods, reducing the amount of floor space required, increasing the output and decreasing the manufacturing costs in this department. His development includes the first three-head wire rolling mill, which has an output of 75 per cent greater than that of the two-headed mill.

Mr. Kenyon is a native of Moosup, born Aug. 9, 1887, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kenyon. His home is at 239 Dawes avenue, Pittsfield. His services with the General Electric Co. cover a period of 20 years, during which time he has advanced from cost clerk to section head in the cost department, staff of division superintendent, division superintendent in the wire, drawing and covering departments, and now in charge of eight divisions.

The Charles A. Coffin foundation is somewhat unique in American industrial life. It was created in 1922 by the board of directors of the General Electric Co. at the time of the retirement of the late Charles A. Coffin, the company's founder and first president. The foundation is intended as a memorial tribute to Mr. Coffin. The interest derived from the investments of the foundation, the principal of which amounts to $400,000, is made use of by the trustees for various awards annually, including these to employes.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

A Lesson Learned

Some part of wisdom he has earned
Who has a lesson truly learned.
—Old Mother Nature.

A lesson may be very severe and painful, but sometimes it is worth all it costs if it is thoroughly learned. Flip had thoroughly learned his lesson. Never again would he meddle with Prickly Porky the Porcupine. Never again would he be heedless of the warning of Bowser the Hound. Bowser had done his best to keep Flip out of trouble, but Flip had been willful, prideful and full of curiosity. And so he had had his face driven full of Prickly Porgy's sharp little spears.

Even after his wounds had all healed and he was as good as ever, Flip refused for some time to go over to the Green Forest. Bowser would tease him to go over, but Flip would refuse. He would stand and look longingly over toward the Green Forest, but somehow he didn't want to go. You see, he couldn't forget what had happened to him there.

At last one day he did venture to go over with Bowser. Bowser led the way and Flip sedately followed him, which was very unusual for Flip. Bowser went down the Lone Little Path. By and by they drew near the place where Flip had been taught his lesson by Prickly Porky. Flip stopped for a moment. Then he made a wide circle around that place. Yes, sir, he went around in a big circle. Bowser said nothing, but he grinned. Presently Flip joined him once more and they went on their way. Bowser didn't let Flip see him grin. You see, Bowser knew all the time that Prickly Porky the Porcupine was no longer in that particular part of the Green Forest. But he didn't say so. He wanted to find out just how thoroughly Flip had learned his lesson.

At last Flip seemed to feel more like himself. He began running ahead. He became interested in everything he saw and heard. He ran this way and that way in his old eager manner. It was quite clear that Flip meant to see all there was too see. He was eager to find something new. But at last Bowser noticed that Flip was coming back from one of these little side trips and he was coming very much as if he were afraid of something. He kept looking back over his shoulder. Had he had a long tail, I suspect it would have been between his legs. However, having only a stub of a tail, it couldn't possibly have been put between his legs.

"Come on, Flip," he called. "Prickly Porky is up on the top of a tree

"What's the matter with you?" inquired Bowser.

"Nothing," replied Flip.

Bowser turned aside and headed in the direction from which Flip had just come. Flip hung back. It was very clear that Flip didn't want to go over there. He pretended to be busy in another direction.

"Now I wonder what Flip found over here," thought Bowser to himself, and began to use eyes and nose as only he can. He had gone only a little way when he discovered a few of Prickly Porky's little spears—the quills, you know—scattered on the ground. It was clear that Prickly Porky had been along that way and had shaken some of them loose. He does shake them out once in a while.

Bowser grinned. "So this is it," said he to himself. "He discovered those little spears and that was enough for him. Well, I don't know as I blame him much. Any one who has once been slapped by Prickly Porky's tail isn't likely to want to get anywhere near Prickly Porky again. I wonder where the old fellow is. He probably is around here somewhere."

Bowser sat down and began to look up in the trees. Presently, in a tree not far distant, up near the top, he saw a black bunch. "Come on, Flip!" he called. "Prickly Porky is up in the top of a tree. He won't hurt you."

LEDYARD

Ledyard Grange held its meeting Friday evening with Carl H. Holdridge, master, in the chair. There was a large attendance. Prof. A. E. Wilkinson of Storrs college gave an interesting talk with slides on Beautifying the Home Grounds. Prof. Wilkinson was asked many questions and all felt benefitted by this instructive talk. He was given a rising vote of thanks. Little Shirley Nylen, of Norwich Town, pleased all by her gifted playing of the accordion. The fifth chapter of Silly Sally written by Sister Wieman and read by Sister Fanny Clark was pleasing to all. There were songs by the grange and refreshments were served.

Miss Virginia Goodenough of Jewett City was a week end and Sunday visitor with her sister, Mrs. Barbara Holdridge.

he "Busy Buddies' Boys Club" met with their leader, Paul Holdridge, recently and elected the following officers: Ellsworth Bennett, president; Gilbert Hagen, vice president; Arthur Kelley, secretary and treasurer.

Leslie Holdridge of the University of Maine, who has been spending his week's vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Holdridge, will return to his studies Sunday evening.

A Man of Wealth

He may not measure time by years
  Nor think the Spring far soon to sow,
He may not see how well he plants,
  How well the fruits of love will grow,
But he will reap a thousand-fold
  Because the children love him so.

He does not dread the charnel-house—
  But with a countenance aglow
He goes to meet the One who loved
  All children many years ago,
And takes a precious offering—
  The children's love who love him so.

He may not be of great renown
  Or learned, as the scholars go,
His life may not have spelled success
  As some would say, who claim to kno
But oft his treasure-chest is filled
  Because the children love him so.

He may not own estates or lands
  Nor may he sit where riches flow,
He may not know what wealth commands
  Nor what abundance can bestow,
But kings would oft his treasures grasp
  Because the children love him so

—Harry Halbisch in The Pathfinder.

LAST BRITON TO SELECT OWN SURNAME DEAD

FOULA, Shetland Isles —(AP)— Gideon Monson, last native of the British Isles who was allowed to choose his own surname, is dead.

At one time it was the custom in the Shetlands for a son to twist his father's Christian name and make that his surname, a fact which explains why Gideon Manson's grandfather was called Magnus Robertson, and his father James Manson (Magnus's son).

According to custom Gideon should have called himself Gideon Jameson (i. e., the son of James) but he chose to be known by his father's surname. "Choosing" is illegal now.

Manson lived by fishing and wrote poetry in his spare time. He never submitted his works to anyone, but on occasions recited not more than one poem in return for two ounces of tobacco.

"Clothes last longer, too" says Mrs. Rose Whitmarsh, 598 East Main Street

"I never knew a soap that washed clothes as white as Rinso does. It's wonderful! I don't tire myself scrubbing or boiling, yet the clothes come bright as new. No wonder they last longer—they don't have to be scrubbed to get the dirt out. Rinso soaks out dirt like magic! I use it for dishes, too. Rinso makes all housework easier."

MRS. ROSE WHITMARSH,

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Quite a thunder shower passed over Eastern Voluntown March 25 in the evening.

Clifford Gray of Campbell Mills has the mumps.

Mrs. Benjamin Hall of Rockville, R. I., is staying with Abbie Tanner for a while.

Charles Douglass has gone back to Plainfield to work. Charlie is a hustler.

March the 25th was a summer day. Would like to have it to remain that way then the farmers would begin to do their spring work. It has been so cold a few days back and the wind blew so they could not do any farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hathaway of West Warick, R. I., were callers at Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington's Sunday in Oneco and Irving Franklin of Providence was there in the evening.

George Remington has bought him a heifer calf of Henry Congdon on Storling Hill.

Thomas Lewis was a week-end visitor at William Bitgood's. From there he went to see Mr. and Mrs. James Congdon in Portertown.

Harry Maynard is on the gain. His sister Lizzie talked with him a few days ago. We all hope he will continue to grow better.

Visitors and callers at Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood's the past few days were George Green and a friend of his from Plainfield and Preston; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bitgood and daughter Lila of Pachaug and Everett Whipple of Voluntown. Harold Bitgood and wife are Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood's grandson and granddaughter and little Lila is their great-granddaughter. Mr. Whipple is a friend they have known for a long while. Harold and family and Everett spent Tuesday evening with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood. They went home in the thunder storm.

Mr. Harkman bought a large load of hay of Mr. Bitgood. The Lewis boys drew it home for him. He lives at Beach Pond. He is the man that is building the new hen house and expects the little chicks. He is selling lots of eggs now. He sends them to Jewett City and other places besides.

A man near Oneco bought 830 chicks and his brooder house got afire and he lost chicks, brooder house and all his first year in the chick business. He doesn't want any more.

Mr. Lybeck had 500 chicks come and on one of the cold nights last week lost 30.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

The Independent bowling team went to Pascoag, R. I., Thursday to bowl a team of that town.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Janet Gaynor once again scores a decided hit with her speaking characterization in "Christina," Fox Movietone talking feature which began a three days' run yesterday at the Breed theatre. Her work as the little Dutch girl whose belief in the Prince Charming of her choice gains ultimate reward is splendid. Charles Morton and Rudolph Schildkraut, in the chief supporting roles, render outstanding audible performances. William K. Howard's direction is up to his usual high standard.

No all-talking picture ever made can boast of more suspense, as many thrills nor as much excitement as "The Lone Star Ranger," Fox Movietone all-talking romance adapted from Zane Grey's stirring romance, coming Sunday to the Breed theatre; yet an appealing love story develops during the plot's unfolding.

George O'Brien and Sue Carol portray the leading roles and a superb cast furnishes support. Among those most prominent in it are Walter McGrail, Lee Shumway, Colin Chase, Warren Hymer, Elizabeth Patterson, Caroline Rankin and Russell Simpson.

Broadway Theatre

Tomorrow's the big day for Norwich youngsters, when Hoot Gibson rides his famous "broncho-hoss" onto the Broadway screen, in his first talking western story, "The Long Long Trail." Opening its doors at 10 o'clock in the morning, it is expected that by 10:30, starting time, the house will be crowded with happy youngsters at this special show. Hoot rides through an amazing series of adventures, his ready smile and equally ready six-gun, pulling him out of many difficulties with rustlers, and the crooks who are attempting to run—and ruin—the big Colorado rodeo. An additional feature is the showing of the first chapter of "Tarzan the Tiger," an absorbing talking serial from the pen of Edgar Rice Burroughs, writer of the famous Tarzan stories. Frank Merrill and Natalie Kingston have their original roles, and there are thousands of jungle animals and natives in this talking tale of African adventure. "Tarzan" will be an added attraction at the regular Saturday afternoon shows, also, beginning tomorrow. The management has other surprise features in store for the youngsters at the morning show, which has been specially planned for them alone.

Broadway Theatre

With today's showings of "Roadhouse Nights," Paramount's all-talking thriller of the Chicago racketeers, and "The Vagabond Lover," Rudy Vallee's first featured screen appearance, one of the best twin-feature bills of the season will close, making way for the initial showing tomorrow of the most sensational booking of the season, Great Garbo's first talking role, as "Anna Christie," in the screen play of that name. Penned by Eugene O'Neil, who has furnished many "different" stories for stage and screen, "Anna Christie" tells an enthralling and absorbing tale of a Swedish girl, who, weary of the drudgery of toil on a Minneosta farm, came east to join her father, an old barge captain. The waterfront with its easy morals soon left its mark on the uncultured girl, and she fell an easy prey to the demands and desires of the waterfront rabble. At sea, however, the cleanness of the air and the quaint philosophy of her old dad, work a change in the girl, and when they pull from the sea a shipwrecked Irish sailor, young, husky and imbued with true Irish sincerity, she sees new visions, which are again nearly shattered by her frankness. Tense, vivid drama, a plot with an entirely new twist, typically an O'Neil creation, combined with the realism of George Marion as the father, in his original stage role; Charles Bickford, that rugged young giant of "Dynamite"; the rough but rib-tickling comedy of Marie Dressler, and the passionate, dynamic, exotic personality of Garbo herself, form an entertainment which could only be improved upon by the additional magic of Garbo's voice. Vibrant with life, tense with emotion, yet brimming with humor, her marvelous voice will captivate her hearers, and win new laurels for the "Queen of Passion." Midnight shows, morning shows, continuous shows, all packed from start to finish, wherever this picture has been shown, testify to the thrall the Garbo exercises over her fans. Additional bits of entertainment on the bill with "Anna Christie" include Mickey Mouse in "Plane Crazy," a "bouncing ball" song novelty, "Oh You Beautiful Doll," the latest Paramount Sound News, and "Belle of the Night," a miniature revue, telling of some hectic doings on the Albany night boat. For the children's benefit—and some of the older children, too—the management starts tomorrow a 15-chapter talking serial, "Tarzan the Tiger," from the pen of Edgar Rice Burroughs, creator of the Tarzan stories.

Palace Theatre

"Blaze o' Glory," that's what is coming to the Palace tomorrow for a four days' run, and it's some picture. Here amid sparkling songs, sweet melodies and swift action, Eddie Dowling moves, a star among stars, as the picture unfolds its panorama of war and romance. Fun and frolic and laughter are bound up with deep pathos in this beautifully directed and superbly acted film. Besides Eddie Dowling, it numbers in its cast, the lovely Betty Compson, Henry B. Walthall, Frankie Darro, F. Schumann-Heink and William Davidson.

The picture opens in court and the story unfolds in breath-taking flashbacks, while a grim defending attorney pleads for the life of the hero. Out of that flashback into the past comes the sombre story of a man's life, his loves, his hopes, his fine ideals, and then the shattering impact of war, cruel, remorseless, relentless, mowing down everything that is clean and fine in its path.

Eddie Dowling
Star of "Blaze O' Glory"

This is not an ordinary motion picture. Far from that. It is a musical drama, with a diverting story in which the melody runs a close race with the dancing and dramatics, but neither is ever allowed to overcrowd the other. The producers have given the picture a lavish setting with scenes running all the way from the trenches to the backstage of a theatre. No one can imagine what a tremendous kick there is to be got out of such a picture, and nobody should pass up this golden opportunity to see and hear it.

Today for the last times the Palace presents its double feature program including "The Woman Racket," starring Tom Moore, and "Wide Open," a great comedy with Edward Everett Horton and Patsy Ruth Miller. Another Red Arrow auction tonight at 9 o'clock.

There's quite a difference between keeping boarders and having boarders keep you.

LEGHORNS HOLD LEAD WITH REDS CLOSE AFTER

The progress report of the Storrs egg-laying contest for the 20th week is a gain of 125 eggs over the previous week and a gain of 730 eggs over the corresponding week last year. The total production for all pens was 5,137 eggs or a yield of 14.1 per cent.

Leghorns that broke into the lead last week are still holding the post with Rhode Island Reds in hot pursuit. These leading pens are separated by only eight eggs which is, of course, a mere bagatelle when one remembers that the two pens together have laid a total of nearly 2,500 eggs.

Two pens of Barred Rocks entered by Pratt Experimental farm at Morton, Pa., and Old Pickard farm at Littleton, Mass., tied for first place for the week with 64 eggs each. Toivonen Leghorn farm at Girard, Pa., crowded the leaders and came in second for this week with a tally of 62 eggs. Two pens of Rhode Island Reds owned by Pine Hill Poultry farm at Weston, Mass., and Burdean Acres at Newton Center, Mass., tied for third with 62 eggs each.

Spring Brook Poultry farm's pen of Barred Rocks from South Wethersfield, two pens of Rhode Island Reds bred by Donald I. Goodenough of Torrington, and George B. Treadwell of Spencer, Mass., and Hanson's Leghorn farm from Corvallis, Oregon, all ran neck and neck. These four pens each did 61 eggs. Another pen of Reds and two other pens of Leghorns needed to lay only one more egg to have divided honors with the four pens above.

During the 20th week Australorps and Jersey Giants outspurted all the others by stepping up their production from around 61 to 74 per cent. Wyandottes as a breed were the next most active, having jumped from around 66 to 71 per cent. Barred Rocks also moved into higher ground. Their gain was less than those already recorded and yet their production of better than 60 per cent is neither excelled nor equalled by any other variety.

White Rocks were also on the war path, while Rhode Island Reds and White Leghorns laid almost exactly at the same rate as they did for the previous week. All the leading pens held their same relative positions except in the Leghorn group. In this class one notes that Tom Barron from Catforth, England, is now numbered among the elite instead of the pen from nearby Rhode Island.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes—The Locusts, West Cornwall, 1,103; Fisher P. Farm, Ayton, Ont., Canada, 919.

Barred Rocks—R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, 1,044; R. C. Cobb, Littleton, Mass., 1,036; Spring Brook P. farm, So. Wethersfield, 1,008.

White Rocks—E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, 909; E. A. Hirt, So. Weymouth, Mass., 838; Harold F. Barber, Valecroft, Dover, Mass., 830.

Rhode Island Reds—Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, 1,234; Edw. N. Larrabee, Peterboro, N. H., 1,157; Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, 1,152; Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 1,135.

White Leghorns—Toivonen Leghorn farm, Girard, Pa., 1,242; Steelman Poultry farms, Lansdale, Pa., 1,149; Hanson's Leghorn farm, Corvallis, Ore., 1,139; Meadowedge farm, Sterling Jct., Mass., 1,114; Tom Barron, Catforth, Preston, England, 1,104.

Attends School Every Day Now

"My daughter Kathleen is fifteen years old. For three years she had suffered with pains as so many young girls do. One day we saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the San Antonio Evening News. I bought a bottle and it helped her so much that she has been taking it regularly and is now completely relieved and able to attend school every day."—*Mrs. Victor H. TAKING THE EASIEST WAY

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

I have a friend, otherwise a rather pleasant chap to meet, who seems to find his greatest satisfaction in maintaining against all comers that a big half of his fellow men and women are what he euphemistically calls "damphools."

By that he doesn't mean that they are idiots or even morons. He doesn't charge that they are incapable of reasoning but that they simply don't use their reasoning powers. He remarks that the fact one doesn't use his appendix vermiformis in no way disproves the existence of the gland. In like manner his habitual disuse of his reason doesn't prove that he hasn't any. It simply indicates that he doesn't appreciate his most valuable endowment and prefers to go by tradition or caprice or "hunches" rather than by judgment.

It's astonishing, too, how many arguments this pessimistic neighbor can adduce to sustain his contention.

There are the men we elect to office, for example. We, the people, have complete control of the selection of candidates and the election of officials. We can pick 'em out and set 'em up and pull 'em down, just as and if and where we please. Reasonable beings, acting in a reasoned and reasoning way, and desiring chiefly good and efficient service, would naturally nominate for hogreeve the one man in town who knows the most about hogs and can manage them most wisely. They would name for constable the one man who is recognized as most capable of handling tramps and road-hogs and chicken-thieves. They would select for road commissioner the one who knows most about roads and best how to build good ones. They would pick for the legislature men popularly accepted as natural leaders, who had proven by their own successes their ability to get the right things done in the right way. They would send to congress those whose legislative training and conduct had shown them to be not only loyal to the state but capable of comprehending and forwarding the broader interests of the whole country.

That, says my friend, is what reasonable beings might be expected to do. But is it what they actually do in real life? Hardly. Instead of asking who is the best hog-man in town, in order to make him hogreeve, they put in some chap who doesn't know a Red Duroc from a Cheshire sow, but who, scenting certain possible fees in the distance, has got the party bosses to O. K. his candidacy and, by dint of persistent cajolery and promises and appeals, has mustered a sufficient body of heelers to give him a slender majority in the caucus. In other words, he's elected not because of the general recognition of his exceptional fitness for the place but because, for purposes of his own, he wants "the job."

And so on with other and, ostensibly, more important offices. When it comes to choosing public servants to work for and in behalf of the public, the said public, which uses its reason in deciding when to plant potatoes or what animal to pick for a plow-horse, absolutely refuses to give reason even a chance to be heard.

Congress today, as for generations past, is filled by men who were not sent there because the intelligence of their constituents selected them as proper representatives, but because they wanted the salary or the "honor" or the possible "graft" accompanying the place, and because they were known to the party bosses as "critters that 'ld stand without hitchin'," and because they had won over the support of local vote-diggers by promising postoffices or other things to those who delivered the goods.

All of these things are known to anyone who has eyes and uses them to see with. But there are other directions in which the prevalent unreason of the mob asserts itself. There stares up at me from the floor to which I have just tossed it an advertisement in a big city paper of a big department store which has taken for its slogan: "It's smart to be thrifty." This at once strikes a reasoning being as a transposition of values, an anti-climax of speech.

Thrift is a commendable habit; many go so far as to consider it a primary virtue. "Smartness," on the other hand, is a mere exaggeration of some passing fashion or fad. It may or may not be a vice; it assuredly is not a virtue under any possible definition of that word. Yet the advertisement is intended to promote a virtue by defining it as a fad. You may be sure that the managers of this store and the sponsors of this slogan are not wasting printer's ink recklessly or without hope of return. They say "it's smart to be thrifty" because they know, from business experience, that a great horde of possible customers would rather be regarded as "smart" than as "thrifty." If being "thrifty" also made them dowdy, they would have none of it. But if they could be convinced that being "thrifty" would lead to their also being considered "smart,"—ah, that's quite another matter!

When you and I were boys, teacher used, occasionally, to set as a "copy" in our writing books the line "Honesty is the best policy." I've heard the same idea voiced, since then, from rostrums and even from pulpits.

This is just another surrender to the wide-spread popular habit of putting the cart before the horse. "Honesty" is a primary virtue, to be honored for itself alone; "policy" is just a "procedure based primarily on temporal or material interest, rather than on higher principles." (Cf. Webster.) "Honesty" is an end admirable and worshipful; "policy" is an expedient or artifice smoothing the course to any end, whether commendable or deplorable. Yet the implication of the old copy-book line is that we should practice honesty because it is the best strategy! It's equivalent to saying that we should be good because being good pays best. And that's an assertion which is open to doubt; in fact is gravely doubted by many impartial observers. Unquestionably it keeps one out of jail. But it's effect upon one's banking account is something the oil kings and bootlegg millionaires are better qualified to discuss than any of us poor farmers.

It seems to be a wide-spread if not prevalent trait of human nature to put the trivial and temporary above the substantial and enduring. The primary object of clothes, to take one omnipresent example, is to protect and shield the body. Clothing which does that most satisfactorily fulfils its sole valid purpose. But we all or nearly all choose our clothes so as to be somewhere near "in fashion." Of course the original idea persists to some degree. But we have to take our clothes in such fabrics and of such cuts and in such designs as a temporary and evanescent fashion decrees, not as the needs of either protection or modesty of becomingness demand. If fashion says "Chiffons," chiffons it must be, however superior cheviots might seem. If fashion says "silk hose," silk hose it must be, even when March winds call for sturdy woolen. If fashion orders one to the golf course, to the golf course he goes, even when he knows that hoeing potatoes is equally good exercise, decidedly more useful, and quite as interesting to the really sane mind.

If we farmers get into the habit of raising corn and potatoes and using a certain brand of fertilizer, we're apt to keep right on that way, even when we can't sell our corn and 'taters for what it costs to grow them, and even though the market is howling its throat hoarse for cabbages and cucumbers, or similarly despised crops. We simply won't use our reason to decide upon our tillage. That is, too many of us won't.

Esten may wrack his brains and strain his back showing us how we can get our nitrogen and our potash free, gratis, for nothing, by enlisting the aid of the everywhere present bacteria of the soil. But no, we've got used to paying big prices for those elements in commercial fertilizers, and so we keep right on,—and wonder why our farming doesn't pay as we think it ought to.

Oh, we're all tarred with the same stick, whether we work dirt or fish for suckers! We take what seems the easiest way, or the accustomed way, or the fashionable way, stolidly refusing to let our reason seek out and delimit the right way.

We quote with unctuous approval the worldly-wise advice: "When in Rome do as the Romans do." We don't stop to ask where the Christian church would have been, if Paul and Peter and their fellows had subscribed to this confession of cowardice in the first century of our era. We don't consider where the United States would have been had such men as Washington and Hancock and Franklin and our own Trumbull allowed themselves to by governed by any such so-called principle.

Another famous half-truth which those who learned to parse from Pope's "Essay of Man" are fond of quoting is his line that "Whatever is, is right." In the domain of nature, where God reigns unassisted, this is probably true. But in the humanly muddled-up world of Pope's time, with kings waging wars for lust of empire, and slaves toiling under the lash to sate their masters' greed for gold, and pirates fouling all the seven seas in their pursuit of loot, and usurers draining the life-blood of industry, and dukes luxuriating in lordly castles while worthier workers wasted away in the grime of fetid hovels,—in this last topsy-turvied and disordered derangement, his averment was not then and is not now true. Whatever is in government and law and society and business is far from being necessarily right. The changes are certainly even that it's dead wrong.

You and I don't know for sure what's the matter with this decidedly puzzling world and its even more inexplicable inhabitants. Nor have we been appointed and authorized to prescribe for it any panacea. We don't know any. But don't you suppose that it would help some if we should all pay more heed to our brains than to our backs and bellies, obey our own judgment rather than the orders of "They say," and use our reason to control our simian instincts of imitativeness?

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Doran Brothers, Danbury.

This business was founded by Charles H. Reid in 1872. Mr. Reid was formerly employed in Waterbury, where he received his training in mechanics. He invented the first two jowed drill chuck with positive centering gained. This chuck is still being manufactured, because it is one of the simplest and best chucks known.

Mr. Reid designed and patented several labor saving machines for use in the hat manufacturing art, including the automatic hat crown ironing machine, the automatic hat crown finishing machine and the automatic hat crown finishing machine and the automatic rounding machine. Some of the original machines are still in use, giving mute testimony to the genius of the maker and the quality of materials used.

After Mr. Reid's death, the business was taken over by his nephews, John C. and James F. Doran, formerly of Waterbury, who have since operated the business in expanded, modern quarters and have added many important machines to their line. The factory is modernly equipped and manufactures the highest grade mechanically constructed and theoretically perfect, automatic hat making machines, which are in general use in every country where fur hats are made.

Doran Brothers' English and continental representatives are The Hat Manufacturers Supply company, Ltd. of Stockport, England, where, in a most modern show-room, every machine of their make is set up in running order for demonstration purposes.

The greatest testimonial of the "Doran" product is displayed in the great number of repeat orders received.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene LaFleur have moved to Willimantic, on the South Coventry road.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Little have just received the gift of a radio from their nephew, Joseph Little of Detroit.

Pastor Resigns

At the morning service of the Congregational church the pastor, John Howell read his resignation to take effect April 21st. A meeting of the church will be held Friday evening to take action upon the resignation.

The C. E. meeting Sunday evening was led by Clayton Hunt. The music was led by Clayton Hunt Jr., and Frederick Hunt saxophones, Westcott Rice, violin and Ahlene Badge at the piano.

Luther Buell and Donald Woodward have been at Groton Long Point, working on Mrs. Jacobs' house.

Found Ready Helpers

A brush and wood fire burned over about 70 acres in the Leonard Bridge section of the town Sunday afternoon. The fire came up very near the buildings of Henry Lafleur, being stopped only 15 feet from some of his henhouses. The fire warden was notified and he sent out an alarm for help, scores of cars soon appearing. The fire was soon brought under control.

The more popular a man is with himself the less popular he is with other people.

Schools here closed for a week's vacation.

Mrs. Grace Lambert of Danielson was with her sister, Mrs. Keegan Tuesday.

Miss Fanny Jennings of Webster and Ernest Staley of North Oxford, called on old friends Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Murdock of Boston called on the latter's mother Sunday.

Harry Haggerty has gone to work for the Montgomery-Ward Co. and at present is in the auto department.

The town of Rucphen, Holland, has a single moving picture house. It was decreed that the thing should be governed by strict municipal laws, one of which states—on the grounds of public morality—that male and female patrons must be rigorously separated, married or otherwise. The police paid a surprise visit and discovered a man sitting next to a woman, who turned out to be his wife. Notwithstanding this, the authorities ordered the theater closed for five years for violation of the law.

JEWETT CITY

AMUSING SIDELIGHTS ON A POST OFFICE TALE

Miss Idella Young, a Griswold teacher, wrote a letter to George A. Ross, thanking him for a set of California cards which she had received, also mentioning the fact that she had borrowed a set from E. H. Hiscox, which he had received from his friends who were touring the west.

The letter, addressed to Mr. Ross in San Francisco, bore no city address. Miss Young lives in Glasgo, Conn., which fact was shown by her letterhead. Later, realizing that her letter to Mr. Ross would likely fail of delivery, she wrote to the postmaster at San Francisco, giving the supplementary address, at the Roosevelt hotel. Earlier this week Miss Young received a letter from a George A. Ross, with a city address in San Francisco, asking what it was all about? He had sent no cards and did not know Miss Young, adding, I am much interested in your note, however, because I was born in Glasgo. The oldest resident here does not remember a Ross of Glasgo. It is believed that the California man must have meant Glasgow, Nova Scotia, or possibly, Scotland. The only other George Ross he ever knew, he said, lived in Vancouver, B. C. The letter went on to tell its strangest part, when it read, that he, (Mr. Ross) had been to see Mr. Hiscox, principal of a San Francisco school, and found that he knew nothing about California cards having been sent to anybody in the east. A card to Miss Young from the postmaster in San Francisco gave the information that the letter to George A. Ross had been delivered in accordance with the carrier scheme of the Pacific city, to a resident for whom it was supposed it was intended. The comedy of errors served at least to establish the fact that George A. Ross and E. H. Hiscox, are residents of San Francisco, Cal., information which some of them discovered with interest.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Josephine Wojdon

Mrs. Josephine Wojdon died Thursday at Backus hospital following a major operation. She was born in Poland but has lived in Jewett City for thirty years. She had been employed in Ashland mill and lived in the Ashland section until recently, when she moved to a room in the Ninigret section. She was one of the most prominent Polish women in the community, very progressive in her ideas. She was the first to help organize and attend the English speaking night school, and organized the Polish Women's alliance and Polish Rosary society. She was a member of the Catholic Women's Welfare society and of Ashland club.

Twenty years ago her husband was obliged to return to Poland, on account of his health, and is still living there. She has no children or relatives here, but there are distant cousins in New Bedford and Detroit. She was a woman held in the highest respect by many friends, for she was very active in all ways to promote any good cause. Whenever she has been ill, she was accustomed to go to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Glowacki's home, where she was always given the best of care. Her body has been brought by Hourigan Bros. to their home on Soule street.

No less than a dozen separate and distinct snow squalls visited this section Thursday. Bright sunshine showed between several of the afternoon flurries. Motor vehicle drivers reported the visibility as being only about 200 feet during the miniature storms.

Finn's tonight. Glassware night. Redeem last week's coupons. All-talking picture, "The Sacred Flame," with Pauline Frederick and Conrad Nagle.—adv.

Work has begun on the Tadpole contract and one of the construction company's big power shovels has been moved from the Quinebaug job to that point. The borough electric linemen are removing their poles from the right of way. With these two big bridge contracts actually underway, Griswold stands in lead of the towns of the state for highway and bridge contracts, which are to cost, with the roads to be built this summer, close to a half million dollars.

Mr. and Mrs Daniel L. Phillips, expect to leave April first for three week's visit in Washington, D. C., and Florida. One of the objectives of the trip will be the stop at Lake Wales, to see the Edward Bok famous singing tower.

The Congregational church organ is being thoroughly cleaned, tuned and mechanical work repaired by a firm from West Boylston.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Post leave today (Friady) to spend the week end in New York.

Mrs. Adam Ropeske entertained at bridge Wednesday, two tables being in play. The prizes went to Miss Pauline Peltier and Mrs. Charles Roy. The hostess served refreshments.

Mrs. L. C. Prentice and Mrs. Harry Prentice, of Greeneville, were in town Thursday, consulting with the Congregational Missionary society committee concerning the coming presentation of the Radioletta, Please Stand By.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Baptist church met at Mrs. G. H. Prior's Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Prior was assisted by Mrs. Gertrude Sparks, Mrs. Thomas McBroome, Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt and Mrs. E. M. Gray.

HOSPITAL BRIDGE PARTIES TO AID BENEFIT FUND

Up to date, Backus hospital auxiliary benefit whist or bridge parties, or the money equivalent, have been given by Misses Anna Russenas, Margaret Driscoll, Margaret Walsh and May Driscoll, Mrs. J. H. McLaughin and Mrs. Andrew McLaughlin. Two more will finish the list, those to be given by Mrs. P. W. Chase and Mrs. T. A. Rioux.

RUNAWAY BULL MARKET AGAIN RAN INTO HEAVY SALES PERIODICALLY

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)— A runaway bull market again made traders nervous in today's stock market and prompted heavy realizing. Furthermore, a late ticker, as on Tuesday, gave the bears a chance to intensify the unsettlement.

Sales aggregated 4,707,080, which, with the exception of yesterday, was the largest turnover of the year.

The market opened with the exception of a tremendous volume of buying orders attracted by the sharp upturn in the utility shares late yesterday. A score of transactions of 5,000 to 25,000 shares appeared on the tape during the first half hour. Heavy selling appeared during the morning, and the market declined rapidly until afternoon, when large scale buying of several leading industrials and coppers checked the decline, and irregular recovery was accomplished.

Further selling flurries appeared in the last half hour. Net losses were slightly in the majority at the close, although the price index of 90 stocks showed a loss of less than half a point, and that of 50 industrials rose fractionally to a new high for the year.

Renewed firmness of money aided the bear cause. Banks called more than $80,000,000 in loans, evidently in preparation for the mid-weekly settlement at the federal reserve and to build up their balances against the heavy quarterly dividend and interest payments over the month end. Call money renewed at 3 1-2 per cent and moved up to 4. The weekly brokers' loan figures, after the close, however, provided a pleasant surprise, showing a reduction of $21,000,000, while Wall street had looked for a gain of $100,000,000 or more.

Among shares selling up to new high ground for the year were such issues as American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Corn Products, General Motors, Du Pont, Foster Wheeler, Public Service of New Jersey and Worthington Pump, with extreme gains of 2 to 7 points. These were sharply reduced later, however, U. S. Steel actually closing with a fractional net loss. Among the strong spots at the close were Barnsdall A, Associated Dry Goods, Lambert, and General Gas A, up 2 to 4 points. Rails were comparatively quiet, although Chicago Great Western preferred rose two points to a new 1930 high, reflecting one of the few favorable February railway earnings statement, and merger prospects.

Utilities suffered most heavily in the selling. The sharp advance late yesterday appeared to have been far too rapid. American Power and Light, American and Foreign Power, Columbia Gas and Consolidated Gas were among issues losing 2 to 4 points.

Foreign exchanges sagged further, leading to reports that Europe was again buying stocks in this market. Sterling cables again dropped 1-4 of a cent touching $4.86 1-2.

THE CURB MARKET

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)— An advance in the call money rate and fears of a large increase in federal reserve brokers' loans, which proved to be unfounded, had a restraining effect on bullish enthusiasm in today's curb market. Prices bounded upward at the opening but met heavy offerings on the rally and then backed and filled all day, leaving closing quotations irregular. Trading failed to maintain the swift pace set yesterday, although the day's sales exceeded 1,500,000 shares and were the second largest of the year.

Public utilities assumed the leadership of the early advance, but the pressure of realizing sales finally slowed them up and forced some of the leaders below yesterday's closing quotations. Several issues, such as American Superpower, Columbia Gas (new) and Electric Bond & Share, established new 1930 highs and then cancelled their gains and closed lower. American Gas & Electric, Cities Service, International Superpower and National Power & Light 6% preferred attained new peaks and retained at least part of their gains.

Reports that gasoline stocks in storage were being drawn upon for the first time this year brought some fresh buying into the oils but Gulf and Vacuum were among the few issues to show net gains at the close. Standard Oil of Ohio dropped 4 1-2 points and Humble 1 5-8. Indian Territorial closed unchanged at 47 1-4 after touching a new top at 47 3-4.

Gas stocks, which have attracted a wide speculative following in the last few months, were mixed. Houston Gulf and Lone Star Gas moved into new high ground, although the latter lost its gain, while the United Gas issues lost more than a point each.

Deere & Co. jumped 10 points to another new record high at 725 on a few odd lot transactions but the new stock showed a net loss of 2 1-2 at 142 1-2, after having crossed 148 for the first time. New 1930 highs also were recorded by Aviation Corporation of America, Corroon & Reynolds preferred "A," Holophane, Insurance Co. of North America, Interstate Hosiery, Lane Bryant, National Steel, Outboard Motor "A," and U. S. Radiator. Aluminum Co. of America jumped 8 points and Cuneo Press preferred 11-1-8 on small transactions.

Curb bonds moved irregularly higher, although the recent stiffening in money rates has slowed up the demand for these senior securities.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Except for activity in a few convertibles whose movements are governed by stock prices, trading in bonds was quiet today. The market eased in places, especially among the rails where some selling was met on a stiffening of money, but on the whole the list presented a firm undertone.

United States government securities reflected firmer interest rates by declining rather sharply. Treasuries were the chief sufferers, the 3 3-4s losing 31-32 of a point and the 3 3-8s of 1943-47 dropping 26-32. Call loans renewed at 3 1-2 per cent but there was considerable calling during the forenoon and the rate was raised to 4 per cent. Ninety-day time accommodations were also advanced.

An increase in the day's volume of business was largely accounted for by the heavy dealings in American Telephone Convertible 4 1-2s. These debentures sold in new high ground for the year throughout the session, ranging between 170 and 172 1-2, the best prices since last fall. They closed at 170 3-4 for a net gain of 1 1-4. Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s and Warner Brothers Pictures 6s were active and firm.

Easiness of the rails was in the face of the fact that yields from high grade issues are above money rates. The steady flow of new financing, however, tends to divert attention from seasoned bonds, although the market appears to be absorbing these flotations satisfactorily. Losses of about a point in Santa Fe General 4s, Great Northern 4 1-4s, Illinois Central 4s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Northern Pacific 4 1-2s, St. Louis & San Francisco Prior Lien 4s and Union Pacific First 4s resulted from small transactions.

American Natural Gas 6 1-2s, carrying warrants, traded briskly and rose more than a point, but the utilities without stock features were dull and steady. Active industrials included Goodyear Tire 5s, Humble Oil 5 1-2s, Reading Coal & Iron Convertible 6s, and United States Rubber 5s, but price movements in all held to fractions.

Foreign bonds eased. German Republic 7s came within a shade of their highs, recorded yesterday, and then sold off coincident with the cabinet's resignation. A substantial transaction in British 4s was made at 89 1-8, up 1-8. Child Bank issues advanced.

On approval of the interstate commerce commission, the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad is to issue $15,000,000 in general mortgage long term 4 3-4s. They will be public sold at 98.

MONTVILLE

A meat pie supper held Wednesday in the chapel of Uncasville M. E. church was most successfully conducted. Mrs. Louise Engler was in charge of the dining room. The hostesses were Mrs. A. W. Avery, Mrs. Albert Kellogg, Mrs. Mae Spiers, Mrs. J. Y. Miller and Mrs. James Bingham. The waitresses were Mrs. F. C. Rogers, Mrs. Ernest Mass, Mrs. Arthur Lowman, Mrs. Fred Hubert, Miss Rosamond Blaisdell, Miss Ida May Church and Mrs. Lottie Comstock. In the kitchen were Mrs. Oscar E. Church, Mrs. Wallace Potter, Mrs. Richard Johnson and Mrs. Bert Hewitt. Mrs. John Botham had charge of the fancy work and apron table.

Drove Recklessly

Armand Baril of South street, Taftville, who was arrested Wednesday night by Officer Howard Lamphere was tried before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church and was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving.

At the American Legion district meeting held in Rioux hall at Jewett City last week the local Legion post, No. 112 was represented by John Killeen, Robert Kennerson, Matthew Gearey and Walter Bergmen.

Armand Plouffe, of Pequot who has been in Canada for the past week visiting his mother who is seriously ill, returned here Wednesday.

Rev. Fr. James A. O'Meara, Dr. John J. Donahue, Antone Bibbick and Mr. and Mrs. John Awezec were summoned to attend the trial of Stephen Awezec against Frank W. Woodward, of New London, as witnesses.

Frank Pancero and William Robinson of Old Mystic were business callers at Montville Thursday.

Knights Invite Parish Men

Montville Council, K. of C. held the final meeting at Hickey's hall Wednesday night in preparation for their annual communion breakfast Sunday morning, after the 7:30 mass. All the men of the parish have been invited by the Knights to attend and to receive holy communion in a body. Speakers later at the breakfast will be from Norwich. The committee in charge of the communion breakfast comprises Edward Rowley, chairman, William Dunan, Joseph Tylseck, Patrick Monahan, Edward Curtin, Gene Cote, George Chagnon, Sr., Phomphile Anctel and F. P. Collins.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP)—Led by wheat, all grain prices turned downward today toward the last after scoring early gains. Reserve buying power flattened out at least for the time being, and values gave way under larger selling to realize profits on bulges. Export developments as to North American wheat were disappointing, and farm board advices that United States spring wheat acreage probably would be reduced more than department of agriculture figures indicated failed to act as a counter-balance.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to 5-8c lower, Corn closed unchanged to 5-8c off, oats 1-4a3-4c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Acquisition of the American Founders corporation, an investment trust, by the United Founders corporation, a similar organization, has been effected, it was learned today with the announcement that the latter company had come into possession of approximately 75 per cent of the shares of American Founders through an exchange of stock on a share-for-share basis. The offer to exchange United Stock for that of American Founders will expire at the close of business tomorrow.

The Consolidated Mining and Smelting company of Canada, Ltd., plans to offer additional common stock to stockholders on the basis of one share for each 20 shares held. Other details of the plan are to be made known later. Authority to issue additional stock is vested in the directors, but the board has decided to ask stockholders' approval at the annual meeting April 11.

The Guaranty Trust Co. of New York has arranged to ship $300,000 in gold to London on the new steamer, Europa, which sails tomorrow on its first east-bound voyage. This shipment is not regarded in Wall street as marking the beginning of a new outflow of gold from this center, however, as the present rate for sterling exchange is nearly two cents below the point at which exports of gold are believed to be profitable.

The gold movement at the port of New York for the week ending March 26, comprised imports of $252,000, all of which came from Latin-America. There were no exports and no change in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account.

48 YEARS A MOTORMAN, COULDN'T STAND VACATION

COLUMBUS, Ohio—(AP)—For 48 years, while he has been motorman on the street car lines here, John Linn has wanted to go places.

Recently he retired, to travel and then to settle down in California. Every place he went he studied street car systems and spent his time chatting with the men who run them.

Then he went to California.

The other day Linn mounted to the platform of his old car again here in Columbus, said "Howdy!" to his old pal the conductor and banged away off on the old job again.

The thought of leaving his "life's work" spoiled California for him, he said.

BANKS REPORT BIG DEMAND FOR FARMS

CHICAGO—(AP)—Demand for farms exceeds the supply in many parts of the west and southwest.

This was revealed in replies to a questionnaire sent by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad to 304 bankers in Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Montana, South Dakota and Kansas.

"Farms here at high premium for rental. We could rent 100 additional," reported the First National bank of Holyoke, Colo.

"As soon as there is a farm for rent there are about a dozen men wanting it," said the bank of Axtell, Neb.

"No farms for rent in this vicinity," observed the First State bank of Norton, Kas.

PHEBUS AND McFARREN BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON EXTRADITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 27.—Ora M. Phebus and Andrew McFarren, former service men, who were arrested in Elizabeth, N. J., a week ago, charged with theft of an automobile in this city, were returned to New London tonight on extradition by Detective Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh. They will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow. In default of a surety on their bonds, Phebus and McFarren were locked up. The ex-service men were in New London the night of March 17 and when they found the Ford automobile owned by Mrs. Isabelle Murray, 75 Howard street, parked in the highway, the men entered the car and drove away. The automobile is valued at $825 and when Mrs. Murray reported its theft at police headquarters a request of other departments was made to be on the lookout for the stolen machine. About a week later the Elizabeth police found Phebus and McFarren in possession of the auto and arrested the men. Since that time they have been in jail awaiting the serving of the extradition papers that would equip an officer to bring them back here for trial.

All Sorts of Weather

New London had a variety of weather today, with three snow squalls thrown in for a test of the staying qualities of those who believe they are hardened to the climate of New England.

OFFENDING AUTO DRIVERS NEED A TASTE OF THE LAW

Complaint is heard of the recklessness of auto drivers, not only that they are in danger themselves, but they jeopardize the drivers of other cars in speeding and taking up more of the road than belongs to them. It will be surprising if there are not prosecutions for this misdemeanor. The passing of intersecting streets without reducing speed and without sounding horns has become flagrant offense with many autoists. Motorists offend also in leaving their cars parked without lights, or far away from street lights, thus inviting collisions for which moving cars would not be responsible.

GROTON BENEFITED WELL BY MORTON F. PLANT'S GIFTS

Groton residents, especially real estate owners, are not of one mind as to whether the tax rate levied by the recent town meeting is producing sufficient revenue to meet the expenses of the town for the ensuing year. The selectmen recommended the laying of a tax much higher than the levy finally adopted. Since then the expenses of the town have been cut by reducing the number of men and teams employed in highway work, but it is claimed that further reductions and many of them must be made to "foot the bills." There are those who declare that the income of the town will be ample for meeting expenses and that when the end of the year comes the finances will be in better shape than they have been in recent years. The collection of all the taxes due is what the town desires; and if that is accomplished the rest will be easy. That is the claim of the shrewd ones who insisted on a cut in the tax rate. Groton people have had some peculiar ideas as to taxes, in past years. At one time there was a notion that the late Morton F. Plant did not pay enough taxes, so opposition was pronounced to his desire for the location of a school building at a given point. Mr. Plant won what he desired, finally. Then there was a controversy as to the laying of a new surface on the highway to Eastern Point. Mr. Plant offered to do the work and to give the town the benefit of his outlay. He finally laid the road and then he gave the town the road roller used. Other reminders recall the splendid generosity of Mr. Plant to the town, notably the town hall at Poquonoc.

EARLY START SAVED HOUSE AFIRE IN GROTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 27.—The frame residence on Broad street, between Ramsdell and Monument street, Groton, owned by Mrs. Mary Bailey and occupied by Sylvester Weeks, was damaged by fire late this afternoon. The fire was discovered shortly after 4 o'clock and an alarm was rung in. Pioneer Hose company responded. The blaze was located in the woodwork surrounding a chimney, but had not gained much headway. The fire did not require the use of water, only chemicals being used, and the damage was slight.

Johanna and Alice Dimmock, 63 Church street; Miss Mary Kiley, Fishers Island, N. Y.; Flavius Estey, 20 Methodist street; William Jensen, 25 Chappell street; Mrs. Ralph Thompson and infant son, 25 Ocean avenue; Mrs. James Rigby and infant daughter, 2 Fay street, and Miss Jewel Clayton, New York, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Michael A. Cleary has sold a house and lot on Ocean avenue to Leonardo and Domenica Belbruno.

Jeremiah Twomey has leased the store, 91 Bank street, to Harris Gordon, who will conduct a leather goods business there. The lease becomes effective April 1, 1930, and will continue for seven years. The annual rental will be $1,440.

Josephine Aimetti has sold the business at 26 Golden street to Joseph and Rose Verdi, possession to be taken April 1, 1930. A stipulation of the bill of sale is that title in the business shall be in the name of Verdi after April 1, 1931.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the drivers' licenses of Augustus Bishop, submarine base; Arthur Weeks, 10 Henderson road; Thomas Hardie, 22 Crystal avenue, and Gilbert S. May, 358 Vauxhall street. Commissioner Stoeckel also ordered the return of the license to Joseph Leitkowsky, 28 New street.

Mrs. A. E. Brown, 88 Ocean avenue, this afternoon made complaint to the police because the school books of her little son had been stolen. The child left the books on the edge of the walk near his home while he did an errand for the parent and upon his return the books had been stolen.

TOOK WOMAN'S BABY— THE MOTHER OBJECTED

Albert J. Richards, 7 Connecticut avenue, will be in Waterford town court Monday afternoon next, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He was arrested last night and locked up at New London police headquarters. This morning Richards obtained a surety on his bond of $50 and was released. Richards went to the home of a resident of Quaker Hill late yesterday and was under the influence of liquor. His conduct was such as to greatly annoy a woman whose husband was at his work and when Richards attempted to take charge of the woman's infant by removing the baby from its crib, complaint was made to the Groton state police. Officer William Elmer McKenzie went to the house and, finding Richards there, arrested him. Richards has been presented in the New London police court several times.

Woman and Sailor Fined

Reba Garey, 26, a mulatto residing at 23 Hill street, was in the police court today, charged with conducting a disorderly house. She pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs. Joseph C. Lawson, sailor stationed at the submarine base, arrested and charged with frequenting, also pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs. The Garey woman said that she had resided in New London about two months and that she was employed daily as assistant to a Bank street dressmaker.

Last night Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Frank Philopena were watching another Negro resort when they observed Lawson enter the residence occupied by the Garey woman. A few minutes later the officers entered and what they saw caused them to arrest both the man and woman.

Rosario Gargliano, 24 Denison avenue, Groton, charged with reckless driving, pleaded guilty and was fined $35 and costs. Gargliano was on Main street late yesterday and when north of Richards street he drove the car from traffic and proceeded on the left hand side of the road to Crystal avenue, through the latter avenue and to the underpass of the Winthrop street bridge. At that point Gargliano was compelled to attempt to get back in the traffic line, for a bus was approaching from the opposite direction. In doing so, Gargliano's auto collided with another machine. Gargliano was arrested by State Police Officer James Dygert.

Donald Smith, 19 Evergreen avenue, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in equipping his car with improper markers. The case was continued until April 6. Smith was arrested yesterday by State Police Officer James Dygert.

Perjury the Charge

Anthony Mauerman, 151 Main street, employed by a roofing company, was charged with perjury, but because of the prosecutor not being in possession of the facts which brought about Mauerman's arrest, the case was continued to Saturday. Mauerman was arrested by State Police Officer John Smith this forenoon. It is claimed that when Mauerman applied for a driver's license he made oath that he had not been arrested within a year, when, in reality, he had been arrested within that period of time and by Officer Smith, the arrest having been made in Montville. Mauerman was prosecuted in the Montville justice court and when the case comes to trial later in the week Officer Smith will produce a copy of the court record showing that Mauerman was tried in that township.

FORD STRUCK PARKED CAR— DRIVER IS IN HOSPITAL

A Ford touring car owned by Norman McNeil, 21, of 30 Farnsworth street, was wrecked last night and McNeil is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from lacerations of the face and head. His condition is not considered serious. McNeil and two or three companions were driving on Thames street and when the auto was guided into Ocean avenue and headed toward Ocean Beach, the machine collided with an auto owned by Lionel H. Conary, 845 Ocean avenue, which was parked in front of the Conary residence. The Ford was overturned and all the occupants were hurled out. In landing, McNeil struck on his head. He was carried to the side of the highway by passing autoists and made as comfortable as possible until the ambulance arrived and conveyed the injured youth to the hospital. The auto had both rear wheels demolished, the top was crushed and the radiator damaged. In order to get the car off the highway the services of a wrecker were obtained. It is probable that the auto will be consigned to the junk heap.

GREENEVILLE

FATHER COHOLAN TO BE NEW POMFRET PASTOR

Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, for the past eight years curate at St. Mary's Memorial church, has been appointed by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of Hartford, to succeed Rev. George J. Donahue, new pastor of St. Mary's as pastor of Holy Trinity church at Pomfret and the Sacred Heart Mission church in West Thompson.

To Assume Duties April 6

Father Coholan, who received word of his appointment Wednesday afternoon, made the announcement Thursday that he would leave Norwich in order to officiate at his first mass at his new pastoral charge on Passion Sunday, April 6.

A wide circle of friends and acquaintances of all faiths will regret to learn of Father Coholan's departure from the Greeneville church although they wish him well, realizing that the Holy Trinity pastorage is a promotion for him.

He was ordained to the priesthood in Hartford by Bishop Nilan in 1912. The first year after his ordination was spent as an assistant to Bishop Walsh of the Portland, Maine, diocese. He was then sent to St. Brendon's church, New Haven, where he acted as a curate until June 1923 when he received his call to succeed Rev. William H. Kennedy as curate at St. Mary's Memorial church under the pastorage of the late Rev. William A. Keefe who passed away at the rectory in this city on February 5 of this year.

He has served faithfully and labored very hard for the interests of the church and its parishioners for the past eight years. Following Father Keefe's death he was appointed by his superior officer to act as pastor until a pastor had been appointed.

Supervisor of Annual Shows

Father Coholan received his education at St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, and at St. Sulpice, Paris, France. When he returned from France he was made a prefect at St. Thomas, where he was a graduate. He was very much interested in theatricals, especially the St. Mary's Players, Father Coholan being supervisor of the plays.

Fr. Sullivan Named Curate

Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan who has been acting as curate at St. Mary's has been appointed to remain as curate in the parish. He was formerly curate at St. Patrick's church, East Hampton.

TAFTVILLE

The meeting of the Basketry club was held Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponamah community building.

Large congregations are attending the mission which is being conducted this week by Rev. Father Seydel, a member of the Redemptorist Order of Boston, Mass., for the English speaking members of Sacred Heart church parish. The missioner gives instruction daily at the 5:30 and 7:30 masses, and gives a sermon in the evening. On Wednesday evening Rev. Father Seydel depicted Death and Judgment, taking for his text, "It is appointed unto man once to die, and after death —judgment." He explained the stand of the church and her teaching in regard to the last day when the "trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall rise", and the Biblical teaching of the division of those to be judged into two classes, the blessed and those who are eternally lost. The service closed with benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament, at which the pastor, Rev. Frederick R. Des Surreault was officiant, and during which the hymns were sung by the choir composed of the members of the English speaking branch of the Children of Mary sodality.

It has been announced that the United Workers of Norwich are to hold a Rocknook Well Childs' confer-ence at the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah Community building, this (Friday) afternoon.

The members of the Wequonnoc school orchestra held a rehearsal at the school Thursday afternoon.

The Thimble club is to hold its next meeting with Mrs. Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue.

Court Wequonnoc, No. 88, Foresters of America met Thursday evening at the courtrooms on Merchants avenue.

Automobile markers in large quantities consigned to those who have been storing their cars until April 1st, are adding to the bulk of the mail received at the local postoffice.

Over $25 was realized as proceeds from the recent entertainment "Parlor Tricks" given by the Fifty-Fifty club under the auspices of the teachers of the Taftville Congregational church school.

Elie Vezina, member of President Hoover's Haiti commission is well known locally, being an official of some of the Franco-American fraternal societies which have branches in the village.

When the members of the home department of the Taftville Congregational church school meet this (Friday) evening in the church vestry, they will do sewing for the William W. Backus hospital. The committee in charge of the meeting includes Mrs. William J. McNally, Mrs. George J. Meyer and Mrs. Cora Matthewson.

Because of the mission being conducted this week at Sacred Heart church, the regular Wednesday evening Lenten devotions were omitted.

BRINGS FORECLOSURE ON SACHEM TERRACE HOUSE

Foreclosure on a $6,000 mortgage is asked by the Thames Bank and Trust Co. of this city against George C. Butts, George C. Butts, Jr., Matilda Butts and Adeline Butts of this city and Dorothea S. Butts of Marblehead, Mass., in a suit filed Thursday with Clerk John H. Walker in the superior court. The property in question is located on Sachem terrace.

Party defendants named are Nettie B. Fanning of this city as administratrix of the estate of John E. Fanning, late of Norwich; Harry W. Giffin of Bristol and the General Roofing Co., of New London.

According to the petition on Jan. 28, 1922, George C. Adeline R. H. Butts mortgaged their property on Sachem terrace to the Bankers Trust Co. for $6,000. The Bankers Trust Co. merged under the Thames Bank and Trust Co., on Nov. 30, 1929, with the result that they became the holders of the note.

On March 25, 1927, Adeline R. H. Butts quit-claimed the property to George C. Butts, Jr., and Dorothea F. G. Butts, Jr., and Adeline Butts claim to have a mortgage of $1,000 on the premises; Nettie B. Fanning, admx., Harry Griffin and General Roofing Co., claim to have attachment liens George C., George C. Jr., and Dorothea F. G. Butts are now in possession.

ABSENT WITNESS CAUSES ANOTHER TRIAL POSTPONEMENT

The $25,000 suit brought by Stephen Awezec of Montville against Frank W. Woodworth of New London, which was to have gone on trial before Judge Christopher L. Avery and a jury in the superior court in New London Wednesday afternoon was continued until the next jury assignment day at the last minute due to the failure of Detective Sergeant John J. Cavanaugh to arrive back in the city.

Sergeant Cavanaugh is one of the principal witnesses in the case and neither the plaintiff nor the defendant desired to start trial without his presence. Accordingly Judge Avery dismissed the jury for the present term and adjourned court until today (Friday) when Judge Allyn L. Brown will open the spring session of the superior court in New London, Judge Avery leaving to open the spring session at Bridgeport.

Poles Fall on Broadway

Shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon two electric light poles toppled to the ground on the westerly side of Broadway, between Broad and Rockwell streets. The poles, rotted at the base, were blown over by the stiff wind that prevailed at that time.

Linemen from the gas and electric department were sent to the scene to repair the damage. No one was injured when the poles crashed.

NORWICH TOWN

The meeting of the Wolf Cub Pack of Scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church was held Wednesday afternoon in charge of the Cubmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. There was an attendance of 18. As a part of the meeting following the opening ceremonial the Cubs reported good turns done that day. In the Inter-Den contest, John Browning substituted for Woodruff Sullivan who was detained by illness in his home. The contest was won by the Den in charge of Den Chief Ellis Bentley. Frank Jordan acted as inspection officer. The Cubs were given a slip of paper on which was written some of the secret meanings of the Cubs. They are to study it out and write the meaning on another paper to be turned in at the next meeting, Wednesday, April 9th. There will be no meeting next week on account of the pastor attending the conference at New London.

WOMEN THRONG TO FASHION SHOW IN WAUREGAN HOTEL BALL ROOM

The spring fashion and fabric show given Thursday in the Wauregan hotel ballroom, under the auspices of the merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce and the home demonstration department of the New London County Farm bureau was a magnet that drew women from every town in the county. There was an attendance of over 500 from 10 in the morning until 4 in the afternoon, the early hours giving opportunity to view the variety of rich and beautiful garments and fabrics displayed in the booths.

At 2 in the afternoon the formal programme was carried out when Miss Ruth T. Russell, home demonstration agent with the farm bureau, addressed the assemblage, explaining the purpose of the sponsors of the show, viz: to teach the season's style, detail and colors of garments suitable for all types of women, children and young men for all occasions.

Miss Russell introduced Secretary John Richardson of the chamber of commerce and Mr. Barker of the Reid and Hughes company, who extended welcomes to the women, the former for the chamber of commerce and the latter for the stores co-operating in the fashion show.

Miss Ellen Van Cleef, clothing specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college, then took charge of the fashion display which was presented by living models and as each model appeared Miss Van Cleef explained in an interesting way the style details of the garment being shown.

The display of women's garments showed that dresses and coats will differ in style this season from those worn in the past few years. The high waistline predominates in all of the new spring dresses and coats. Many cape collars were shown on both dresses and coats, this being one of the outstanding of the new spring style notes.

All of the hats shown were with brims, apparently the latest note in spring hats. These were of baku, bankok and other novelty straws. That cotton is to be featured this summer was evidenced in the showing of the children's prints, cotton pique and dotted swiss. Capes were shown in children's clothes, some being of a detachable nature.

The display of men's clothes revealed that brown will evidently be the leading color this spring, with gray a leader in sport suits. Several business suits, practically all of brown, were shown and there was also a display of sport costumes, most of them being equipped with knickers.

The stores co-operating by exhibiting were: Lincoln Stores, children's garments; Porteous & Mitchell Co., piece goods; Reid & Hughes Co., children's garments; J. B. Caron, corsets; Savard Bros., men's and boys' clothing; Morley's Hat Shop, hats and men's accessories; Markoff's Baby Shoppe, infant's wear; Schwartz Bros., furniture; John Ferguson's, costume jewelry; Cranston Co., Dennison craft; Hawkins' Florist Shop, flowers; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., leaflets, etc.; Model Booterie, shoes; Smith's Shoe Store, shoes.

The following models assisted with the show: children under 12 years of age, Miss Nancy Bullard of Montville, Miss Christine Beckwith, Milton Beckwith and Jason Kingsley, all of Franklin and Betty Ortmann of Norwich. Juniors, under 20, Miss Lois Woodmansee of Preston, Paul Holdridge of Ledyard, Roger Young, Montville. Adults, Miss Dorothy Messler of Norwich, Miss Mary Haach of Montville, Miss Margery Brewster of Jewett City, Mrs. Arthur Smith of Franklin, Mrs. Calvin Main of Ledyard, Mrs. Gertrude Latimer of Gales Ferry and Mrs. Leonard Anderson of Waterford.

Stores which assisted by the loan of materials included: John A. Ferguson, jewelry; J. & G. H. Bliss, jewelry; Lincoln Stores, house dresses; Reid & Hughes Co., children's clothing; Porteous & Mitchell Co., adults clothing, hats and accessories; J. B. Caron, adult clothing and accessories; Savard Bros., boys' clothing; Morley's Hat Store, hats; Model Booterie, shoes; Smith Shoe Store, shoes; Diamond Shoe Store, shoes; Dawson Hat Shop, hats.

John Morley took charge for the merchants and handled these details in a very capable manner.

Acknowledgment of the courtesy of the Wauregan hotel in contributing the use of the ball room and of Hawkins in contributing flowers was gratefully made by those carrying out the arrangements for the exceedingly successful event.

LIONS' NAME COMMITTEE ON CONVENTION DELEGATION

Dr. Charles Solomon, Earl Taggart and Louis Fontaine were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the attendance of a Norwich delegation at the national Lions convention to be held at Newport, R. I., June 10 and 11. The committee was named at the weekly noon luncheon of the Norwich Lions club in the Wauregan hotel Thursday noon, following a talk on the programme that is to be carried out at the two-day convention by District Governor Burwell of Waterbury. President Charles W. Cassidy was in charge of the meeting and Dr. Solomon acted as songleader.

An interesting talk on his trip around the world, which consumed about six years, was given by Vincent Welsh, an associate of the Connecticut Light and Power company, particularly mentioning his travels through the wheat fields and lumber camps in Canada. The trip was taken by Mr. Welsh when he was a young man. A rising vote of thanks was extended the speaker following his address, which was proclaimed one of the best heard by the local club.

SEEKS FORECLOSURE ON $1,500 JUDGMENT LIEN

Foreclosure on a judgment lien for $1,500 on property located in North Stonington is sought in a suit brought by Stanley Zaislanski of this city against the Airproof Rubber Co. of Putnam and Barney Girder of Lebanon and Harry Jarrow of this city, according to papers filed with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court and returnable April 1.

The plaintiff claims he received a judgment against the Airproof company March 7 and that the Airproof company conveyed its interests in the property in question to Girder, Jan. 28.

Avery in setting aside a verdict for $4,166 which a jury gave Silva in his suit against the New Haven railroad. Notice of the intention to appeal has been filed with the clerk of the court. Motions to have set aside two verdicts rendered against them by a jury in the superior court at New London Wednesday were filed in superior court have been filed in the superior court with Clerk John H. Walker by counsel for the Eastern Connecticut Sales Corp. of this city. This is sought on the grounds that the verdicts were against the law of the case. One verdict was for $850 in favor of Paul J. Dumont of this city and the other for $125 in favor of his wife, Jennie T. Dumont. The suits arose as the result of injuries they received in an automobile accident on Norwich avenue, Taftville.

NEW TRAFFIC BEACONS FOLLOW CHIMNEY LINES

"When is Santa Claus coming? I see the chimneys are going up," exclaimed a Norwich man as he caught sight of the new brick traffic structures being erected in Franklin square for the safety zone. The three brick pillars make the square look like a small factory center.

COMEDY CLEVERLY PRESENTED BY ACADEMY PLAYERS

Before a capacity and appreciative audience the "N" club of Norwich Free Academy presented "The Patsy," an uproarious comedy in three parts by Barry Connors, under the direction of Courtland G. Whitney, at Slater Memorial hall Thursday evening. Round upon round of applause frequently required the characters to wait for a lull so as to continue the thread of the story. It was a production staged by amateur performers, but their work was excellent and satisfying to the audience, as attested by the unstinted applause given them. The scenes were in the living-room of the Harrington home.

Bill Harrington, portrayed by John Tingley, became a bit obnoxious at times to his wife, Mrs. William Harrington, as played by Janet Carpenter, and his two daughters, Grace and Patricia, which parts were taken by Fay Hill and Jane Sullivan, respectively, but to the audience he was a wow, a natural performer, it seemed, one able to play that kind of a role with perfect ease and understanding. Miss Carpenter handled her role to perfection, while her two daughters won the hearts of their audience with their skillful portrayals.

Tony Anderson was played by Gordon Cruckshank, who did nobly and was the apple of Patricia's heart, while Stephen Armstrong, taking the part of Billy Caldwell did equally as well. Supporting these players were Catherine Dutton as Sadie Buchanan, William Brewer as Francis Patrick O'Flaherty and Joseph Sheridan as "Trip" Busty, who also made a favorable impression upon their audience.

Courtesies were extended by Mandell's Waist shop, Max Rabinovitch's Men's shop, the Gilbert Furniture company, the Southern New England Telephone company and the Eaton-Chase company. The make-up was by the members of the Art school and the scenery by the "N" club and members of the Art school. The proceeds from the play, an annual event of the "N" club, are to be used to aid and foster athletics at the Academy and to assist financially other school organizations.

A particularly enjoyable feature of the evening was the programme of music furnished between the acts and after the evening's performance by the Academy band directed by John M. Swahn. The members of the band offered a pleasing sight in their new uniforms of glaring red.

Lester Crowell, Armand Fontaine, John Shields, "Chet" Berghinzo, Ernest Stevens, James Mullins and Edward Flather, Jr., acted as ushers.

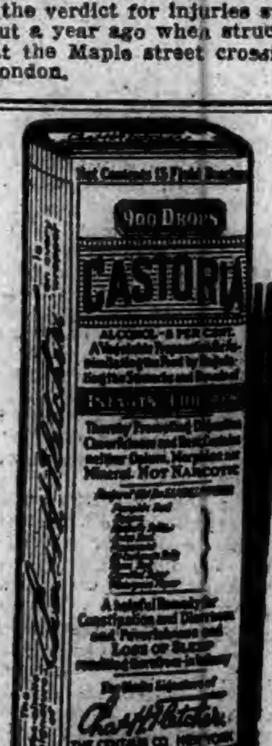
When Babies CRY



Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

1929 EMPLOYMENT IN NEW ENG. EXCEPTIONALLY GOOD

Statement Made In the Annual Report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston—General Level of Industrial Activity Was Higher In 1929 Than In Any Previous Year—Diversification Has Displaced Textile and Boot and Shoe Industries As Predominating Factors — Agricultural Situation At the Beginning of 1930 Excellent.

BOSTON, March 28.—(AP)— Statements that the general level of industrial activity in New England was higher in 1929 than in any previous year and that employment conditions throughout New England, during 1929, have been on the whole exceptionally good, were included in the 15th annual report of the Federal Reserve bank of Boston.

The report says:

"During the first quarter of 1929, general business activities in New England increased at a rapid rate, and continued rising throughout the second quarter. After mid-year, however, there was evidence that business was slowing down, such evidence being visible previous to the period of drastic stock market liquidation during October and November. Throughout the third quarter of 1929, there was a moderate recession in business activity, which continued in October. During the last two months of the year, however, sharp curtailment in most lines of New England industry brought the general level at the close of the year to a point considerably under any which had prevailed since 1924.

"There were no particular outstanding events in New England industrial conditions during the year, the rise to new high levels being the result of generally healthy expansion, which usually proceeds by a series of spurts, expansion (supply) out-running consumption (demand) followed by a readjustment period, during which demand grows up to supply. The closing months of 1929 witnessed a readjustment period.

"There was a continued diversification of New England industry during 1929, and whereas the textile and boot and shoe industries were predominating factors in former years, at the present time these two industries comprise a relatively small percentage of the total New England industrial activity."

"New England industry is now supplemented by a newer form of activity in developing and utilizing the recreational facilities of this section of the country. This new activity is a rapidly growing business which has become of substantial value to New England welfare. The condition of New England agriculture during the year 1929 showed a substantial improvement over the previous year. The unusually large potato crop of Aroostook county, Maine, sold at higher prices, contributed substantially to the increase in total crop values between 1928 and 1929, while the cranberry crop, produced largely in Massachusetts and the tobacco crop raised principally in Connecticut, were also contributing factors. The agricultural situation in New England at the beginning of 1930, is excellent.

"Building activity, more especially the speculative feature, continued the decline which started in the middle of 1928. The volume of retail sales reported by New England stores during 1929, was slightly larger than that reported during the previous year, the increase being 1.3 per cent. Conditions in the New England textile industry during 1929 were somewhat more satisfactory on the average than those which prevailed in 1928. New England boot and shoe production during 1929 was greater than in 1928, although toward the latter part of the year considerable curtailment was reported. The allied metal trades and machine tool industries in New England reported unusual activity during 1929.

"x x x During 1929 the manufacturers, merchant and farmer have been able to get ample credit at reasonable rates to meet their requirements, and while member banks have taken advantage of the high yield on security loans, this apparently was not done at the expense of the merchant and the farmer.

"Employment conditions throughout New England during the past year have been on the whole exceptionally good. Not only has there been a fairly high demand for workers, but most industries have been relatively free of labor disturbances. Records of the leading employment offices show an increase over six per cent in the demand for employes, principally for skilled workers and machinists in the metal and machine tool trades."

SENATE OPPOSITION TO NAVAL CONSULTATIVE PACT

WASHINGTON, March 28.— (AP) — Senate opposition to American participation in the consultative pact proposed at the London naval parley increased today, with Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking democrat on the foreign relations committee denouncing it as a "snare and delusion."

Rumors reached the capitol that President Hoover had indicated his opposition to the consultative pact to the American delegation, but there was no confirmation of this. The silence on the turn of events at the London conference continued at the white house.

Senator Swanson took note of the reports that the president is opposed to such pact and expressed the hope that "he will adhere to a decision not to enter into such a pact as the price for naval agreement."

"If the pact means nothing," said Senator Swanson, "as contended in America, it is a snare and delusion, giving fancied security to European powers that the United States has no intention of discharging. If it means something, as European nations believe, it involves the United States in political obligations in Europe, which it would be honorably compelled to discharge."

NEVER SATISFIED AS TO CAUSE OF SISTER'S DEATH

NEEDLES, Calif., March 28.—(AP)— James Childs, brother of the first wife of Major Charles A. Shepard, U. S. army medical officer held in Denver in connection with the death of his second wife said today that his sister, Clara E. Childs, died at Needles in 1913 after being treated for uremic poisoning. He said she was taken ill with spasms following breakfast and died nine days later after suffering from continuous high fevers.

Childs said his sister was married to Shepard in 1897 at Lewiston, New York, which was the home of the Childs family. He added that he had written officials concerning the matter because "I never was satisfied as to the cause of my sister's death."

Her treatment, he said, was in the hands of "Dr. Shepard," whom he did not identify, and Dr. A. S. Parker, then the Santa Fe railroad physician here, who now is at Fresno, Cal.

Childs, who is a shoemaker, in this little desert town, added that he had no evidence that his sister's death was from other than natural causes.

JACK LONDON'S DAUGHTER IS BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—(AP)— Joan London Malamuth, daughter of the late Jack London, was sued for divorce here today by Charles Malamuth, assistant professor in Slavic languages at the University of California.

Malamuth complained that his wife preferred to follow her father's footsteps as a writer rather than do the family cooking.

Mrs. Malamuth, now lecturing in New York, was married to Malamuth three days after her divorce from her first husband, Park Abbott, in December, 1925.

FOUR COLUMBUS RESIDENTS KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

MARION, Ohio, March 28—(AP)— Four Columbus residents were killed at a crossing of the Big Four railroad here late tonight. Their automobile was struck by a passenger train.

Bryan Stephens, 33; Mrs. Henrietta Stephens, 27, his wife; Ralph Stephens, 7, their son, and Mrs. Nancy Stephens, 64, the mother of Stephens.

HUGGING DESCRIBED AS MARRIAGE CEREMONY

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP)— Accompanied by such bitter exchanges by opposing counsel that Surrogate James A. Foley several times protested, an application was submitted in surrogate's court today for a jury trial to determine whether Charlotte Fiscal was the common law wife of Abraham L. Erlanger, theatre magnate who died on March 7.

Surrogate Foley reserved decision on the matter and also on the submission of an affidavit by the woman's attorney, Max D. Steuer, in which she said that on Nov. 3, 1927, in Atlantic City, N. J., Erlanger told her that if there was any doubt about her status of wife, he wished to remove it at once.

Thereupon, the affidavit said, she put her arms around him and said, "You are my husband," and he replied, "You are my wife."

This was three weeks after the drafting of the will in which Erlanger said he was unmarried. Miss Fiscal was not mentioned in it and she is now seeking a widow's share in the estimated $75,000,000 estate.

"If that marriage actually took place in New Jersey, as she claims," Steuer said, "She, of course, became the wife of Abram L. Erlanger and accordingly became his widow on his demise; and this relationship revoked the will."

Counsel for the beneficiaries protested that this was an attempt to make "a bilateral marriage out of a unilateral one."

Steuer contends that Miss Fiscal lived with Mr. Erlanger as his wife from 1920 until his death.

Counsel for the beneficiaries demanded a bill of particulars relating to the time, place and circumstances of the alleged marriage. Steuer was given until April 2 to reply.

INDICTED ON CHARGE OF SMUGGLING WATCHES

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—Max Epstein, member of the jewelry firm of M. Epstein and Brothers, and Samuel Weissman, of the Weiss Brothers Watch company, were indicted today by a federal grand jury on charges of smuggling $150,000 worth of Swiss watches into the port of New York.

Joseph Feinstein, Louis Poller, a truckman, and Richard Bieshuna previously indicted in connection with the alleged smuggling, were named in the indictment of Epstein and Weissman.

Customs inspectors accused the men of having smuggled the watches in boxes labelled "Chocolate" between February, 1926, and September, 1928. The government was said to have lost $380,000 in duties.

CANTON, March 28.—(AP)—Communist and bandit forces which have held sway in southern Kiangsi province for several weeks were believed today to have taken Kanantu, Kiangsi, but 50 miles from Kanchow, where 16 American Catholic missionaries have been unable to escape through the lawless bands.

TOKYO, March 28.—(AP)—Vigorous opposition to Japan's acceptance of the tentative agreement by Japanese and American delegates to the naval conference halted action by the Japanese cabinet, the ministers apparently believing their acceptance would endanger the Hamaguchi cabinet's existence.

VIENNA, March 28.—(AP)—The body of Dr. Hermann Ernst Watzl, Cleveland chemist and inventor, who shot Mary MacGranahan whom he married bigamously, and then committed suicide in the Hotel Sacher here on Sunday, was cremated today in the presence of members of his family and many of his close friends.

FRENCH PROTEST LACE DUTIES INCREASE BY U. S.

CALAIS, France, March 28.—(AP)— A silent procession of 20,000 marched today in protest of the increased lace duties in the new American tariff measure and to picture to the French nation the seriousness of the threatened industrial crisis.

While this one-third of the population marched the other two-thirds lined the streets in front of the closed stores and cafes.

The parade was quiet—not a banner was flown, not a shout was heard.

SEEKING TO SATISFY FRANCE'S NAVAL DEMANDS

LONDON, March 28.—(AP)—While the American delegation to the London naval conference today was busy making clear its position regarding the proposed consultative treaty and Mediterranean security pact, British and French experts continued seeking a formula which will satisfy France's security demands without increasing Great Britain's European obligations.

Formal conference meetings today included a talk among Secretary Stimson, Ambassador Gibson and Prime Minister MacDonald at Number 10 Downing street this morning. Foreign Minister Briand, meanwhile, visited the foreign office to continue discussion of, the French security problem with Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister.

BRUENING SELECTING NEW GERMAN CABINET

BERLIN, March 28.—(AP)—Dr. Heinrich Bruening, new chancellor of the reich, set about today choosing ministers on a personal basis and without dealing with parties in his efforts to form a cabinet succeeding that of Hermann Mueller.

That was demonstrated when Dr. Bruening offered the ministry of agriculture to Martin Schiele, a nationalist leader, who accepted despite the fact that his party earlier declined to participate in the new government and demanded dissolution of the reichstag and new elections.

The nationalists decided on their course of opposition even after their fiery leader, Dr. Hugenberg, had been asked by President Von Hindenburg to give up opposition at this point for the country's welfare.

The president also instructed the new chancellor to forget party pettifogging and construct a cabinet which above all could put through the budget and financial reforms. It was after that conference that Dr. Bruening offered the agriculture portfolio to Herr Schiele, who is president of the federal farms' federation and stands high in the regard of agriculturists.

FREE STATE COUNCIL OUT; REELECTION ALMOST SURE

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 28.—(AP)—William T. Cosgrave, president of the executive council of the Irish Free State and head of the oldest ministry in post-war Europe, announced the resignation of his government today as a result of its defeat by two votes on an opposition pensions bill in the dail eireann last night. The dail then adjourned until next week.

The prevailing opinion in political circles tonight was that he would almost certainly be reelected president of the council when the dail reassembles Wednesday.

Under the novel, and still experimental, ministerial system of the Free State, the way is open for his reelection. Resignation of a government does not necessarily result in a general election, and as Mr. Cosgrave's voting strength in the dail was not really impaired by his defeat yesterday there will be no call to the country.

The chief opposition party, the fianna fail, who have 57 members in the dail, have sent for their leader, Eamonn De Valera, now in the United States.

DE VALERA WOULD ACCEPT PRESIDENCY OF FREE STATE

CHICAGO, March 28.—(AP)—Eamonn De Valera tonight was awaiting developments in Ireland.

The one-time president of the Irish republic said he would accept the presidency of the Free State should the dail eireann summon him.

Here on a speaking tour in the interest of a nationally daily newspaper in Ireland, the leader of the fianna fail (republican party) was prepared to cancel all scheduled addresses and return home. He received a cablegram acquainting him with the defeat and resignation of the Cosgrave party before leaving Cleveland last night.

"The Cosgrave party and its allies still have a majority in the dail which could carry the reelection of Mr. Cosgrave or elect a member of his party," De Valera said. "If I am selected, I will form a fianna fail government."

Tense Situation Exists In Warsaw

Diet Is Delaying Formation of New Polish Cabinet By Jan Pilsudski.

PISFIK, Poland, March 28.—(AP)— A tense situation existed in Warsaw tonight resulting from the decision of the speaker to hold a session of the diet tomorrow and the delay in forming a new cabinet of Jan Pilsudski, brother of Marshal Pilsudski.

Jan Pilsudski, who has been trying to form a cabinet replacing that of the resigned Bartel cabinet, was represented as considering the speaker's action as a sign of ill-will in view of a tradition that the diet should not be summoned during the formation of a cabinet. He also was said not to have been appeased by announcement that the diet would consider only budget matters.

Government deputies, who hold 120 seats out of the 444, have declared they will prevent tomorrow's session by force if necessary and the socialists have been issuing appeals to the people of Warsaw protesting against the delay in the formation of a cabinet.

Meanwhile Jan Pilsudski is encountering further difficulties and the cabinet, which it had been expected would be completed tonight, was still unformed.

Hoover Adopts Report Of Haitian Commis'n

To Gradually Substitute Diplomatic Relations For the Military Commission.

WASHINGTON, March 28.— (AP) — President Hoover today adopted as his [illegible] policy the gradual withdrawal of the United States marines [illegible] Haiti and the substitution [illegible]matic relations for the present military commission.

The recommendations of the Forbes commission to this effect, which further suggested recognition of a provisional government, were accepted by the chief executive two months after the appointment of the group to study United States policy in the island republic.

With immediate withdrawal of the marines found inadvisable, the commission recommended gradual withdrawal in accordance with arrangements to be made between the two governments and with the advice of the commandant of the Haitian garde.

A minister would be assigned to Haiti to succeed Major General John J. Russell, American high commissioner at the expiration of his tour of duty. Russell's term is limited by the pleasure of the president, or by the treaty authorizing marine occupation, which lapses in 1936.

Also under the recommendations, the minister would be charged with negotiating agreements "involving far less intervention in Haitian domestic affairs."

The commission recommended that the detail of naval and marine officers for all Haitian services be made for a minimum of four years. Further, it recommended that "an effort be made to secure Americans who will agree to continue employment in these services, so that upon the expiration of the treaty a force of American doctors, engineers, and police officers will be available for continued assistance to the Haitian government, should it then desire it."

Employment by the Haitian government of one American adviser in each administrative department, with the American government maintaining them as an act of grace, was also recommended.

They Overlooked the Diamonds

There is a modern flippancy to the effect that "What you don't know won't hurt you." It is also a fallacy. For instance:

The farmers of Kimberley were a disgusted, disheartened lot. They said the soil was too rocky to earn them a living. Some of them left. Others died in poverty. And all the time their children were playing with diamonds. But the farmers didn't know. They thought the priceless gems were pebbles.

Don't be like those Kimberley farmers. Know!

Don't seek opportunity in some distant place and overlook the diamonds that are daily within your grasp. Know!

Advertising is a mine of opportunity. It tells of values you wouldn't know about if it were not there to guide you. The secret of economical buying is information. The man or woman who is best informed is the one who buys to best advantage.

FINDS AN OVER-SUPPLY OF GENERAL HOSPITALS

CHICAGO, March 28.— (AP) —The Journal of the American Medical Association will publish tomorrow its annual survey of hospitals in the United States, revealing that the proportion of hospital beds constantly in use during 1929 was the lowest in the nine years of the annual census.

"The logical conclusion," the Journal commented, "is that there is an over-supply of general hospitals."

The rate of occupancy last year was 65.3 per cent. In 1920 the rate was 67 per cent, in 1923 and 1928 it was 69 per cent.

The American Medical association approved 6,665 hospitals and sanatoriums in the United States and 243 in its territories as qualified, disapproving 504 others after investigation. Printing the directory of approved institutions, the Journal said: "The inclusion of the name of any institution may be taken as an indication that evidence concerning irregular or unsafe practices in that institute has not been made available to the Council on Medical Education and Hospitals."

The total capacity of hospitals and sanatoriums in the nation was placed at 907,133 beds and 47,939 bassinets, an increase of 486,068 beds or 115.4 per cent since 1909, the year of the first hospital census. The average number of patients in hospitals through 1929 was 726,768, not including the 621,686 new-born infants.

FIVE GIRL STUDENTS HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNED

NEW HAVEN, March 28—(AP)—Five girl students of Wellesley college, Wellesley, Mass., were injured at Northford, near here today, when their automobile turned over. They are believed to have been en route to New York.

Grace Lane, 20, Brooklyn, N. Y., who suffered a compound fracture of a leg and severe cuts, was the most seriously injured. The others, all of whom were cut and bruised, were Rose Woodeledge, 19, Houston, Tex.; Helen Sawyer, 19, Waterbury; Betty Weiner, 20, Lebanon, Pa., and Florence Smith, 19, Montreal, the driver. All save the last two, were confined in a hospital here.

The car got out of Miss Smith's control and careened down a slight embankment, struck a pole and then bounced back on the highway where it turned over. It was demolished.

LIQUOR GRAND JURY TO CONTINUE ITS LABORS

HARTFORD, March 28.—(AP)—The special grand jury which has been sitting since Jan. 4, looking into liquor conditions in Hartford county and which went before Judge Newell Jennings this week in effort to get an order to make Mayor Walter E. Batterson and Edward N. Allen answer questions, will continue its labors.

Several members of the jury, it is known, were inclined to accept Judge Jennings' suggestion that if its work appeared to be hampered by the adverse decision given in the Batterson-Allen incident, it could ask to be discharged.

ESCAPED CONVICTS ARE BACK IN WETHERSFIELD

A. F. OF L. TO OPPOSE THE CONFIRMATION OF PARKER

WASHINGTON, March 28.— (AP) — President Green of the American Federation of Labor announced tonight that the organization would oppose the confirmation of Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina, to be an associate justice of the supreme court.

After examination of Judge Parker's decisions as a member of the federal circuit court of appeals by labor officials, Mr. Green said these showed "that he placed property rights above and superior to human rights."

The decision of Judge Parker in the Red Jacket injunction case was the target of labor's criticism. In this decision, Green contended that Judge Parker "approved an injunction" which virtually reduced the conditions of the miners in West Virginia to a point "approximating industrial servitude."

Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, the chairman of the judiciary sub-committee considering the Parker nomination, said he would grant a hearing to the labor officials. He will call the committee together probably next Tuesday or Wednesday after the senate reconvenes.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONY IN MARCHAND MURDER TRIAL

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 28.—(AP)— Ann Snow, ancient aunt of Lila Jimerson, on trial as an accomplice in the murder of Mrs. Henri Marchand, testified today she had heard Marchand say "He didn't care if his wife didn't live."

The mumbling of old Ann, a withered little Cayuga Indian, was so confused that the interpreter apparently could give no clear vision and it was not until the official notes of the stenographer had been transcribed that the importance of her testimony was understood.

Her statement astounded the prosecutor, Guy B. Moore, after she had told of what she believed Marchand had said in answer to the cross examination of defense counsel, Moore demanded to know why she had not told him when he has asked her last week if she ever heard Marchand speak of his wife. Her answer was confusing and the district attorney apparently gave up in despair.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPT. REBUKES PREMIER OF ONT.

For Temerity In Denying That the Ontario Liquor System Is Unsatisfactory—Declares That Drury's Testimony Denouncing the Ontario System, Has Proven a Knockout Blow to the Wets' Scheme to Substitute the Ontario System For Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, March 28—(AP)—Disclosures that it would require diplomatic representations to secure the appearance of an official of a foreign government before a congressional committee dimmed the hope tonight of wet forces that the testimony of Premier George H. Ferguson of Ontario province, Canada, on government liquor control might be offered in the prohibition hearings before the house judiciary committee.

In addition, reports from Toronto indicated that Premier Ferguson would not accept an invitation to testify as a rebuttal witness to the charges of former Premier E. C. Drury, a witness for the dry forces that government control was a failure in Canada. As a consequence, the wets, led by Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, now plan not to extend the invitation.

In that connection, F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, in a statement tonight, said that the offer of Premier Ferguson to "try to come to the rescue of the Ontario liquor sales system" was not to be unexpected.

Ferguson said his government would be glad to furnish the judiciary committee with information regarding the government liquor control system, and added that the people of the province had repudiated the prohibition policies of former Premier Drury.

The Ontario premier was declared by McBride to be "clearly demonstrating what former Premier E. C. Drury emphasized in his testimony before the house judiciary committee to the effect that the so-called government control system grips and controls the officials of government."

"The testimony of Mr. Drury," McBride said, "has proven a knockout blow to the wets' pet scheme which they have been holding up as a successful substitute for prohibition."

While the house judiciary committee planned to hear the drys next Wednesday, plans were made for the senate lobby investigating committee to inquire into both wet and dry organizations, and a senate judiciary sub-committee prepared to begin hearings next week on the Williamson bill to transfer prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the justice department. $15,000 HOLD-UP OF THE WATERTOWN TRUST CO.

WATERTOWN, Conn., March 28.—(AP)—Three unmasked young men today held up the Watertown Trust company, in the heart of the town, and escaped with about $15,000 in bills and currency.

While one swept a harvest from the counters of the tellers in the cage the other two stood over the bank's staff and seven depositors who had been driven into the vault and made to lie on the floor. The trio took their time as there was no one to give an alarm, and then left to jump into a machine at the door, the engine of which had been kept running by the driver.

The hold-up was begun so quickly that mechanism which needed only the toe of a teller to sound an alarm could not be touched, and Treasurer W. H. Whay, at his desk in the lobby, looked up to find a gun aimed his way. No one was hurt as Mr. Whay, sensing what was happening, almost instantly shouted to the others not to resist and asked the bandits to lower their guns, with which they had covered all in the bank, as shooting would be unnecessary.

Mr. Whay estimated that the men took ten minutes to make a partial cleanup of funds. Cash of between $5,000 and $6,000 in two drawers was overlooked. Telephone wires in the building had been cut and Mr. Whay, who was first out of the vault when the men had left, had to run into the next building to tell the police of the incident.

The car was found in Waterbury and twenty state officers and as many city police began an afternoon's sweep of the western section of that city for trace of the men. None was found but the police developed the theory that these men might have been the ones who held up George Mulligan's Boxing club at Buckingham Memorial hall, Waterbury, a month ago and took the gate receipts of about $1,700.

The car used today was stolen from the same paint shop which lost the car used in the boxing show holdup and which also was later found abandoned.

One of the bank robbers had adhesive plaster on his face which was the case with one of the men at the club robbery, and description of him and the other two tallied closely.

VOLSTEAD MAY LOSE HIS PROHIBITION JOB

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 28.—(AP)—The Tribune today said it has learned from an authoritative source that a shakeup is impending in the northwest prohibition enforcement division and that it would include Andrew J. Volstead, legal adviser of the department.

The proposed changes, the Tribune said, may mean removal of S. B. Quale, district administrator, and Mr. Volstead, through abandonment of the divisional offices in St. Paul which would be incorporated with another, possibly St. Louis.

Mr. Volstead, the Tribune said, admitted changes were being considered, but said he was unable to say just what would take place. He said, however, he would not go to St. Louis but would leave the department if such a shift is ordered.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 28.—(AP) —An estranged husband late today killed his mother-in-law, shot his wife and wounded his father-in-law before he was finally shot down by a 14-year-old brother-in-law.

$25,000 JUDGMENT AGAINST THE LIBERTY MAGAZINE

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 28.—(AP)—Judgment of $25,000 today was awarded the widow of Temple Houston, picturesque figure of Oklahoma's pre-statehood days and son of General Sam Houston, the "Texas Liberator," by a federal district court jury which held that she was damaged to that extent by a biographical sketch of her husband published by Liberty magazine.

Mrs. Houston had asked $200,000 and suits against Liberty Weekly, Inc., by four children, still pending, ask for an additional $400,000. The suits charged the characters of both Temple Houston and his father were blackened by the sketch, particularly that part referring to Temple Houston as born of an aboriginal marriage.

Attorneys for the magazine announced they would appeal.

They indicated that they probably will not make settlement with four children but will face the charges of libel in court here.

The magazine article stated that Temple Houston, one-time Texas state senator and for ten years a resident of Oklahoma, was the son of Sam Houston by an Indian mother. The defense rang in some of the colorful sagas of the Texas hero to show Houston's reverence for the Cherokee Indian maiden whom he loved and married by Indian laws.

Don Seitz, writer of the article, admitted he erred as to Houston's birth. He denied the sketch was written with malicious intent.

SAYS OBJECT OF RASKOB IS TO DESTROY PROHIBITION

RALEIGH, N. C., March 28.—(AP)— The Raleigh News and Observer tomorrow will say in an article written by former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, publisher of that paper, that:

"John J. Raskob was more interested in destroying prohibition than in the democratic party and owes it to the party to pay the debt he created against it and resign his connection with the national democratic executive committee.

"The democratic party," Mr. Daniels continues, "demands, or the best portion of it does, that the chairman of the committee shall have no alliances that are hurtful to the common good, or that will work injury to party success. As long as he (Raskob) remains, millions of voters will believe the democratic party is wet."

Mr. Raskob, the editor says, gave money to the Association Against the 18th Amendment and made "advances to the democratic party."

No campaign, Mr. Daniels writes, "had such costly and unnecessary frills as that of 1928. Mr. Raskob wished them; he adopted them. He should pay for them."

MEDICAL FACILITIES AT SCHOOL FOR BOYS INADEQUATE

HARTFORD, March 28.—(AP)—Corroborating to a large extent the evidence of mismanagement adduced by the governor's special commission, the state department of health, in a report made public today, charged that sanitary and medical facilities at the Connecticut School for Boys at Meriden were inadequate.

The report, covering 28 pages, has been submitted by Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state commissioner of health, to Gov. John H. Trumbull and is based on a survey ordered by the latter into sanitary conditions at the institution.

The department of health in its report said that "practically all agencies that have a bearing on the health of the boys have fallen short of rendering their maximum services," and attributed this condition to "lack of competent supervision."

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 28—The annual spring opening being conducted here by the Retail Merchants' bureau of the chamber of commerce continued to attract a great deal of favorable attention today. While today was generally considered the "off" day of the opening, a glance at the business district shows that an unusually large number of people were milling about. Lecture in Slater Hall.

The Woman's City club has secured Sam Grathwell to lecture in Slater hall, Tuesday evening, April 1, at 8 o'clock. Sam Grathwell is a tremendously popular speaker, especially on subjects pertaining to the Orient. In 1927 he spent five months making a first-hand study of political, social and economic conditions in China, Japan, Korea, Formosa. He arrived in China at an opportune moment when the southern army was mobilizing for its offensive against the northern forces. He talked with political leaders, officers and soldiers, with merchants and coolies. He found a China of turmoil and tragedy and he was able to "get behind the scenes" to obtain new viewpoints on existing conditions. In Japan he made careful study of some of the vital problems that confront that country. His lectures are brilliant and enlightening discussions of actual conditions in the Orient.

Ralph Conner's Masterpiece at Y. M. C. A. Sunday At 4.

The moving pictures with a distinct uplift are the kind that the local Y. M. C. A. aims to bring before the people of Norwich and vicinity each Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and tomorrow in the big gymnasium Ralph Connor's masterpiece, "The Sky Pilot," will be shown in seven reels. John Bowers, Colleen Moore and David Butler take the prominent parts in the picture.

This is a dramatic picturization of Ralph Connor's great epic of the west. Against the great odds of prejudice and selfishness, the idealistic young clergyman implants the seed of brotherly love in a wild settlement of the northwest.

There are wonderful scenes of a country still in the natural glory and incidents of absorbing human interest are artistically welded into big dramatic moments.

BEECHER TO ANSWER CHARGES IN PUTNAM SATURDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, March 28.—George Beecher, alias George Ford, after spending weeks in a hospital, will be taken to Putnam Saturday morning in charge of state officers, to answer to a series of charges. Beecher, alias Ford, is the man that pulled a gun on local state officers while they were conducting a raid for illegally kept liquors at the Howard Bullard place on Killingly avenue in the town of Putnam earlier in the year. He was subdued with a tear gas shell discharged by a state officer. Beecher, or Ford, was so aggressive at the time that he received most of the discharge in the face and eyes, and has spent the time since intervening receiving hospital treatment. He will be charged with carrying concealed weapons, with breach of the peace, intoxication and resisting an officer.

Beecher, who has been in this territory for a considerable time, working on a farm in the vicinity of Attawaugan, is a powerfully built man and a bad actor when enraged. He is said to come from a Springfield, Mass., family of excellent standing.

In common with state officers throughout Connecticut, those stationed at the Danielson barracks hurried forth this morning to guard highways throughout this territory over which bandits that robbed the Watertown Trust company of $15,000 might seek to make their escape from the state. Immediate broadcast of the robbery was the means of allowing the local officers to get on location in exceedingly short time. A later report telling that the bandit car, a green Studebaker sedan, without number plates, had been found abandoned in Waterbury somewhat relaxed the vigil here, though the officers were alert throughout the day for men answering the descriptions of the robbers.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jane Coffey

Mrs. Jane Coffey, 44, widow of John Coffey, died early this morning at the home in Dayville, where she had been a resident for a long term of years. Mrs. Coffey's death was rather sudden. She was born in Norwich, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, and leaves a son, William Coffey, another son, John Holley, and a daughter, Esther C. Holley, the two latter children of a prior marriage; two brothers, William and Christopher Campbell, and a sister, Miss Elizabeth Campbell, all of this town. Her daughter is a teacher in the Danielson graded school.

Clifford Wilde, 19, resident in the southern part of Killingly, near the Plainfield-Killingly town line on the trunk line route to Wauregan, was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to answer to violations of the motor vehicle law. Because the case involved technicalities, Judge Woodward, though finding the accused guilty of operating an automobile truck that was without registration plates and Wilde without an operator's license, imposed minimum fines on each count, $1 and actual costs.

It was represented that the truck was not intended for use off the premises of the owner and that in such use it was not necessary to have a registration, nor the driver and operator's license. However, State Officer John Murphy found him driving the machine across the state highway, and ordered him into court.

Ephram Burnet, who created such a disturbance around Wauregan last night that he was placed under arrest by State Officer Henry Mayo of the Danielson barracks, was being held at the barracks today. Just what disposition will be made of his case had not been determined this afternoon.

Homer H. Judd, Bristol, representing the state fish and game commission, was in Danielson and Brooklyn today, giving his attention to the details of making a long stretch of Blackwell's brook ready for use under state-leased stream conditions prior to the opening of the trout fishing season on April 15. Releases of a fine lot of adult trout already have been made in this brook, a natural trout stream of great beauty and fine fishing possibilities. All things working out properly, additional fish will be released in the stream within the next few days.

Charles King, resident here, was locked up at the state police barracks on North Main street this afternoon, pending the filing of charges against him and his probable appearance in the town court on Saturday. King was arrested by a state officer after the prisoner had made a visitation to Attawaugan and upon the complaint of a woman resident of that village that he had solicited her to take a trip to Boston with him. The woman is married, but her husband is absent under sentence at the present time.

Josephine Olive Walker, daughter of Daniel E. and Doris M. Card Walker, is dead at the home of the parents, on the Green Hollow road. The child, born Dec. 15, 1929, succumbed after an illness of two days with pneumonia. In addition to her parents she is survived by a brother and a sister.

Barbers to Shorten Hours

Barbers in town have fallen in line with a suggestion of the merchants' committee of the chamber of commerce to shorten working hours, especially on Saturday, for store forces here. Henry Lague, after a canvass of six barber shops here this afternoon, said that what amounts to an agreement has been entered into to close barber shops, beginning Saturday of next week at 9 o'clock, on Saturday nights. The barbers here have worked long, hard hours on Saturdays for many years. In their prospective agreement as to future Saturday closing, they purpose to lessen the strain a bit, without working hardship on their patrons.

Cow Poisoned in Hampton

A cow dead from poison in Hampton claimed the attention of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer of the Danielson barracks, State Officer Elton Nolan and County Game Warden Thomas Daniels of Plainfield today. The cow was the property of Michael Pawlikowski. A phase of the officers' investigation may have to do with an effort to determine whether the cow died from eating poisoned matter set out for foxes. Use of poison for getting foxes has been practiced to considerable extent in towns hereabouts for several years past.

Miss Nellie Head, who has been quite seriously ill at her home on Academy street since last Sunday, was reported as resting more comfortably this afternoon.

UNION

Several Union people responded to a call to help fight a fire in the north part of the neighboring town of Ashford, Monday. The fire started on land of H. Boyko, where birches were being cut. It soon spread to brush land of Frank W. Morey. The Union deputy warden, accompanied by a group of boys who were eager to help, and a group of men who were working on the state forest, worked from about noon till four o'clock, when the fire danger was over, except for requiring watching. Mr. Morey and his nearest neighbors were kept busy wetting down his barn roof and watching his house for possible sparks. It was estimated that about fifteen acres were burned over.

Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb R. Howard have returned from a vacation of two weeks. Most of this period was passed in Washington, D. C., and a few days were spent in Norfolk, Va. The trip to Washington was made by train. The journey homeward was by boat from Washington to Norfolk, thence by boat to Boston.

On Saturday morning, March 22, the mercury dropped to 11 degrees with a fierce wind blowing. The high wind of Friday night, Saturday and Saturday night, was called more uncomfortable than any cold wave of the winter which was supposed to have ended on March 21.

Robins and a few bluebirds are reported this week. Song birds had a hard spring last year with the snow which came at nest-building time. In the summer they suffered for lack of water and left this section, if some did not perish.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Willis and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Willis of Manchester were guests of friends here, recently. The former couple recently returned from spending the winter in Florida.

People here are interested in the fashion show to be held in Rockville on April 2. Miss Van Cleef, who is directing the show, has made friends here in her work with the Home Economics club.

SAN PEDRO, Cal.—(AP)—The Britisher's growing taste for Hachiyas, a California grown persimmon, resulted in the shipping of 200 boxes weekly from San Pedro to London this season.

PUTNAM

LIQUOR RACKETEERS TAKEN TO PROVIDENCE FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 28.—Socratis George, John T. Cudworth and Miss Constantine Ryan, alleged Southbridge, Mass., liquor racketeers arrested in this city last evening by Putnam police were turned over to the United States secret service agents of the Providence district this morning and taken to Pawtucket. They were to have been arraigned before the United States district attorney there to stand the possibility of indictment on charges of issuing spurious money.

Miss Ryan Believed Innocent

George and Cudworth are residents of Southbridge. Miss Ryan resides at 12 High street, Webster, Mass. Although she was taken to Rhode Island in company with the two rum runners, secret service agents stated that they did not believe she would be linked with the two men who are alleged to have purchased sixty gallons of "shine" alcohol, from a Pawtucket, R. I., distiller, paying for it with three twenty dollar bills which were counterfeit. She will be held as a material witness in the case, however.

The trio were detained at the local police station over night. In city court this morning, Eric H. Johnson prosecuting attorney, stated that he was unable to charge the two men with owning, keeping and transporting liquors, despite the fact that George had signed a statement admitting ownership and Cudworth had signed, stating that he was the driver of the rum transport. Mr. Johnson, said that Officer Page, who accompanied the two men to the police station after their arrest last evening, while riding in the car did not see the rumble seat being emptied of its cargo of contraband by George who was riding there.

Mr. Johnson averred that he was unable to press charges against Cudworth, on the grounds that the car did not contain any alcohol when the driver was booked at the police station. The local authorities had no case against Miss Ryan, the prosecuting attorney intimated.

George, who is one of the most widely known liquor racketeers in Southern Massachusetts, steadfastly maintained that he was ignorant of the fact that the notes with which he paid for his liquor were worthless. He stated that he knew after his arrest he had been double-crossed by a Springfield bottlegger and in view of this fact was willing to "make a clean-breast of the whole affair."

"I'll Get Them"—George

"I know the man responsible for uttering these bad notes," George said, "and if I'm given a chance I'll get him and the fellow who is coming from New York state every week and selling the bum money to Springfield bootleggers for $40 a hundred." George told Sergt. A. J. Cponcey and Captain A. J. Dubreuil when he had learned of his serious plight.

George who is but 25 years of age told police that he has been in the rum racket for nearly ten years and has never been arrested before. He is married and is the father of two children, he said. Although he had previously, never experienced arrest, George said that he had underwent scores of unfortunate reverses within the past few months that had ruined him financially. In his long tale of woe George told of losing four high powered automobiles and valuable liquor cargoes which had fallen into the hands of police and hi-jackers. These mishaps, which George said, "are part of the game," occurred since January 1.

Cudworth, who was the operator of the car told little during the grilling at police headquarters last night and maintained his silence this morning when questioned by the secret service authorities.

Putnam police were confident that Miss Ryan, who is known in this city was an innocent victim of circumstances. During her questioning she talked freely, emphatically denying any knowledge of the characteristics and reputation of her two associates. She said that she had been invited to go for a ride and had accepted, saying that Cudworth was a friend of hers and that she was acquainted with George, knowing him only as a Southbridge business man. Her statements were corroborated by information furnished by Deputy Chief John C. Templeman of Webster, Mass., police department. Even this testimony failed to vindicate the young lady in the eyes of the federal agents who said that they were powerless to dismiss her without a hearing before the district attorney at Pawtucket.

May Clean-Up Pawtucket

Chief Inspector Wilfred Wadsworth of the Pawtucket police department said last night that the arrest of George will result in the undoing of a large liquor distilling ring in operation in that city. An alcohol distiller from that city who gave his name as F. Mello of Spring avenue, Pawtucket, is directly responsible for the arrest of George. Mello discovered the bogus money a few minutes after George had departed with the load purchased from his warehouse. He entered a complaint to the police and following the apprehension of George and his being identified by Mello in Putnam as the person who issued the worthless notes, Mello was subjected to arrest upon the statement of George that he had procured the liquor from the Mello home in Pawtucket.

A number of local people were interested in the efforts of the state bank officials in Northampton, Mass., today to check the run on the Hampshire County Trust company in that city, which began last week with the arrest of Harold R. "Dick" Newcomb, bank manager and orchestra leader, on charges of larceny of vast sums. It was learned today that there are a number of Putnam people, depositors at the Northampton bank, who were alarmed at the press dispatches this afternoon telling of the closing of the institution when a shortage of $235,000 was discovered in Newcomb's accounts. Newcomb is well known in this section of the county where he has appeared with his widely known dance band.

Merchants Become Wary

The activities of a group of burglars in this city, who are yet to be identified and apprehended, has been an incentive for a number of merchants adopting the practice of leaving a small light burning in the places of business after closing hours. The police are making every effort to uncover the identity of the thieves and while doing so are attempting to gain the cooperation of the merchants in order to discourage breaks in the business houses in the future. Captain A. J. Dubreuil has explained that night officers are performing their duties faithfully, but are handicapped by the long beats and the innumerable dark alleys on the beats where thieves easily seclude themselves and await the passing of the officer, to come out of their haunts and begin their operations.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Paddy the Beaver's Visitor

'Tis better far to be polite.
Than give offense and start a fight.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Paddy the Beaver is not used to visitors. I mean, he is not used to having them visit his house. He is used to having them visit his pond. There are very many visitors there. Indeed, I know of no place that has more visitors than does the pond of Paddy the Beaver. But Paddy's house is out in the pond and it isn't often that he has a visitor there. Once in a great while a feathered acquaintance may alight on the roof of Paddy's house. Once in a great while Little Joe Otter swims out there. Billy Mink has visited it. But these visits have always been so far apart that Paddy is always very much surprised when a visitor arrives.

It happened one morning that Paddy and Mrs. Paddy were over at the dam, looking it over. They have to inspect their dam every so often to make sure that there are no leaks in it. They had been very busy for some time. There had been some work to do and Paddy the Beaver and Mrs. Paddy are two people who never shirk. When there is work to do they do it. You see, they know that to shirk necessary work might mean the loss of their home. If there should be a bad break in the dam, there would be no pond. Then their home would be exposed to all their enemies.

Now, the eyes of Paddy and Mrs. Paddy are not as good as the eyes of some of the other little people. Their noses and their ears are better than their eyes. So it was that when Paddy happened to glance over at their house in the water, he failed to notice some one swimming close to it. However, when this some one began to climb up the roof, then Paddy saw him; but he couldn't see well enough to tell who it was. "Huh," said Paddy. "We have a visitor. Now, I wonder where he came from. I didn't know that there were any other Beavers near us."

"Where is this visitor?" demanded Mrs. Paddy.

"Over there on the roof of our house; just climbing up it," replied Paddy.

Mrs. Paddy said nothing, but slid into the water and headed straight for home. It was evident that she didn't intend to have visitors prowling around her home while she was absent. Paddy promptly followed.

"That fellow has a black coat for a Beaver," thought Paddy, as they drew near. He is the blackest looking Beaver that ever I have seen."

Nearer they drew to that house, and nearer. Presently Paddy and Mrs. Paddy stopped swimming and stared up at the stranger on the roof of their house. It wasn't a Beaver. Who do you suppose it was? It was Prickly Porky the Porcupine.

"Well!" exclaimed Paddy. "What are you doing on my house?"

"I'm resting," replied Prickly Porky. "I'm resting. And if you don't like it, you can go away." Prickly Porky spoke crossly.

Paddy didn't know just what to say. He looked at the thousand little spears in Prickly Porky's coat and he knew right then and there that he didn't want to have any real trouble with Prickly Porky. "I didn't know you could swim," said he, for the sake of saying something.

"Well, you know it now," replied Prickly Porky. "Why shouldn't I be able to swim?"

"I don't know," replied Paddy. "I just thought you couldn't, that's all. I suppose that you'll be telling me that you can dive and can swim under water."

"I never tell things that aren't so," replied Prickly Porky. "I can't swim under water and I can't dive; and I don't want to do either."

"Huh!" said Paddy. "We have a visitor"

"Then I cannot invite you into my house," replied Paddy, "because my door is under water."

"And I wouldn't thank you if you could," replied Prickly Porky, "for I'm not interested in the inside of your house. The outside interests me, because it gives me a place to rest."

CHESTER L. DUDKOWSKI LEADS PINOCHLE PLAYERS

With the turn of the last card, Thursday evening, the winter season of the Borough Pinochle club was brought to a close. Outstanding among the features have been intense interest, good attendance and, above all, general good fellowship. While a list of fine scores has been checked up to the credit of the players, Chester L. Dudkowski pulled the big money with 121,870. Wilfred LeClaire made the winner go some, as he was close to his heels with 121,860. It is unusual that two men should come to the closing game only ten points apart, following weekly games since early last fall. While Mr. Dudkowski will be awarded the capital prize, Mr. LeClaire will get something handsome as his share. The other two prize winners are Charles Maynard, third, with 121,235, and Eudor LeClaire with the tail-end score of 111,905. The following figures were chalked: Walter A. Field, 116,040; Stanley H. Winroth, 111,780; Clovis Casavant, 117,560; Francis McLaughlin, 113,695; Velo Sharkey, 114,215; Eugene J. Carroll, 119,865; Frank McCarthy, 120,120; Fred Condie, 119,625; Tony Lamarine, 118,800; Dr. G. H. Jennings, 112,710; Dennis Sullivan, 115,470; John B. LeClaire, 117,345; James H. Shea, 112,445; Horace W. Dawley, 116,240; John Davis, 112,440; Henry Popham, 119,655; Mose Loranger, 113,885.

Chain letters are bobbing up again in this section. The latest one pertains to the good luck of Flanders:

The good luck of Flanders was sent to me. I am sending it to you that the chain may not be broken. Copy this and send it to four people to whom you wish good luck. The chain was started in Flanders and has gone around the world four times. The one who breaks the chain will have bad, bad luck. It is wonderful how the chain has helped people. Copy this and see what good luck you will have four days after you mail this. The day is going to bring you good luck. Mail this and four others, making five in all. (Do not keep this.) Good Luck.

BIG CALIFORNIA TREES ASTOUND EASTERN TOURISTS

From the Hotel Roosevelt, San Francisco, date of March 14, the Ross tourists have this to say:

Have just received a wire from the Hon. Lionel E. Boucher, wishing us a safe and happy return home. Please thank him.

We left Pacific beach after one day spent there, driving along the seventeen mile drive and watching the wonderful surf. Breakers, mountain-high (they would say in California). We got astray in the woods and did not see Carmel.

Passing through Monterey we came to some salt mines where the salt was piled in great stacks; this reminds us of the snow drifts that we have missed this winter.

Then great fields of peas where we saw a man driving four horses abreast, cultivating four rows of peas at a time. These peas were about six inches high with a few just coming into blossom. In other fields the peas were just coming up.

Here also were extensive farms of French artichokes, rather a peculiar plant, looking like a Scotch thistle. There were also near the homes large areas of calla lilies; these were raised for market.

Watsonville is called the apple city. Although we did not see any large orchards, there were storage plants of good size used in the fruit business.

At Santa Cruz we made a slight detour into the mountains to see the big trees. These trees are of the redwood family and when you think they are the oldest living thing in the world it is rather inspiring to stand under them and look up 300 feet and think they were here 3,000 years before Jesus Christ was on the earth. I was eager to find out the way they proved these trees were 4,000 to 5,000 years old and was told that a section of a tree was cut out, the rings counted, the diameter of the tree measured and the comparison of the section with the diameter or one-half the diameter. From this count and measurement the age was estimated. Of course the estimate may be a few hundred years out of the way and still these trees are very old.

The largest tree, called Jumbo, is 306 feet tall, 70 feet in circumference and 23 feet in diameter.

The cathedral grove was very attractive. The trees standing like tractive, the trees standing like about forty minutes to walk through this grove.

These trees grow along the Santa Cruz river, which gives them plenty of water. The rainfall from Jan. 1st to March 1st, in the mountains, (Santa Cruz) was 30 inches which made the soil under the trees rather damp.

At the divide (the highest point in mountains) we had a wonderful view of Santa Cruz valley. In the distance we could see the Pacific ocean. We pulled up beside a very fine machine; the owner was looking down this great valley and seemed to be resting. He said: "I always stop here but do not always see the ocean; one reason for my halt here is to calm my nerves." He did not look nervous.

He told us his name was Hoover. "No relation to the president," he said.

The reason he was nervous was, "I have just cut off a man's leg and although I am never the least shaky before an operation, after it is all over I like to be by myself and get into the mountains."

We did not touch San Jose, yet we were very near the city. Santa Clara is an attractive place.

Palo Alto is where the great university is situated. There were athletic games going on here. There were hundreds of machines parked. I think there are about 17,000 students here. The stadium will seat 115,000 eventually.

From Palo Alto to San Francisco is about 30 miles. The road is about 120 feet wide and marked in lanes so that there is no congestion although there are very many cars on the highway. This road is still called "El Camina Real" (The Kings' highway.)

We came through Redwood City, San Mateo, Burlingame, Colma, to Mission street leading into Market street, the great street of San Francisco.

This is a great city of high buildings and of great wealth.

Will try and write you again before we sail for Panama March 22nd.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week a house occupied by Michael Elliott and located on the Preston City road was burned to the ground with a loss of $2,000. In 1880, just a half century ago, there were about 90 of the Edison telephones in use in the city. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of March, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, March 22, 1880—Everything is going up, the latest example being the humble but necessary chair. A grand convention of chair-makers was held at Worcester, last Friday, and it was decided to raise the price of chairs ten per cent. Next thing we expect to hear of a lift in price of "stand up seats" in horse cars and at minstrel shows.

Miss Sarah A. Ayer died at the residence of her brother, Mr. Elisha Ayer, on High street, Friday. She was a cousin of the late Dr. Ayer of Lowell, Mass. She came to this city about a year ago.

Tuesday, March 23, 1880—The Helping Hand society connected with the East Main street Methodist Episcopal church are to hold a fair at Steiners hall tomorrow and Thursday evenings at which time the laughable farce entitled The Pull Back will be presented. Mr. Frank Maples will give recitations.

The strike at the lock shop continued yesterday. Five polishers joined the ranks of the "outs" and seven strikers relented and became enrolled with the "ins." The shop had two more hands at night than it had in the morning.

A heavy train loaded with thick New Hampshire ice arrived last night on the Norwich and Worcester railroad for Norwich parties.

Wednesday, March 23, 1880—The competition for the Williams' reading prize will take place at the Free Academy next Monday evening. There are 17 competitors this year.

There are now in use in this city about ninety of the Edison telephones and half as many of the simple telephones. Wire does a great deal of the business now.

The business boom has shown good results in Norwich as well as elsewhere. There has not been a time since 1873 when less men were idle and the demand for labor is almost if not quite equal to the supply. There is no good reason for a man's being long out of work now.

Thursday, March 24, 1880—The story and a half house of Michael Elliott, half way between Norwich and Preston City, was destroyed by fire Tuesday night. The inmates of the house had only time to escape when it was enveloped in flames. Loss about $2,000.

Officer Bowen has a new boat. She possesses every facility for business as well as pleasure. She was purchased on the Connecticut river and is constructed after a model closely relative to the Waterloo pinky. She is a boomer.

The Rev. Mr. Jefferson has resigned the charge of Grace church, Yantic, on account of ill health and will leave for Minnesota the early part of April.

The West Side boat train was two hours late last night.

The free March winds made the streets uncomfortable yesterday.

Over 60 carloads of ice have been received and disposed of at Yantic station during the past week.

Friday, March 26, 1880—The Thistledown society of the Second Congregational church held its second entertainment at the vestry last night. The fann drill of fourteen young ladies was very gracefully and artistically executed.

The wind deposited so much dust on the pavements along Central Wharf on Wednesday night that one of the business men shoveled it off his walk Thursday morning.

The wind continued to blow at the rate of 50 miles an hour all day yesterday.

Good Friday services will be held at the Christ and Trinity Episcopal churches and at the St. Patrick's and St. Mary's Catholic churches, at the usual hours today.

Saturday, March 27, 1880—The death death of Frary M. Hale, in the 65th year of his age, was announced in the Chicago papers of the 19th inst. Mr. Hale was formerly a resident of this city and will be remembered by the older residents.

The funeral of Deacon B. T. Cranston took place at the Central Baptist church, yesterday afternoon. The Rev. C. C. Frost officiated assisted by the Rev. Mr. Matteson of Preston. The remains were interred in the Yantic cemetery.

J. P. Miller invites all of the pupils who have been members of this season's Saturday dancing classes to meet at Steiner's hall at 2 o'clock today.

City Guard give the last and the best exhibition drill and social of the season at Steiner's hall, Monday.

The gross receipts of the Thistledown fair amounted to $160.

Cady's dancing class give a ball at Taftville in the large hall on Tuesday evening next.

A Safe Structure

ARCHITECTS and engineers consider "3 to 1" as the necessary factor of safety. This ratio means that materials and construction must be of a strength to withstand three times the maximum stress and strain to which they will be subjected.

The factor of safety is a vital consideration, whether it applies to a building structure or to the organization of an institution devoted to public service.

This bank is organized on the firm foundation of strong resources, sound policies and conservative management—a structure that insures safety to depositors under all conditions.

OPENING UP ROADLESS SECTIONS

While efforts are being made for better country roads in Connecticut, Rhode Island is acting. There recognition is being given to the need of shortening the distance and improving the traveling conditions of the farmer between home and the market. It is being done by opening up the hitherto untouched farming districts by constructing better roads and giving the farmer a better chance to get to market and to get some return for the tax he pays for highway purposes, and at the same time to make it possible for others to get to him or to other objectives by using the highway to his property.

Bids are being asked for the construction of certain new roads in Rhode Island this year, among which is the Moore's field road. According to the Providence Bulletin, "There is now a great rectangle in the South county (bounded by the Ten Rod, Noose Neck Hill, Kingston and Tower Hill roads) containing nearly 100 square miles of territory, including some of the best farm land in Rhode Island, that is not pierced by a foot of constructed state highway."

It is the cutting up of this area by improved roads that will be started by the building of the Moore's field road, and already the continuance of such a policy is advocated until such sections of the state are given the attention they deserve.

In Connecticut there are large areas which are not crossed by state roads. They are not only denied such road construction as Rhode Island is planning, but they are without decent gravel roads on which to get to market with produce or for trading purposes at certain seasons of the year and during the remainder of the 12 months the traveling conditions are such as to drive away instead of inviting travel.

Rhode Island is recognizing the fact that these sections deserve more than they are getting. It understands that such short cuts are going to be beneficial for others as well as the residents thereon, and it believes that the state has a responsibility in opening up such areas which should not be confined to a few sections of the state.

Attention to the country roads is being demanded with such justification that other states are complying and it is time that Connecticut swung into line.

THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERSHIP

With the resignation of Sheriff Bradford as county commissioner after a long and efficient service in that office, the responsibility rests upon the governor to name a successor to serve until action can be taken by the county representatives in filling the vacancy.

There are three members of the board of county commissioners, and New London county is divided into three senatorial districts, the 18th, 19th and 20th. What is more logical than a representative from each of these districts as members of the county board?

At the present time the 18th district is represented by Commissioner Smith of Groton, the 20th district is represented by Commissioner Waterman of Lebanon, in which district Commissioner Bradford also belonged as a resident of Montville.

This leaves the 19th district, which comprises Norwich, Preston and Ledyard, without a member on the board. This district has not had a member on the board for nearly five years, or since the death of Commissioner Fellows, back in 1925.

Although such appointment as the governor may make will be for a limited period, it seems only proper that consideration should be given to the populous section which is not represented upon the board, whose activities are to a large extent centered in Norwich, where it has its office, where one of the jails is located and where the new county home is under construction. The unrepresented situation in this district is one which cannot fail to receive the attention of the county representatives when it becomes their duty to elect next year and it is only fair, for a proper distribution of the commissionerships, that it should get consideration now in the filling of the vacancy.

The appointment is one which should come to Norwich, and the endorsement of George M. Charbonneau for that place by the town committee is one that will give entire satisfaction to the district and insure able and conscientious service for the county.

INCONSISTENT PROPOSITIONS

Is there an inconsistency in certain propositions that have been placed before congress calling for the expenditure of large sums of money?

There are times when such seems to be the case and just at present Chairman Legge of the farm board is pointing to one of them. The farm board is struggling with the big problem of taking care of the surplus crops in this country. It is trying to help those who are adversely affected by raising so much that they cannot dispose of it advantageously and, aside from the organizations which the board has encouraged, Chairman Legge has been advocating a curtailment in the production of such staples as wheat and cotton. By devoting such acreages to a diversity of crops, instead of planting more wheat and more cotton, he believes that there will be a better adjustment and the surplus will not pile up.

Further than that, he has gone on record as being opposed to the plans which are being made for the reclamation of additional lands. He is able to point out that through intensive farming methods we are increasing our production much faster than the increasing population in this country is demanding it, and we are not finding a sufficient demand for it in other countries to warrant expanding it rashly. Thus it is his belief that there should be a let-up in the reclamation work that would put such land in competition with the present well-worked areas which are yielding more than can be marketed at times.

It is this inconsistency of providing huge sums for increasing of the tillable land by reclamation and irrigation when we are at the same time spending hundreds of millions in efforts to handle the surplus crops which are already being produced that is being brought to attention. It may be urged that these areas which it is desired to reclaim by drainage or by irrigation will not be available for some years to come, but there is good and sufficient reason for devoting a proper amount of thought to the situation and learning whether the conditions as they exist call for that increased agricultural area at such a time as it will be available, and whether the outlay that will be required is justified in view of the expenditures being made to deal with existing surpluses.

TAXING THE BILLBOARDS

Opposition to the billboards has developed on a wide scale. It has grown with the years and, while there have been restrictions placed upon them in many states, the need for further restriction is frequently voiced.

There were the days when billboards were chiefly confined to the open, located at points of advantage that those riding on trains might read. For some years now with the changing of the method of transportation so that great numbers are traveling the highways giant signs as well as small ones have dotted the landscape along the roads and they have not only been placed in the open places in the cities but on the tops and sides of buildings, everywhere that they could be expected to catch the eye.

Having become so numerous as to raise objection, so large as to shut off the views of those riding and to obscure dangerous places, states have placed a ban on them. New Jersey is the latest to legislate relative to them and by a new law which has just been signed by the governor they are placed under the regulation of the motor vehicle commission. New restrictions will govern the billboards. All will be affected, including those at Atlantic City's famous board walk, and with the imposition of a tax of three cents a square foot upon them the state expects to discourage and at the same time to get some revenue from them.

It is to be supposed, of course, that those who want to use the signboards will find that they are being made to bear the expense that goes with restricted business and the state tax, but the purpose in New Jersey is apparently to put an end to the disfiguring effect of some of the boards upon property and the detrimental results of erecting them at points where they obstruct the view and make driving more dangerous. One of the provisions is that such signs, even with the tax, will not be allowed within 500 feet of a highway intersection. When such legislation is possible it is pretty good evidence that billboard advertising has been carried to the point where it operates against itself. When it arouses such opposition it cannot be accomplishing the benefits expected of it.

STATE VS. FEDERAL CONTROL

Evidently the governor of Michigan thinks that control of radio is, or ought to be, vested in the various states. At least he raises the question of state rights in connection with the control that is being exercised by the federal commission and promises to put a chip on his shoulder for the commission to knock off.

It all revolves about the establishment of a radio station by the state for use by the Michigan state police. It is considered an important means of combating crime, but the federal commission is not inclined to give it a license, probably because of the precedent that would be established and the interference that would result to existing stations. But because the Michigan legislature has voted for such a station the governor insists that it is going to be established and insists that state rights include air rights.

In the earlier days of radio regulation there was a Chicago station which refused to abide by the decision of the commission, questioned its authority and brought about new legislation which removed the uncertainties in that case. Possibly the Michigan case will disclose a need for further federal legislation, but it seems to have been established by the courts that broadcasting is interstate commerce and congress has the authority to regulate that.

Certainly it would be a frightful situation if anyone who wanted to could establish a broadcasting station to add to the mixture that is already put onto the air. There must be regulation and it seems to be the duty of the Michigan authorities to recognize the situation and to come to an understanding that will meet requirements, like others.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In getting 13.2 inches of snow on the 26th of March, we are content that Chicago should have the honor.

The man on the corner says: There's always something for which to be thankful; the cool weather is keeping down spring fever.

From the way in which the French delegates run home every little while it is fortunate that the conference is not being held further away than London.

Chairman Wickersham says the demand today is for something stronger than beer, something that intoxicates quicker. That being so, modification would hardly satisfy.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The Lenten season is putting emphasis exactly where emphasis belongs, and that is upon the major feature of life. When man gets into the right attitude toward God it will help him more and more to see what God's attitude is toward him as revealed in Jesus Christ. It is not irreverent to say that there is much in the Bible, and especially in the Old Testament that has little or no value to us, because written to meet conditions that no longer exist. It is the record in an age whose living had very little in common with ours and was not intended to meet conditions two thousand years later. But there are principles enunciated in the Bible that will have a most important bearing upon humanity to the latest generation. Nowhere else do we have such an authoritative statement of man's relationship with the divine, and what man must do "to work out his salvation." The Lenten season puts emphasis upon the work of Christ in human redemption.

It strikes the writer that the Lenten season serves another very important mission and that is in bringing out concerted effort on the part of Christian people along lines that all are interested in. Great things in the church as elsewhere can be accomplished by the masses working as a unit far better than to be struggling along each in his own way. Each working in his own way without much care what others were doing is one of the greatest mistakes of the past. "Like a mighty army moves the Church of God" only as all the individual soldiers are moving in union. The period of Lent has the tendency for our churches as a body to be moving on, not only in the same direction but to be fused together with a united object in view. To accomplish much for the kingdom of God we must not work at cross purposes. We must go on together with a concerted plan.

The various services held in our churches at this season of the year are more and more emphasizing the growing disposition of the various denominations to work together in unity. The time is coming when we must do more co-ordinate work to save ourselves from extinction. Years ago you might have seen in small towns two or three struggling churches. To day they are rapidly passing. It is not unusual to find in such towns now one of these church buildings closed. In some cases two or more have united; but in cases where there was failure to unite they died for lack of spiritual oxygen. It seems to be the law of nature that is frequently observed in church life, that it is the fittest that survives, as it is elsewhere. At first this may seem to an outsider that religion is on the wane, but if the two churches have come together in the right spirit it is a gain not a loss.

When the writer uses the word "unity" in this connection, he is not referring to organic unity but rather to essential or Christian unity. The attempt to formulate rules that shall govern men's thinking would be as absurd as to make them all look alike. As man is a free moral agent he has the inalienable right to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience. No person has any moral right to interfere with another man's mode of worship. If you force men into some form of organic unity against their wills, it is nothing short of slavery and despotism. Form is nothing but mockery if the spirit is lacking. Let every Christian attach himself to that denomination which best expresses his religious trends. Let every one of us stop criticising the modes of another man's worship. Let us be sincere in our church life and it will be to us a stepping stone to heaven.

Another St. Patrick's day has passed, and as usual has been enthusiastically observed. One evidence of a man's greatness is the number of lies that have been told about him. That seems strange, doesn't it? But let us see. If a man rises head and shoulders above any other man of his day and generation, both mentally and morally, myths—which are fabulous tales—begin to cluster around him, until he appears more like a superman than an ordinary human. Little men are not so much exposed to hazardous undertakings. In other words they are not deemed of sufficient importance as to be lied about, and hence it would be an absurdity to connect their names with impossible, but brilliant, deeds. When a common man dies, no one thinks it worth while to impute to him brilliant deeds, as by the grace of God, he is let alone.

If it is true that no myths cluster around the names of little, insignificant people, it is also true that shocking crimes are not imputed to them, long ages after they have died. It is always the shining mark that seems to be the magnet that attracts the filth of the ages. It is bad enough to besmirch a man's character while he is yet alive, but it is vastly more cowardly to assail his record when he has no chance to defend himself. The age of the torturer does not necessarily belong to the distant past. The muck-raker is still with us and plying his trade for so much a word. His mode of operating may not be that of the days of Alva and the suffering may not be that of burning at the stake, or being devoured by wild beasts. But to sensitive spirits the attempt to blacken character causes fully as much suffering although it may be of an entirely different nature.

Just how far the hand of God can be traced in the unfolding of human events is, from the very nature of the case, beyond our positive knowledge. And yet as we look back on some of the crucial events of human history are we not justified in saying: "Surely God's hand must have been in it"? It is a fact of history that when the Pilgrim Fathers left English shores in the autumn of 1620, their objective was Virginia where the colonist of 1607 had settled. But adverse winds drove them along higher latitudes, an other destiny—determined by fate or Providence—landed them in Massachusetts Bay, rather than at Jamestown, and the spot they immortalized by calling it Plymouth. Do not events justify us in calling it Providence rather than blind fate? With no fear in this wilderness of religious persecution they were perfectly free to work out their ideas of both spiritual and political government without opposition.

On March 17, 1864, while in many parts of the world, then as now, the usual homage was being paid to the patriot, St. Patrick, another great event of far-reaching importance took place in Washington, and that was the promotion of Gen. U. S. Grant to the supreme command of the northern army. Was it mere luck or was it the hand of God that controlled that important event? Did not all circumstances require a man of his patience, pertinacity and military skill? No one in these days will question the nobility of character and high generalship of Grant's opponent, Gen. Robert E. Lee. But his army had been reduced to a frazzle; the backbone of the Confederacy had been broken at Gettysburg, and the strategic eye of Lee saw the sure approach of the inevitable, and this, of course, came sometime later when he surrendered to General Grant at Appomattox.

THE GARDEN
By REX REES

The Dahlia

Some five years ago in and around Norwich were grown the most beautiful dahlia gardens in the United States if not as beautiful as grown anywhere in the world. This may seem an unusual statement but the exhibitions put on at the New London County fair in the years gone by are still fresh in the mind of all the patrons of those years. No expense was spared by the enthusiastic lovers of the dahlia to make their exhibits as complete and beautiful as possible. The dahlia is one of the most perfect and satisfactory of flowers grown, and beautiful; yes, there are dahlias that to my plebean taste are more beautiful than any other flower grown. The hardihood of the dahlia is well known. It will grow anywhere and in any kind of soil with but little care and nourishment.

The dahlia is indigenous to the high sandy plains of Mexico and was first carried into Spain by the Spanish conquerors of Montezuma and introduced by the marchioness of Bute into England in 1789. When the flower was first carried into Spain, and even into England, the flowers were single with a yellow disk set about with dull scarlet rays. The cultivation of the dahlia has been intense for the last 50 years but never has the interest run so high as at the present time. The plant lends itself so readily to the hybridiser's diligent care as to reward him ample surprise and satisfaction in variety and size produced.

Nowhere in New England is there more interest taken in dahlia growing than in the Quinebaug valley, due, no doubt, to the fact that the National Dahlia society's trial gardens are located at Storrs, and here may be seen at their best the most up to date and the newest development of this great flower.

The National trial garden is no doubt the most famous dahlia garden in the world, because all the lovers of the dahlia look to it to set the standard of excellence upon the new varieties introduced. Dr. George W. Fraser, who preceded Professor Roland Patch in the chair of floriculture at Storrs, founded the garden and due to his knowledge and love of the flower the garden from its very inception proved a great success.

The popularity of the dahlia is increasing with every year. The wonderful exhibits of the National Dahlia society held in New York the latter part of September increase in size and beauty and splendor every year. The flower has attained great vogue among the leisure class and no expense is too great to prevent the coveted variety which marks the up to date garden. There is but one other flower, the orchid, the exclusive flower of the very rich that vies with the dahlia for popularity on the great and wealthy estates of our country, and, too, among florists it is coming into its own. The efforts of commercial dahlia growers is to develop varieties that will stand up well as cut flowers and bear shipping without bruising.

Among the greatest dahlias yet introduced are those of the Mareau family, and chief of these is that great dahlia, Mrs. Ire Ver Warner, a lilac pink of great substance and beauty, almost blight proof and parasite proof and will grow almost anywhere. A half dozen of these plants will give an abundance of great and beautiful flowers from July until cut down by frost. Then there is that matchless flower Jersey Beauty. When this flower first found its way into the New York markets it sold readily for $12 per dozen. It is the most perfect pink dahlia in existence and keeps when cut almost as well as a chrysanthemum. It is a plant of great substance and bears great clusters of long stemmed beautiful flowers. One of the most outstanding of the new varieties is the Yellow Pilgrim, a hybrid cactus of very beautiful formation and prolific of bloom, whose keeping qualities are equal to the very best. It can scarcely be told from a mum, and it what florists have so long sought in vain to find. It matures finely under glass, and can be had in bloom from May to January in perfect flower, but is too high in price for general distribution.

There are varieties suitable for every purpose that can be bought for a very small sum. The expenditure of a few dollars will procure a fine garden. One great advantage you derive from a dahlia garden is that the more you cut the flowers the more you have to cut. The objection so often made that dahlias have no perfume is to be taken as an asset because they are often used in mass decorations at weddings and funerals, and if loaded with perfume would be offensive. The past year has been an unforunate one for mums and carnations. A foolish idea somehow got loose among the public that mums and carnations smelled like funerals, and too the flower market was glutted by an over supply, and too the slump of the stock market, a veritable debacle, in fact, in which many rich became poor and a few poor became rich, struck every market, especially the flower market, a crushing blow.

You will want to grow the great decoratives, the hybrid cactus, anemone, single, and pompon varieties; decoratives for your garden display and hybrid cactus as well for that purpose, the single, anemone, and pompons for cut flowers. The pompons are grown from the size of shoe buttons up to good sized roses and are of all colors. They make the most beautiful bouquets imaginable and are fine keepers. Be sure to plant some of each kind if only a few of each.

Dig your holes at least six inches deep and put in a handful of bone meal and a handful of sheep manure and lay the tuber down flat and cover with about three inches of dirt, fill up the hole as the plant grows. Place the tubers about four feet apart and when the plant is about eight inches high pinch out the top to make the plant spread. Cultivate the soil often and water thoroughly when dry. Do not buy tubers exposed for any length of time to the light and warm air of a heated room. They will not grow. Often when exposed for sale they are tubers without an eye, and no matter how fresh they may seem they are valueless. They will not grow. Buy of a reputable grower for best results. If you plant a dahlia garden you will be happy all summer.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

More Important Things

Mr. Editor: Does the closing down of many industrial plants in this city and nearby localities, the withdrawals of bank deposits, the drafts on life insurance policies, the many out of employment, the appeals of certain church missions for funds for charitable purposes indicate that officially claimed prosperity throughout the nation? If so, many of us require the services of an eye specialist at once.

"These are the times that tries men's souls." Things of far greater importance should now engage our attention. We are now in the end of a time—the Gentile time, Christendom as it now exists has proved a failure, the whole civilized world is, and has been intent on empire building, in place of salvation of souls. The Lord now sits in judgment, demanding full account from all his subjects, an ultimatum has been pronounced, the end of the present social world draws nigh, let all who will, heed.

Reformers of all classes may now make their exist, all things are now in the hands of the Lord. Little need for that extension of time favored by ex-Secretary Daniels, after this generation. There will be no others on earth to entertain it. The Lord has spoken, His word is never void. Let all religious bodies give us more of Christ, and less doctrinal pabulum and creed formalities. That will be much better for all concerned.

The Referendum

Mr. Editor:—Why all the noise and clamor for a referendum by the voice of the people on repeal of the 18th amendment and modification of the Volstead law. In our opinion it is worthless, means nothing and does not show the minds of the great majority of the people at all. The wets are voting in full strength when they can, where they can, and all they can, and a great majority of the drys are not voting at all. Why should they when they have worked for nearly 100 years to have a prohibition law throughout the nation and a part of the constitution of the United States and having accomplished their purpose don't propose to take one backward step toward the old conditions previous to the passage of the Volstead act. There have been referendums without number on all phases of the liquor question for many years, local option, town control, county control and state control, all of which resulted in n control and the liquor traffic went on like a devastating flood sweeping over the land, leaving in its wake a long line of poverty, crime, suffering and want. As for modification, allowing light wines and beer, promoting temperance as our wet brethren claim, we fail to see it. If there are rattlesnakes around one's place are they going to kill off the big ones and leave the little ones and thereby have better condition?

The referendum by the people is the one thing the liquor forces have always feared. There have been bills introduced in all the legislatures of the different states calling for a vote by the people on the question of liquor or no liquor, for many years. The wet forces have spent thousands of dollars and done everything possible to prevent the passage of those bills by placing all sorts of stumbling blocks in their way. Just as some of our congressmen are doing today by their dilatory tactics in setting themselves up as apostles of righteousness and introducing resolutions to investigate everything they can think of, people's character, their private business and a host of other things which have nothing to do with progressive legislation in the interest of the people which is what they were sent there for. The tariff bill and others of like importance should have been passed six months ago to make way for prosperity which was on the way two months ago and is now knocking at our door. They keep the door shut and wont let it in. We think it about time the stumbling blocks were shoved aside and the people had their rights.

"The Claims of the Home"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "I write unto you, fathers" (I John 2:13). Read: Ephesians 6:1-9.

MEDITATION: Fathers, mothers and children! John wrote to them all, reminding them each of what the home spirit required of them. Living, as an art, is best revealed in the home. Within its walls men appear at most nearly their true value. Here one is with those who know him best. Here his guard is down, he is not doing things for effect. He is quite safe here from publicity. It is here, above all places, where one should be at one's best. If one fails here one fails at a crucial point, because he fails in spirit. The spirit of the true homes is unselfish service without end. If one must neglect something in this complex and hurried day, last of all should it be the home. Yet it is the home that often suffers most disastrously from our rapid life. Let the knowledge of this sad fact put us on our guard today.

PRAYER: "Lord Jesus, our great Leader and Brother, who didst know on earth the love of father and mother and didst share a home with brothers and sisters, teach us Thy way in our homes. May we not reserve our best for strangers. Give us understanding hearts and a love that is not provoked and that never faileth. Amen."

"False Face" Police Cars

LONDON—Londoners who see a battered wreck of a car limping slowly through the streets will be rash to assume it is bound for the nearest scrap heap.

It may be one of the mystery "Q cars" which represent the latest move of Scotland Yard in its ceaseless war on crime.

London police have been concentrating on a high-speed "flying squad" and have built up a fleet of racing cars that can rush officers to the scene of a crime or pursue a flying criminal with amazing rapidity.

Famous racing motorists like Sir Henry Segrave and Captain Frazer Nash are attached to this organization and hold themselves ready to report to headquarters in some of the fastest cars in the world.

But the trouble of a racing car from the police point of view is that it attracts attention and is thus particularly unsuited for "standing by" in some district where the authorities have received secret information that, say, a bank raid is to be attempted.

Hence the "Q cars," named of course, after the war-time "Q ships," which concealed a powerful armament behind the bulwarks of a peaceful tramp or merchantman and lured many submarines to their destruction.

The "Q cars" will look dirty, old and decrepit, and their bonnets will be those of one or the other of the cheaper, low-powered cars.

But underneath the bonnet will be an engine of the power of a record breaker; a racing motorist will be at the wheel, and the criminal who is attempting a get-away will receive the surprise of his life.

The "Q cars" are perhaps the most spectacular of Scotland Yard's latest devices.

Lord Byng, who became Commissioner of the Metropolitan police a year ago, has breathed a new life into the whole force and has inaugurated a whole series of plots and stratagems, some of which are more or less public property—while more are not.

YOUR HEALTH

Skin Defects

By Joseph Colt Bloodgood, M. D., Baltimore

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

I have not a single record of a cancer of the skin in a beautiful woman, except on the nose from a sore produced by eye-glasses. Beautiful women do not neglect a mole or wart. If any irritation appears on the skin, they give it immediate attention. Cleanliness and the daily care of the skin prevent rough areas from appearing, or the accumulation of dirt on rough areas. Ignorance and dirt are the chief causes which allow local lesions of the skin to become cancer. Every local skin defect, whether of the type of a pigmented mole, or a wart or a scaly area, or a lump under the skin, or a sore, or an ulcer, may not become cancer; but every one of these is potentially cancer until a properly trained member of the medical profession decides to what class it belongs.

Some skin defects and spots are not dangerous and may be left alone. You may carry them to your grave, if you choose. Other skin defects belong to the class that precedes cancer and should be removed, or they will carry you to your grave.

There is no question that cleanliness of the skin with the repeated use of hot water and soap becomes more necessary as the dirt in which we live becomes greater, and no one should neglect any unhealed sore or skin defect of any kind.

The best treatment for any irritation of the skin is constant gentle washing with hot water and any kind of soap, using absorbing cotton instead of the rough wash cloth. Then the soap should be washed off with some medicated alcohol or toilet water, and covered with a little vaseline. There is no objection to borated vaseline, but there is absolutely no reason for carbolated vaseline. I am inclined to think that if we could make statistical studies among workers whose occupation is such that they have to clean the face thoroughly after work each night, we would find that they suffer with cancer less frequently than men who are not compelled to keep their faces clean. It is also my opinion that there would be no cancer among chimney sweeps if they used the bath daily.

Warts, corns, and other forms of irritation on the fingers and toes, hands and feet show very small incidence of cancer. The same types of local lesion of the skin on other parts of the face, show a greater while lesions of the lip and tongue have the largest potentialities for the development of cancer.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Launch Out

How very necessary it is for all of us to bring our wills into complete submission to the word of God. We should with our whole hearts say "I will," to the word of God, no difference how our will may clamor or how opposite to our will the word of God may seem, or how hard we may have tried in ourselves to bring something to pass, when we heard the word of God speak, we should answer, "At thy word I will," then launch out and let God fulfil and prove His word to us.

Many times we may feel and answer like Peter, "We have toiled all night and have taken nothing." But when the command comes, "Launch out into the deep," we should immediately answer, "At thy word I will."

We are liable to try to do so much in our own strength and then to answer back to the Lord, no doubt He could say to many of us, "Launch out." We are so slow to obey. We want to stay so near the shore of feelings and self-effort. The blessings and favors of God are like the fish out beyond man's reach. We are very apt to limit God to our reach. If these blessings and favors of God were only within our reach, there would have been no need of a Saviour to bring them to us or us to the blessings. The Lord knows that we are unable to help ourselves in many things that is why He has made the provision for us. Now, "Launch out into the deep."

A Washington Bystander
By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 28—The republican senatorial primary in Pennsylvania this summer will furnish a lot of grist for the mills of the "newspaper boys," as political folk on the hill are so fond of calling the press gallery population.

As a matter of fact most of the "boys," or at least a substantial number of them, are daddies of families and have ample crops of gray hairs to indicate their years.

But they will, for all that, find delight in the impending knock-down-and-drag-out between that three time cabineteer, Jim Davis of the labor department, and Senator "Old Joe" Grundy for Pennsylvania's junior seat in the senate.

Here are two old political warhorses in the lists against each other, men of such utterly different political histories, however, that it is bound to be an interesting engagement.

First Ballot Battle

For one thing, it will be "Old Joe's" first actual, personal battle of the ballots. He's been a stalwart of Pennsylvania's old guard republicans many years, but always engaged in getting out the votes—and the dollars—to elect somebody else. It will be interesting to see how he goes about the business of campaigning for himself.

James John Davis is a horse of quite another color. He has been getting elected or appointed to some sort of job regularly for the last 40 years or so.

It began in his membership in the Amalgamated Associated of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, where he held various offices and of which he is still a dues-paying member, and kept right up to his selection of the Harding "best brains" cabinet post he was to hang on to under two succeeding presidents.

Joseph Rodgway Grundy is mighty reticent about himself in his official biography.

He admits that Governor Fisher appointed him to the senate and that he's a republican of Bristol, Pa., and nothing else. There is no word of his now celebrated connection with the Manufacturers' club of Philadelphia or high tariff operations—calling it lobbying or what you like—these many, many years.

Busy Life

Secretary Davis, on the contrary, needs two-thirds of a page to round out his career up to date. Politically it starts with his election as town clerk of Elwood, Indiana, 32 years ago, followed by a job as recorder of the county.

Then came what might be called the fraternal order epoch. Davis is and has been since 1907 director general, Loyal Order of Moose. He is now affiliated with so many other fraternal organizations that only Senator Cole Blease rivals him in that respect.

That reads like a good deal of shoulder-slapping, vote-getting experience for Grundy to tackle his first time at bat—or rather, at ballot.

Still, he's the Andy Mellon candidate. That means much in Pennsylvania.

Memorial Forest Planned

INDIANAPOLIS —(AP)— Establishment of a forest in memory of his mother, an Indiana pioneer, is proposed by Benjamin R. Inman. The unique memorial, near Hayesville, would spell out the name of the pioneer, Lucinda Inman, in letters 75 feet long and 45 feet wide.

Indians Using Water

PHOENIX, Aris.—(AP)—Each man, woman and child of the 5,000 Indians of the Pima tribe has an allotment of ten acres of land under the Coolidge dam project. Approximately 8,000 acres will be in cultivation this year.

3-G GIRLS PRESENT COMEDY IN THREE ACTS

An audience of over 200 was finely entertained Friday evening in the assembly hall at the Central Baptist church when the 3-G Girls presented "Chintz Cottage," a three-act comedy by Beulah King.

The cast in the order of appearance was the following: Fanny, Mrs. Louis Allen; Minty, Mrs. William Wyman; Grace, Mrs. John Kingston; Peter, George Phillips; Mrs. Dean, Mrs. Henry Jatkowski; Miss Tillingtop, Miss Bly Patridge; Mr. Kent, William Spencer.

The cast had been coached by Mrs. Courtland Whitney and each member gave a clear-cut characterization that made their work on the stage of high merit. The scene was laid at Minty's cottage in Derbyshire where some puzzling events that seemed to promise a tragedy resolved themselves into comedy and a happy ending.

Music was rendered by the church orchestra, Miss Dorothy Rathbun was the prompter, the stage setting was by W. S. Spencer and furniture was loaned by Silberman. Miss Emily Gallup had charge of the sale of home-made candy and Miss Harriet Williams was in charge of tickets at the door.

WRITES RED ARROW SLOGAN 2,522 TIMES ON POSTAL CARD FOR PRIZE

Presentation of prize awards in the postal card contest was the chief attraction at the eighth red arrow auction conducted Friday evening at the Palace theatre by the Red Arrow club following the evening's performance. Ernest K. Loge, of No. 154 Washington street, was the winner of the special event and was awarded $10 for his painstaking work in writing the phrase, "Red Arrow Place" on one side of a United States government postal card. The phrase appeared on the card 2,522 times, and had to be counted by use of a microscope.

Mr. Loge's card was one of 359 entered in the contest, the number of cards handed in indicating that there was no little interest in this special event, one of many to be conducted by the Red Arrow club. The other prize winners, as announced by Max Hanover, treasurer, are as follows: Second prize, $5, C. G. Jackson, 99 Cliff street, 2,070 times; third prize, $500 in Red Arrow money, Mrs. Jennie Randall, 562 Main street, 2,032 times; fourth prize, $400 in Red Arrow money, Mrs. C. A. A capacity audience of over 1,500 was present for the auction, which was conducted by a new method, the 145 articles of merchandise, valued at $1,250, being sold to the highest bidders in one hour's time. Mr. Hanover welcomed the gathering in the name of the Red Arrow club, thanking them for their interest in the Red Arrow game. He added that the presence of such a large audience manifested that the Red Arrow idea is gaining favor of the Norwich public from day to day. Herbert Ferguson and Abraham W. CORONER MAKES FINDING IN DEATH OF HULBOJ

That no other person was responsible for the death of Karol C. Hulboj, 48, of 55 Lois street, who was killed when his automobile ran head-on into a trolley car on the curve in front of the Norwich Belt Manufacturing company on North Main street, where there are double trolley tracks, is the finding made by Coroner Edward G. McKay. The fatal accident happened on the night of Sunday, March 16, and the coroner gave out his finding on Friday.

Hulboj died while being rushed to the hospital in the police patrol wagon. Louis Beckwith was the operator of the trolley car, which was on the way to Taftville and the Hulboj automobile was coming in the opposite direction.

In his finding, Coroner McKay says in part:

On the above mentioned date at about 10.30 p. m., the said Louis Beckwith left Franklin square in Norwich operating the said trolley car on its regular run to the vicinity of the city line on Boswell avenue by way of Central avenue. He stopped at the trolley car office on Central avenue and started from there towards the end of his run. At this time the said trolley car was in good running order and had its headlight, sign-lights and interior lights burning. At that time he had two passengers and one of the trolley crew, who was returning home. He put his car up to full power until he came to the junction of Central avenue and North Main street, where he turned the power off and coasted along the straight stretch as far as the curve on North Main street. At that point he was going slowly and when he started around the curve he advanced the control to half power.

As the said Beckwith was rounding the curve he noticed the automobile of the deceased advancing from the opposite direction at a rapid rate of speed. At that time he was was driving his automobile with the wheels straddling the westerly rail of the north bound track. When he reached a point on the road where the trolley car was visible or ought to have been visible to him, he did not change his course, but continued in the car track. When the said motorman saw that the two vehicles were approaching the same point he shut off the power of the trolley car and applied his air brakes. The trolley car came to a stop on the curve and at that instant the automobile collided with the trolley car. The automobile caromed off to the west, slid along the west side of the trolley car and came to a stop about two-thirds of the length of the trolley car with both rear wheels of the automobile on the south bound track.

The injured man was taken from the automobile and was conveyed by police officers to the hospital in an effort to save his life. The injuries, however, were fatal and he had expired before reaching the hospital. The motorman of the trolley car was not injured but the member of the trolley crew, who was riding in the trolley car was painfully injured. He had risen from his seat in the trolley car and had started to go into the vestibule to learn what the motorman had said just immediately before the collision. When the collision occurred he was in the vestibule and was thrown against the partition of the car.

COL. E. W. BARR, ILL ON TRAIN, TREATED AT NEW LONDON ON WAY TO NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, March 28—Col. Edward W. Barr, of New York, was taken ill on a New Haven railroad train while en route from New York to New London this afternoon. He was attended by a physician and then continued by automobile to Norwich to which city he was en route to visit his daughter, Mrs. Weston W. Goodnow when stricken. Col. Col. Barr was a passenger on the express that reached New London from New York at 5:20. When the train was between New Haven and this city, Col. Goodnow was stricken and his condition became such that a message was sent to New London from Saybrook requesting that a physician meet the train upon its arrival here. Dr. Frank M. Dunn was summoned and he administered to the stricken man, who responded to the treatment and then continued to Norwich by automobile.

Big Expresses Held Up

All east bound trains on the New Haven railroad were between 15 and 35 minutes late in arriving in New London between 7 and 8:30 o'clock this evening. A freight train developed a hot box west of Saybrook and before the train could be side-tracked the other trains were held up. The Merchants' Limited, one of the fastest trains on the system, together with the Senator, another fast train, was included among the train delayed.

Two Special Trains

Two special trains were operated over the New Haven railroad tonight. One train, the Pilgrimage special, en route from Boston to Washington carried 816 passengers. The train arrived in New London at 3:35. Another special train consisted of a locomotive and President Pelley's private car and passed through New London about 7 o'clock en route with that official to Boston.

Some of the lanterns belonging to the city which were taken from excavation work in progress on Mercer street last night by mischievous boys were later found buried in a pile of sand being used in connection with the carrying on of the work.

J. Nilan or the auxiliary bishop will officiate at the ceremonies.

PHEBUS TAKES THE BLAME— MCFARREN GOES FREE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NE WLONDON, March 28—Ora M. Phebus and Andrew McFarren, former members of the U. S. Coast Guard, charged with automobile theft, was tried in the police court this morning. Phebus pleaded guilty to the charge and exonerated McFarren of taking any part in the theft, declaring that he alone stole the car and that McFarren was not even in New London at the time. Because of the absence of any evidence to disprove Phebus' story, the latter was held for trial at the next criminal term of the superior court. The charge against McFarren was nolled. The Ford automobile of Mrs. Isabelle Murray, 75 Howard street was parked on Huntington street three weeks ago and when the owner returned for the car it had been stolen. Ten days ago, the car was found in Elizabeth, N. J., and in it were Phebus and McFarren, the latter doing the driving. Both were arrested and held for the New London pjolice. Phebus declared upon his return to New London last night that McFarren was picked up on the road while Phebus was driving the automobile to New York. Phebus' story is doubted by the police, who believe that McFarren took as much part in the theft of the car as did Phebus, but evidence to that effect being lacking, but one of the men will be punished.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Miller, a youth residing at 25 Ledyard street, was arrested last night by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. A quantity of alcohol and beer was seized. Menghi, who has been arrested several times for violation of the liquor law, was in the act of manufacturing another batch of beer when the raiders entered the house. The police were compelled today to take charge of a vicious police dog for the animal had attacked and attempted to bite a woman on Howard street. When the animal did not succeed in sinking its teeth into the leg of the pedestrian, it continued to Bank street, corner of Howard where it was captured by Patrolman Albert Iverson. Later the dog was taken in charge by Dog Warden Tryon. That the animal is ordinarily vicious, was evidenced from the fact that a chain dangled from the collar, indicating that the dog was held in restraint, but had escaped from the premises of its owner.

Patrolman Louis Wheeler reported at headquarters today that a Ford automobile was parked at the corner of Blackhall and Truman streets, but that it did not have markers. An investigation is being made in an effort to determine if the auto has been stolen.

The officer found a rear window partially open and believing that a burglary might have been perpetrated, Goodman was summoned to the store. FACES HIDE EMOTION PROFESSOR DECLARES

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Civilization teaches us to hide our true feelings, Prof. Herbert Gurnee of Western Reserve university believes.

Tests made upon adults by him to determine whether facial expression truly reacts to emotions have shown there is little reaction. This, he says, may be due to the fact that social pressure has made people's faces immobile.

To test reactions of the face to emotion, Dr. Gurnee is making motion pictures of babies, too young to mask their facial expresion, under various states of emotion.

MONSTER BUTTERFISH SIGN THAT SPRING HAS COME

Boat Whoopee, with Capt. Sam DeBarry at the wheel, and Mate George Moore at his side, went out to the fishing ground around Block Island. The March wind did not bother those two sea dogs while the rest of the fishermen look over the blankets, as the alarm clock was set for 4 a. m. and said, "Too much wind!" The Whoopee rode over the waves to Block Island and the sea dogs set their net. Capt. DeBarry said, "Hold your wind, George! We might get some fish and might not! After a couple of hours they pulled the net on board and found plenty of fish. Where did they all come from? About five barrels were in that pull. Mate Moore did a war dance for he saw the last payment on his new Ford all done. "Thank you, Mr. Fish, you don't know how much I need you this week!" He had to pay up or the collector would come, "and then I would kiss the Ford goodbye!"

Capt DeBarry said, "We will try another drag!" The net was let go into the water. The coffee pot was steaming from the stove and smelled good. The captain said, "Hey, Mate Moore, grab the wheel while I get a shot of that good coffee and a bun!" So the mate put in a chew of fisherman's tobacco and was all set as the boat headed up the river for a few hours, trying to get some more fish that had the fishermen puzzled all winter almost as hard to find as a job! The fish are wise—when the prices are high they must play golf and try to make the 19th hole, or beat it away to Florida, the sunshine state.

As the captain came up from the cabin he said, "Mate, put a cup of coffee under your vest, then we will haul the net!" So the mate with his No. 16 shoes went below for a cup of hot coffee, staying down there for a long while. The captain thought he must have gone to bed, so said, "Hey, Mate Moore, have you turned in and forgot to pull up the net?" He came up from the cabin like a shot out of a gun. "Well, are we ready?"

The net came up slowly so as not to lose any fish and it seemed that it was the bottom of the ocean instead of the net or Capt. Kid's trunk of gold that had been hidden for 245 years and had never been found in the Seven seas yet. The boat was almost on one side as the heavy net was on its way to the deck. "What a load of fish! gee!" they said, "It's like finding a gold mine! fish to the right and left of us, knee-deep!" There were seven barrels and both fishermen had a smile that lasted the whole day out.

Mate Moore let out a cry as if a fish had bit him and said, "Spring has come, I bet a doughnut to a steamboat?" "Well," Capt. DeBarry said, "How can you tell it is spring? I don't see any robins around!" The mate said, "I've found a butterfish and sure is a big one! When you see one of them in March, spring is here!" "All right! That is the first one I have seen since I left the shores of Maine! Never saw one so large! Luck has broke for us all right!" They could not weigh the butterfish until they landed at the dock. The mate said, "I will bet you, captain, five cigars that it will weigh around 15 1-2 pounds!" The captain being a good sport said, "I never in my life let a bet go over my head—so I will call your bluff! That butterfish will weigh only 13 pounds!" They shook hands as if they were ready to enter the ring and the boat was headed for Noank.

It was around 5.30 as the captain tied up at the dock and the fishermen crowded about to see what luck they had—13 barrels of fish and a monster butterfish, the largest one ever caught around Block Island! As the fish were put on the truck ready for Fulton market, they were ready to call it a day. Mate Moore grabbed the monster butterfish and they went arm and arm to the Front street fish market to see who had won the bet. Owner Ruddy Packer said, "Well, what do you two men want?" "We have a bet on as to how much this fish weighs!" Packer listened to the story and as a jury was not needed in the case the obliging market man threw the butterfish on the scales which registered 16 pounds and one ounce. The mate was grinning. "I've won the cigars!" Happy to put one over on his captain.

"Not many butterfish are caught this time of the year!" Owner Ruddy said. "No, not around this part of the world!" said Capt De Barry. "That is a real weather fish; it is spring now and it will mean plenty of high winds for a few more days!" Both fishermen were ready to go home and hit the hay, for they were tired after a hard day on the water. "How much do you want for that butterfish?" A good price was offered to the two old salts and they said, "Take it!" The greenbacks were passed over to them by Packer, splitting up the cash, meaning pin money to the married men. Bidding the fish market owner good night, both took there dinner tins, that hold enough food for six men and down the street they went, happy over their catch, also for the monster butterfish, that will be the talk of the village until the lobsters are running again in Long Island sound.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

A STORY OF THE MEN WHO GO DOWN TO SEA IN SHIPS AND THE WOMEN WHO WAIT FOR THEM

"LISTEN to the sleet against the glass!" said Fanny. "It's come dark already!" said Libby.

She struck a match and lighted a candle. The candle flame stooped, then pointed upward to reveal a square of rich framed color on the wall above the chimneypiece. Libby lifted the candlestick. The circle of light traveled up the portrait, up the fine ruddy hands, up the blue officer's coat of the merchant marine, up the high white stock to the face. And now the face of the portrait wavered, smiled, came to life, the livest thing in that dusky room.

How young, how like a boy he looked! Libby stood absorbed.

Fanny's paring knife gave a jealous clatter in the pan.

"I was thinking to dust him," Libby apologized.

"But I dusted him," said Fanny. "I always dust him!"

"Yes, I know—I know you don't forget often to dust him but I thought that just tonight—"

Libby's face drew back into its deep reticence. She walked to the table and lit another candle. The room came partially out of its shadows—old, faded, gray, like the two sisters, yet beautiful still—the great fireplace, the paneled walls, the twenty-four-paned windows, the old brass locks. Better perhaps than Fanny and Libby, it had kept the charm of its youth.

True, Fanny had retained her delicate air. In her chair by the table she held her tall-stayed, delicate wasp waist upright, while her shoulders were bowed above her work and could never be quite unbent. And thickerset Libby had never lost the bright intensity of her smoldering eyes.

"Why tonight?" Fanny inquired.

"Oh, I thought tonight, because it's so important"—Libby's speech came reluctantly—"he might have an extra dusting."

"Tonight?"

"Why, yes."

"Libby, this isn't"— Fanny dropped her paring knife and half rose from her chair—"this isn't—?"

"Yes, it is, Fanny."

"This isn't his birthday?"

"Yes, Fanny."

"February 23! I'd lost track of the days!" She sank back. Then she raised her eyes to the portrait glowing on the wall.

"It isn't a likely night," she ventured, "for him—for anybody—to come."

Libby pretended not to hear.

"It's no night to be out on the sea." Fanny listened anxiously to the sleet against the windows, then glanced again at the handsome young man smiling from the wall. "And it's worse for making port."

Libby pinned a shawl around her square shoulders.

"We'll be snowed in by morning. I got to get more wood." She struggled with the wind-blown door and slammed it after her.

LEFT alone, Fanny sat still, listening to the rattling sleet. Again a twinge of anxiety crossed her face.

Then her expression changed. She glanced once more at the young officer smiling from the wall. Slowly she rose, hobbled to the chest of drawers, took from a box an old-fashioned gold bracelet, slipped it up her thin arm and gave another glance at the portrait, a glance of furtive vanity.

An impulse took her. She hesitated in its grip, with a glance toward the outer door. Then, painfully, she jerked a chair to the hearthstone, climbed upon it and reached her face up toward the pictured face above her.

"How could I forget your birthday?" she whispered. "I must be gettin' old!"

A seaman every inch of him, born for the sea, and a captain at 20! His hair blew back from his forehead and caressed his cheeks in the very latest fashion of the sixties. His sea-blue eyes danced with adventurous invitation.

The old room grew rosy about her. The dimming smoke layers of the years rolled away and let the room of sixty years ago show through—the creamy paint, the merry chintzes, the polished pewter and brass, reflecting a score of candle flames lighted in honor of Paul's 20th birthday.

"Paul, I can run a ship!" Her old thin voice lifted in a strange accent of youth. "I can box the compass! Listen! North, north by east, north-northeast, northeast by north—"

A sound at the door startled her. She hobbled to the door and opened it. "Libby!"

A snow-covered figure staggered into the light.

"Libby, what happened?" Fanny closed the door. Libby dropped her armful of wood and leaned against the closed door, gasping.

"Libby, come to the fire!" She dragged her sister toward the rocking chair.

"I fell right through," Libby panted. "There's a crust on top o' the old drifts, and I fell right through! I'd a right to break my leg!"

"Wonder you didn't!" Fanny pushed Libby into the chair, rubbed her blue hands, then knelt down and pulled off Libby's snow-crusted shoes and stockings. "Why, Lib, you're a sight!"

"I don't know how I can go out and get another armful. Do you think that's enough for tonight?" she gasped.

"Yes, we'll make it do." Fanny hobbled to the chest of drawers and pulled out a pair of dry stockings.

"While you're there"—Libby cleared her throat—"you might's well bring me my bracelet. It's in my black Japan box."

Fanny brought the bracelet. Libby slipped it on. "There," she said, with a glance at Fanny's pipestem wrists, "that's the way this kind of bracelet's meant to fit—snuglike." She turned her arm so that the gold circle shone against the blue veins.

"Remember?" said Fanny softly, with a quick look up at the laughing face above them.

"Remember? Of course I remember!" Libby said shortly.

How sharply she did remember, the two of them sitting here on the bench in front of the fire, with Cousin Paul between them, slipping his mother's old bracelets on their arms.

SIXTY years ago! Libby was 17, with soft, round arms and bright, smoldering eyes. She was frosting a birthday cake.

Paul at last! Bursting into the room, his arms around her and Fanny, dancing, prancing, shouting: "I'm made captain of the Wanderer!" Fanny crowing. Father hurraying. "Captain of a full-rigged ship at 20!" Were they mad? Paul saying: "I've got to sail tonight—at the turn of the tide! Around the Horn to China!" Her hopes tumbling down upon her. Paul rushing out of the room to pack. Father saying something terrifying: "You're getting past marriageable age, you two." (They were 17 and 18.) "I can't have him keeping you both dangling any longer. You've got to make him decide between you tonight—before he sails. I'll give you each five minutes with him alone."

Her turn with Paul. Paul saying: "Why, Libby? Here all alone? Where have Uncle Dan and Fanny gone to? What's the matter? Libby, you are a sweet thing. I never saw you so lovely as you are tonight. I suppose I'm crazy to go away. I ought to stay and help Uncle Dan with the foundry. I love this valley, Libby."

"Yes, Paul, you do love it, don't you?"

"Why, Libby, one night when we were rounding the Horn, fighting black seas, our fingers near frozen to the spars, I saw this little valley in the springtime with the pear trees all in bloom and you and Fan out there under the trees by the heron pool in white dresses, beckoning to me!"

"Oh, Paul, how wonderful!"

"Why, you little rascal, what are you doing? You're crying! Why, my darling! My precious darling!" His arms were round her, his mouth on hers.

"Paul," she was whispering, "after all, you do love home and me better than the ocean."

His arms were suddenly hard and cold like a stranger's, and she lost out of them—while his voice was saying, far off:

"You mean you want me to give up the sea?"

"I thought—I thought you would if you loved me—"

Her five minutes at an end. Fanny rushing into the room, laughing. Fanny laughing as the door closed on her and Paul. What was going on in there? Fanny's laugh. Paul's laugh. Then a silence. Then a shout outside in the road. A knock at the door. The man had come with Paul's horse. The door to the living room opened. Paul and Fanny. Fanny wasn't laughing any more.

Paul kissing them. Father, oh, poor father, his face working, calling out: "Paul—wait—you haven't decided between 'em!" Paul's blue eyes turned dark, his face white. His pale face floating in the door, looking back, looking all round the room, looking at everything in the room again. His voice almost choked:

"When I come back I'll know. I'll choose then. Wait for me."

His horse's hoofs clattered away down the road toward Bethanyport, fainter and fainter and fainter. And the two of them there in the door, staring into the blackness.

* * * * * * *

Fanny interrupted her dreams.

"Was it you or was it me," she asked, "who put on three plates and three forks and three knives?" Then she gazed at the food on the table. "I wonder at me cooking beans on Paul's birthday! He never could abide 'em. We had to have 'em on shipboard such a lot."

"We had to have 'em? Fanny, what are you thinking about?"

"We—why—I guess I'm dreaming—"

Libby's dark eyes brooded across the table upon her sister. Speech, painful speech, battled for utterance against a lifetime of reticence.

"Fan," she spoke at last, slowly, torturingly, "we've talked a hundred bookaful of words in our lives and never come near the real ones—till tonight."

Fanny looked frightened. "What—what do you mean, Libby?"

"It's what we've always been thinking," Libby persisted doggedly, "from getting-up time to bedtime, day in, day out. You thinking inside of you, me inside of me."

"Yes, Lib," Fanny's voice shook.

"It's wondering always"—again the life habit of silence fought to hold back her words, but the necessity of speaking out was overwhelming—"is it you he loved or is it me?"

"Oh, Libby, it's best not said then!"

"No, it's best said, Fan, I feel like a load off me, just to speak it out at last. It's not speaking out that's made us more bitter and more bitter to each other."

"But we can't ever know—till we're dead," Fanny quavered. "Oh, Lib, I'm afraid to know!"

"Why, Fan, I always had a feeling it was you he loved!"

"Did you? Did you really, Lib? Why, I always thought it was you—"

They leaned forward, searching each other's faces. Libby drew back.

"Fanny," she said, "I thought you said he might come this very night."

Fanny closed her eyes. "I guess that was only pretending. I guess I've known, deep down in me, a long time now, that he was dead. He'd have come long ago if he wasn't dead."

The storm had fallen. Libby sat very still. "Then why do you look so happy sometimes?"

Fanny smiled. "Lib, did you ever dream a thing so 'twas clearer than real doings?"

Libby, too, seemed startled. "Yes," her answer came slowly and reluctantly, "yes, I—I have. What did you mean just now when you said that queer thing about beans on shipboard?"

Fanny began to laugh, a thin, tinkling laugh. "It's all so funny, Lib. You wouldn't believe! All these years I've been dreaming that when he rode away to Bethanyport he stopped a little ways down the road, turned round and galloped back, caught me up in his arms and said 'twas me he loved."

LIBBY'S face took on an extraordinary expression, not resentment so much as wonder.

"And he rode off with me perched on the saddle in front of him," Fanny laughed on, "down to his ship, and we sailed away to sea together. I helped sail the ship!" Fanny's pale blue eyes danced. "We'd been sailing a long time before we remembered that we weren't married. There was nobody aboard qualified to marry us except Paul himself, he being captain, and no book except the logbook. So Paul took the logbook in his hand, jumped up on a hatch cover and says, 'Paul, do you take this woman Fanny to be your lawful, wedded First Mate?' Then he jumps down onto the deck beside me and answers, 'Yes, sir, I do.' Did you ever hear anything so crazy, Lib?"

Libby sat silent, brooding. Her dark eyes ranged around the room as if peopling it with familiar, laughing faces. Words crowded to her lips, but again the old habit of silence halted them.

"Fan," she spoke at last in a voice quivering deep with emotion, "did you ever think how sweet it would be to have a—baby just like Paul? A little Paul?"

Fanny sat up sharp, staring at her sister.

Then Libby lost her embarrassment. She smiled. "We had a lot of children, Paul and I."

"Paul and you?"

"Why, yes, Fan, I had my dream, too," said Libby softly. "That night when Paul galloped off into the dark he stopped his horse a ways down the road, came galloping back, jumped down and snatched me in his arms and said it was me he loved and he was going to quit the sea and settle down here and help father with the foundry!

"Paul had to fight for his ideas. Father was timid. He didn't want to put in new hammers and look for new markets for his axes. But Paul knew that was the only hope. He journeyed out West to get orders. When he was gone, Sheadle foreclosed the mortgage, and then you—you made father sign away the foundry! It was frightful." Libby's face held all the tense anxiety of her dream. "Then Paul came back. Orders for 10,000 axes in his pocket! No foundry to make 'em, but he found the papers were wrong. And he got the foundry back. Oh, Paul was wonderful! Oh, he made father so happy!"

Libby sat in the glow of that vision. "We had five children then," she added with a smile of motherly content. "Beautiful children. Paul was so fond of them. You ought to have seen him sitting in that chair here before the fire with them swarming all over him! Paul was surely meant for home and family."

They both glanced up at the face above them. Tears came into Libby's eyes. "I used to think it was cruel, not knowing. But maybe, after all, it was a kind of mercy. We can both have him."

Then a clatter of the heavy iron door knocker.

"WHAT'S that?" cried Fanny. They both sat up, bristling with terror.

"Who is it?" Libby called.

"Do the Wakeman sisters live here?" spoke a deep voice outside the door.

Libby looked at Fanny. "Who can it be, come through this snow?" Timidly she crossed to the door, shot back the bolt and drew the door open.

A strange man in a fur coat loomed outside.

"I'm looking for the Wakeman sisters."

"We're the Wakeman sisters," Libby said. "Come in."

A tall, old, handsome bear of a man, thick eyebrows, square-cut beard, ruddy, half filled the room with snow-powdered fur.

"I mean the daughters of old Dan Wakeman," he said, "Fanny and Libby."

Fanny had risen from her chair, trembling. "We're Fanny and Libby," she quavered.

"You!" Under his thick, handsome brows the stranger stared from one to the other.

"We're Fanny and Libby," Libby affirmed. "Who are you?"

"Dont you know me?" His voice was muffled.

"No."

"I'm Cousin Paul." The words echoed. The two women stood frozen, staring.

"Cousin Paul!" Libby cried in a harsh voice. "What are you talking about?" She pointed. "That's Cousin Paul!"

Fanny backed toward the portrait, spreading wide her skirts to protect it against the stranger. "Paul was a young man," she said. "A sea captain."

"You can't be Paul," Fanny defended herself. "Paul never came back. He's dead."

A spasm of pain twisted the stranger's face. He turned toward the door. Then he threw off his coat. He faced them.

Suddenly Fanny gave a cry and ran hobbling toward him.

"You are Paul?"

"Yes," he said. "And you are Libby?"

Fanny shrank back with a little wounded sound as if he had struck her. "No, I'm Fanny."

Paul turned. "And this is Libby?"

Libby still held out against him, her mouth gray and set. "If Paul was alive he would have come back long ago." Her voice cut like barbed steel. "It was a promise."

Paul flinched.

"Do you mean to say," Libby challenged, "that you've been alive somewhere all this time?"

Fanny came between them swiftly. "Of course he'd have come long ago if he could! Libby, you don't understand the chances of the sea. Paul, prob'ly you been captured by pirates?"

A gleam of humor shot into Paul's eyes, and Libby began to perceive—yes, yes, they were Paul's eyes.

"Pirates? I never saw a pirate in my life!"

"Shipwreck, then?"

He shook his head. "I've ridden out many a gale. Never shipwrecked."

Fanny almost pleaded: "Something more than these? Oh, I understand, Paul. It was your love of adventure!"

"The sea's a peaceful place," Paul said softly. "It's on shore a man runs into adventure."

LIBBY spoke in a hard voice: "Then it was another woman!"

Paul looked at her. He turned and walked away from them, up and down the room.

Then he looked at the wood box, at the table, sparely set; the worn paint, the faded curtains, the black empty fireplace.

"My heavens, you're living here all alone? Who takes care of you?"

Fanny lifted her head in delicate pride. "We take care of ourselves."

"But who carries wood and water?"

"Libby does."

"Who runs the foundry?"

"The foundry went to smash in '78, the year before father died."

Libby could see that those answers hurt Paul and she was glad.

"You could have come back sooner—if you'd wanted."

Paul sat down, leaped up and paced again. At last words burst from him:

"Why did Uncle Dan try to force me that night? I wasn't ready to decide my life. Twenty—and my first command! I only wanted to be myself, to go to sea, to come home to you—the luckiest cub in Christendom, if I'd known it, till the luck was gone. What a relief to get away! I wrote Uncle Dan a letter from Rio—"

"That was the last letter we ever got," said Libby.

His hands closed and unclosed. "It was in Hongkong I met that Portugee—"

"What Portugee?"

"He got me into the scheme of trading down to the islands. Said we could clean up a couple hundred thousand in a year. If I could make that much money, I could put Uncle Dan on his feet, buy him ten foundries if I wanted to. Besides"—his voice was muffled—"I wanted to tie myself up on the other side of the world for a year or two. So I quit the Wanderer—"

"Yes, the owners told father. They were angry," charged Libby.

"We worked like slaves for two years—and went to smash. I got a berth with a Chink, running a schooner out of Singapore."

"But," asked Libby, "why couldn't you write home a letter—just one letter?"

A dark flush congested Paul's face. "I guess you don't understand. I had some pride. For two years I'd been thinking big—of how I'd come swaggering home with the coin and do the handsome thing all around—blaze of glory and all that stuff—and there I was, in debt, with a bad name on account of quitting the Wanderer, no hope of getting home. Write—what could I write?"

Fanny winced in sympathy. "Oh, Paul!"

"But if you couldn't come in two years or five," accused Libby, "you could have come in ten, or twenty." She glanced at his fine clothes. "You didn't stay with that Chink."

"No," he admitted. "I didn't stay down forever." For a moment his chest expanded. The thought of his rehabilitation, his success, brought back that old arrogance of youth they had once found lovable. He paced up and down. "But I tell you I had closed the door on all this. I'd shut myself out of this forever."

Libby's face was bitter. "Then why did you come back at all? Why didn't you leave us with our memories? Why have you come back to trample on them? We each had a Paul in our hearts, and you have destroyed him!"

Fanny's hands stole to the black lace on her head, to the ruche at her throat. "Why, Libby, I understand. Paul has come back at last to tell us which one he loves."

Paul said slowly: "I wasn't thinking of it exactly that way after all these years."

"What do you mean, Paul?"

"I thought the time for choice was past."

There was a long, slow silence in the room. Fanny lost her youthful look. Even the tight, stayed little waist seemed to bend.

"Why did you come?" Libby repeated.

"You can call it chance if you will," Paul said slowly. The sisters stiffened. "I had meant never to come. But this morning, when business brought me to Dark Harbor with Bethanyport so near, the pull was too strong—the longing to see this valley, this house, this room, once more before I died. I meant never to come. You had your memories. Well, I had mine. I meant to keep the picture of you two as you were that night here in this room forever the same—the most beautiful thing I have ever known. I loved you, both of you. I loved you, Libby."

"Yes—" Libby drew in her breath softly.

"I loved you, Fanny."

"Yes—" Fanny smiled.

A glow of youth warmed the two old faces.

"I'd have taken good care of you, Paul," mused Libby.

"I know you would have, Libby. You'd have made me a perfect little wife. But—"

"But what?"

"I—I'm afraid I couldn't have stood your perfectness. Your perfect house. Your perfect children."

He turned to find Fanny nodding.

"Of course, Paul. I understand!" she approved. "You had to be free. I'd have given you all the freedom in the world. I'd have run your ship for you!"

"Yes, and made me the laughingstock of all the ports from here to China. Henpecked skipper of a henpecked ship! A real man doesn't let a woman—"

"A real man!" Fanny had drawn herself up with a little, scornful laugh. "I'd know you now, Paul, with my eyes shut. A real man! The very same little-boy words you always used to call yourself! A real man!"

Libby broke in: "As if a real man would leave the uncle he owed everything to struggle along with a broken-down foundry and kill his heart with waiting!"

Fanny tossed her head. "As if a real man would break a promise to two girls and let his silly pride keep them waiting all their lives! Just so that you could keep your freedom, your pride, you, you, you—"

A gust of fury contorted Paul's face. He seized his coat.

"I was a fool to come!" He started toward the door. Then he looked around at the room. His anger faded. His lips trembled. His eyes looked their fierce loneliness. "I'll send you wood—and things," he muttered. "I'll send somebody to—" His hand was on the latch.

"Paul," said Libby quietly. Paul turned.

"You ran away the last time without tasting your birthday cake. Come, have a piece of this one before you go."

Paul stared. "My birthday cake!"

"Yes."

"You remembered my birthday?"

"Libby remembered," said Fanny.

"Come, Paul, sit down in your chair. It's always been waiting for you."

SLOWLY Paul came to the table and sat down beneath his portrait. Fanny and Libby took their places on either side of him.

"Twenty candles!" Paul counted. "Was I ever as young as that?"

"You have to blow them out," Fanny said.

Paul blew, missed one, then blew that out.

"You cheated," Fanny laughed.

Libby handed him a knife. "It's your cake, Paul. You have to cut it."

"Piggy-wiggy!" said Fanny. "Look at the size pieces you're cutting."

"I was thinking of the size you like, Fan."

"How's it taste?" asked Libby.

"Only you could make a cake like this, Lib." Paul looked from one of them to the other. "Why, you've got my mother's bracelets on!" He caught hold of a hand of each, looking at the bracelets and at them. "How bright your eyes are tonight, Libby! What a lovely color you have tonight, Fanny!"

They all laughed together softly.

"Paul, you flatterer!"

"Paul, you rascal!"

"Why, Fanny, Libby, I can't go away! This is where I belong. May I stay and take care of you?"

Fanny and Libby sat up sharp. They interchanged a startled glance.

"That's dreadful kind of you, Cousin Paul." Libby spoke slowly, her chin held proudly firm. "But we've taken care of ourselves a long time. I guess we'd best go on."

Paul looked terribly hurt. "You couldn't use a man about the house, Libby?"

"We have our ways and you have yours," she said stubbornly. "You see, we haven't changed much, Cousin Paul."

"You aren't going to let me stay?" Paul pleaded. "This was my home once."

"Paul hasn't changed a mite, either," Fanny cried. "Begging just like he used to! We always had to let him have his own way."

"I know we did," said Libby, and considered him. "Could we let him stay, Fan?"

"Why not, Lib?"

"Please!" begged Paul. His loneliness burned in his eyes.

"All right," Libby agreed slowly, "if you really want to stay—"

Fanny clapped her hands. "Oh, what an adventure!"

"Paul does love home best, after all, you see, Fan?" said Libby.

The candle flickered on the chimneypiece. The portrait smiled.

And I know the full essentials
Of making up a census that will please and entertain.
I'm a spinster and I'm proud to say I've reached a proper age;
It's an age of good discretion—
That perhaps, is a confession:
But it shows I'll take the census so's to 'liven every page.

For I understand my neighbors mighty well—mighty well;
I can give you every detail that is really fit to tell.
I have had a good occasion to examine every case,
For I've neighbored pretty steady since I've lived here in the place.
I can give you lots of items that you'd get no other way,
Not a lot of musty fodder and statistics dry as hay,
But some spicy information, that is strictly up to date,
And the best of all, you'll get it as I get it, fresh and straight.
I've a notion of a census that will make the volumes sell;
But you've got to pick your people if you want it taken well.

For a fool enumerator will go browsing round the towns
And he'll never think to question any women on their gowns,
He may sit around and gossip for an hour in a place
And forget to note the curtains are of imitation lace.
And he'll never get the story of how Mary Barker's Ann
Has run away to Boston with a wicked married man.
And I'll bet he won't discover if he hunts a solid week
How it happens Mrs. Atkins and her husband do not speak.
But I've got it—you can have it, if you'll pay me well to tell,
And gracious Mr. Merriam, how your census books will sell.

Now I want to take the census down in Mattagumpus, Maine,
I am strong on education
And I've lots of penetration
And I'll guarantee you plenty in a very lively strain.
It will be the kind of census that will stir the dusty bones;
'Twill go ringing down the ages,
Folks will pore above the pages,
And you're welcome, dear, director, to the tip. Yours, Mary Jones.

Bills! Bills!

The business men all over town,
Are harrying, scurrying up and down,
The first of every month,
Their bills are scattered here and there
It seems they never really care,
To whom they are addressed.

To high and mighty see them go,
Their step it seems will never slow,
Pursuing slothful bills.
But when these bills were being made
The debtors never seemed afraid
Of pay day looming near.

This credit then it seems to me,
Brings forth more woe and misery
Than it can overcome.
Here's to the day, if it should come,
When bill collecting shall be done
And credit, never more.

—Mrs. Clarence Wilson, in The Pathfinder.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Ever been surrounded by wolves?"

"No, but I know the sensation. I used to open the dining-room doors at a summer boarding-house."—U. P. Magazine.

The Customer—That's a very small portion of kidney stew you're serving me.

The Waitress—Taste it once and you'll say you got more'n you want of it.—Detroit News.

He spent several days fishing, and presented his landlady with enough fish to supply the whole boarding house. At the end of the week his bill included the item:

"Lard (for frying fish)—1s. 6d."—Loughboro' Herald.

Shocked Old Lady—And on the way up here we passed about twenty-five people in parked cars.

Young Hostess—Oh, I'm sure you're mistaken. It must have been an even number.—Goblin.

Tenant—I have a complaint to make, sir. The man upstairs has a new baby and it cries all night.

Landlord—I'll speak to Jones and ask him to walk the floor with it.

Tenant—Yes, no. He's been using roller skates.—Exchange.

"It is being whispered around that you and your husband are not getting on well together."

"Nonsense. We did have some words and I shot him, but that's as far as it ever went."—Pathfinder.

He—Your lipstick is coming off.

She—No, it isn't.

He—It is.

She—I'm sure it isn't.

He—Listen! Any time I get as close as this to a girl her lipstick is coming off!—Punch.

In a Negro school there was one boy so black that even the other pupils called him "Midnight." This was all very well until a new pupil only a few shades lighter than he entered the school. On being called this nickname by the new pupil, "Midnight" got huffy.

"Lissen heah! Don' you call me no midnight. Yo's about half-past leben yo-se'f."—Montreal Star.

A Memory

It conjures up fond memories of that old sailboat of mine,
To hear a tug boat whistle, or to sight a barkentine,
A lobsterman a-bobbing on a far off
greenish sea
Brings to my mind a vision of my boat that used to be.

I never hear a fog bell or bark a whistling buoy,
Without a thought of good old day,
when I called "Ship Ahoy!"
Each yawl, each brig or bark I see,
each ocean liner too,
Brings back to mind my old sailboat—the one that brought me you.

The Reconciliation

The sun and April were at outs,
And gloomy was the morning;
She hid her face, with frowns and
pouts,
And treated him with scorning.

But he, despite her stormy ways,
And manner cold and chilling,
Still bent on her a loving gaze,
And to forgive was willing.

But yet she hid her frowning face
From his so bright and beaming;
Beneath her veil of misty lace,
With tears her eyes were streaming.

Then hotly, ardently he wooed,
She could no more resist him!
And, with a sudden change of mood,
She rent her veil and kissed him!

And when these two were reconciled
A charm fell o'er the morning;
And April's teardrops when she smiled,
Were gems for her adorning.

Just a Volunteer

Why didn't I wait to be drafted?
And be led to the train by a band,
Or put in a claim for exemption,
Why did I hold up my right hand?
Why didn't I wait for the banquets?
Why didn't I wait to be cheered
For the drafted men get all the credit
While I only volunteered.

Nobody gave me a banquet,
Nobody said a kind word,
The puff of the engine, the grind of the wheels,
Was the only good bye I heard.
Then off to the training camp hustled
To be trained for the next half year,
And in the shuffle forgotten for
I was only a volunteer.

Perhaps some day in the future,
When my little girl sits on my knee
And asks what I did in this great war
As her bright eyes look up at me,
I will have to look into those eyes,
That at me so trustingly peer,
And I tell her I was not drafted,
But only a volunteer.

STRAY THOUGHTS.

A little child about him played,
She pushed a cart his hands had made.
The mother smiled to see them there,
Husband, father, daughter fair,
And thought: "It seems at each day's close
Our little family happier grows."

And looking up, he saw her face
Framed in that curtained window space,
And thought: "There are no prettier
flowers,
No lovelier little home than ours,
No nicer pies, or tastier cakes
Than those for us the mother makes."

In stray thoughts such as these are blent
All earthly pleasure and content,
For those who look with loving eyes
On little things they've come to prize,
And in possessing them are glad,
Have all from life that can be had!

What Would Lincoln Say?

Could Lincoln come again with mortal breath,
And here among his people living
stand,
His lips no longer sealed by silent death
His heart still hungry for his native land,
And could he voice some counsel wise
and kind,
To teach his country in a doubtful
day,
A light to guide the blind who lead the blind,
What would the sage, immortal Lincoln say?

What would he say of men who spurn
aside
The high ideal on which our sires were bent,
The great seed-fact for which they fought and died
A government derived from free consent!
What would he say when all our strength and skill
Are mustered forth to crush and shoot away,
The self same cause that hallowed
Bunker Hill—
What would the freedom loving Lincoln say?

He held with Washington, we should remain
A land apart, a refuge for the free;
Nor be entangled in the warring train
Of robber dynasties beyond the sea.
What would he say of compacts framed by stealth,
Of whispered leagues to make the
weak a prey,
Of old world empires and our common wealth
Yoked thus together—what would Lincoln say?

He held that toil should have the highest place
In all the land east, west and north and south;
Held that the sweat of no true toilers face,
Should fall for bread to fill another's
mouth,
Behold the reign of plutocratic greed;
The few who rise, the many who decay,
The classes surfeit and the masses
need,
The wealth, the want—Ah! What would Lincoln say?

What, would he say? Speak out, O

HOME.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Pals: Accompanying my letter have sent a copy of the poem "Stray Thoughts," by Edgar Guest. To me another appropriate title would be "Our Home."

Recently I have been reading the results of a contest of letters written on the best definition of the word Home. It is the one word which to many people has a varied meaning all depending upon the circumstances in each case. Love and a haven of peace and rest where all trials and troubles can be soothed is my definition of home as I find it. Would be pleased if the other members would write upon this subject and express their views as to what the word means to them.

We had just the best gathering ever on our 20th anniversary, thanks to Theoda and Biddy and helpers. I hope no one missed the fine report of the meeting sent in by our dear Sis Hopkins. Congratulations to our patient editor and may we all prove worthy of his indulgence.

To our members who have lost dear ones accept my deep sympathy and may you be given strength and courage to brave the storm, remembering in our prayer we say, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." With faith, love and trust, we can carry on.

This quaint Japanese proverb may help you. "When you dig another out of trouble, the hole from which you lift him becomes the place to bury your own sorrow." Thanks to all for birthday cards received.

YOUR NEIGHBOR'S FLOWERS

Dear Social Corner Members: Do you sing "The roses red upon my neighbor's vine, are owned by him, but they are also mine. His was the cost, and his the labor, too; but mine as well as his the joy, their loveliness to view," whole-heartedly or do you whisper to yourself, "His flowers are rather pretty but if I had the time or the money or the knack of raising flowers—?" Of course you might be able to raise lovelier ones but the point is that he is raising them while you are merely thinking about it.

I heard someone say recently that they would have lovely spring flowers if they could be set out in the spring. They could "never get around" to set out bulbs in the fall. It seems rather a pity, doesn't it, to deny oneself the pleasure of these little first flowers for so small a reason?

Crocus and scilla and snowdrops and grape hyacinths are not so very expensive compared with perennial plants in general and they multiply rapidly when conditions are favorable. A wee bed of vari-colored crocus means more to us in March than a huge and gaudy bed of annuals in August when flowers are blooming everywhere.

So get out your pencil and compare notes with your neighbor. Find out which colors are your favorites and locate the warmest, sunniest, most sheltered spot for your bulb bed. Then tuck your information away where you will find it next September when it is time to order and set out the bulbs. And next spring you will be able to enjoy your own blossoms as well as the neighbor's.
PERNICKETY.

FROM OLD MAINE

Dear Corner Friends: It is about time I wrote and thanked Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar, it was just what I needed for my desk, many thanks. It was rather Marchy today, but we had a wonderful winter, no blizzards, nor high winds, and, of course as we are on the state road, we don't have any mud.

Last fall I was on a trip to Rhode Island and Massachusetts, I had a marvelous time riding, which I love to do, although many of the places I had visited before.

I had some barbers' coats given me, and I have been using the best of them for hot dish mats. I cut them round or square, it does not matter which, and some I have bound with bias tape, others I have put lace on the edge. I have crocheted an edge on them. I have embroidered 12 square tan pillow covers (sofa pillow) with names of places on them. I am going to set them together as cash work for a bed quilt. Odd, but pretty. A friend gave me a linen duster, I made doilies of that and have more to make.

I cannot see where there is anything to throw away if a body stops to think. I have been working on a log cabin quilt of plain satteens, the colors shading very beautifully. You see if I was in the habit of visiting I couldn't do so much, but I always have to be doing something. I never care to hold my hands. It makes me tired to see others do it.

Our snow is about all gone and the snow birds have just come back. Wild geese were heard and seen here in Maine in February, the earliest ever.

I miss Joan's letters as well as many others. Adam loves to tell the truth about the places he visits. I have heard others say the same things. He knows how to make a story laughable. There has been 11 houses closed for the winter here, at Dry Mills, and now the folks are coming back it won't be so lonely. A lady who went from here to Zepyr Hills, Florida, is expected home this week.

I am again to buy my chicks and set out strawberry plants besides. I will set out more white pines. Every spring we plan to set out a few pines. We have quite a growth on the north side of house which keeps off the chilly blasts from Mt. Washington which sweeps Gray Plains. I, too, miss the sisters who have gone to their long sleep.

Somewhere back of the sunset,
Where loveliness never dies,
She lives in the land of glory,
Mid blue and gold of the skies,
Being happy is our greatest contribution to the world.

Trusting this finds every one in good spirit, if not good health. I am as ever the same. BALSAM FIR.

SAGE CHEESE

Dear Social Corner Friends: Pernickety asked how to make sage cheese. I lived with my husband's family five years and used to help make the cheese. They had four or five cows so had to use two days' milk. Mother always used a cedar tub to set the curd in. She was very careful to have the milk just blood warm and use the right amount of rennet, as too much made the curd tough. When the milk had set she crossed it off to whey and spread a cheese cloth over it and dipped the whey off through that with a bowl. She let it whey off slowly so to retain the cream. After it had wheyed enough she spread a cheese cloth over the cheese basket, a basket with large meshes made on purpose, which was set on a rack over a tub. Then carefully dipped the warm curd in to drain. This curd she set in a cool place until next day.

Then when she made the next day's curd she took green sage leaves, washed and dried off the water, put them in a cloth, and pounded them. I think she soaked them in some of the milk to extract the juice which she put in the warm milk. Then she took some nice green corn leaves and pounded them in a cloth after washing them and squeezed the juice into the milk. The sage was for flavor, the corn juice was for the bright green color. After this curd was drained like the first, she cut it in pieces and the first curd the same then salted and mixed the two together which made a mottled green curd. Next she spread a cheese cloth over her hoop smoothly. She used one about the size of a peck measure. Then packed in the curd evenly and folded the cloth over and put on the board cover that just fitted the hoop. She used an old fashioned lever press with weights. A small one at first, then heavier as it settled. The next day she took it out and turned it over and pressed again, leaving it in the press until she made another cheese. She made cheese just through July and August, the bad butter months. The cheeses were about four inches thick when all cured. The curing process was a very particular one. Wish I had one of those nice cheeses now, I would carry some to the next Corner dinner. They certainly were good. Hope this will answer Pernickety's want. BITTERSWEET, (Club 4.)

HAS PLANTED SWEET PEAS

Dear Social Corners This nice rain ought to start things growing—if—it does not freeze up again right after it clears. I planted my sweet peas on March 17, and see what horrid weather we had the rest of the week. Aries' method of planting sweet peas is rather too strenuous for me. Six inches deep is about the limit of my digging. A little fertilizer, covered with dirt, then the peas and cover with about two inches of dirt. I planted the dwarf variety. It needs no bushing and saves work. A few of the tall sweet peas I planted by an English method that I read about, by first setting a well-branched bush, then planting the seed in a circle around it, the idea being to have the bush look like a flowering shrub when it is covered with the sweet pea vines. Last year's Christmas tree can be used here. I had two small ones, so put them both to work.

Two things new to me which I am trying this year are dwarf morning glories and evening-scented stocks. And by the way, does any sister know where may be found a vine resembling the morning glory, but having double pink flowers? I used to know it by the name "Rose of Sharon" (a name also given to the althea) and it is also known as "California Rose vine." Also, does anyone know of a plant called "Fourth of July" plant?

Like Pernickety, I also am planning on having my posy bed (the big one) enclosed with wire. Last year it was exploring ground for all the fowls and animals on the farm. The smaller flower beds I shall still have to protect as I did last year by means of sticks and stones. My holly hocks are protected by a lattice of sticks and narrow pieces of board nailed together, and stones at front and ends of beds to lay it on. Two narrow boards, on edge, with slats from an old window blind nailed across, protects another spot. Other flower beds resemble rock gardens, for when even I set out a plant I put a stone each side of it, as a damper on the hens' ambition to scratch it out, or if I set out a row of plants I sometimes put an old board each side the row, close to it. Some day, perhaps, we'll have a hen yard. Until then, though, shall have to make my wits save the plants. BETSY BOBBETT.

HEAVENLY FOOD

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner Club: Yes, I attended the anniversary club at Mechanic's hall in Westerly on the 18th and enjoyed the day very much. We had a good dinner with borrowed dishes.

Nonesopretty: I am sending you an old fashion suet pudding recipe. Perhaps it is not as old as you wish but I have made it for nearly a hundred years and call it good. I will also send you a recipe for:

Heavenly feed: 1 cup of dates cut in small pieces, 1 cup of broken English walnuts, 2 eggs beaten light, 3-4 cup of brown sugar, 3 heaping tablespoons of flour, 1 level tablespoon of baking powder, pinch of salt. Spread thin as possible in well buttered dishes and cut before taking out of pan as it breaks easily. This will make two pans.

Noank Brownie: We missed you very much and also Rose Lawn and Crimson Rambler.

Whispering Pines: Your quick raised cake recipe was very good, although I am not Susanna.

Hepatica: When do you have another vacation? It is beautiful at the present time, plenty of wind. You can see the Yankee Clipper every evening and the flying machines all the afternoon. It will fly high and then it will light in the river and never stop but will keep right on going. Some sight! I was very much disappointed not to see Mrs. Farmer at the meeting.

My sympathy to all in sickness or trouble. MITCHIE.

CLUB NO. 5 MEETS APRIL 2ND.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Please all remember that Club No. 5 meets Wednesday, April 2nd, in our usual place. I hope to see a large number of members, also any friends that they care to bring with them. Kindly remember to bring your donations. Tecoma is hostess and we all look for a good time; don't forget to bring something good to eat. Best wishes to all the shut-ins, may they soon be restored to their health.

AN EXPLANATION

Dear Social Corner Members: After reading some of the letters of criticism concerning "By Jingo's" letter on the subject of middle-aged ladies, I was tempted to come to her defense, and explain her letter a bit.

I happened to read the article she refers to in Dorothy Dix's column and would like to tell the sisters in the Corner that she was merely quoting Miss Dix all the way through her letter and none of the things she said of middle-aged ladies were her own ideas.

Surely the fact that a lady is middle-aged doesn't make her meddlesome and vicious and I am sure "By Jingo" didn't intend any one to get that impression. Nevertheless I find among my acquaintances a few of the ones she describes and perhaps if they had some occupation, they would not have the time to be the gossips and trouble makers that they are. I have never met "By Jingo," and haven't the faintest idea who she is, but would like to very much as I make a guess that we are somewhere near of an age. I enjoy her letters and hope she won't get discouraged by some of the opinions of the sisters. If we all thought alike it would be a funny world and no matter what subject that is brought up in the Corner, there are choruses of "Yes! I agree with you," and "No you are absolutely wrong," as there are in every church, lodge room or any gathering of people.

Wouldn't it be nice if we could dip our pet dogs in some kind of a solution that would stop their hair from coming out. In my case it would save me hours of housework as I have a small dog who thinks he ought to go out whenever the car does and if he thinks we are not going to take him he goes out and sits patiently on the running board for perhaps the best part of an hour looking up at the window with his most pleading look. Thinking that we will relent, regardless of the hairs on the cushions and our clothes, (and we usually do). And the best chairs and the couch are his, or at least he considers them so, but oh, the dog hairs! I always have liked dogs and after the death of our collie, thought a small dog would be less trouble with hairs but find this is not so, for the larger dog always stayed on the floor at least.

Now please don't think harshly of "By Jingo," I'm sure she didn't mean to ridicule the middle-aged.
FIREFLY.

CHEERED BY LETTERS

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: Here I am once more with my pen in hand and here's hoping I may be of some help in keeping the page full. Such interesting letters as we have from week to week! I certainly do enjoy reading them, and am cheered and helped by their contents. Was glad I could attend the anniversary meeting of Club 2. Such a wonderful dinner and fine programme, and jolly crowd! I had the opportunity of meeting some old friends and acquaintances of years gone by. I missed the cheerful smiling face of Bumblebee. I hope she will be around among us before long.

Aries: Your vase of pussy willows were fine. Glad to see you with us again.

Queen Elizabeth: You are rightly named and deserve a crown.

Golden Glow: Glad you can meet with us so often. "Changes may come, friends be far apart, but distance does not change the heart."

Country Sister: We certainly enjoyed your visit. Come again soon and bring your music.

Nespa: Hope you are enjoying your new home.

Catnip: Hope you are not worrying any more.

One sister asked for a recipe for suet pudding. Am sending one that I have tried and think it fine.

Suet pudding: 1 cup chopped suet, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup sour or sweet milk, 1 egg, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, cloves and nutmeg, salt. Steam 3 hours, serve with any kind of sauce. I prefer a plain sauce with nutmeg for flavor. Yours for the good of the Corner.
U. C. E. (Club 2).

BIDDY IS APPRECIATIVE.

Dear Editor and Friends: How are you all this beautiful morning?

I want to thank all again who helped to amuse the large gathering that met in chamber of commerce March 12. We had a good time didn't we?

So many sisters tried to talk to me that day and I was in such a hurry to see my "pupils" that I am afraid I gave them the cold shoulder for which I want to apologize.

Sis Hopkins: What a nice report you did give of the Corner. I have been a member for 15 years. I have met so many old friends and even relatives.

Jennie: I am glad you enjoyed the school of 1876. My! I suffered some with the heat. I don't see how we ever endured the styles of long ago.

Hope Cobweb: Your card came this morning, thank you. Is your watch keeping good time?

I wish the Corner sisters would send Brave a post card shower. Poor thing she lies flat on her back. Try and cheer her up with a card.

Bumble Bee: I think of you so much and am wondering how you are getting along.

Aunty No. 1: How's the cramp? Did you find the gloves? Got a letter from Popover; the Senters didn't come out.

Hoping all are recovering from any sickness and sympathy for those in sorrow and greeting to all new members. BIDDY.

PUTS MAGAZINE RACK IN SHAPE.

Dear Social Corner Folks: What cold unseasonable weather we are having! Not a very great incentive to house cleaning is it? I've been waiting for a mild day to at least clean my windows. It seems to me that they were never so gray and smoky as they are now. Wonder if any other of the sisters have trouble like that.

Now Calla Lily: Your intentions are no doubt good, but I would not do that if I were you for you know that would be so much less that some one would have to take home in his basket. It really is laughable.

Zulieka and all my other friends in Club No. 4: I think of you often and hope when the weather permits I will be able to meet you all.

Now I want to tell you friends how I remodeled a faded magazine rack. I painted it a pretty gray and on each side I pasted panels of flowers (colored of course) that I had cut out of a floral magazine. It does look pretty and the only cost to me was my time, as the paint I had was left from some work last year and the pictures were cut out of a lovely catalogue. The paint I used was Lava Lac as it dries very quickly.

Yours for the good of the Social Corner. BLACK EYED SUSIE.

THE CHILDREN'S COMPANIONS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Here I am once again thinking how our garden is to be planted, what and where. Now we are selecting the very choicest seeds and soon will be sweating in the hot sun killing out the weeds.

Now, have you given as much thought to the care and the company our children play with? Are they just growing weeds or are they being given the best care? Remember if we do our duty while they are small we will have no regrets when they are older. Once the Bible was the standard in the schools. Now, it is not often found there. When we were children there was the Bible reading and prayer. Now how many in the homes know the Bible as well as they do their pack of cards? If we do not make our children obey us, how can we expect them to grow up to obey the laws. If there are laws we do not like we can help to have them set aside. But while they are laws they should be fully obeyed.

We hear the laws made light of. The papers are not fit for our children to read. Also the book stands are crowded with highly colored magazines. If that is what the people wish then they must expect the generation to come will be even worse than at present. If the streets are not safe for a young girl now without a half drunken boy or young man insulting her, where can she be safe. Even returning from high school a mother is anxious until her daughter is home safe. I am told I'm too old fashioned, but the new age is far from being as safe as when we were young.

Will E. M. R. C. P. please write and tell us something of the life and the living there in Florida as I'm about to make a change and am thinking I would like to know something of their Corner in Florida. Aries was so kind to give me a few points.

Aries: So glad to get your letter. Had a lovely visit with Mary S. also. Hope to be at Putnam the 27th. Will think of you in Norwich if you attend.

Suet pudding: 1 cup suet chopped fine, 1 cup raisins chopped fine, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 2 level teaspoons baking powder, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 teaspoon clove, 1-2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon. Turn in buttered mold and steam three hours. Nuts may also be added if you wish.

A fine sauce for pudding: 1 cup white sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup boiling water. Beat yolk of one egg, add a little cold water to beat if necessary. Cook on stove like custard. Beat the white foamy sauce of egg and add a bit of flavoring and put in above mixture just before serving.

WOMAN'S WORK

Dear Social Corner Readers: Through the kindness of a thoughtful and generous neighbor who has a fine radio, it was my privilege yesterday to enjoy the tenth anniversary celebration program of the National League of Women Voters. There were several notable speakers. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Miss Katherine Ludington, Miss Belle Sherwin, Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Mrs. Henry Goddard Leach, Mrs. F. Louis Slade, Mrs. Norman Whitehouse. To those of us who watched the fight for woman suffrage and especially to those who helped the cause even in a small way, this program was of great interest. None of the speakers claimed that women have made the world over as yet or even accomplished half as much as some predicted they would but neither have they disrupted homes or wrought other forms of havoc that the antis foretold they would.

Altogether the outlook is encouraging and no one can predict just what can be done in the decade ahead. Much of education is needed and will continue to be needed along this line, as in other fields of endeavor. There was no note of discouragement in any one of these speeches and I came home feeling that it was good to have listened to the words of these outstanding women whose lives are so much broader than my own.

What splendid anniversary meetings our Corner has had. I get a feeling of uplift from every one I attend. May our Corner continue to grow in numbers, in helpfulness and in broad-mindedness. Here is a hint that may help someone. I used to find that gloves often looked streaked after being washed. Now when hanging them up to dry I insert a clothespin in each thumb and finger and find no streaks in them when dry. If any of you have had this trouble try using the clothespins and I feel sure you will be pleased with the result.

With friendly greetings to you all.
JACK-IN-THE-PULPIT.

A CHATTY LETTER.

Dear Social Corner Members: The way the wind is whistling around it seems as though winter was still with us, but it can't be long now before we will be enjoying the spring days. If not too late I want to mention the nice time we had at the anniversary of Club No. 5. Everyone was so friendly and sociable. There were very good "eats" and the program was much enjoyed.

Red Rose: You are filling the right position. It is just your line.

Clip: I missed you. The following day we went to help the Willimantic club celebrate and they did celebrate with a delicious dinner and good program.

Lonesome Pine: You gave we another surprise, but now I shall not be surprised at anything. I was glad to hear Mr. Arnold's talk and learn that there were rooms open there at all time. That is a nice thing to know, many times out of town people have occasion to wait for some one and it is fine to have some place to go into off the street.

Mary France: Am so glad I met you. If you will send me the name of the cottage I may be able to give you a flying call. Is it late in the season you go? Libbie P. and daughter spent Friday with me and I told them how you "performed."

Wiltwyck: I hope to look you up during the summer.

I want to thank all who have sent me raised cake recipes through the Corner page and direct to me. Will report on them later.

Quid Nunc: I had a good laugh over the sage cheese. I am very fond of cheese and shall always think of your letter when I eat the sage variety.

Black-Eyed Susie: Oh yes, its house-cleaning time. It seemed strange to see Mayfayre alone. We appreciated her coming but missed you.

Lauret and Devens: Hope you are all well now.

Prairie Chicken: The coffee maker is Y. Y. E. L. M.

THE OPEN COUNTER MENACE

Dear Friends of the Corner: Many thanks, Mr. Editor, for the yellow slip, it certainly was a big surprise. As I came in from shopping a short time ago, I was thinking of some of the stores where candy, cookies, salted peanuts, etc., were on tables and open counters, in such large quantities, that they must be exposed for hours to the dust and germ laden air that is put in constant circulation by the ever moving customers. In one place a clerk was sweeping (as it was near closing time), with the goods still uncovered. Is it any wonder that the youngsters who are allowed to purchase these confections, suffer from throat and other serious troubles? Why is not the pure food law that we used to hear so much about, enforced in this line as well as others?

Have you ever thought of it sisters?
PRACTICAL POLLY.

BIBLE LORE

Dear Social Corner Readers: Not so many letters this week. Well, I presume with house cleaning on the docket, young chicks to care for and turkey nests to hunt, there is not much time for letter-writing.

I see I have something to do that will keep me busy a few days; I just received a package of wall paper, so as soon as convenient will endeavor to make my kitchen presentable.

Yes, Topsey, I agree with you on the subject of the Bible. I heard someone say that it isn't read in the rural schools and I was surprised.

When we went to school the Lord's prayer was repeated in unison, then each of us had five paragraphs to read from the Testament and some teachers took interest enough to explain to us the meaning as we finished reading, which naturally made it more interesting.

Fifteen minutes each morning of reading the Testament is time well spent.

For my part I think the Bible is a very interesting book. There we find history, mathematics, geography; there we find love and fidelity; and many passages of consolation when we are so discouraged.

These Bible facts may prove interesting. First I will mention a young man who was heir to the Spanish throne and was imprisoned in the Place of Skulls, Madrid. After 33 years in this tomb he wrote in his Bible the following:

In the Bible the word Lord is found 1,853 times, the word Jehoval 6,855 times and the word Reverand but once, and that in the 9th verse of the CXIth Psalm. The 8th verse of the CXVIIth Psalm is the middle verse of the Bible. The 9th verse of the VIIIth chapter of Esther is the longest and the 35th verse of the XI chapter of St. John is the shortest. In the CVIIth Psalm four verses are alike, the 8th, 15th, 21st, 31st. Each verse of the CXXXVIth Psalm ends alike. No names or words with more than six syllables are found in the Bible. The XXXVIIth chapter of Isaiah and XIXth chapter of 2nd Kings are alike. The word Girl occurs but once in the Bible, and that in the 3rd verse in III chapter of Joel. There are found in both books of the Bible 3,586,488 letters, 7,773,693 words, 31,-373 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books. The XXVIth of the Acts of the Apostle is the finest chapter to read. The most beautiful chapter in the Bible is the XXIII Psalm. The four most inspiring promises are John XIV chapter and 2nd verse, VI chapter of John, 37 verse; XI chapter of St. Mathew, 28th verse, and the XXXVII Psalm, 4th verse. The 1st verse of the LX chapter of Isaiah is the one for a new convert and all who flatter themselves with vain boastings of their perfectness should learn the VI chapter of Matthew.

And if you have the blues read the 27 Psalm; if you are penniless read the 37th Psalm; if people seem unkind, read the 15 chapter of St. John; if you are discouraged about your work read the 126th Psalm; if you are all out of sorts refer to the 12th chapter of Hebrews; if you are losing confidence in mankind read the 13th chapter of Corinthians, and if you can not have your own way in every thing read the 3rd chapter of St. James.

Biblical mention is made of nineteen different precious stones, six metals, 104 trees and plants, 35 animals, 39 birds, six fish, 11 reptiles, 20 insects and smaller creatures.

The Bible was first printed at Mentz, Germany, in 1462. It is now printed in 528 different languages. Now, friends, can you tell me where one can find a more interesting book?

SUET PUDDING RECIPE

Dear Social Editor: Will you forgive the prodigal and allow me once more to belong to the Social Corner family? I am sorry for my long neglect in not writing to the Corner and will try to do better in the future.

Nonesopretty: Here is a very old fashioned suet pudding and a great favorite in my family.

Plain Suet Pudding: 1-2 pound flour with 1 rounding teaspoon of baking powder and ½ teaspoon of salt, sifted together. Add 1-4 pound of finely chopped beef suet, 3-4 cup of water. Steam 3 hours. Serve with hard sauce, made with granulated sugar, butter, vanilla and nutmeg grated on top.

Same recipe: Add 1 cup of raisins or 1 cup currants to make richer. Add both and 1-4 cup of chopped citron and lemon and orange peel, to make into plum pudding, add 2 eggs and half grape juice in place of all water and a little spice and a little more currants and raisins.

Graham Suet Pudding: 2 cups Graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 3 teaspoons of baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup raisins, 1 cup chopped suet, 1 cup water, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon allspice. Sift all dry ingredients together. Steam 3 hours. Serve with Foamy Sauce. You can change this recipe, leaving out 1 cup of Graham and using corn meal.

POEMS

Dear Social Corner Friends: In a recent number of Poetry magazine there was mention of a new volume of verse by the negro poet, Countee Cullen, the title being "The Black Christ and Other Poems," if I remember correctly. I have read some of this writer's poems in magazines and found them meritorious according to my judgment. I am wondering who is meant by the black Christ. If any of you who see this letter have read this poem, wont you kindly let me know as I fear this little volume is not likely to come my way. I am sending in a dainty poem, "The Reconciliation," which is appropriate for April which is now at hand. My first spring flowers are just opening. I am not sure of the name. The blossoms are yellow and single, the center being shaped something like a bell. Perhaps some one of you can tell me what these are. I hope so for I would really like to know by what name to call them.

Capricorn: Thanks for your letter. It was interesting and helpful. Welcome to our new members. You are needed to take the places of those who have passed on. With special greetings to the sick and shut-ins and best wishes to you all.
EVELINE BURR.

BERRY PIES

Dear Social Corner Friends: Spring is really here at last, and what joy we receive from the first flower we find. Think of the lovely pies we all can make with blueberries before long. Do you know how to make juicy pies?

I stick two or three pieces of uncooked macaroni in my juicy berry pies. It is great, as the juice bubbles up in these and then returns to the pie when it cools and there is none spilled in oven.

I am sending in a poem to go in the poetry column. It is a spring poem, and spring is what we are thinking of.

I want to thank Aries for the paper and I enjoyed her letters. What a smart woman she must be.

LIFE A GARDEN.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: In looking over one of the past Bulletins I saw the following motto at the top of the Corner page: "Life can be a garden but you must know how to weed." That is a good thought I think. We can make our life like a beautiful garden full of the blossoms of love, cheerfulness, happiness and service for others. If by weeding out selfishness, hatred, unkindness and all those bad weeds, we can have a lovely garden of life and one where others will be happy to spend with us. We must be cheerful and thoughtful in our kindness to our loved ones and those whom we meet on our way.

Even a cheery word or pleasant smile may help to make the way happy for some one who may be discouraged or disheartened. I remember one day while passing along a street I passed a poor man who had no legs, selling or trying to sell lead pencils. I gave him a small sum of money but told him I didn't care for the pencil. He told me he was so glad to see such a pleasant smile as it was seldom he ever saw anyone smile. How lovely to think the lovely spring is so near, bringing pretty birds and bulbs just springing up through the ground soon to be in blossom. Am enclosing a recipe for baked eggs which we enjoy very much.

Baked Eggs: Cover the bottom of a pan or baking dish with bread crumbs about one inch deep. Break in as many eggs as one wishes; cover very generously with grated cheese; add pepper and salt and dots of butter; cover with milk; put in the oven and bake until eggs are set and cheese melts. Serve hot. This is a very hearty dish.

Sympathy for all the shut-ins and those who are sick.

Silver Locks: How are you and why don't you write one of your letters? I spent one afternoon a while ago with a lovely lady and had a lively call with her. Well guess I must close now with best wishes for all the sisters. As ever. YELLOW DAISY.

HISTORICAL OLD BOSTON

Dear Social Corner Members: Many of the readers of the S. C. page are doubtless familiar with the old song, "I'm right from the mountains, just from Vermont; my visit to Boston I now recount, etc." I am not from Vermont but as a Connecticut Yankee and having recently returned from dear old Boston town will try and tell of some of the historical places I visited while there.

My party first passed the emancipation statue of Lincoln, breaking the chain of slavery from a Negro kneeling at his feet. The Crispus Attucks monument erected to the memory of a brave mulatto leader who was killed in the Boston massacre in 1770. Past the old custom house with its famous new tower and the famous Boston subway which was the first subway built in the U. S. The old state house from the balcony of which the Declaration of Independence was first read in Boston and from which it is read each Fourth of July by an honor pupil of the city high school. Boston Common, containing nearly 50 acres that was the scene of many activities during the Revolutionary war and where many Massachusetts regiments assembled before going to the Civil war.

On Beacon Street mall, opposite the state house stands the Shaw monument, by Augustus Saint Gaudens, that is a memorial to Colonel Robert G. Shaw and the colored 54th Mass. regiment. Next we come to the Old Granary Burial Ground, 1660, where can be found the graves of John Winthrop, Paul Revere, Samuel Adams, James Otis, the parents of Benjamin Franklin and many others famous in history. The Copp's Hill burying ground, dating from 1659, has the graves of many noted patriots, among them being Edmund Hartt, builder of the frigate constitution, Robert Newman, who hung the signal lanterns in the church tower April 18, 1775. Gravestones used as targets by British during seige still show bullet marks.

Our next stopping place was at Bunker Hill monument; but none of the party cared to climb its winding stairway of 294 steps.

At the Charlestown navy yard we were thrilled to see the frigate Constitution which is being reconditioned as nearly as possible with new material like the original. While it is not nearly completed it was rechristened and launched March 15th.

Another thriller was to see Christ church, (Old North church), dedicated 1723. From its steeple were displayed Paul Revere's signal lanterns, on that memorable night of April 18, 1775. Services are still held each Sabbath in this church. We went into the Paul Revere house and saw many of the original things that were in the home when he was living. It seems the house was one hundred years old when he bought it. Paul Revere had two wives and sixteen children so there are many of his descendants still living. The Boston Transcript building is on the site of Benjamin Franklin's birthplace and a tablet, telling the fact, is on the second story of the building.

Naturally we experience another thrill when we see the minute men at Concord Bridge and at once recall the familiar lines—

"By the rude bridge that spanned the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled;
There the embattled farmers stood
And fired the shot heard 'round the world."

There are many, many historical places in and around Boston but my letter is growing too long already and if any of the readers of this page visit Boston through the tercentenary celebration; as I presume many will, I do hope you revisit these places if you have seen them before and get the thrill I did.

I enjoy reading the S. C. letters and especially the anniversary letters. This is my first anniversary as a member and do enjoy the meetings very much. Hope to be at Putnam, March 27, with Club No. 4.

HANDSOME HOOKED RUG

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I attended the anniversary meeting in Willimantic, March 12th, and had a very pleasant time. It was such a good day that there was a large, jolly crowd, many of whom had to get up early and travel a long way. The workers deserve a good deal of credit for what they did that day, the "teacher" and "scholars" included.

If you wish to make a handsome hooked rug, get four sticks shorter than for quilting frame but fixed just the same with strips of ticking tacked on double to which the rug pattern is sewed with wrapping twine leaving two sticks so that they can be rolled when part is filled in. The boughten frames are more convenient and can be purchased with a hook and rug pattern at large department stores or of John E. Garrett, 381 Dudley street, Boston, Mass.

The prettiest patterns that I have seen are those for oval rugs. They can be finished as rectangular rugs if desired.

If an inch hem is basted all around on the burlap then the hooking done to this hem, the basting can be taken out and a hem turned back to the hooked part for finishing. No lining is necessary.

The loops should be left up on top about an inch high so that the top may be sheared making a softer looking rug. Very heavy rags should not be used as they do not give the fluffy look of thin cloth.

Iron clamps can be used for fastening the frame at the corners and the rug can be rolled when necessary keeping it taut in the frame. The work can be done while sitting if the frame is on four chairs.

It is best to get a lot of dyes before starting to hook, putting each color in a labelled paper bag or box. Pretty rags, cut fine, from six inches to a yard in length are necessary. I have sometimes made a hook by putting a large nail in a smooth handle and filing the right shape but you need a book for a pattern.

If there is anything about the work which you do not understand I would be glad to help you. ROSARY

A BUSY WOMAN.

Dear Corner Folks, One and All: Here is Ma of Green Gables. Once in a great while she comes out but honest to goodness my time has been taken up this winter with worrying about and taking care of the fires. Such winds as we have had and oh, how they do worry me. They tell me I am foolish but I just can't help it. Neighbors on both sides of us have had terrible chimney fires and it does frighten me dreadfully. Well it will be warm before many weeks then we won't need so many fires. I will be glad but then I'll be ready to worry about another winter and the fires.

I've seen two letters in the Corner from Johnny's Ma, and I am very sure she is a dear friend of mine. A while ago Pinky asked me how old I supposed those baby carriages were that were up in the attic at this house. I am sure I don't know but I should say a hundred or more. I am sure I don't know who Pinky is either. Make yourself known to me, if you please.

I have been busy most of the time this winter in spite of worry and stoves. I have pieced tops and bottoms of four bed quilts, big ones too, and we tied them and I have made eight dresses, some for myself and some for others and also made a few squash pies, 120 in all. Of course I didn't make them all at once; a few each week. My squashes are all gone now but I saved plenty of nice seeds to start some more this year. I can't bear to sit down and do nothing. I never could, so I made three tidies, crocheted them using odds and ends of bright cord and such like as I found around the house. I also used a great deal of small twine which is unraveled from the grain sacks as they are untied at the barn and they are good looking tidies too, and will wear for years. Also I've fixed cretonne curtains ready to put around in different places when we clean and curtains for the kitchen windows all are ready to hang when wanted. I also made several small pillows out of cotton left from the quilts and covered with pieces of cretonne that were left. "What did you do that for," you will say. Well, I will tell you. When it's time to sit outdoors they will be very handy to put on the doorstep or some place to sit on. Don't think I am bragging about how much I've done. I don't mean it that way, but as I had plenty of time I've done these things and as my grandmother used to say, "You had better be ready and not go, than to go and not be ready." I guess I am and always was ready in time for all things. I am never the last if I am not as young as I used to be.

Well I am to spend the day with Bug, this week, but I don't believe we will talk much; we surely won't say anything that will hurt anyone.

Rural Aunty is still visiting with her daughter. Glad she can go. She was tied up for many years.

Where, oh, where, are so many of the old writers: Nixie, Bluebird, Free Air, Rosa Lee and lots of others. You ought to write once in a while any way to show you are still living. A bit of verse runs through my head which I will send:

I am not as young as I used to be,
My brain seems dull as you can see,
But once in a while I take my pen
And as you read, you'll say then,
I'm sorry she found time to write,
It surely must have taken her all night
To write such a foolish mess of stuff,
It's surely using us quite a bit rough.

BRAN MUFFIN RECIPE

Dear Social Corner Members: I planned to go to last meeting of Club No. 6 and had intended to when duty called me elsewhere. I hope Sumac has forgiven me. I asked E. L. M. to state my position.

Well, girls, I am going to give a recipe for bran muffins, that's as near cake as I get, unless I go somewhere.

Bran Muffins: Sift 1 cup whole wheat flour with 3 teaspoons baking powder, add ½ teaspoon salt and add 2 cups bran. Dissolve 1 teaspoon soda in 1 teaspoon boiling water add 1½ cups thick sour milk and 1-4 cup Grandma's old fashioned molasses. Stir the liquid into dry ingredients, add 1-4 cup butter (melted), beat and bake in hot muffin pan 25 minutes.

Some day when I can get time I'll send another recipe. I think of all the ladies and my sympathy goes out to all who are ill and shut in and to those who have anniversaries that cast a shadow on their lives to all of those I quote "Behind the darkest cloud the sun doth shine."
PAWAKET (Club No. 4)

A BREATH OF THE SOUTH

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I have been busy and the time has gone faster than I had thought it possible. The weather is so warm it seems like July tonight and the view is fine from the roof. Early in the morning I hear the little mourning dove, and I always feel as though I must do something for it, such a plaintive cry. Then another says, "Pretty bird, pretty bird, pretty." That little throat is always bursting with song. Oh! I do love the mocking bird and his song is so varied. They try to outsing all the other birds and I think they do. I haven't heard a martin sing. It makes me feel bad when I think my poor little birds in the north haven't had any crumbs from me this winter, I shall try and make them extra happy next summer.

E. M. R. C.: I wonder what part of Florida you are in? Did you get to the Volusia County fair? I did, and it was much better than any fair I ever attended in the north.

Ann Tenna: Good for you; 100 letters in four years; that's a record.

Slow: I wish you were here this year instead of two years ago. There is a far better class of people down here. I haven't heard any profanity, hardly any tobacco used, no stealing or meddling with other people's business. But, by jingo, there are no middle-aged women down here; they are all young and all striving to make others happy.

Lonesome Pine: You are remembered here, too, your name is on a tree. I think of you every time I pass.

Marigold: I'm so glad to see your letter on the page again; hope your health is good this winter.

Chelsea: I enjoyed your letter on defense of middle-aged women very much, it is very good. I'm glad I'm a

FINAL HOUR OF STOCK MARKET SHOWED WHOLESALE SPECULATION FOR RISE

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—Wholesale speculation for the rise was resumed in the final hour of trading in today's stock market. Utility rail, amusement, motor and specialty issues were taken in blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares, and stock price indices generally recorded new high levels for the year at the close. Total sales aggregated 6,056,240 shares, the largest day's business since December, exceeding Wednesday's turnover by a narrow margin.

The vigorous outburst of buying closely resembled the wild bull rampage that burst upon the market in the late trading on Wednesday. The movement was highly selective and highly professional. Several shares moved against the upward trend, notably the mail order and merchandising shares. The oils were given a breathing spell. The rails were taken in hand for the first time in several weeks, and several were sent to new high levels for the year. The price index of 90 issues gained 3 1-16 points.

The market opened firm in response to the unexpected decline of $21,000,000 in weekly brokers loans, and moved irregularly higher during the early hours of trading. Considerable selling had to be absorbed, and trading quieted down until mid-afternoon, when the ticker caught up with trading. The selling appeared to have dried up, and with the session too well along to be in danger of attracting much profit taking before the close, the bull crowd swamped the trading floor with buying orders.

The day's news was not of a character to influence trading. The weekly business and trade reviews again reported gradual and irregular gains, pointing out that the seasonal upturn to be expected at this time had been retarded by the blizzard in the middle west. The surprising decrease in brokers loans, covering a period in which the index of 90 leading stocks gained nearly 8 points, and in which trading was in good volume, appeared to dominate speculative sentiment.

Among the more bullish theories offered was that investment trusts and other institutions had been withdrawing funds from the call loan market and buying stocks outright. Outright purchases of bonds from dealers by investors was also probably an important factor, in view of the large amount of new offerings of late. Call money continued firm today, renewing at 4 per cent, against 3 1-2 yesterday, and holding at that level, as about $50,000,000 in loans was called, presumably to meet week end and month end banking requirements.

American Telephone was a strong feature, rising more than 7 points to a new high for the year at 257 1-2, in response to predictions of an early offering of rights, and some gossip as to a vague possibility of segregating Western Electric through offering the stock as a dividend to A. T. & T. stockholders. Utilities more than recovered yesterday's losses, with the Electric Bond and Share group displaying conspicuous buoyancy. Electric Power and Light and National Power and Light rose more than 5 points to new 1930 highs.

General Electric was a feature of the industrials, rising more than 2 points to 83 3-8, a record level for the new stock. General Motors was sent up to 51 for the first time this year. Coca Cola was a buoyant issue, surging up more than 10 points to record levels. Low sugar prices are expected to increase its earnings this year. Hershey Chocolate, on the other hand, tumbled more than 4 points, as low prices for sugar and cocoa are rumored to have resulted in inventory losses, although they may help future earnings. Warner Bros. was an active and strong spot in the amusements, rising 3 points to above 80 for the first time. The movement in the rail issue was in the face of unsatisfactory February reports from most carriers, and based on better prospects later in the year, and expectations of favorable merger developments. Alleghany Corp., Chesapeake and Ohio, Chicago Great Western preferred, Wabash, Western Maryland and Kansas City Southern rose about 2 to 7 points to record 1930 prices.

In the merchandising group, Macy dropped about 5 points further to a new 1930 low at 132. Montgomery Ward sold off about 3 points to a new low for the present stock at 36 1-4, and Sears Roebuck sold off about 4 points to 82, only 2 points above the November minimum. Merchandise sales during the first quarter are understood to have been unsatisfactory. Another weak feature was Continental Baking A, which sagged 3 points to a new low for the year, also reflecting reports of a sharp shrinkage in sales.

Commodity markets were firmer. Wheat sold up about 2 cents, with a better market at Liverpool, and bullish weather and crop reports. Corn sold up about a cent, and cotton futures closed 10 cents a bale lower to 75 cents higher.

Leading foreign exchange rates rallied, sterling cables ruling 1-3 higher at $4.85 5-8.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—Prices on the New York Curb market moved irregularly higher today as chief speculative interest shifted back and forth between the public utilities and specialties. The market opened higher, consolidated its gains in the face of rather heavy profit-taking, and then spurted upward again in the last hour, with final quotations generally around the high levels of the day. The unexpected decrease of $21,000,000 in federal reserve brokers' loans was the principal bullish influence.

Electric Bond & Share continued its role of the leader of the public utility group by crossing 109 to a new high for the year, and a net gain of nearly 4 points. Tampa Electric soared 12 points to 90 and then dropped back to 85 but the turnover was small. Electric Power & Light warrants ran up 6 1-2 points to a new top at 65 1-2 and retained all but a point of the gain. Cities Service topped its previous high by a small fraction. American Gas & Electric, was one of the few soft spots.

Oils held fairly steady, Indian Territory Illuminating moving into new high ground in response to reports of an expansion of its natural gas pipe line facilities. Gulf, Humble and Vacuum closed fractionally lower. Eastern Gas Fuel touched a new high at 37 but the other natural gas stocks failed to make much progress because of heavy profit-taking.

Deere & Co. (new stock) jumped 8 1-2 points to a new high at 151 and then eased a point, while the old stock broke 15 points on a few sales. Fokker Aircraft, which advanced nearly 4 points to a new top at 32 7-8 and retained all but a fraction of its gain, was the leader of the airplane group. Hiram Walker came to life after a long period of inactivity, and established a new high at 11 1-2. Anglo Chilean Nitrate, Apex Manufacturing, Colt Patent Firearms, Holophane, Lane Bryant, Lefcourt Realty, National Screen Service, Newmont Mining, Standard Screw, Starrett Corporation issues, Translux Pictures and U. S. Radiator also reached new high ground.

Perfect Circle and Singer Manufacturing scored sharp advances and Safeway Stores second warrants broke 24 points in odd lot transactions.

Investment Trust and Trading corporation shares presented several points of strength as a result of the marked appreciation in their security holdings during the past month. American Equities, American Investors B, and Graymur established new highs while Goldman Sachs was marked up more than 2 points. Foremost Fabrics, National Steel and A. G. Smith were under selling pressure.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—Bond trading had a tendency to mark time today on the expectation that money rates would again ease with the turn of the month early next week. Liquidation of issues that had been heavily bought during the recent rise brought out declines in numerous rails, but buying orders elsewhere tended to even the declines and advances and the list was generally firm.

As in yesterday's session, the convertibles furnished the broadest moves. American Telephone 4 1-2s soared 6 3-4 points, scoring most of their gain in the final hour as the stock was rushed upward, and closing at 177 1-2. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s, heavily traded, touched 113, a new top, and closed 1 3-4 higher at 112 3-4. Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s rose about half a point, also on a large turnover. The volume in these three issues accounted for about $3,600,000 out of the day's total of $14,758,000.

Call money remained at 4 per cent, the renewal rate. There was an easier tone to 30 day loans, but the longer maturities were unchanged. United States government Liberties and Treasuries firmed appreciably on light dealings.

Rails affected by moderate selling included Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Soo Line 5 1-2s, Reading 4 1-2s, Western Maryland 4s, Union Pacific 4s and 4 1-2s, and Reading general 4 1-2s. On the other hand, such issues as Santa Fe general 4s, Rock Island 4s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, Northern Pacific prior lien 4s, Pennsylvania 4 3-4s and Consolidated 4s and Union first 4s made small gains.

Both issues of American Telephone debenture 5s displayed little resistance to offerings and averaged about 3-4 lower. Other high grade utilities, however, were well supported and the composite price for ten bonds of this description made a small advance. Industrials were steady. Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s, Goodyear Tire 5s, Reading Coal & Iron 5s and Sinclair Pipe Line 5s showed an upward trend.

Numerous Latin American bonds yielded a point or more. Brazil 6 1-2s, the Colombia bank issues, Chile Mortgage bank 6 3-4s, and San Paolo State 6s lost one to two. Belgium 7s of 1956 sagged 1 1-4, closing a point lower. There was another large turnover in British 4s which rose about 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, March 28—(AP)—Drought southwest brought about soaring prices today for wheat. Complaints of excessively dry weather came from Kansas and Oklahoma in particular, with reports current that unless general soaking rains were received farmers were in for a big disappointment as to yields from the 1930 harvest of domestic hard winter wheat. There were also advices that damage to soft winter wheat was showing up in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong at the day's top, 1 1-4-2 1-8c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 3-4-1 1-8c up, oats unchanged to 5-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7c.

Especially during the late transactions, wheat crop news relating to a wide sweep of wheat territory both west and east of the Mississippi became increasingly pessimistic. Outstanding as a feature was an official summary from Oklahoma which said rain now was needed urgently throughout the state. Under such circumstances and with word at hand that Roumania, one of the largest of European exporters, also was complaining of lack of moisture, the market here mounted steadily, showing itself sensitive as well as to something of a jump in today's closing prices at Liverpool.

Better buying on the part of millers at Liverpool was announced, and there were indications that some export business in domestic hard winter wheat had been done. Cables emphasized that European stocks of wheat were decreasing, and that apparently Argentina had little surplus wheat to ship. On the other hand, the hard freeze predicted for last night in part of the domestic winter crop belt failed to be fulfilled, and damage if any that resulted from low temperatures will only appear after wheat growth is further along.

Corn and oats followed the leadership of wheat, notwithstanding reported purchases of corn to come here from other terminal markets.

Despite downturns in hog values, provisions were somewhat firmer on account of scattered buying.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—May 108 3-4-7-8, 111 7-8; July 109 1-2-5-8, 109 1-2-5-8; Sept. 103 3-8-1-2, 111 3-8-1-2. Corn—May 83 5-8-3-4, 83 7-8; July 85 1-4, 86 3-4-7-8; Sept. 85 3-4, 87 1-8.

KOZIOL WINS WHEN BENDER HURTS ARM; KOP LOSES; PELOQUIN KAYOED

Norwich boys split even last night at Parish hall when Al Koziol won on a technical knockout from Freddie Bender of Fall River in the main go of the Shyma club card, and Johnny Kop lost a hairline verdict to Joe Barre of Fall River in the six-round preliminary. The near local boys got a 2 to 1 break, Tommy Hart of Taftville knocking out Young Corrica of Fall River in the third round of the opener and Lou Brouillard won a decisive victory over Mule Brown of New Haven in an eight rounder, while Rene Peloquin of Danielson was knocked out by Romeo Dubois of New Haven in the third round of another eight rounder.

There was plenty of action for the fight faithful who packed the hall to its capacity. Billy Taylor of Hartford refereed and gave one of the best exhibitions seen here in a long time.

Bender Wrenches Arm

The main bout ended very unsatisfactorily in the fourth round when Freddie Bender of Fall River wrenched his arm and Koziol was given the verdict on a technical knockout. The bout had all the earmarks of a boxing classic with the honors about even during the first three rounds. Bender showed more ability than any boxer that has met Koziol in a local ring to date. The Fall River boy was cool and collected all through the first three rounds and slugged with Koziol when the local boy wanted to slug. Bender peppered Koziol with left jabs in the first round and crossed a right to the stomach that took some of the aggressiveness out of the local youngster. The first round went to Bender, but Koziol evened matters in the second round with a right and left to the jaw that rocked Bender and had him a trifle dazed for a half minute. Bender fought his way out of danger. The third round was even with both boys taking plenty of punishment in the slugging in the center of the ring. It was in this round a second or two before the bell that Bender suffered the injury to the right arm. He swung a hard right at Koziol and the local boy blocked the blow with his arm, Bender's arm snapping at the elbow.

Bender went to his corner complaining of pain in the arm, which was hanging limp at his side. He answered the bell for the fourth and continued to fight, using his left while his right hung almost helpless at his side. After two and a half minutes of boxing the pain in Bender's arm became so intense that he was forced to quit and Referee Taylor awarded the bout to Koziol. Bender received a bad wrench and it is possible that he will find that he has some torn ligaments. A return match would be heartily welcome.

Brouillard Wins Over Brown

Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson whipped a tough colored boy in Mule Brown of New Haven in eight hard-fought rounds. Brouillard opened the bout strong by rocking Brown with a left to the jaw and then knocking him from his feet. Brown half slipped under the blow and was up before there was a count. Early in the second round Brouillard opened a cut on Brown's lip which bled freely throughout the remainder of the bout. Brown was a gory sight but he was not badly hurt and was able to stand Brouillard off in the second and third rounds. Brouillard took the fourth round by a good margin. From then on, Brouillard had the fight practically his own way and administered some stiff punishment to the colored boy.

Peloquin Knocked Out

Rene Peloquin, the Danielson Midget, was entirely outclassed by Romeo Dubois of New Haven for two rounds and then went down for the count of nine in the third round, to get up and be sent to his corner by Referee Taylor. Peloquin was no match for the clever Frenchman from New Haven, who kept Rene's head bobbing with left jabs. Dubois fought a cool and calculating bout with Peloquin missing frequently and taking stiff counter jolts. At the beginning of the third round there was little doubt as to the eventual outcome of the bout but the sudden termination was unlooked for. In a mix-up in the center of the ring, Dubois let drive a right uppercut that caught Peloquin flush on the chin. Peloquin pitched forward on his face and Taylor started the count. Peloquin in a daze managed to crawl to his feet at the count of nine and still dazed staggered toward his corner. Dubois followed him up and administered two hard rights and lefts to the stomach and Peloquin started to wilt. Referee Taylor then stepped in and stopped the bout with Peloquin practically out on his feet.

Kop Loses Tough Fight

Johnny Kop, local battler, lost a tough fight to Joe Barre of Fall River, conqueror of Al Koziol, by a scant margin. Barre was a tough boy who took all Kop had and came back for more. Barre marred his boxing by hitting on the breaks and was warned several times by the referee. Kop started like a whirlwind and carried off the first round by a big margin. The second round was even, as was the third. Kop fought hard in the fourth and had a slight edge but was pretty tired and his punches lacked the steam of the early sessions. Barre took the fifth by a slight shade but won the final session with a whirlwind finish. Kop looked the best in several months and a return match would not go bad at all.

Hart Kayoes Corrica

Tommy Hart, Taftville, substituting for Young Guoin who was unable to box because of an infected tooth, retained the honor of the village by knocking out Young Corrica of Fall River in the third round of the four-round opener. Hart fought a nice fight which was crammed full of action. After an even first round Hart started to get his blows home and Corrica was stopped. Continuing in the third, Hart tore into Corrica and about half-way through the round shot a right uppercut to the chin and Corrica pitched forward to be counted out.

The card was another of those filled with action and gave the fans plenty for their money. It was announced that the next card would be staged in four weeks.

"Jolly Three" Defeat Danielson

Before a crowd of over 250 spectators last night, the Jewett City "Jolly Three" got sweet revenge from the Bohemian club trio of Danielson by beating them 277 to 256. Many difficult shots were made during the games, which were generously applauded by the crowd. During the Arremony-Madon game, 15 balls were forfeited by the "Jolly Three" player on three consecutive scratches. However, the Jewett City team overcame this handicap to win the match by 21 balls. The teams have now won one match each and have decided to play the deciding match at Hickey's parlors in Norwich some night next week.

The members of the winning team were Arremony, Miller and Baker, and the Danielson team was composed of Madon, Coty and Robertson.

JIMMY McLARNIN WINS CLOSE VERDICT

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—The dynamite in Jimmy McLarnin's right hand failed to explode tonight and the clouting Celt from Vancouver, B. C., was forced to stage a rapid-fire finish to gain a close decision triumph over the hard-hitting Negro welterweight, young Jack Thompson of Oakland, California, in the ten-round feature of Madison Square Garden's fistic frolic.

Banged and battered, frequently outpunched and outboxed, McLarnin needed all his remarkable courage, generalship and skill to save himself from defeat at the hands of the slim, wiry Negro puncher. A rally in the last three rounds, when he outscored Thompson in a series of spectacular exchanges, enabled McLarnin to gain the unanimous verdict of Referee Jimmy Crowley and the two judges.

18,000 On Hand

A near capacity crowd of 18,000 was in an uproar throughout most of the fight. Although McLarnin was the popular favorite, Thompson's spectacular but also erratic work won the approval of the crowd and there was considerable booing when the Irish lad's hand was lifted in victory by Bellerin' Joe Humphries at the finish of the last furious rally.

On the Associated Press score sheet, McLarnin was given five rounds, Thompson three, with two rated even. The Irishman was given the first, third, fourth, eighth and ninth, Thompson the second, fifth and seventh, with the sixth and tenth registered even.

Thompson, wary and on the defensive at the start, gathered courage after weathering the first four rounds and had McLarnin in a bad way with a sensational, two-fisted drive in the fifth round. This was the most exciting round of the fight. Thompson forced Jimmy around the ring with short, jolting punches to the head, drew blood from the Irish lad's nose and had his opponent in a bad way. McLarnin, groggy and all but knocked from his feet, needed all his generalship to weather the storm. The Negro forced most of the fighting throughout the next two rounds but slowed down and McLarnin, seizing his advantages, again took command of the fight. The Irishman seldom was able to land solidly on the elusive, shifty Negro scrapper but he out-boxed and outsmarted Thompson at close range.

McLarnin Hits Low

A number of unintentional low lefts nearly proved McLarnin's undoing at the height of the most furious part of the fight. At least a half a dozen times in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, Jimmy's left landed inches below the belt line. He was warned three times by Referee Crowley. The crowd roared disapproval, but Thompson made no protest. They appeared glancing blows and did no damage.

Safely past the critical fifth round, McLarnin forged back into the lead in the eighth and ninth rounds with a well-executed attack. Even so, Jimmy did not seem to have his usual right-hand punch, whether it was because something was wrong with his hand or whether Thompson's clever blocking and dodging offset its effectiveness. The tenth and final round was a slugfest all the way. The crowd was on its feet as both slugged, toe to toe, in a rousing finish that left little to choose between them.

Thompson had a slight shade in the weights, scaling 143 1-2 to McLarnin's 142 1-2.

The official paid attendance was 16,789, the gross receipts, $77,868.21, and the net $65,139.71.

In the preliminaries, Joey Harrison, of New York, 147 1-2, gained a 10-round decision over Jack McCarthy, Chicago, 144 1-2; Johnny Ciccarelli, Brooklyn, 144 1-2, and Paddy Creedon, Jersey City, 142, fought to a draw in six rounds; Joey Marks, New York, 117, and Lew Paclon, Manila, 117, battled to a draw in four rounds.

NEW YORK, March 28—(AP)—An improvement in the insolvency record for the country was noted this week, with the total of 532 business failures reported to R. G. Dun & Co. This is 23 below last week's figure and 27 less than the 559 defaults of two weeks ago. A year ago this time 512 bankruptcies were reported.

The Motor Wheel Corp., has acquired the Cleveland Welding Co., manufacturers of tire rims. It is understood that about 50,000 shares of Motor Wheel stock were given in exchange for that of the Cleveland company.

Wall street heard today that the Peerless Motor Car Corp., of Cleveland, is negotiating for American rights to manufacture a front wheel drive automobile under patents held by a group of individuals in Europe. The process is believed to be of French design. No official confirmation or denial has been made.

The Copper and Brass Research association reports that the sales of brass and copper pipe tubing reached a new high total of 77,952,084 pounds during 1929, compared with 76,777,400 pounds in 1928. Sales in 1929 were said to be practically five times the amount sold in 1923.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing company has received an order for 2000 electric ranges from the quartermaster general of the army. The stoves will be installed in newly constructed quarters at posts throughout the country.

Orders for tires on the books of the large manufacturers in the Akron district were said to be satisfactory in private advices to members of the rubber exchange. While the total is not as large as the quantity ordered for spring delivery last year it will assure a steady rate of operations for some time to come, it was stated.

Susie Says

Sisters, if you go to boxing bouts don't go with your own husbands for they pay absolutely no attention to you.

And I'm speaking from personal experience and not repeating anything that anybody told me. Last night I went to those bouts up in Taftville with friend husband.

Honest to goodness folks I never knew he could be so dumb until I went there with him. By dumb I mean speechless, don't get me wrong.

I might as well have been talking to one of the ring posts as to him for all the attention he paid me. I says to him "What is the referee telling those boys when they stand there in the center of the ring?"

He don't hear me so I jab him and repeat the question. He gives me a dirty look and says, "Why he's telling them not to bite each other and if he catches either one kicking the other he'll throw him out." And you should have seen the disgusted look when I asks if they did that.

Now I like to talk at a boxing bout but he don't. I want to learn all I can about boxing and if he can't tell me I'm going with somebody who will. I ask him who's the favorites and he tells me it's not a beauty contest and there are no favorites. I supposed there was always favorites.

The way they cheered Sheik Leonard I sure thought he was the most popular man in the ring, although he didn't do any fighting. And when I says to hubby that I thought Mr. Leonard should bow and acknowledge the cheering hubby gives me the dirtiest look since we was married.

Seems like I couldn't say anything that was right. When I asks what was in the bottles they give to fighters he says it ought to be arsenic. I guess his boy must have been losing.

But he couldn't bother me any. I just kept asking questions. I was bound I was going to find out about the game. And when that colored boy started bleeding I asks him why don't they stop the bout, he says what for. And when I says so the doctor can fix it he just laughs. Ain't that like a man.

But I enjoyed the bouts just the same. I was sorry to see Johnny Kop lose after putting up such a nice battle. But I think Al Koziol was in for a boxing lesson if that Fall River boy hadn't hurt his arm. At least that's what my hubby said.

I was so sorry for the little Peloquin boy. It was too bad he got knocked goofy after trying so hard to win. But I liked his courage in trying to go on with the bout when he didn't know whether he was in a ring or in swimming.

But folks do you know the greatest fun I get is watching the managers and seconds of the boxers. They seem to feel every blow their boy gets and they take such good care of him. They tell him just what to do. If he's flat on his face in the ring they yell for him to get up. Afraid he'll catch cold probably.

There's one thing I would suggest to the management. They should furnish umbrellas, a bottle of cleaning fluid and a sponge to ringside spectators.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling local baseball of other years).

From Mystic has come a request for a game "played in the fall of 1889 between the Norwich Stars and Mystic, at Groton." We think we have it in the one printed today, which was played on Saturday, August 31, of that year at the Groton diamond and, horrors! the Stars were beaten 28 to 4. There were 14 two-base hits made by the two teams during the "game."

From the files we learn the following—"No game ever played in this section had created as much interest as the one on Sunday did. Every one at all interested in baseball had a desire to witness this game and pretty much every one did witness it."

Further quoting the files—"The steamer City of Lawrence left her wharf at 1:30 p. m. with nearly, if not quite, a thousand on board, bound for Groton Heights, and as she steamed down the river she was greeted with whistles galore from all points. When she came back at 7:30 p. m. she glided up to her wharf in so quiet and orderly a manner as to be unnoticed except by those waiting at the wharf.

"There were about 5,000 people on the grounds. The Mystics scored two runs in the first, but in their half the Stars slugged O'Neil for three runs, on two-baggers by Kane, Baker and Callahan and a single by Dougherty. They scored no more until the eighth when Moore hit for two bases and Murphy for a single, Moore scoring.

"In the second inning Callahan became wild and one after another the Mystics went to first on balls and when the agony ended the score stood 9 to 3 in favor of Mystic.

"Moore was put in to pitch in the third inning but the game was lost. It was the common opinion of those who stood at the backstop that "Our Dan" was not treated to the best judgment on balls and strikes."

FIRST ANNUAL SOUTHERN N. E. COURT TOURNEY AT PLAINFIELD TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, March 28—Twenty-one teams, the pick of eastern and central Connecticut and Rhode Island, will contest here Saturday for the southern New England title in the first annual championship conducted at the Plainfield Community house. LeRoy Dissinger, physical director of the Community association, is in charge of arrangements.

Teams are entered from Norwich, Providence, Peacedale, Bristol, Meriden, New Britain, Willimantic, Putnam, Danielson and other places and competition will start promptly at 10 o'clock. The games will be run off a half at a time, giving each pair a rest after it has played its first half, while another couple start off. The final game is slated to start at 10 p. m.

Norwich is well represented by the Army and Navy five, composed of members of the Y Seniors, of the past season, in addition to four players from the New London City league, Willie Dittmer, Jack Reeves, of the Sub Base, and Montgomery and McKelvie of the Altex. Aubrey Brown, Tommy Lynch, Enos Eccleston, Les Pingree and Ray Yerrington are the other boys to carry the Norwich banner.

The tourney is expected to draw packed galleries all day to the Community house. Although this is the first event of its kind to be staged here, the plans have been so perfected that there is expected to be not even the slightest hitch in the program. The officials will be from Conn. Aggies, with "Pop" Williams, well-known all-round athlete, in charge of the assignments.

It was announced Friday night that a silver loving cup 15½ inches high will be given to the winning team. To the runner-up will go a 12½ inch cup.

J. B. MARTIN BOOTERS MEET RANGERS SUNDAY

There is a treat in store for the soccer fans Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin field when the fast New London Rangers will furnish the opposition against the league-leading Velvetmen. As the league schedule is drawing to a close, the race for leadership is a nip and tuck affair, with only two points separating the first three teams.

There are bound to be some hard-fought games. The Rangers are coming to Taftville with a well-balanced team of experienced soccer players which includes a defense in Thornhill and Scheaffer hard to equal in this part of the state.

The Velvetmen, being anxious to garner the precious points, have altered there lineup and it will include F. Thompson and H. Seidel, who have reported in first-class condition after a lay-off of two weeks owing to leg injuries, so the team will be at full strength again. They will have a practice session this afternoon when all the players are expected to be on hand.

The team will probably take the field as follows: F. Orcutt, F. Thompson (capt.), E. Eccleston, E. Eriksen, A. Headon, H. Seidel, J. Houston, H. Decelles, G. Rohead, I. Archibald, B. Labenski, sub., I. Alexander. The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

CARNERA SLAPS ANOTHER DOWN IN 2 MINS., 18 SEC.

DENVER, Colo., March 28—(AP)—Primo Carnera's thirteenth knockout victim, Jack McAuliffe, of Detroit, fell before the giant Italian after two minutes and 18 seconds of fighting in a bout that was set for 10 rounds here tonight.

A short right across the chin sent McAuliffe to the canvas for the count. He landed partly outside the ring and made but slight effort to return.

McAuliffe started to carry the fight to the Italian giant but his efforts were short lived. Carnera easily got in with a short right uppercut and the thirteenth victim rolled over backwards. He took a count of nine before rising.

Another brief skirmish and the fight was over as Carnera crossed to the chin for the knockout.

A crowd of 6,500 paid approximately $15,000 for a glimpse at the huge bulk that is Carnera.

BIG ED WALSH PASSES FAIRLY GOOD DAY

MERIDEN, March 28—(AP)—A slight improvement was noted today in the condition of "Big Ed" Walsh, former Chicago White Sox pitching ace, who is seriously ill at the Meriden hospital after an operation Thursday for appendicitis and peritonitis.

Walsh passed a "fairly good day," it was reported at the hospital. Dr. I. S. Otis, his surgeon, said tonight that "everything is very satisfactory so far."

The former twirling star was stricken on Tuesday on route home from the south, where he has been visiting the training camps of the White Sox and New York Yankees, where his burly sons, "Young Ed" and Bob, are bidding for major league pitching assignments. Immediately after the operation, which disclosed a ruptured appendix and a case of peritonitis, only a slim thread of hope was held out for his recovery, but considerably more optimism was noted in the hospital reports tonight.

RUNYAN, 21 YEARS OLD, WINS NORTH AND SOUTH OPEN

PINEHURST, N. C., March 28—(AP)—With a large crowd bellowing about him and stampeding in his path, Paul Runyan, 21-year-old assistant professional from Bloomfield, N. J., today shot near perfect golf for two rounds to win the 28th annual North and South open golf tournament here.

The young shot-maker, who learned his tricks on the Concordia course in Little Rock, Ark., calmly pounded out rounds of 72 and 70 today to post the winning score of 291 and score a decisive victory over his more experienced rivals.

Runyan, with the exception of a bad second round when he soared to 77, shot steady near par golf throughout the gruelling contest. His four round scores of 72-77-72-70 show the consistency of his game.

The new champion started the final round tied with two veteran professionals and a stroke behind Whiffy Cox of Brooklyn, the three-quarter mark leader. He started matching perfect figures throughout the nine and cut loose with some brilliant shots on the home nine for a 70, while the veterans blew their lead in that nerve-wracking home stretch.

DANIELSON WILL RUN SHOW ON TUESDAY, APR. 8TH

Louis Peloquin, Danielson promoter, has announced that he will put on a six bout card at Danielson on Tuesday evening April 15th. On the card three local boys appear, Vic Darr, Mush Moriarty and Cowboy Mickey Flynn, who is now making his home in Norwich. Darr will go against Bonny Novak of the Sub Base; Moriarty will tackle Al Brouillard of Danielson, brother of Dynamite Lou; and Flynn goes against Billy Champaign of Worcester. Other bouts on the card are Big Boy Burlap vs. Rockey Knight of Boston, Alex Tourgin of New Haven vs Ero Peterson of Worcester; and Rene Peloquin of Danielson vs. Spike Minard of Holyoke, in a return engagement.

ATHLETICS DROP LIVELY GAME TO BOSTON BRAVES

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 28—(AP)—The champion Athletics ended their spring training in Fort Myers today, by dropping a lively 15 to 14 game to the Boston Braves. The victory gave the National leaguers their third straight win over the A's.

The Braves ran up 12 to 3 lead in the first three innings, the Athletics slowly whittling down the score until they were only a run behind after a stirring last inning rally. The Braves landed on Jack Quinn for their 12 runs in the first three innings. Bill Shores succeeded Quinn and gave up three runs in the last rounds.

Berger and Neun of Boston hit homers. Score:

Boston	444 012 000	15	19	1
Athletics	030 700 004	14	18	6

J. Cooney, Brown and Cronin; Quinn, Shores and Schang and Perkins.

YANKS SWAMP MOBILE IN EXHIBITION GAME

MOBILE, Ala., March 28—(AP)—The New York Yankees chalked up their seventh victory in 16 exhibition starts with a 11 to 1 triumph over Mobile of the Southern association today. Van Pelt and Gomez, sharing the work on the mound for the Yanks, held the minor leaguers to two hits, the latter blanking them in the final five rounds and striking out seven batters.

Score by innings:

New York	010 100 450	11	10	1
Mobile	010 000 000	1	2	6

Van Pelt, Gomez and Dickey; Brown, Roberts, Wilson and Hill, Sullivan.

DONOHUE ON N. B. A. BOARD TO INVESTIGATE CARNERA

CINCINNATI, March 28—(AP)—The National Boxing association gave warning today it may stop what it termed the one-round set-up knockout tour of Primo Carnera, immense Italian heavyweight, who has been making money by flooring allegedly inferior opponents.

Stanley M. Isaacs, N. B. A. president, said Carnera, rated as a first-class fighter and considered in many sources as a championship possibility, has been making a comedy of the American boxing game by insisting on contracts "where unqualified opponents have been sacrificed to his money-grabbing tactics."

Aroused because he says the foreign boxer consistently has refused to meet boxers of high rank, Isaacs said the situation called for immediate investigation and appointed a committee, headed by General John V. Clinnin, Chicago, to report findings to the public.

The committee also included Walter H. Liginer, Milwaukee, and Thomas E. Donohue, New London, Conn., and was authorized to recommend disciplinary action if facts justified that course. Isaacs said the invader may be barred from rings in N. B. A. territory if he continued picking unsuitable opponents. The N. B. A. controls boxing in 34 states.

General Clinnin telephoned Isaacs that he protested against George Trafton, Chicago boxing novice, being offered for Carnera to slaughter at Kansas City. Such a match Isaacs also said was a commercial and not a sporting affair.

Isaacs said the N. B. A. would take no action until the committee made its report.

BURLAP BEATS SHARKEY'S PROTEGE AT BOSTON

BOSTON, March 28—(AP)—Al Linzi, Italian lightweight, outpointed Mel Aragon of Peru here tonight in one of the Boston Garden's six-round preliminaries. The battle was close but Linzi piled up an early lead that the South American was unable to overcome. When the decision was announced the victor consoled his rival by kissing him on each cheek.

Jack McCarthy of Boston scored a two-round knockout over Jimmy Mantell of Boston; Big Boy Burlap of Westerly, R. I., outpointed Joe Vincha, Jack Sharkey's heavyweight protege, in four rounds, and Freddy Lattinzo of New York defeated Gene Rochon of Cambridge in a similar contest.

CANADIENS TAKE FIRST OF SERIES WITH RANGERS

MONTREAL, Que., March 28—(AP)—Les Canadiens of Montreal won the first game of their National Hockey league playoff series with the New York Rangers in a long drawn-out overtime contest, tonight, two goals to one. The game was the first of a best two out of three series, the winner of which will meet the Boston Bruins for the Stanley cup.

Friedman Takes Feature

BOSTON, March 28.—(AP)—Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, gave Joe Monte, of Brockton, a savage beating here tonight in the Boston Garden's feature ten-round bout. The Hebrew boxer battered Monte's head with a stiff two-fisted attack in each round and ended with seven of them to his credit. Two other sessions were even and Monte won the third with his heavy body punching. Friedman weighed 184 1-2, Monte 183.

Sonnenberg Wins

HARTFORD, March 28—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, recognized in some quarters as the world heavyweight wrestling champion, won two straight falls from Harry Mamas, of Springfield, tonight, the first in 46 minutes, three seconds and the second in eight minutes, 20 seconds. Sonnenberg won both falls with his famous flying tackle.

Carey to Captain Penn. Five

PRINCETON, N. J., March 28—(AP)—Paul Carey of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., today was elected captain of the Princeton basketball team for next season. Injuries made it impossible for Carey to win his letter on the court this season. He played only in a few of the early games.

George W. Newbaur, 70, of Bristol, Conn., died in Sarasota, Fla., yesterday. His body will be sent to Bristol for burial.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Eagle Lock Company, Terryville.

In America the art of lock making as applied to cabinet locks and trunk locks had its practical beginning in Terryville.

An Englishman named Stephen G. Bucknall came to this country in 1832 and after a short time in Watertown, Conn., sold out to Eli Terry, Jr., who continued the business in Terryville.

Soon afterward, the business was sold to Lewis, McKee & Co., a firm organized to make the purchase, and of which Mr. Terry was a member.

Limited mechanical equipment and a prejudice against the domestic product proved a severe handicap for the venture.

Subsequent developments brought into being the firms of Lewis & Gaylord, Lewis Lock company and others, but in 1854 these activities were co-ordinated in the formation of Eagle Lock company.

The business continued under that name, having grown steadily until the floor space in the manufacturing plant now aggregates over ten acres.

Sales headquarters are at 25 Warren street, New York city and the products of the company, in addition to the most complete lines of cabinet locks and trunk locks, include padlocks, night latches, wood screws, stove bolts, machine screws and special hardware.

The present officers are: E. H. Plumb, president; Geo. H. Burr, vice president; E. G. Plumb, vice president; C. W. Plumb, secretary; O. B. Hough, treasurer.

MAN NEARLY STRANGLED WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, March 28 — Nelson W. Wunder, 82, of 86 East Duval street, Philadelphia, narrowly escaped death by strangulation when his neck became caught between a door and the top of the automobile in which he was riding, in a collision at Pierce and High streets, Westerly, tonight. The machine in which Wunder was riding bumped one driven by Russell L. Slocum of Westerly and upset. Wunder's body was thrown out of the car, and as it turned over, his head became wedged in the door. He was slowly strangling to death when passing motorists went to the rescue and lifted the machine. Both of Wunder's jaws were broken, all his teeth knocked out and his face and head literally cut to ribbons. He is also believed to have suffered internal injuries. He was taken to the Westerly hospital.

Charles J. Simpson Jr., of 4509 North Gratz street, Philadelphia, who was driving the machine in which Wunder rode, escaped with slight cuts. Slocum was uninjured. Slocum and Simpson were taken to the Westerly police station by Officer Leroy Norman, but later were released. Both drivers told the police that they expected the other would stop as they approached the street intersection. The Philadelphia car was going north on High street and the Westerly car was going east on Pierce street.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Burton's Agency Sells Another

Mrs. Mary Speirs of Hollis, N. H., has sold her property in the town of Montville, consisting of a six room cottage, and 2 acres of land to Annie and Elisabeth Bergeron of Montville, who will occupy the same.

The sale was negotiated through the real estate agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Burton.

A new world's small-bore rifle record was established at Fresno, Cal., by Richard Hansen, seventeen-year-old high school cadet, when he hit 5,000 consecutive bullseyes in twenty-nine seconds less than twenty-four hours. Hansen's feat eclipsed by 500 bullseyes that hung up by Jack Bartram, also a Fresno high school cadet. Hansen started off firing at the rate of 160 shots in fifteen minutes and then taking a fifteen-minute rest. The last ten minutes found him with an increased speed to make, and in that time he fired 160 bullseyes, all of them clearly within the black circle.

Even with its SUPERIOR PERFORMANCE this new eight is economical to own

Few cars can equal the speed, pick-up and climbing ability made possible by the 85-horsepower engine of the New Oakland Eight. It is the most powerful used in any car of comparable size and weight, only racing cars excepted. But even with its superior performance, this car is inexpensive to own. Its first cost is very moderate. And its gasoline mileage equals that of many sixes of the same size. . . . Maintenance costs, too, are very low because parts are easily reached and the power plant is remarkably sound in basic design. Valves can be easily adjusted. Bearings are large, sturdy, interchangeable. A water recirculation system promotes greater engine efficiency. And full pressure lubrication assures positive oiling. . . . Oakland's Fisher bodies, too, are built to withstand extremely hard wear. The effect of all these features is not only to assure economy, but to keep the car's ultimate resale value high. . . . Come in. Let us point out the New Oakland Eight's many exceptional qualities. Then let us give you a demonstration, and you will realize how much you are offered in the car with superior performance.

The New Oakland Eight, $1045 and up, f. o. b. Pontiac, Michigan, plus delivery charges. Lovejoy Hydraulic Shock Absorbers included in list price. Bumpers, rear fender guards and spring covers extra. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

SOCIAL CORNER

mother-in-law and I shall never wreck any home, as I believe in living in your own if you have one. How is your friend this winter? You know who I mean. She was at the 1929-anniversary meeting. Oh! how I miss you all and I had to miss the 1930 anniversary. First one I have missed for years.

O. J. B.: How are you? I'm feeling better now and enjoying the beauties, birds, and blossoms; they are so sweet now.

Buddy: I haven't any letter yet.

Aries: Keep it up, you always bring a laugh. I have met people here from Pennsylvania, Ohio, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Virginia, New York, etc., all at church.

Snow Flake: I get to church every Sunday at the little church around the corner.

In January I saw thousands of acres of celery growing and miles of sweet peas and calendulas and the flame vine, a beautiful sight. Oh, what a beautiful world we live in if we would only be contented with our lot.

Sisters! Did you learn the poem in a Saturday paper recently, "The Very Fine Art of Forgetting." I'm putting it into my scrapbook. Many thanks, Mr. Editor, fine indeed.

Betsy Bobbett: I won't be home in time to plant many seeds this spring but you speak of Columbine seedlings. They don't winter kill. I'll have some and also the Chinese forget-me-nots. I used to have cleome and I don't think they reseed if I remember right.

Chauffeur: You have my heartfelt sympathy. We shall miss him passing by.

Foxglove: What has become of you? I hope you haven't gone to Europe unless it was to see friends or relatives. I didn't get that nice picture yet. I suppose you are busy: school is in. Don't get too tired to write. We want to hear from you. True Blue was glad to hear from you. I certainly miss you and my telephone.

M. I. G.: Glad you are well and able to write a good letter. But you didn't answer my question.

Well, I hope to see you all before very long, so will say bye, with best wishes for the shut-ins.

CANTERBURY BELL (Club No. 5).

A GOOD MOTTO

Dear Social Corner: Not long ago a sister wrote, "If you like a Social Corner sister's letter, write and say so." Did anyone say, "If you do not like it, say so"? When I read "By Jingo's" letter I thought someone has been hurt by an old lady gossiping and she is putting all old ladies in the same class. We are much alike, old folks and young ones, about 50-50, and we all love to talk. Years ago, when burnt work was the fad, we had the motto in very elaborate flowers and letters burnt on wood, "The highest culture is to speak no ill." Bee said, "That's a good motto for a Lee family." It was hung in our living room.

And for nearly 50 years it has kept its place. And it has helped so many times. When people began talking unkindly I could laugh and say, "That's the house motto, everybody notice, please," until it was a joke and it helped so much. I was reminded more than once myself. I am writing to say I liked Gertrude's letter. I thought it fine. I liked her, "Shucks! Such a person does not exist."

If someone told us, "You better die now. There's nothing for you to live for," would we be pleased or just mad? Gertrude says, "What's the yellow slip?" I think she should have one. She says age 55. I can go her 18 better and I am not old yet. I have just painted my sewing room. A man did the overhead work, I painted walls buff and with a sponge patted it all over with ivory white, with a smaller sponge dabbled it with blue. Put paint on a board and dipped sponge on it then on the wall. One quart of buff paint, one pint of white, and a tube of oil paint, cobalt blue, will do a good sized room, and it's such fun. Blue should be mixed with the white.

Sumac: I was sorry not to respond to your call. I have a cold or, I had better say, catarrh, which makes me hoarse when I talk.

Sis Hopkins: I like the verse at the end of your letter. It's laughter and loving that lightens the load.

Whispering Pines: I'll try your cake. I have a good one also, but guess the sister has enough. I like to try new things and have tried so many my sister says, "Why, when you know what's good, do you try another?" It was grand to have a running over page of letters.

I wish I knew more of the sisters, but as the little boy said of his friend from the oral school, I am dumb in my ears.

SUSANNA.

CAKE-BAKING HINTS

Dear Editor and Sisters: Attend to the regulation of the oven before mixing a cake. If the oven is too hot or not hot enough, the most carefully prepared dough may result in a failure.

When eggs are scarce and high in price try using one or two less in your favorite cake-batter, adding a scant teaspoonful of baking powder for each egg omitted.

Never disturb a cake by turning it about in the oven until it is done rising. If you do, it is likely to fall in the center.

A shallow pan of cold water set in the bottom of the oven will reduce the temperature, and will also keep layer cakes from rising to a peak in the center.

Sometimes a cake will scorch in spite of all efforts made to prevent it. Do not make matters worse by trying to ice over the burnt part. Remove it by rubbing a grater lightly over it, then apply the icing.

There are several ways of telling when a cake is thoroughly baked. It may be tested with a toothpick and if no dough adheres to the wood, the cake is ready to take from the oven. When a cake is done, it shrinks away from the side of the pan. If there is no mark left on the surface of a cake after touching it lightly with the finger, the baking process is complete.

To remove a cake from the pan, loosen the sides well with a knife, invert the pan and lay a wet cloth on the bottom. This will steam the cake loose. A better way is to cut a piece of tissue paper to fit the bottom of the pan, grease the paper and lay it in the pan before the dough is poured in. The cake will come out easily when the pan in inverted and the paper may be readily pulled off.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Montgomery-Ward Co. at Putnam

PUTNAM, March 28—The Putnam home of Montgomery Ward and Company, the largest department store in Windham county was inspected by a host of shoppers today at the informal opening. Among the scores of people who passed through the store at intervals during the day were numbers of visitors from other parts of the state. At the invitation of J. L. Griffin, manager of the new store, members of the Putnam chamber of commerce were escorted through the building on a tour of inspection this evening.

In showing a reporter through the store, Mr. Griffin pointed out some of the problems which the Ward company has solved. A new type of fixtures means that customers can handle and closely inspect any of the merchandise, thus being able to accurately judge the value and quality of any article. A preliminary trip of inspection through the store gives promise of a pleasant surprise for those who visit the establishment during Saturday's opening. Little worlds of interest fill the place from roof to basement, consisting of many departments with their new displays. An all-time force of local employes will include eight men and twenty-five women. For the opening day many more salespeople have been employed in order to give the anticipated crowd prompt service.

"We're firm believers in the motto, 'Advertising Pays'" says Mr. Griffin. "We certainly intend to advertise locally because only in this way can we keep the public and our customers constantly informed of the values and money saving opportunities in our store."

Mr. Griffin pointed out that the principle of advertising has been directly responsible for the success of Montgomery Ward & Co. The famous Ward catalogue is an outstanding example of a highly developed branch of advertising. Previous to Ward's entry into the retail store field, of course, the company's main method of selling its merchandise was through the catalogue. Pictures, photographs, and written description had to substitute for a display of the actual merchandise, which can now be inspected in the stores.

"Our police, now that the company has entered the retail store field, is to advertise mainly through the medium of newspaper columns. We have made very careful tests and have determined that newspaper advertising as a whole really does pay. It is very gratifying to be able to place our advertising in a newspaper of such high character, with a circulation covering the trade territory so completely.

"The advertising which we will run in The Bulletin will not only consist of regular and special merchandise features, but will also supplement the advertisements which appear in the National magazines," state Mr. Griffin.

Broadway Theatre

Deep, vibrant, thrilling with repressed emotion, varying with her many moods, changing with every expression of her wonderful eyes and mobile mouth, Greta Garbo's voice, heard for the first time in her initial talking picture "Anna Christie," starting today at the Broadway, will thrill and intrigue its hearers more than any of her many former exotic, but silent, roles has ever done. Shorn of the daring evening gowns and lacy negligees of her former characters, "the Garbo" depends solely on the sheer force of her acting and the dynamic quality of her amazingly sympathetic voice, in creating a character that will shine with added brilliance against the background of the lesser talking stars. The story of "Anna Christie," from the facile pen of Eugene O'Neil, master of realism, is that of a Swedish girl, "farmed out," when a tot to a Minnesota immigrant farmer, and growing up in the sordidness of poverty and deadly monotony, finally driving her to the one solace of jaded youth—temptation. Weary of it all, she journeys to New York, where her father is a barge captain. The rest and clean sea air, together with her father's quaint philosophy, work wonders with the mind-weary girl, when at the height of a terrific storm, she and her father, rescue a half-drowned bucko sailor. The love-hungry girl seizes at her poor crust of romance, and despite herself finds her cynicism destroyed by the first clean love she had ever known. Terrified at the thought of losing her new-found lover if he discovers her shady past, her frankness nearly destroys the idol she has erected, but in the end, true love triumphs and the two bits of human flotsam, storm-tossed on the sea of love, find safe haven at last. Garbo is superb, her supreme talent enhanced a thousand fold by her magnetic voice. Charles Bickford, the rugged young giant of "Dynamite," is a noisy, swaggering Irishman, salty and domineering, in the hit role of his stormy career. George Marion as the father, living again his original stage role in the legitimate presentation of the play, is human to a degree, with all a human's weaknesses, yet developing forgotten strength of character, almost too late. and Marie Dressler reaches the height of her many character roles as Marthy, the rum-swilling, but humorous, wharf rat. Tensely thrilling drama, with typically deft O'Neil touches of sly humor, and the vivid timbre of Garbo's voice offer a photoplay that has been "packing them in," in all the high-priced theatres. The added featurettes, besides the latest Paramount Sound news, include Mickey Mouse in "Plane Crazy," a "bouncing ball song," "Oh You Beautiful Doll," and "Belle of the Night," a miniature revue of torrid doings on the much-maligned Albany night boat.

GRETA GARBO

Palace Theatre.

Dramatic action, flashing from the clattering merry boards of a music hall stage into the red inferno of trench warfare, then back to a tense courtroom scene. That is the action of "Blaze o' Glory," the new spectacle in which Eddie Dowling and Betty Compson play star parts at the Palace theatre beginning today for a four days' run.

Here is the story: Eddie Williams is on trial for the murder of Carl Hummel, a German war veteran. Burke, his attorney pleads the unwritten law, but Williams frankly confesses the murder. It is a desperate case, but Burke determines to put the thing squarely up to the jury, to tell all the facts in an effort to save his client.

Williams, he tells them, was an actor who fought his way to the top of his profession, became a star of the Follies. Then came war, and despite the pleading of his sweetheart, Helen, he enlisted. Also he married her. Overseas, he became one of the best liked men in the outfit. Constantly he is called upon to sing and entertain the men. His humor and his songs help keep the war from becoming too unutterably drab.

In his first attack, Williams is wounded, but Christmas day finds him back in the trenches as a sharpshooter. His captain orders him to shoot a German who is trying to take in a bit of Christmas tree. He says he cannot see the German, so the captain calls him "yellow." Nevertheless, Williams does not shoot. That same morning during a gas attack, a wounded German crawls into Eddie's shellhole. It is the man whom he refused to kill. Once again the American saves the German's life by adjusting the man's gas mask. He fails to get his own mask on in time, and consequently is again sent to the hospital.

Back in the states goes Eddie, broken and sick, his voice gone. Eddie lives an aimless, bitter life. Choked with coughing he discovers that Hummel, the German whose life he saved twice, is in America, trying to take Helen away from him. When he sees her throw her arms around the man's neck he goes blindingly mad and shoots the man dead. But that is not the last of this surprising epic. There is another twist to the plot that makes this one of the most fascinating war sagas yet filmed.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT LENTEN DEVOTIONS FRIDAY

The regular Lenten devotions were observed Friday evening at St. Andrew's Episcopal church with a large attendance present. The services were in charge of the rector, Rev. E. J. Norris. The special Lenten speaker was Rev. J. Rees Jones, pastor of St. Auburn church, Danielson. Rev. Mr. Jones was former rector of St. Andrew's church, being succeeded by Rev. Norris. He took his topic from the fishing episode which occurred at Lake Gennesaret, particularly explaining the theme which is suggested by Saint Peter's answer to Christ's command to cast down the net for a draught. "We have toiled all night and caught nothing, never-the-less at thy word, I will cast the net." He also made a contrast between "night and nothing." Rev. Jones told his audience never to get discouraged, even though at the time everything seems to be as black as night.

Rev. Elbert E. Gates, general secretary of the Connecticut Baptist state convention, will occupy the pulpit at the Third Baptist church again on Sunday, March 30th. The Christian Endeavor will be held at 6:30 and a service conducted by the young people with an orchestra will be held at 7:30 Sunday evening.

The Ladies' Mission circle of the Third Baptist church held the monthly meeting in the chapel on Thursday afternoon with eleven members present. Mrs. James Spicer had charge of the program and after a short devotional period a business session was held. She also conducted a "quiz" from March "Missions" magazine. At 5:30 the members and a few friends sat down to a supper of meat loaf, escalloped potatoes, cabbage, relish, rolls, cake and coffee. Mrs. Elmer Mulkin was in charge of the supper. The next meeting and supper will be held the fourth Thursday in April, when election of officers will take place.

Surprise Birthday Party

Leroy Sebastian was tendered a very pleasant surprise party at his home recently in honor of his birthday. Numerous games were played by those present and Elsie Laycock won a prize for the largest list of words made in one game. Marilyn Lund won first prize in the peanut hunt and Lillian Hill won in the knife and peanut contest. Mr. Sebastian was the recipient of a number of gifts. A dainty luncheon was served by Miss Jennie Sebastian and Mrs. Matilda Haisch. Those present included, Lillian Hill, Winifred Haydon, Elsie Laycock, Marilyn Lund, Louise Haisch, Sophia Laremba, and Lee Quinley, Clayton Gallup, Richard Haisch, Chris Wanderlich and Leroy Sebastian.

An anniversary mass of requiem, the first for the soul of Patrick Kane, formerly of Roath street, was offered at St. Mary's Memorial church Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan with relatives and family friends present. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of the church organist, Mrs. Michael J. Farrell.

The Greeneville M. M. Sewing circle was entertained Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Harold Wickham on North Main street with a large class present. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles and lamp shading, which was followed by a social hour, with piano and vocal solos being features.

Refreshments were served consisting of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies, fruits, candies, ice cream and wafers and hot chocolate. The dining room was prettily decorated for the occasion in green and white. Mrs. Helgo Ericson and Mrs. Harry Richmond assisted the hostess in serving. The circle will be entertained next Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Alvin Barrows on Tyler avenue.

Mrs. Thomas Quilty has returned to her home at Hartford after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Keenan of 5th street.

FORECLOSURE SUITS IN STONINGTON AND MONTVILLE

Three suits asking foreclosure on property were filed Friday with Clerk John H. Walker of the superior court.

The Washington Trust company of Westerly seeks to foreclose on property located on the Westerly-Stonington highway in a suit against Lillian Brugger and Attorney George R. McKenna of Stonington. The plaintiff claims two mortgages totaling $6,000.

Raymond E. and Carrie V. Stillman of Stonington and the U. S. Bond and Mortgage corporation of Boston are made party defendants in a foreclosure action brought by the Washington Bank and Trust company of Westerly. The property is located at 80 Moss street, Stonington, and a mortgage of $1,800 is claimed.

The Chelsea Savings bank of this city wishes to foreclose on property in Montville on the old Norwich-New London turnpike in a suit against Joseph and Anna McNichols of Montville. A $1,900 mortgage is claimed. The papers say the Raymond & Alexander Lumber company of New London holds a mechanic's lien on the property for $600. Harry Heller of Montville has a $600 mortgage, the Thames Lumber company has an attachment for $150 and A. Krewasewski of Montville has an attachment for $50.

IN CITY COURT UNDER INFLUENCE OF LIQUOR

Upon the recommendation of City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy, the case of John Tennant, 53, of Greeneville, charged with breach of the peace, was continued to Saturday, when he was presented in the city court Friday morning. This action was taken because of the unfit condition of the accused and complainant, both of whom appeared in court under the influence of liquor. The accused was arrested Thursday evening after an alleged attack upon Leo Bozowski, a neighbor, who received a bad cut on the mouth and a discolored eye.

In court Bozowski explained that his unsteadiness was due to the severe beating he received. Tennant claimed that he and Bozowski were friends again and that the latter did not wish to prosecute him, after exhibiting a note written by Bozowski exonerating him of all criminal liability.

Old times in the third ward were revived Friday night when a Greeneville night, with an "old timers" dance, was given in the ball room of the Masonic temple, the invitation stating that it was given by the Greeneville Masons (incorpulated) under the auspices of the Masonic recreation committee. A gathering of over 300 filled the ball room for the evening and enjoyed themselves to the limit with such old favorites as Greeneville reels, Preston fancies and two steps, while the modern note was supplied by Madam Queen quadrilles and Ruby Taylor waltzes which borrowed their up-to-date titles from a certain well known radio team of comedians for whose period on the air eager millions watch nightly.

The old Union hall orchestra, with Prof. Bennett prompting, had seats on the stage, playing the old favorites while the professor called off, and the festivities began when First Selectman William S. Murray, with Mrs. Murray, led the grand march winding around the hall in intricate figures under the experienced leadership of the old third warder.

According to the invitation card, the Kingfish himself, Lou Geer, was master of ceremonies and had as his aides, Oatsie Stebbins, Chick Service, Mayor Zahn, Has Spalding, Red Arrow Toney, Doc Geer, Slim Prentice, Buck Murray, and Burley Kramer.

DR. DANFORTH IN FOURTH Y. M. C. A. LENTEN SERVICE

The Y. M. C. A. series of Friday noon lenten services is proving of real interest to a fine group of business men, who listen to the gifted speaker, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth of New London, with marked interest and attention. Dr. Danforth gave his fourth in the series this week. Herbert B. Cary, president of the Norwich Y. M. C. A., presided at the meeting. The hymn used was "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and Harry Hedley Smith, Y. M. C. A. state secretary, offered the prayer. The topic of the talk was, "The Tax Gatherers," and Dr. Danforth spoke in part as follows:

"It is very unreasonable for a man to expect the benefits of civilized society without paying taxes. And yet, he who would seek popularity seldom asks for the position of tax collector. Also, in the time of our Master, the man who gathered the taxes was the servant of an alien power, just, but by no means beloved. They were called publicans, and were classed with 'sinners.' This called them to the special attention of Christ, who came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance. The sinner knew he needed to repent. The man who thought himself righteous did not know even that.

"One morning, Matthew, the publican, was seated at the place where the tax was gathered. An honest man, he kept a record of the money he received. Fortunately for him, he kept no record of the insulting words and looks which he also received. He was just a plain and ordinary man. There was nothing heroic about him. And Jesus wanted just that sort of a man among his followers and friends. He would be humble and willing to work and to keep on doing his duty whatever people might say. Moreover he was accustomed to making records accurately. And we are indebted to him for the words of the Master as recorded in our first gospel which very naturally bears the name of Matthew. No wonder we honor that tax gatherer of the long ago.

"One day, in Jericho, Christ found another one. This one was up in a tree. He was there in order to see Jesus, and naturally Jesus could see him. And that supreme master of men called him to come down and receive him into his house. At once the man showed both justice and charity beyond the average, in offering restoration where it was due and gifts where they were needed. With the Saviour, salvation came to the house of that man. Many there were who objected to Christ because he ate with these publicans, but that did not keep him from doing it. And he told what he thought of them in a parable one day. Two men went up to the temple to pray; one a Pharisee and the other a publican. Alas, the first one just boasted before his maker. But the publican prayed God to be merciful to him a sinner. And he was the one to receive the blessing from God. Christ did not form his opinions of men from the opinions of others. He looked right into their hearts and knew what was in them. The result was not an opinion, but knowledge and love. And so He knows us and loves us too."

PROHIBITION TO FOREFRONT IN WASHINGTON THIS WEEK

House Judiciary Committee Will Consider Commissioner Wickersham's Recommendation to Allow U. S. Commissioners Handle Minor Liquor Cases—Senate Lobby Committee Is Preparing to Inquire Into the Activities of the Methodist Board of Temperance, the Anti-Saloon League and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—Doubt that legislation recommended by the law enforcement commission to broaden powers of the United States commissioners to handle minor liquor cases would bring about desired relief in congested federal courts was expressed today by Representative Christopherson, republican, South Dakota, who is sponsoring the measure in the house.

An increase in the number of federal judges in courts having crowded dockets, he said, would result in speeding up justice without congress becoming involved in a question of constitutionality by broadening the commissioners' powers.

Christopherson declared the judiciary committee was of a divided opinion on the bill, however, not only as to constitutionality but as to whether it would actually bring about relief in the federal courts.

The measure would provide that a federal judge review the report of the commissioner handling a case, and would give the defendant the right to ask for a trial by a jury.

The procedure under the Wickersham plan, Christopherson said might result in added court congestion and the subsequent delay in justice.

If the Wickersham recommendation were discarded, the South Dakotan added, the committee probably would recommend legislation to provide for additional judges in the districts where congestion is most acute, particularly in New York, Kentucky and in the District of Columbia.

"Appointment of additional federal judges," Christopherson continued, "should not be considered as a temporary expediency to meet the problem of handling prohibition cases, because the business in federal court is on the increase. Should the prohibition cases slacken, the continued growth in federal court business would keep busy the additional judges, who would be appointed for life time service."

The house judiciary committee will consider the commissioners bill Thursday, after the dry forces conclude the presentation on Wednesday of their witnesses in the prohibition hearings, which have been under way since January.

The prohibitionists plan to conclude their argument with F. Scott McBride, general secretary of the Anti-Saloon league, as the leading witness. After a two-week recess the judiciary committee will listen to rebuttal testimony from the wets. Pierre S. Du Pont, of Wilmington, Delaware, is again to take the stand for the advocates of repeal of the 18th amendment.

In the meantime, the senate lobby investigating committee is preparing to inquire into the activities of both wet and dry organizations, including the Methodist Board of Temperance, the Anti-Saloon league and the Association against the Prohibition Amendment. Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, plans to call John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, to inquire whether he has any connection with the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, who requested the senate lobby committee to look into the Methodist Board of Temperance and the Anti-Saloon league probably will be one of the first witnesses to be called.

Attorney General Mitchell is scheduled to appear before the senate judiciary committee within a few days to express his views on the Norris resolution calling for an investigation into prohibition enforcement.

A senate judiciary sub-committee will also open hearings this week on the Williamson bill to transfer prohibition enforcement from the treasury to the justice department.

250 CASES OF LIQUOR SEIZED IN DORCHESTER

BOSTON, March 30—(AP)—A squad of Boston officers early today arrested 10 men and seized 250 cases of liquor in the fog filled marshes of Dorchester bay tonight, and the crew of the coast guard patrol boat 139, seized in Provincetown, the auxiliary sloop Evelyne Ruth, of Pembroke, Me., alleged source of the 250 cases.

All day the harbor police and coast guard patrol boats searched the numberless inlets and bays around Boston harbor and Cape Cod for the fast sloop which made away after the seizure this morning.

When the coast guardsmen cornered her tonight at the town dock in Provincetown, the crew of three aboard sped up the main street of the town and escaped.

The ten men taken in the Dorchester bay marshes were charged by local authorities with keeping and exposing liquor and by federal authorities with conspiracy to violate the customs laws.

ENDEAVORING TO RESCUE 16 ENTOMBED MINERS

KETTLE ISLAND, Ky., March 30—(AP)—Although fearful that they fought for dead men, rescue squads worked ceaselessly today in their search through the dark reaches of the Pioneer Coal company mine here for 16 miners entombed by an explosion yesterday.

Fifteen hours of arduous and dangerous effort had brought them to within a thousand feet of the spot where they believe the trapped men would be found. Hope that the 16, all but one of whom left families outside, would be discovered alive had lessened steadily as the rescuers penetrated deeper into the corridors of the mine, and found with every foot of the advance that the air became fouler and more dangerous.

John Daniel, Kentucky state mine inspector, directed the squads. Under him was what experts at the mine called the finest assembly of skilled rescue men ever gathered for rescue efforts in this section.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., March 20—(AP)—With New York his ultimate goal, Captain Frank Hawks, noted trans-continental flyer, took off frim Lindbergh field here at 7:45 a. m., today on a proposed coast to coast glider-towing flight. Hawks piloted a cabin glider. It was towed by a single motored biplane piloted by J. D. Jernigan, Jr., San Diego aviator.

Two hours and 19 minutes after leaving San Diego the two ships landed at Yuma, Arizona, to refuel the biplane. After a half hour stay the two aviators took off again for Tucson, Ariz., their first overnight stop, 210 miles east.

Accompanying Jernigan in the plane is Wallace Franklin of Ann Arbor, Mich., brother of R. E. Franklin, University of Michigan professor and designer of the glider.

Hawks' craft was attached to Jernigan's ship with a 500 foot rope. Excursion Boat Was Rammed By Steamer

On the Columbia River, Oregon—Two Persons Were Killed — 12 Seriously Injured.

ST. HELENS, Ore., March 30.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and 12 injured seriously when the excursion boat Swan, returning to Vancouver, Wash., with 286 passengers from Longview, was rammed head-on off St. Helens on the Columbia river early today by the coastwise steamer Davenport. Four persons were missing and possibly were drowned. The dead:

Mrs. J. E. Hagedorn, Vancouver.

J. E. Larson, florist, Vancouver.

The missing:

Jack Mitchell, deck hand on the tug Dix.

Sergeant R. G. Anderson, bandman Seventh infantry, Vancouver barracks, home in Ohio.

Mrs. G. E. Lundy, Vancouver.

The river boat Swan, towed by the tug Dix, was en route to Vancouver from the dedication of the Longview bridge which spans the Columbia river. It left Vancouver early Saturday and after spending the day at the Longview festivities, began the return trip.

Darkness overtook the craft just after leaving Longview and the crash with the Davenport came without warning at the height of the merry-making aboard. A woman first saw the schooner and screamed. The Davenport's prow splintered the Swan's deck planking and threw dozens of persons who were leaning on the rails into the water.

The Davenport crew rescued most of those overboard. The pleasure boat drifted downstream, where it lodged on a sand bar. The tug sank.

Panic seized the 286 passengers aboard when the crash collapsed the forepart of the Swan. The barge took a sudden dangerous list and water washed over the lower deck. There was a mad scramble for the stairs to higher decks and many were trampled in the rush for safety. The tug Dix sank almost immediately, carrying Mitchell with it.

J., w[illegible]turbed the slumbers of a [illegible]on couple, led to the arrest [illegible]day at Keasbey, N. Early this morning, John H. McGill, deputy surveyor of the port of New York in charge of enforcement, received a telephone call from the bride, whose name he withheld, informing him that she and her husband were unable to sleep because of the noise of the trucks. She said the vehicles were driving toward the Raritan river.

An automobile full of inspectors immediately started from New York. As they were crossing the Victory bridge over the Raritan river in New Jersey a speeding motorboat shot by headed downstream. The inspectors left their car and followed, tracing the craft by her wake.

Revolvers in hand, they came upon the craft moored to a pier at Keasbey. Twenty men were unloading the cargo and a large covered van stood nearby ready to receive it.

The inspectors advanced to the attack just as a red warning light flashed on the pierhead. The boat shot away downstream with bullets striking her stern and the alleged rum runners on the shore scattered, but the inspectors managed to capture seven of them.

The liquor piled on the pier, was loaded into the waiting truck and brought here. Deputy Surveyor McGill said the cognac seized was of the highest quality taken in a raid by customs agents in several years.

TILSON LAUDS FIRST YEAR ACHIEVEMENTS OF HOOVER

Names As Major Legislative Proposals Recommended By the Chief Executive and Passed By Congress: $160,000,000 Tax Reduction Program, $500,000,000 Farm Relief Legislation, the $230,000,000 Public Building Act and $300,000,000 Good Roads Legislation—Declares These Facts Were Concealed In Public Review Given Out By Democratic Leaders.

WASHINGTON, March 30—(AP)—A charge that democratic leaders had concealed facts in discussing publicly the first year of President Hoover's administration was made today by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the republican leader.

In a statement issued through the republican national committee, Tilson said that "in the welter of discussion in which some of our democratic friends have been indulging there has been such a continuous concealment of the facts as to make it appear that there has been a studied effort at misrepresentation."

Tilson made the statement public shortly after leaving the white house Sunday where he has been convalescing since last Tuesday, following a severe attack of the grippe.

"So that the situation may be clarified," the republican leader said, "and the record kept straight, I list here some of the high lights of the legislative proposals recommended by President Hoover and passed by the congress."

The list consisted of six items: The $160,000,000 tax reduction program; the $500,000,000 farm relief legislation; the $230,000,000 public buildings program; the $300,000,000 good roads legislation; the act setting up a permanent federal radio commission and the reapportionment measure.

"Most of these measures have their direct reflection upon business conditions, and more especially tax reduction and the buildings and road bills," he said.

"These last two measures represent the government's own part of the very comprehensive program which President Hoover so promptly and energetically set about after the stock market crash last fall as a means of restoring confidence and alleviating unemployment in the country."

The building program would not only permit the government to proceed with housing itself throughout the country, Tilson said, but would "furnish employment to many thousands of skilled workers, and along with the construction program of public utilities and other private enterprise will continue to augment the improvement already noticeable in the employment situation."

After eight years of delay, Tilson said, the farm relief bill was passed last June along the lines recommended by President Hoover. He added:

"The legislation has already brought help and courage to agriculture. An illustration of the effective assistance of the farm board is able to render agriculture was shown by the prompt action of the board in the recent embryo wheat panic, which if left alone, might have precipitated a major disturbance in commodity prices generally."

The public roads bill would permit the states to extend road construction with greater federal aid, he said, and would be a move toward relieving unemployment. The radio and reapportionment measures were held up as outstanding accomplishments and Tilson cited the creation of the commission to study the policy toward Haiti as another.

Within a brief period, Tilson added, the Haitian commission had completed its study and President Hoover has proclaimed a new policy.

"Under this policy," the leader said, "there will be a gradual withdrawal of the marines from Haiti with United States intervention in Haitian affairs limited definitely to those activities for which provision is made for American assistance by treaty or by specific agreement between the two governments, and a complete withdrawal at the end of the treaty made in 1918, which expires in 1936."

Merideth and Isaac Duvall are each survived by a widow and three children. All the men are farmers in the county, and in the heart of the mammoth cave country and remote from a railroad or through highway.

JUMP FROM WINDOW FATAL TO ACTRESS ALLYN KING

NEW YORK, March 30—(AP)—Allyn King, southern beauty who became a Follies star, died in Bellevue hospital today from injuries suffered yesterday when she jumped from a window of her bedroom on the fifth floor of an apartment house. None of her relatives was at her bedside.

Miss King had suffered a nervous breakdown, relatives said, as a result of continued dieting to keep the slim figure demanded by the stage. She had been a patient in a private sanitarium at South Norwalk, Conn., for nearly three years. About 18 months ago she left the sanitarium apparently much improved, and resumed the study of voice, hoping to return to the stage.

The daughter of a physician in Winston-Salem, N. C., she went on the stage when she was 17. One of Ziegfeld's scouts found her singing in a cafe in New Haven, Conn., and she entered the "Follies of 1916." Her rise was rapid and she became prima donna in the "Follies of 192." She played the lead in "Florida Girl," "Ladies' Night," and "Out in the Night," a Chicago production. At the time of her breakdown she had a contract with the Shuberts.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 30.—Willimantic's oldest resident, Mrs. Susan Elizabeth Culver, who was born in Colchester, March 29, 1831, a daughter of William and Mary L. Chadwick Wilson, celebrated her 99th birthday at the home of her niece, Mrs. Loretta Oatley, of 457 Main street, Saturday. Mrs. Culver, who came to reside here with her family 77 years ago, has made her home with Mrs. Oatley for many years. THREE WINDHAM GRADUATES MAKE GOOD AT WORCESTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, March 30.—The excellent records of three graduates of Windham high school attending Worcester Polytechnic institute are reviewed in a letter of congratulation received by Principal Egbert A. Case of the high school from Dr. Z. W. Coombs of the institute. The records cover the first half year of the technical course and the students mentioned are Alder Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray P. Fuller of Hampton, Waldo Bass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Bass of this city, Allen Brownlee of South Willington. Fuller was one of only five in the whole freshman class who qualified for the highest honor group. His average was 93 in general chemistry and 92 in mathematics. Bass and Brownlee were listed among the 36 in another honor group. These boys were accepted at Worcester without entrance examinations because Windham high school is one of the approved schools which have the certificate privilege. Dr. Coombs writes: "These records are highly creditable, that of Fuller being especially so. Not one of the students received a condition, while, on the other hand, the average of all is good, I consider these records highly creditable to your school and I congratulate you on them."

A shift in the dates of the 50th anniversary celebration of St. Jean Baptiste society is announced by General Chairman Alexis Caisse from June 23 and 24 to June 18 to 21, to conform with the plans of the Community Reunion week for which elaborate plans are being made.

The change in dates was made at a suggestion of the general community week committee, of which Alexis Caisse and Edward E. Manseau of the society are members, Mr. Manseau having taken the matter up with the committee, relative to a possible change of dates. The 50th anniversary celebration of the society is planned to be one long to be remembered and should prove a notable feature of the community week activities.

The celebration will be in charge of the following general committee: Alexis Caisse, general chairman; Alphonse Chagnon, vice-chairman; Alderman Louis C. Vegiard, secretary; Fiorimond J. A continuance until next Thursday morning, under bonds of $200, was granted in police court Saturday morning in the case of Daniel Wack of 65 Elm street, arraigned on a technical charge of violating the liquor laws. The continuance was on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher and Wack was not put to plea. The arrest followed a search of Wack's home early Saturday morning by a squad of local police, who found some 62 gallons of alleged mash used in liquor making. A sample of two gallons of the stuff was taken and an analysis is being made to determine alcoholic content. Should the percentage of alcohol exceed the legal limit it is probable that Wack will be charged on three counts; Manufacture, keeping with intent to sell and reputation.

Another continuance, awaiting the recovery of Mrs. Euclide F. Ledoux from her injuries, was ordered Saturday in the reckless driving case of Claude Mathewson of this city.

A hearing was held in court chambers today on a bill for $1,800 from Paul Locrasto, clerk at the Hotel Hooker, for the care of the late George L. Wheeler, who resided there for some years. Mayor Walter R. King Saturday received a handsome basket of flowers from Mayor William Kunze of Minneapolis, Minn., extending greetings from that city to the people of Willimantic on the occasion of the opening of the 11th annual National Flower show in Minneapolis. The floral greetings were sent through a world-wide organization of 5,000 bonded members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, Inc., and the basket received by Mayor King was made up by William A. The home of Ralph Buell in Columbia, near Columbia lake, was considerably damaged by fire Saturday afternoon when hay stacked against the cellar foundation as insulation against cold weather became ignited from a grass fire. The blaze worked its way underneath the clapboards of the house and gave a force of volunteer firemen a hard fight before it was extinguished. The volunteers, summoned by telephone alarm, had to chop several holes in the outside walls to get at the flames. Engine company No. 1 of the local fire department was notified but was not called when the fire was declared under control.

Mrs. Adelaide DeMarchi, who conducts a Texaco gasoline filling station at the corner of Holbrook avenue and West Main street, reported to the police Saturday morning that during the night thieves had entered the station and stolen a quantity of cigarettes, tobacco, chewing gum, etc., valued at about $15. There was no currency secured. Working on the theory that the burglars may have been those who stole an automobile in Danielson Friday night, the police immediately began an investigation. A window was broken by the intruders, allowing the door to be unlocked from the inside. The interior of the station was ransacked.

The dining car at 948 Main street was sold Saturday by Francis Metcalf of Putnam and Adelard Gravel of Windham to Sam Scheinman of this city, who took immediate possession. Henry Sypher is to be manager of the business.

DANIELSON

STATE POLICE KEPT BUSY OVER THE WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, March 30—Sergeant George L. Gardner of the Danielson barracks was continuing an investigation of the theft at the week end from the coops of Lucy Pratt at Moosup pond of 80 chickens. Poultry thieves have been persistently active of late in territory ranging from hereabouts to the outskirts of Providence, and Rhode Island state troopers and Danielson state officers have been doing their best to catch them.

It has been quite definitely established that most of the chicken thieving is being done around 3 o'clock in the evening, and the suggestion has been made by the officers that owners of poultry should keep a careful look out on the coops at about that time.

Car Stolen Here

Two young men who stole a car owned by Leon Maynard of West Warwick, R. I., early Friday evening and involved it in an accident with a car owned by E. S. Kenney of Mechanicsville about 11:30 that night were trailed to Danielson by local state officers and then trace of them lost. Meanwhile they had stolen the car of Leonard P. Morrison of Hawkins street Danielson, from where Mr. Morrison had left the machine parked in the rear of the garage of the Putnam Buick Co., in Danielson. After the accident at Mechanicsville the young men asked a passing motorist for a ride and, it is understood, they were brought here. They evidently later returned to Danielson stole the Morrison car, which was carrying dealer's numbers. Up to this afternoon, though notice of the theft had been broadcast throughout the state, no trace of the machine had been found.

Causes Own Arrest

Henry Neff of Hampton had an experience last night. During the course of the evening he telephoned to Danielson for state officers to come to his place and clear up what he represented as a serious situation in which several men were carousing and could not be controlled. When the officers arrived there they found no men other than Neff himself, gloriously lit up and seeing many things that were not around. Neff practically procured his own arrest, for he was taken into custody and brought to the barracks here. He was released under bond today and will appear before Justice Oliver in Hampton Monday.

Investigate Robbery

Local state officers ranged up and down their territory from Thompson to Jewett City Saturday investigating many things, from the robbery of the safe in the office of the Jewett City Dairy company to automobile accidents in Thompson and Brooklyn. The officers also checked up many drivers, for registrations and operators' licenses, and ordered some court appearances where men were found to be driving cars without proper credentials. An arrest for an unusual reason, an operator driving a car without having his glasses on, was that of Ernest J. Barrette of North Grosvenordale. Barrette has an operator's license of limited nature, a stipulation being that he cannot operate unless wearing eye glasses. He was found driving without them yesterday, and neither did he have glasses on his person.

Auto Accident

A Marmon car owned by Mary Lillie of North Dartmouth, Mass., and another machine owned and operated by Robert Bethel of Wauregan were in collision in Brooklyn just before 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. No one was injured in the accident and the damage to the cars was minor. State Officer John Murphy, who was checking cars in Brooklyn at the time, investigated the accident. There were no arrests.

George Hazzard of Oxford was ordered on Saturday by a state officer to appear in a justice's court in Thompson Monday night, to face a and stole the Morrison car, which was way. His car had been in a collision with one driven by Alexander Plouff of Auburn, Mass.

When the trout fishing season opens two weeks from next Tuesday morning sportsmen will have the unusual treat of being able to fish Blackwell's brook through the towns of Canterbury and Brooklyn as a state-leased and heavily stocked stream. The brook by the opening of the season will have been stocked from its mouth and near where it enters the Quinebaug river in Canterbury to Fitzgerald's meadows in the western part of the town of Brooklyn, a distance of seven miles, it is approximated. Only adult trout are being released in this stream by the state, and all of them are of legal length.

Homer H. Judd, Bristol, representing the state fish and game commission in arranging the leasing rights declared at the week end that Blackwell's is one of the finest natural trout streams in Connecticut, surpassing in many ways any other state-leased stream in this part of the state. Stocking of the brook by the state has been underway for some time and will be continued during the present week. A patrolman already is working along the stream, building step-overs and keeping watch for any persons that might attempt to fish prior to the opening of the season.

PUTNAM

MRS. CHARLES BOVE DIES SUDDENLY AT HER HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, March 30—Mrs. Charles Bove, for many years a resident of this city, died suddenly Friday evening at her home on Main street, following a heart attack. She was in her 47th year. Mrs. Bove was the wife of Charles Bove, well known Putnam business man. Her death took place shortly before the evening meal Friday night, when she was stricken with an attack of heart disease and died before medical attention could be summoned. She was born in Castelgrande, Italy, Aug. 5, 1883, the daughter of Joseph and Lucia Georgio Rata. Mr. and Mrs. Bove came to this country about 25 years ago and made their home in this city since. Mrs. Bove is survived by her parents, her husband, and six children, Angelina, Joseph, Lucy, Dominick, Charles, Arthur and Rose, all of whom reside at home.

LARGE NUMBERS PAY VISIT TO NEW PUTNAM STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, March 30—This city took on the aspect of a metropolitan center Saturday as people arrived in droves in the business center to inspect for the first time, the modern department store of Montgomery-Ward and company. At ten o'clock, closing hour for the business houses, it was estimated by one authority the number who invaded the shopping district and toured about the four-story business block which is occupied in its entirety by the Chicago mail order firm had surpassed by many hundreds, the four thousand mark.

J. L. Griffin, manager of the Ward store, stated today that an actual count of the prospective buyers who visited the store on opening day was taken, but because of an existing regulation of the concern it is impossible to disclose the figures.

Mr. Griffin intimated that the opening day was a brilliant success and that all expectations of the company officials had been surpassed. Hundreds of people who were in Putnam Saturday were from various towns and cities in eastern Connecticut and southern Massachusetts. The beautiful new spring merchandise displayed at the new Ward store drew favorable comment from the crowds and scored many purchases, as the automatic change carriers which were operating incessantly to all departments during the day, showed.

All available parking space within a radius of a quarter of a mile in all directions from the trading center was taken at all hours. The municipal parking area on South Main street was jammed to the last available inch of space from noon time until late at night.

Not since the business booming pre-war days has Putnam seen such hosts of shoppers parading up and down its streets, visiting every store and spending freely—but nevertheless judiciously.

While the Montgomery-Ward company store today is the city's largest chain store, it has been admitted by contemporary merchants that the city's newest business house will be a boon to this city and the county at large.

Moderately encouraging prospects for a general improvement in industrial conditions in Putnam within the next few weeks are found in a survey of the various plants located in this city. This city has been admittedly affected by the business depression that has swept over the entire state during the past two seasons. However, the report that new looms are beeing added to the number already in operation at the silk manufacturing plant of M. Salzberg and company on South Meadow street is of especial interest to people of this city.

As soon as ordered stock arrives, the plant of the Putnam Spinners, Inc., successors to National Rhea company will be prepared to resume manufacturing activities that have been at a standstill since the termination of the bankruptcy proceedings of the former concern a month ago. Officials of the Belding Hemingway Silk company, with a large plant on Providence street, are optimistic as to the outlook for the summer months. At the foundry plant of Putnam and company on Mechanics street, a gradual revival of business activities is hoped for. In nearly every concern in the city where manufacturing is taking place, business leaders look for a spring pick-up which is expected to furnish the necessary impetus to carry business back to normal. Large numbers of workmen in Putnam and surrounding towns are temporarily out of work, but if the expected is brought about this problem will be immediately solved.

Because of the inability of Attorney Samuel B. Harvey to be present at a session of city court Saturday morning to plead in behalf of his client, George Beecher, Springfield man, who went on trial on charges of carrying concealed weapons and alleged assault upon an officer, the case was granted a continuance until Monday, April 7, when the defense counsel will be present. Beecher was gassed by state officers of Danielson barracks during a raid at the Bullard home on Killingly avenue, a month ago.

Hurt in Auto Crash

Julian Smolky, of Marlboro, this state, narrowly escaped serious injury and possible death this morning when a car in which he was a passenger collided with a tree on the left hand side of one of the intersecting streets at the four corners in the village of Abington. Smolky escaped with a few lacerations of the face and head and a severely bruised finger. He was given medical attention and later continued on his way.

The accident occurred shortly before noon. The car in which Smolky was riding was a Willys Knight sedan and was driven by Frank Wuresh, also of Marlboro. Approaching the corners from Phoenixville, the car was signaled by a highway flagman to make a left turn and follow the back road into Pomfret Center, instead of proceeding along the state road which is impassable because of the activities of a group of tree movers engaged in removing giant trees from various parts of the town to the Murray estate in lower Abington Village. Wuresh misinterpreted the signal of the flagman. Instead of slowing down to swing onto the old road, he speeded up and did not realize his mistake until too late, when he swerved sharply, hitting the giant elm squarely in the center. The crash reduced the beautiful automobile to a heap of wreckage. Aside from suffering a shake-up Wuresh was uninjured.

Rev. George J. Donahue, the retiring pastor of the church of the Holy Trinity at Pomfret and of the Sacred Heart church in West Thompson, delivered his farewell sermon to parishioners at both services today. Father Donahue will leave Pomfret on Wednesday, to take over his new pastoral duties at St. Mary's Memorial church, Norwich, to which position he was appointed two weeks ago by Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of Hartford. Every seat was occupied for the masses at both churches and the vestibules were jammed to the doorways by churchgoers from surrounding towns.

Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, for a number of years curate at St. Mary's Memorial church in Norwich, will succeed Father Donahue as pastor of Holy Trinity church this week. Father Coholan, the retiring pastor said, will celebrate his first mass at Pomfret on next Sunday, April 6.

Tree moving operations now under way at "Gwen Careg farm," country home of Mrs. T. Morris Murray in Abington are attracting much attention. In the country side, where giant trees have reposed for centuries, the careful work of tree experts, armed with scientifically designed motor driven apparatus have removed the czars of the forests to stately positions on the beautiful estate of the wealthy Boston woman. After the replanting work has been completed, an observer finds difficulty in recognizing the trees which have been transplanted. The main road between Abington and Pomfret was blocked today by the presence of a large tree which was carefully and slowly being removed to its new site.

The Camp Fire Girls observed the eighteenth anniversary by giving a party for the mothers, Friday evening, in the vestry of the First Congregational church, holding their birthday council fire and an Indian entertainment. Birthday honors were awarded the following girls: Marion Wilcox, Dorothy and Marjorie Mortimer, Frances Guild, Virginia Lewis, Mildred Walsh, Jenny Korab, Bernice Jeffers, who have fulfilled the requirements for 1930. National headquarters decided on Indian history as the birthday project by the group. This was started in January and has just been completed. The big chief requirement was to learn the history of that particular Indian tribe which inhabited this part of the country, that is Plainfield and vicinity, and tell what became of the tribe. The girls, as well as the guardian, did a great deal of research work, made many trips to libraries and finally communicated with the office of Indian affairs at Washington, D. C. and there got all the information. The birthday honor this year was a leather badge on which is depicted the Thunder Bird; over the bird beneath are the symbols for "thought" as they have been thinking about Indians. The thunder bird was chosen as it was a symbol used by every tribe in the country. Mrs. Ernest Wilde, of Central Village, gave a reading "Father Times." Indian songs were sung. Sandwiches, cakes and coffee were served. Miss Rose Beaudry, the guardian, was surprised when she was presented a birthday cake, a gift from the girls.

Dorothy Vallent, of Springfield, spent the week end with Mabel Muldoon.

She left the walk and so did he. The man still followed and passed them, and then turned around and watched the woman enter the house. WESTERLY

FIREMEN WORK TILL 12.15 SAVING HOUSE IN BETHEL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 30—Westerly fire whistle No. 32, was sounded about 9.30 p. m. Saturday, an out of the district call, for a tenement house fire in Bethel, just above Ashaway. The blaze started in the basementment of the mill house owned by the Stillwater Worsted Co., about the hot air furnace while the family of Antonio Vansello was asleep. When the fire was detected a hurried trip was made to the mill to secure fire extinguishers and then a line of fire hose was laid from a mill hydrant and a telephone call was sent for the Westerly firemen.

Assistant Engineers George McKenzie and Columbus Pasetti and the Ahrens-Fox motor pumper at first directed a stream from the booster tank into the partitions of the house in which holes were cut to head off the flames. This sent smoke pouring from the basement and it crept into the side walls of the frame house. By hard work the fire was put out but the firemen did not return to Westerly until 12.15 a. m. Sunday, waiting to be sure that all danger was past. So fierce were the flames that the floor was nearly burned through and after the booster tank was exhausted the motor pumper was hooked up with the mill hydrant, to supply additional water.

Acting Judge Clark Herbert P. Clark held a special session of Third district court on Saturday when a college student, Lester L. Harris, of Sparkhill, N. SMART DESIGNS FOR EASTER MORNING

The tailored spring ensemble in beige flannel, with matching blouse and hat (right), is smart for Easter wear, while the very latest mode is accentuated in the long flowing lines of the ensemble at left. The coat allows a dressy yoke frock to cling princess fashion under a straight wrap-around coat of silk-lined voile. The hat is of the finest hem. Chic for bridge and informal dinners is the gown (center) with embroidery arranged with sliver on black chiffon.

MODERN ESKIMO MAIDS HAVE ALL FLAPPER WILES

Alaskan Eskimo girls of today, such as chief's daughter (left) with baby carried in native fashion, and Eskimo school teacher (right) are as up-to-date as their American sisters.

SEATTLE, March 30 — (AP) — A beauty expert visiting Alaska would find it hard to distinguish between the Eskimo flapper and her sister in the states today.

Those who visualize the Eskimo maiden as a flat-nosed, swarthy, high cheek-boned miss who chews blubber would be surprised should they go to Alaska, says Jonathan H. Wagner, chief of the Alaska division of the United States education of the United States education office.

The pure blood Eskimo will be extinct in another 30 years, predict scientists who recently visited the far north, but that is nothing to worry about, says Wagner, whose headquarters are here.

The beauty that prevails among Eskimo girls is in no danger of vanishing, for the native population is increasing rather than dying out, he declares.

Accurate figures on the Eskimo population are difficult to obtain because of the assimilating process that is underway, but without regard to racial stock the number is growing from 3 to 5 per cent yearly, Wagner states.

Records kept by school teachers show that in every section of Alaska births exceeded deaths among the Eskimos last year.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Aiming to Please

There is probably nothing the little child craves more than his mother's approval. When his mother smiles at him his world is right and when she frowns it is wrong.

It is possible for a mother so to use her child's need for her approval that his daily existence becomes much too much a continuous aim to please her. He learns to do not so much the things which in themselves bring him satisfaction, but those which will bring him the approving smile and the word of praise.

The five-year-old girl who ostentatiously brought out the dustpan and brush and swept up the crumbs which had fallen from the tea table was surely not acting from her own motives. She was playing a part.

She was being mother's clever little helper and she performed her little act with a selfconscious air of virtue that would have made even the unobservant label her conduct counterfeit and priggish.

It is one thing really to wish to be helpful and quite another to wish to get praise for being helpful. The emphasis which we are likely to lay on our praise for doing the right thing may thus well lead to an unconscious hypocrisky in the little child.

In order to avoid this danger of bringing up a child who aims primarily to please we must see that we appreciate not only his doing what we desire but also his efforts to do things which have meaning only in terms of his own development. He should feel our approval not only of his clean hands and nicely brushed hair but also of his first attempts to use a hammer, to throw a ball, or to plant a garden.

WEEKEND COSTUMES WHICH REDUCE BAGGAGE

PARIS, March 30—(AP)—Weekend costumes which do their best to minimize baggage are an important phase of spring raiment.

The stylemakers recognize that there are many kinds of weekends and have ensembles for all types. The country-house Friday-to-Tuesday ensemble differs from the Saturday-to-Monday beach outfit.

The first has a basis of long coat and wraparound skirt. With the coat and skirt go a blouse and onepiece dress. All four pieces are constructed to be worn at the same time or separately.

Beach week-ends ensembles are the starting point for almost anything in styles.

Some of the prettiest and most practical have a top layer of three quarter or full length dark blue coat of nautical type. There is a matching skirt of the same material as the coat.

A short jacket, with or without sleeves is a third piece usually added. It is essential when the bottom layer of the week-end ensemble is a backless sunsuit or bathing maillot.

Another type of trick ensemble in evidence at fashionable dress houses is the silk summer suit which can be converted into an informal dinner costume by removal of a bolero jacket or a printed silk overskirt which is then used as a cape.

BEADS FOR BLOUSES WINTER PREDICTION

PARIS, March 30—(AP)— Forward looking style experts, having seen what's what for spring, are already prognosticating for autumn.

One of their prophesies is beaded blouses with winter suits. They base their statements on the quantities of beaded, or sequin covered evening dresses shown for spring and the tendency of some dressmakers to use beads as collar and cuff trimming on blouses and dresses.

The spangled and beaded evening dresses of this season are frankly shown for continental and South American women who have a preference for them for formal occasions.

CHIFFON 'KERCHIEFS TAKE LEADING ROLE

PARIS, March 30—(AP)—The widespread popularity of the white evening dress puts new importance on colored chiffon handkerchiefs.

Several dress houses show yard square chiffon 'kerchiefs of bright color, as an invariable accessory for evening.

Large plain colored chiffon squares or oblongs with the first name embroidered in one corner are the choice of many Parisians.

Among spring handkerchiefs are the double plain and printed chiffon models of an important house. They are two thicknesses lightly tacked at the center.

FRENCH WOMEN DARN MORE THAN U. S. SISTERS

MIAMI, March 30—(AP)—Independence of American women precludes consideration of darning and mending as a duty, believes Maj. Georges Thenault, French war flier.

On the other hand, the French wife sews for her husband without protest, but lacks the charm of the American girl, engendered as it is by her "spirit, freedom and independence," he said.

Major Thenault, who commanded the Lafayette ecadrille during the world war, now is air and military attache at the French embassy in Washington. He married an American girl, the former Miss Sarah Spencer, Chicago.

BANGS MAY BE BACK ON FOREHEADS SOON

PARIS, March 30 — (AP) — What Americans know as bangs and Europeans call a fringe are making an effort to be considered a revival in hair styles.

Famous women like the Duchess of York, the Countess de Noailles, Constance Talmadge and Colleen Moore long have shown the fringed forehead without creating a precedent.

It's only since some of the prettiest mannequins of Paris style salons chopped their hair across the front that fringes have registered.

KILLING BABY DAUGHTERS PUT UNDER BAN IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, March 30 — (AP) — Chinese parents residing in Shanghai who persist in following the old custom of drowning their baby daughters will be punished hereafter with imprisonment.

WIVES MUST AID HUSBANDS, AUSTRIAN WOMEN REMINDED

VIENNA, March 30—(AP)—Struggles for men's rights through their society "Justicia" have appealed to the Pope requesting him to have the clergy on every possible occasion call the attention of marreid women to their obligation to look after and support their husbands in the event they shall fall into misfortune, the president of the society, Herr Pfister, announced.

LINEN HATS MAY TAKE STRAWS' PLACE AT TIMES

PARIS, March 30—(AP)—Linen hats may develop into occasional substitutes for straw fov town wear. Colored linen hats and handbags had a smart vogue at Mediterranean resorts last winter. Dark colored linen hats as well as pastel and white models with linen brims and crowns were popular.

COLLARLESS COATS WIN PARIS FAVOR

PARIS, March 30—(AP)—Skirt and collarless coat ensembles are appearing on Parisians distiguished for taste in dress. Cape collars of blouses form a scarf worn outside the coat frequently.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Steam vegetables instead of boiling them, to retain their salts.

Mix cake batter with a large wooden spoon. It becomes light much sooner.

To keep cheese moist, wrap in a cloth which has been moistened in vinegar.

To clean oven-browned pie dishes, soak them in strong solution of borax and water.

Add a tablespoon of cream to roast beef or lamb gravy. It makes it a delicious brown.

To strike safety matches when the box is lost, strike them on the window pane or any piece of glass.

Steam the potatoes for 15 minutes before frying potato chips. This saves time and makes a crisper chip.

To clean the mica in stove doors, rub it with a soft flannel cloth dipped in equal parts of vinegar and cold water.

Get some of the gorgeous amaryllis bulbs for window display. They are sure bloomers and their culture is fool proof.

If your home is equipped with casement windows oil the hinges occasionally. This helps to prevent their rusting.

Moths can be routed by sprinkling the contents of closets and drawers with white cloves. Many consider this better than camphor or cedar.

When packing shoes away for the season, brush them very thoroughly and rub vaseline well into the leather. Then stuff paper into them to hold the shape, wrap and put away.

Try using an ordinary ten-cent cornpopper for washing vegetables of all kinds. It can be turned around several times in the water and when lifted out the vegetables will be bright and clean.

CLEAN WINDOWS.

Instead of using soap and water on windows, try using a cloth dipped in ammonia and whiting and then polish with a chamois.

FRESH FRUITS.

Salads made of seasonal fresh fruits and berries are much more tempting than those we can have all the year 'round.

TASTY RELISH.

One of the nicest relishes can be made with left-over sour cream used with sliced onion and sliced cucumbers and chopped hard-boiled eggs, seasoned with salt and pepper.

SOUR CREAM.

Sour cream should be cherished. It is superb as a dressing for cucumbers, makes cream cheese taste like fresh cottage cheese and used as a dressing over stuffed plums or other tart fruit salads cannot be excelled.

DRY LETTUCE.

When serving lettuce be sure that no water is on the leaves when French dressing is added. The water will spoil the dressing and the oil will not adhere to the lettuce. Do not put dressing on lettuce until it is to be served.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Use a saturated solution of boracic acid for an eye wash. It is a good antiseptic, and also can be used in powdered form on wounds without pain.

A good lotion for chapped hands is one part of aqua ammonia to two parts of glycerine. Add enough rosewater for a slight perfume.

The kind of food you eat is important in the care of the skin. Creams and lotions alone will not improve the condition of your skin. Eat plenty of green vegetables and fresh fruits. A certain amount of roughage is necessary. Chew your food well, and drink from six to eight glasses of water daily.

TO REMOVE SLIVER.

A sliver in the finger may be easily removed if the eye of a small darning needle is pressed close to the surface of the skin. Thread the sliver into the eye of the needle and press out the sliver.

HAVE YOU EVER—

Found your coat on the floor because it slipped from the hanger? Twist rubber bands around the hanger about two inches from the ends and your garments will not slip off.

Wondered how you can clean your black kid gloves? Just add a few drops of ink to a tablespoon of olive oil, apply with a feather and dry in the sun.

Mended a woolen garment with a raveling of the same material? If you do it carefully, the mending will scarcely show.

Thrown away a pack of cards because they were soiled? Next time dip a small sponge in spirits of camphor and rub lightly over the cards.

ALARM CLOCKS.

The kitchen alarm clock can be a little helper in the home. Set it for starting meals, for taking medicine, for taking in the laundry, going to market and other things you need to do at a certain time of day.

HOUSE EXTERIOR SHOULD AFFECT CURTAIN CHOICE

Since glass curtains make up part of the exterior effect of the house they should harmonize with its architectural character as well as with the color scheme of the interior.

If your house is a prim, tidy little colonial one, then use ruffled white tie-backs winter and summer, for nothing is more charming in such a house than these prim little curtains of spotless white.

If your house inclines to the English type of architecture, you'll probably find nothing quite so satisfactory as ecru net, for its sheerness hides none of the tracery of the tiny panes of the casement windows and its texture is formal enough for the woodwork and trim within.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

The skin of almost every kind of reptile is being made into trimmings for shoes and handbags. Lynx and badger with their slight markings of black appear on the white coat and the coat of light summer colors.

New slips are princess, so are nightgowns and teddies. The cut of all undergarments of the new mode reflect new styles.

An afternoon bag in beige pinseal envelope shape has a crystal ball for fastening with a big loop of the leather fastening over it.

The smart theme for runabout silk dresses for those with youthful figures is the peplum frock that has a flounce to its skirt to repeat the line of the peplum.

Flared packets give a swagger air to the spring suit. Many of these are not belted. They round their front closings, being slightly shorter in the front.

CANDY-STRIPES.

Candy-stick striped silks are voguish for silk blouses. They are apt to have very feminine necklines and fancy cuffs.

TWEED BAGS.

The newest bags of tweed are very large and have double handles of leather to match the leather trimmings. Of course it is smartest of all to have them in the tweed matching your suit, a not impossible feat considering the extensive range of tweeds in which these bags come.

HUGE POCKETS.

A spring coat shown at a recent fashion show is of beige camel's hair, belted at the normal waistline, with perfectly huge patch pockets on each side, bound in brown suede.

COATS FOR TOWN.

Town coats still show the marked vogue of black and to accentuate their formality of line and appearance they are trimmed in various ways with natural blue fox, a fur that has few equals in becomingness.

SUEDE SHOES AND BAGS.

Pastel colored shoes for southern wear are matched by capacious bags of the same material and come in such shades as dusty pink, pale blue, a delicate green and violet.

TWEED STRAW HAT FOR THE SPRING

Whether tweed patterns will influence the designs of straw hats is something which is particularly interesting to the woman planning her spring wardrobe. You who have enjoyed the tweed-knit turbans of this past winter will welcome the tweed straw hat which promises to be its successor. Germaine Page has created a delightful little toque in a tweed straw combining white, rust and brown.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Stir into the first suds in which cottons are washed a tablespoon of black pepper, of three tablespoonfuls of turpentine to prevent the colors from running.

Black felt can be cleaned by using a teaspoonful of ammonia mixed with a half cup of cold tea.

Silk stockings should be rinsed thoroughly in clear water and then given a final rinsing in water to which a little vinegar has been added. This prevents soap stains.

Clean fine lace by spreading it out on clean white paper and covering with calcined magnesia. Place another paper over it and place between the leaves of a book. Leave for about three days, then shake out the powder.

AMMONIA WASH.

If your rugs look dingy, try giving them a washing, right on the floor, of cloths wrung out of suds with a little ammonia in them.

DUST BRUSHES

Time-saving and absolutely marvelous dust removers are the short-handled, soft feather dusters, the size and pattern of ordinary hair brushes but with fluffy white feathers instead of hair.

LAUNDRY SOAP.

Laundry soap is a very handy article to have around on other days than blue Monday. Common laundry soap will make bureau drawers and windows which are inclined to stick work smoothly. Rubbed on a nail, it prevents the wood through which it is driven from splitting. Mixed with stove blacking, it lessens the labor of applying and improves results, and if rubbed under and around the finger nails before working with the blacking, the nails are easily cleaned.

CORDS.

Straighten out the cord on your electric iron, vacuum-cleaner or electric household appliance before putting it away and the cord will wear much longer.

SCRIM CURTAINS

Scrim or marquisette curtains may be made a rich cream color if dipped in warm water to which okra powder, in the proportion of one-half cup to a cup of boiling water, has been added.

PANELING.

Paneling in a room does not necessarily mean covering the four walls with it. Why not use a single panel as the only wall-paper in an entire room? This gives it the effect of a wall hanging or picture, and is especially attractive when the new scenic paper is used. In a dark, gloomy hall it gives an interest that is impossible to achieve by allover papering. If the windows are recessed, the alcove formed may be papered while the rest of the room is left plain. This gives a charming effect if plain-colored draperies are used next to some brightly patterned paper. An interesting feature is ceilings that are papered while the rest of the walls are plain. This can be overdone, however, if the paper is too dark and bold in pattern.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Ninety women hold offices in 56 counties in Montana.

Elizabeth Jeffs, policewoman of Erie, Pa., figured in on 278 arrests during the past year.

Women are now becoming honorary members of the G. A. R., so that they can keep records and books and help the war veterans at their regular meetings.

Women are taking the places of men as factory workers in Indiana, according to statistics of the women and children department of the state industrial board.

Eleven women in England are registered at the air ministry as owners of airplanes, but many more have a share in their husband's machines. Approximately 40 British women hold pilot's licenses.

Welding together various parts of airplanes is the occupation followed by Miss Amy Carter, of Hempstead, Long Island. She wears different colored goggles for work on different metals.

Confined to a wheel chair, Miss Myra Crab, of Fairbury, Neb., is a most unusual woman. She teaches social science in a high school, keeps her own bachelor girl apartment in order, manages an apartment house which she owns and takes an active part in community life.

TAR STAINS

If you get tar stains on your rugs or your auto upholstery, you can remove them by applying a mixture of equal parts of methylated spirits and ammonia.

BIB COLLAR

A white silk crepe shantung frock has a loose bib collar that points down in the front and buttons with pearl buttons up the back.

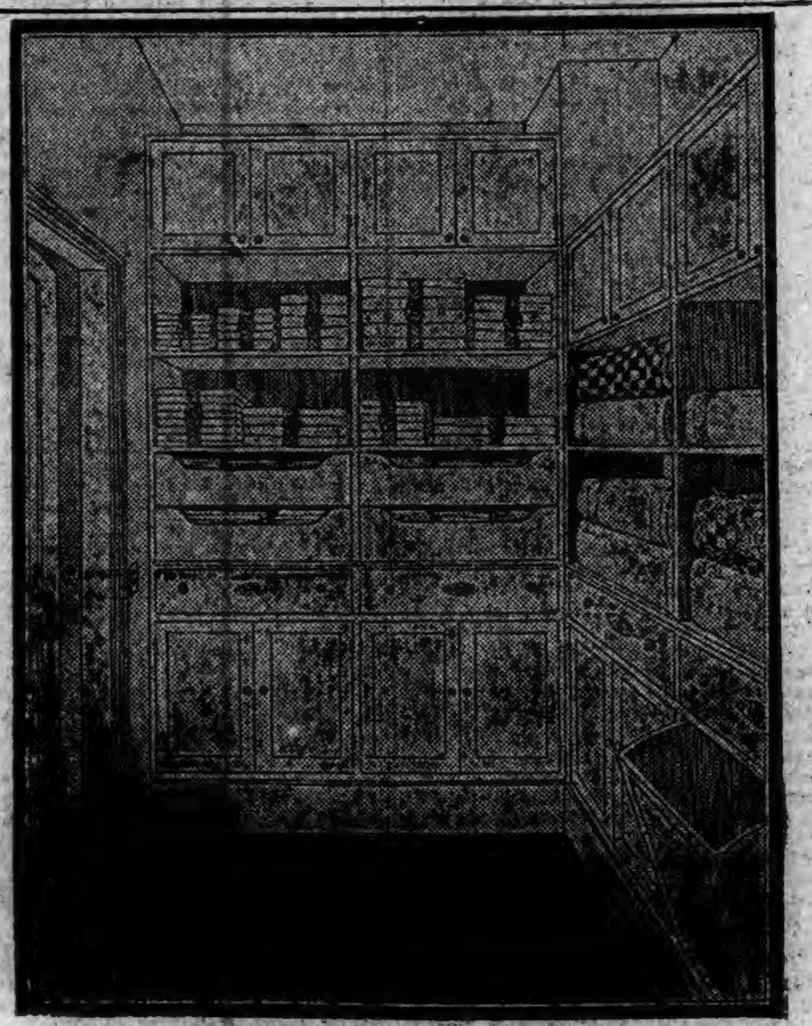
RECIPES.

Easy Pie Crust: Sift three cups of bread flour with two teaspoons of baking powder and one teaspoon of salt. Sift together three times. Cut into the ingredients three-quarters cup of boiling water to another three-quarters of lemon juice and one beaten egg yolk. Add this slowly to the dry ingredients and knead until smooth. Chill and roll.

Special Salmon Salad: Remove the skin and bone from one can of salmon. Cut into ½ inch cubes enough cold potatoes to make one cupful. Chop fine half a cup of hard-boiled eggs and add to the salmon and potatoes. Mix with some French dressing. When ready to serve moisten with any good boiled salad dressing and garnish with chopped pimentos, slices of hard-boiled eggs and sprays of parsley.

Oysters on Toast: Put one tablespoon of butter in a small saucepan and when hot add one teaspoon of dry flour. Stir until smooth and let it boil up once. Put 18 large oysters with their liquor into a hot oven for a few minutes, then add them to the cream. Season and pour over slices of hot buttered toast.

LINEN ROOM IS PART OF WELL-MANAGED HOUSE



For a New Home or One Re-modeled.

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

Every well-managed house has its well-kept linen closet.

And whether you're building a new home or remodeling the old, it's wise to provide for a linen room.

The design sketched here is suitable for incorporation into the plans of a new house, yet it's perfectly adaptable for doing over an extra closet.

Doors at the bottom open to disclose shelves which may serve a multitude of purposes, from storing old shoes to keeping new sheets. In the foreground of the sketch you will notice a bin that tilts outward. This niche, quick and easy to access, is perfect for those linens that need mending.

Above the doors are drawers which are excellent for keeping your fine linens free from dust or wrinkle. It is wise to make one long drawer in a section, painting it, for the sake of your design, to look like two. With such a drawer, your banquet table cloths and other linens that don't take to folding may be properly stored. Above these drawers on the right, large sections of shelves are made for storing blankets and quilts.

On the other side, however, two narrow shelves are made with partially built-up fronts. These keep your flat small pieces from sliding out. The shelves above are devoted to the larger linens—sheets and pillow-cases, towels and so on.

Gleaming linens have a natural beauty all their own, but you may add a chic touch by binding them in sets with ribbon bands. These you may easily make yourself from ribbon about two inches wide, sewing on snaps to hold it snug about the linens. A floral or modernistic motif, made also of ribbon, is centered over the fastened ends. A bit of lavender or dried rose leaves, sewed in the center of this ribbon flower, keeps your linens deliciously fragrant.

Of course, these ribbon bands are made in colors that harmonize correctly with your scheme. The tone of these bands may be repeated in silk pads which, placed smoothly on the bottom of each shelf, are further insurance against dust or splinters.

A most effective color scheme may be obtained by painting the closets jade green while the wall-space behind showing through the open shelves, is done in tomato red. In this case the ribbon bands and pads should repeat the gay red note, which sets off the snowy linens to advantage. City dwellers may enclose the open shelves behind long doors.

THE CONSULTATIVE PLAN

While the delegates at London are endeavoring to obtain an understanding, to reach a basis for agreement that will result in the reduction or limitation of naval armament, some uncertainty has prevailed in regard to the demand by France, that there be a security provision whereby it would be protected by other nations in case of war, and the responsibility that would fall upon this country thereunder.

Thus far there appears to be no prospect of the United States participating in such a pact. It is against the attitude which has been taken by this country toward European affairs. Naturally it would be expected that if France was to get security assurance from such an agreement as proposed by it, it would expect more backing than the sending of delegates to talk matters over in case of threatened trouble. Further, if there was such a discussion and plans of procedure were adopted thereat, wouldn't the participants be expected to give their backing to such policies?

What seems so innocent from a distance may easily prove highly bothersome and undesirable when put to a test. Just what the proposed pact is or what any of the modifications are remain for the present undisclosed. They are in the talking stage without any too definite knowledge of just what would be involved, but from the very name of security pact there is enough information given to arouse the suspicion that it is something in which we are not interested and to which we cannot be expected to give our support.

As matters stand, our delegates are not disposed to yield to the French idea. Naturally they must approach such a proposition with the idea of getting a thorough understanding of what the French want as the price of their participating in the naval agreement. This country is desirous that there should be a five-power agreement reached at London and is determined to exhaust every possible effort in that direction. Because it inquires about certain details, or the modification of proposals, doesn't necessarily mean that they will be approved. They are not going to swallow the hook and sinker along with the bait just because they are proffered. When it is indicated that the administration is not in favor of a consultative pact and is in complete harmony with the delegates, it is only what was to be expected.

THE VANDENBURG COMPROMISE

In an effort to reach a compromise between those who are demanding the flexible feature of the tariff with the authority resting in the president and those who are supporting the idea of having congress do the changing, the junior senator of Michigan has put forth the suggestion that the authority be divided. By that arrangement he would have congress act when it was in session, but the president would change the rates during adjournment of congress, but such changes as he made would be subject to review by congress if it desired, upon reassembling.

Senator Vandenburg failed to take into consideration the temperament of the present senate in making his suggestion. It is perfectly evident that his plan would provide for all occasions but it would do so only as far as it would be possible to curb those who would jump at such opportunities for political purposes. However conscientiously the president might act, after receiving the report of the tariff commission concerning any change in rates, it can be readily seen from the attitude that has been repeatedly manifested by the present senate that presidential sanction would be the signal for senatorial opposition on the part of a sufficient number and they would like nothing better than to batter it around as a political football. Furthermore, with congress in session during a campaign year, such a matter would be delayed and sidetracked if for no other reason than administrative embarrassment.

However much such an idea might please the present senate, for instance, it would not satisfy the country. It would simply contribute to that uncertainty which has prevailed for months in the present tariff struggle. It is the ability to get changes when it is manifest that changes are needed that has obtained so much favor for the flexible feature of the tariff. With the right of congress to open up any of the changes the president authorizes it does away with that finality. Those concerned in the rates involved wouldn't know where they stood until congress had put its stamp of approval upon it and that might not be for a year or so.

Thus, while the effort at a compromise may be sincere, the unfavorable possibilities are such that the plan cannot be looked upon with favor. It doesn't accomplish what is needed and desired.

ST. LAWRENCE DEVELOPMENT

For a decade or so efforts have been made to bring about an agreement between the United States and Canada for the development of the St. Lawrence waterway whereby it will be possible for ocean-going vessels to reach the Great Lakes. Those efforts have not succeeded though it is believed that progress has been made and that the day is nearer when the desired goal will be reached.

At the recent conference of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, Senator Allen of Kansas presented a heartening message to the effect that the agreement is nearer than ever, indicating not only enthusiasm on the part of the middle west in this country, which expects so much benefit therefrom, but a growing recognition on the part of the Canadians of its desirability.

This is a proposition which calls for the cooperation of the two countries. There have been obstacles put in the way in both countries, obstacles which are not insurmountable but which are taking time to remove. Although the surveys have shown that the carrying out of the St. Lawrence project can be accomplished for much less money than the construction of an all-American canal, there are many, especially in New York state, who have urged a canal across New York no matter what it cost. In Canada there has been an attitude of offishness, a feeling that it would not be particularly advantageous to that country to deepen the waterway, and an inclination to fight shy of such an agreement.

It has thus been necessary for the advocates of the project to go through the slow process of convincing the opponents that they are wrong. Senator Allen finds that they are making headway and it seems not improbable that with the completion of the canal on which Canada has been working, and which will be finished soon, another argument for the completion of the joint problem, which would permit big steamers to reach and leave the big lakes, will be advanced. When they get within a comparatively few miles of their goal the benefits of further development under joint expense should hasten the decision to come to terms and start work.

NO MORE LENIENCY

The return of the three convicts who made their escape from the state prison means that Connecticut will have an opportunity to stand guard over them for a long term of years, it means that they will be penalized, not only for the crimes for which they were sentenced, but for their escape from Wethersfield and it means that they will pass much longer times behind the bars than had previously been expected.

Opinions differ as to the wisdom of bringing them back to Connecticut for the punishment, but the fact that they didn't want to come back and desired to remain in Florida, where they probably considered the chances better for freedom in one way or another, indicates that they are not being pampered, however much the feeling may prevail that two of them have been undeservingly fortunate in escaping the gallows and the chair.

Having demonstrated their desperate character on more than one occasion, it is reasonably certain that they will not experience the advantages which were allowed them before their escape. They may have considered they were justified in taking advantage of the neglect that gave them the chance to escape, but they have not only called attention to conditions which were, and have since been remedied but they have made it much harder for themselves.

All Connecticut will be gratified that they have again been placed where they will not be a menace to the public, and even though the feeling prevails that they should never have had the opportunity to take the life of a second person there are good reasons for believing that they will be henceforth surrounded by such safeguards that it will be known where they are at all times. Having brought them back we must take good care to see that the leniency they have received doesn't permit them to roam further and kill more.

DEALING WITH HAITI

After their investigation into the Haitian situation the president's special commission is uncertain whether the Haitians are capable of self-government but it is believed that steps should be taken at once to train them so that they will be ready in time to handle the reins of government.

It is this course that the special commission has recommended in connection with the setting up of the new government, which is to be recognized by this country and to which a new civil minister is to be sent to replace the present high commissioner, who has represented this country in the island republic for the past eight years.

Conditions which made the sending of marines into Haiti necessary have not been eliminated. The commission indicates that none too much progress has been made in that direction. It is because of this that there is a question regarding the government which the Haitians might conduct, but if the situation is ever going to improve a serious start must be made and only by training can it be accomplished. Naturally the islanders look for an early withdrawal of the marines. Nothing would please this country more than to recall them today but, that being out of the question, the only thing to do is to so encourage the Haitians to grasp their own affairs that the marines can be gradually withdrawn in the shortest possible time. Likewise, it would be a happy solution if the Haitians displayed the ability to handle their own affairs at no distant date. That is not exactly anticipated even though it might be hoped for. With some definite plan of reaching such a goal and with the recommendations of the commission carried out by this government as well as the Haitians that republic has reason to be pleased with the turn of events.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It wouldn't be spring without some rain.

The man on the corner says: Bandits and robbers appreciate the freedom of this country.

Beating the Atlantic record by 18 minutes isn't much, but even that would be welcomed by the fellow suffering from mal de mer, nostalgia or love.

EILEEN'S ENLIGHTENMENT

The big clock on the wall in the office of the Clayton Steel company indicated the approaching hour of 5 o'clock Eileen Gordon's pretty head was bent over her desk as she cleared up a few remaining duties that Mr. Harl had asked her to finish.

As she worked she managed to keep an eye on the door which led into Mr. Harl's office. Bob was in there in conference. Bob Malvern was one of the junior executives in the traffic department. He had come from the New York office about six months ago. He seemed so lonesome at first that Eileen had felt sorry for him. One evening as they were leaving the office together he asked her to have dinner with him. She had refused, but suggested instead that he come out to her home for dinner, she and her mother lived alone.

The association had grown more pleasant for both of them summer and just a week ago Eileen had blushingly told her mother that she and Bob loved each other and hoped to get married soon, as soon, in fact, as Bob could get the promotion for which he was striving.

Tonight they were planning to stay downtown to look at furniture displays in the windows.

Eileen had finished her work now and was dreaming of the time when 5 o'clock would find her with a dainty apron on waiting for Bob to come home. How happy they would be.

Mr. Harl's door opened and Bob came out.

"Dearest," he said, "do you mind very much if we have to call off our date for tonight? Mr. Harl has asked me to go out to the mills in Hamilton. There is an important matter that must be handled tonight. I'm awfully sorry."

"I'm sorry, too, Bob," she replied, smiling at him. "But it makes me proud that Mr. Harl has confidence in you. I'll take mother to a show."

Mrs. Gordon and Eileen were on their way home from the show, which Eileen had not enjoyed very much. The theme was the disappointment suffered by a girl whose sweetheart had proved untrue. Eileen thought how fortunate she was to have some one as good and true as Bob.

Her thoughts were suddenly disturbed by a taxicab that almost splashed mud on them as it pulled up and stopped at the curb. The door opened and Eileens' heart sank. For there was Bob, and with him Eileen recognized a girl from the office, Miss Price.

"Eileen," cried Bob. But Eileen took her mother's arm and they hurried by without a word.

"Come on, Bob. Let's go on. In while the music is good," they heard Miss Price call out in a gay voice.

Eileen thought that she would never go to sleep that night. She felt that she could never bear the office again and decided to resign next day.

The next morning as soon as she had opened Mr. Harl's mail for him she took it in.

"Mr. Harl," she said, "I am going to leave. Could you arrange for some one to take my place at once?"

"I will be sorry to lose you, Miss Gordon," replied Mr. Harl. "I wonder if you would take one letter for me before you go." A faint smile played about his face. She got her book.

"Letter to the president of the company, Mr. Clayton, at the New York office," Mr. Harl dictated. "Dear Mr. Clayton: This will let you know that Mr. Robert Malvern was successful in the secret mission with which he was intrusted. As we suspected, Miss Price had been planted in our office by one of our rivals to learn some business secrets in connection with our proposed consolidation.

"At considerable personal sacrifice Mr. Malvern followed our instructions. He gained her confidence and got the whole story. He reported to me this morning. I believe he will be glad to learn of your recent instructions to make him assistant manager of this office. Yours very truly."

Mr. Harl took his hat and left the office. As he walked out Bob came in.

"Oh, Bob!" cried Eileen through her tears. "Can you forgive me for doubting you? But I'm so happy now."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 30—When there got into senate proceedings, kindness of Senator Connally of Texas, a letter by Charles Francis Adams on the tariff written more than 20 years ago, naturally everybody thought Secretary Adams of the Hoover cabinet family was the writer.

In the light of statements therein about tariff "thieves" and tariff "hogs," even that volunteer senate spokesman for the Hoover administration, Allen of Kansas, was disturbed.

"Friendly as I am to the administration, I had a feeling that the president should have known his Adamses better," the Kansan said, when he finally got around to it.

Flourishing Tree

So Senator Allen engaged in a personal investigation of that flourishing Adams family tree, looking up possible free traders. John Adams, second president, was "the first protective tariff leaguer, the spiritual forebear of Reed, Smoot and Grundy," he announced.

"Continuing the Adams saga," he added, he had found John Quincy Adams, fourth president, at his best in support of the protective tariff theory.

Of the tariff views of the first Charles Francis Adams, son of John Quincy and minister to Paris in 1861, there was no record. The senatorial researcher was a little disturbed, however, to find one of the three sons of the first Charles Francis, John Quincy Adams, second, a democratic vice-presidential candidate against the ticket headed by Horace Greeley.

Not until he arrived at Charles Francis Adams, second, third son of Charles Francis the first, did the senator gain real light on that terribly blunt letter about tariff hogs attributed to the present naval secretary, who is absent and the London naval pow-wow and unable to defend himself. Charles Francis, No. 2, he found, however, died in 1915 after having been president of the Union Pacific railroad and it was his departure from the high tariff fold, according to Allen, which had kicked up the fuss.

Normal Affections

"This expression (as to hogs, thieves, etc.) was uttered by him 22 years ago and was in reference to the tariff bill pending at that time," Senator Allen declared. "I merely present the facts in order that we may have in the Record the exculpation of the secretary of the navy.

"And having exculpated him, I ask unanimous consent that the president of the United States be restored to the normal affections of his body until something else comes up that will give his opponents here another opportunity to assail him."

Senator Connally had not sponsored the rumor that Charles Francis Adams, No. 3, was author of the "tariff swine" letter. He merely put in a piece from a New York paper, itself saying there was an "outside chance" the writer might have been some other Adams.

And the Adams family tree does get a bit confusing, it's so full of John Quincys and Charles Francises. It needs an Allen to figure it all out.

YOUR HEALTH

The Diagnosis of Health

By William R. P. Emerson, M. D., Boston.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The word "health" is generally accepted as meaning a condition of the body free from disease. Physicians and laymen alike are absorbed in the diagnosis of disease but we have an equal need to determine by accurate health diagnosis just how well we are.

As a working basis one may grade his health by comparing it with the average as excellent, fair plus, fair, fair minus, and poor. It is safe to say that if you rate your health as anything less than excellent it can be improved and a higher rating obtained by the simple procedure of finding the cause or causes of your impaired health and removing them, because there is a strong force in nature that constantly makes for health. Why be satisfied with 75 to 80 per cent of health when it is entirely possible to enjoy 90 to 100 per cent?

The signs of physical condition are as follows:

Signs of physical fitness: Glow of health (Color good). (Eyes clear). Expression of face: happiness and well-being. Hair smooth and lustrous. Teeth good. Skin clear, firm. Muscles: good tone, flesh firm. Posture erect, suggesting power and endurance. Gait alert, full of life. Correct weight for height. Outdoor-minded. Normal reactions, good physical and mental stability.

Signs of physical unfitness: Lack of glow of health (Color: poor). (Eyes dull). Expression of face: drawn, lines under eyes. Hair rough and dry. Teeth defective. Skin not clear, loose. Muscles soft, flesh flabby. Fatigue posture, suggesting debility and weakness. Gait slow, dragging. Obese or underweight. Indoor-minded. Reactions exaggerated or subnormal; physical and mental instability.

How few persons have the glow of health, and how many look old at middle life! Perhaps the most reliable single gauge of physical fitness is proper weight for height. We should determine what weight is best, attain this weight, and continue it throughout life.

In order to determine causes of impaired health we should ask ourselves the questions that have to do with the essentials of health. Your answers to these questions determine your health intelligence, that is, the amount of health knowledge you apply to your own living. The average person will find he has from five to seven faulty health habits, the results of which register in impaired health—physical unfitness.

The steps, then, necessary to take for improving health and efficiency are: First, to have a physical examination in order that removable physical defects may be corrected; second, to check up faulty health habits and remove them; third, to attain optimum weight; and, fourth, to reorganize our work and play in such manner that the highest degree of health may be maintained.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Prohibition

Mr. Editor: Please allow me a short space in your valuable paper to say a few words on the most discussed question of the day, namely, prohibition. Some of the witnesses who favor the 18th amendment, testified before the committee that the people were more prosperous now than 10 years ago, with millions of people out of work and unable to get a day's work. Is that prosperity? Reading one of the New York dailies a short time ago I saw a picture of a strong robust man applying at one of the society's rooms for a hand out of a bun and cup of coffee. Is that a sign of prosperity? It reminds me of a story told about Dean Swift and his servant. Putting up at a public place for dinner the dean told his servant to put the horse out where there was plenty to eat. Coming back the dean asked him if he had done as he was bid: "Oh, yes, master," replied the servant, "there is grass up to his belly." The dean went out to see this wonderful place. True enough, there was the horse standing with grass up to his belly but its head was tied in a pile of stone. There are millions of the common people of today whose heads are tied in the stones while all about them is plenty but they can not get any of it.

Another witness testified she never saw any drinking on the Yale campus, but in a recent poll of the institution there were about 71 per cent who wanted the 18th amendment changed. Then again the drys point to the fact of having such a large majority in congress but they do not tell the people that a large number of them go around with a bottle of water on their shoulder and a bottle of whiskey in their pocket.

They have not unravelled the great trunk mystery of last winter yet, but they found a goat so that is all settled. And Daniels says we should have 100 years' test in order to give it a fair trial. If he were conducting his private business and after ten years it proved a failure would he say I will carry it along for 90 years more? Oh, yes, but on the other hand just think of the money this country would have at the end of a 100 years, 3,000 billions of dollars! But he neglected to tell the people that the bootleggers and undertakers would have the biggest part of it. Then again the drys claim the 18th amendment is not responsible for the great crime wave that is sweeping the country. Who created the bootlegger? The 18th amendment.

Who created the night clubs? The 18th amendment.

Who granted a new lease of life to the road houses? The 18th amendment?

If there were no bootleggers there would be no bootleggers' war.

The drys had a witness from Canada to tell the people of this country what a failure government control was in that country. Then the head of the government comes right back and informs the people that the system of government control is most satisfactory. Mr. Wickersham claims the enforcement conditions are improving and in the next breath wants more agents. As conditions improve more agents are needed. Now, who pays this vast army of agents? Is it the people or is it the Anti-Saloon league? Certainly it is the Anti-Saloon league that controls them. If they want this question settled right let the people say at the next election whether they want it or not, then the people will have some respect for the law.

"The Evil of Brooding"

SCRIPTURE: Memory Verse: "Work out your own salvation" (Philippians 2:12).

Read: Philippians 2:12-18.

MEDITATION: Work it out! Brooding over trouble is the surest way to hatch a new brood of troubles, or to increase the size of the existing brood. We can rear troubles as we can rear children and chickens. Attention enough will make bugaboos out of bagatelles. Trouble will die of neglect and inattention. Courage to keep at helpful tasks will help one to gain the mastery of trouble and to prevent it from building a nest in one's mind. Work is one of God's handmaids.

PRAYER: O Thou who dost lift up the heavy hearts of men, keep us from vain and wasteful brooding over our troubles and losses. May we hear Thy bidding of good cheer and have the grace to keep our minds at peace amid all the labors and conflicts of our lives. Amen.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Prickly Porky Gets Across

Some talents that we little guess
Our humblest neighbors may possess.
—Paddy the Beaver.

Prickly Porky the Porcupine was resting on the roof of Paddy the Beaver's house. He had been swimming across Paddy's pond. Paddy hadn't known just what to make of it. He hadn't known that Prickly Porky could swim. Having discovered that Prickly Porky could swim, he became fearful that Prickly Porky might also be able to dive and he certainly didn't want Prickly Porky inside his house.

"If that fello wever got inside our house, we'd just have to move out, said he to Mrs. Paddy. So it was a great relief to both Paddy and Mrs. Paddy, to be told by Prickly Porky that he couldn't dive at all and that he wasn't interested in the inside of their house. All he wanted was to rest on that roof.

"Rest as long as you want to, Brother Porky," said Paddy the Beaver, trying to be very polite. "Rest just as long as you want to."

Prickly Porky merely grunted. He was not nearly so polite as Paddy the Beaver. He shook himself and when he did that several of the little spears he carries in his coat fell out. No one noticed this. Probably no one would have thought anything about it if they had noticed it. Finally Prickly Porky slipped into the water and once more headed for the other shore. Paddy the Beaver watched him. Prickly Porky certainly was a funny sight as he swam. What Paddy didn't know was that all those little spears in Prickly Porky's coat were filled with air. Each little spear, or quill, as we call it, is hollow and, of course, being hollow, contains air. So Prickly Porky couldn't have sunk if he wanted to. Those quills all helped to keep him afloat.

Prickly Porky took his time. He never does hurry anyway, whether on land or in the water. He paddled slowly along. He really isn't much of a swimmer, but he gets there just the same. Finally he approached the other shore. As it happened, Yowler the Bobcat had just come down to that very place for a drink. Of course, he saw Prickly Porky coming, but he didn't recognize him. No, sir, he didn't recognize Prickly Porky.

"I wonder," said Yowler to himself, "who that is coming ashore here. I came down here to get a drink, but it looks to me as if I shall get both a drink and a dinner. Now I think of it, I am hungry." He crouched flat beside an old log and his yellow eyes gleamed with hunger and anticipation. He drew his hindfeet under him ready to spring the instant this fellow came out of the water.

Prickly Porky was resting on the roof of Paddy the Beaver's house

Prickly Porky reached shore. As he started to walk out of the water he raised those quills and shook himself. The water flew and the quills rattled. Yowler the Bobcat had been just ready to spring. Instead, however, he snarled as only Yowler can. He had recognized Prickly Porky and he had no desire to have anything to do with him. It was a bitter disappointment. Yes, sir, it was a bitter disappointment. To hear him spit and snarl you would have thought that he blamed Prickly Porky for being himself.

Prickly Porky merely grunted, poked his head under a log—the very log beside which Yowler had been crouching—set his thousand little spears on end and waited. Yowler looked at him in disgust. Then, with such dignity as he could muster, he turned and walked away. He had quite forgotten that he had come down there for a drink.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

As Buck Duane, outlaw by circumstance, George O'Brien spurns fate and man-made terrors for a woman's smile in "The Lone Star Ranger," Fox Movietone all-talking romance, adapted from Zane Grey's widely read novel, which opened at the Breed theatre last night.

Sue Carol, who portrays the feminine lead, furnishes the heart appeal, and the combination of O'Brien, Grey and Miss Carol is a happy one. It provides a distinct treat in the first real "Western" to be transferred to the audible screen.

Few pictures ever made, silent or all talking, ever presented many more thrills, so much spectacular action and entrancing a romance. The story deals with the stirring adventures of the daring Texas Rangers in the days when the west was wild and wooly. A delightful love story threads its way through the unfolding of the plot and the climax is simply immense.

The title role was made for O'Brien and he gives one of the best performances of his career, which is saying a great deal when one recalls his various successes.

Supporting the principals are several prominent actors, notably Walter McGrail, Warren Hymer and Elizabeth Patterson. A. F. Erickson's direction is sure and finished.

Tonight is "Personal Night" at the Breed. Every lady attending will receive free a piece of personal vanity-ware.

Broadway Theatre

With bated breath the audiences at the Broadway Saturday and Sunday waited for the opening of Greta Garbo's newest photoplay, "Anna Christie," from the pen of Eugene O'Neil, whose stage version of the story is still a sensation. Impatient to hear the long-guarded voice of the exotic Swedish star, their every expectation was more than satisfied when the deep vibrant tones of Garbo's rich voice sounded from the screen! The story is that of an uncultured Swedish girl, "farmed out" when a tot to a Minnesota farmer, her youth and play days submerged in the bitter monotony of poverty and drudgery, her budding womanhood a bait for the passions of the farm-hands. Literally beaten to earth, her pride of race asserts itself, and she essays the long journey east to join her father, captain of an East river barge. Tired in mind and body, the rest aboard the barge, the plentiful food, the clean salt air, work miracles for the girl, when romance creeps into her life as she and her father rescue a shipwrecked sailor, whose ready Irish wit and rough courtesy open new vistas to the love-hungry girl. George Marion, in his original stage role in "Anna Christie," is the father; Charles Bickford of "Dynamite" fame the sailor who brings joy to the girl despite herself, and Marie Dressler has the role of her life as Marthy, a dissolute old wharf rat. Added attractions include "Belle of the Night," a racy revuette of Albany night boat doings; Mickey Mouse in "Plane Crazy," a new idea in song-sketches, "Pining Pioneers," and the latest Paramount sound news. "Anna Christie" and the companion program remain through tomorrow.

Palace Theatre

Gassed, coughing, a veritable wreck after the war, Eddie Williams shot the man he thought his wife loved. That put him on trial for his life, and gives opportunity for the marvelous plot of "Blaze o' Glory," the great picture which is now at the Palace theatre, and in which Eddie Dowling and Betty Compson are starred.

Here is a tale that starts on the stage of a great music hall. The melodies are swift, sweet and vivacious. The dance goes on merrily. Twinkling feet and flashing limbs join the general symphony of gaiety. Then comes the dread note of war. The music blares to a crescendo. We hear the tramp of grim legions. Great boats fill with their human freight, swing away from the piers and slip quietly across the ocean to a land of war. There are loud alarms and fear and hatred and the roar of great guns.

From one life into another the picture swings. Gone are the gaiety and bright lights of Broadway. Here in their place we have mud and smells and the general horror of trench life. Here also, however, we have fun and song, for the hero of this story brought to France with him the divine gift of his voice. When others felt blue he sang, he cracked his jokes; he became one of the best-liked men in his outfit.

There is chivalry, too. We see an American sharpshooter on Christmas morning refusing to shoot a German who had crawled out to get a bit of Christmas greenery to make the day pleasanter. We find that, even in war, the little common decencies of life are not entirely wiped out. Then, just as we are beginning to believe that war is not such a great beast after all, there comes the Christmas day attack. Great clouds of gas belch over the American lines. A wounded German falls headlong into the sharpshooter's shell hole. It is the same man who a short time before had risked his life for that bit of Christmas greenery, and the same man who later was to play such a vital part in the fortunes of the hero of this thrilling story.

Wednesday brings to the Palace theatre another of its famous double feature programs. For the present all we need to do is say that the new pictures will be "Murder Will Out" and "They Learned About Women," with Van & Schenk in their first feature picture.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Eastern Machine Screw Corporation, New Haven

The Eastern Machine Screw corporation was organized in 1910 for the manufacture of screw machine products, using machines designed by William H. Gates, formerly of Norwich. Mr. Gates was prominent in the fire arms industry for his inventions of many improvements in rifles, shot guns, revolvers and automatic pistols as well as machines for fire arm production.

The factory of the corporation was established in New Haven in 1911 and the automatic screw machines installed. The company gradually made a reputation for its ability to tool up and operate its machines at high rates of production which made attractive prices possible and at the same time were making good deliveries on a high quality product.

During the World war, valuable service was rendered to the allied governments and later to our own country in the manufacture of parts for detonating fuses, razor handles, turnbuckles and bolts of nickel steel for aeroplanes, etc., the total production running into millions of pieces, with very small percentage of rejections.

In 1915 Mr. Gates invented his self-opening die head or thread-cutting tool which made possible production of better quality screw threads at higher speeds.

The trade name of "H & G" was given to this die head, "H" standing for Joseph E. Hubinger, president; and "G" for William H. Gates, superintendent and vice president. The remarkable possibilities of this tool soon spread to other sections and it was not long before the company was making and selling these die heads.

They were gradually adopted by all of the prominent automobile manufacturers and other large producers of threaded parts. Sizes and styles of heads were developed for practically all machines on which threads are cut and the ability of this tool to cut screw threads of extreme accuracy on tough stocks at high speeds with freedom from threading trouble soon gave the H & G Die Head a world-wide reputation.

The present officers are: Benjamin P. Greene, president; (formerly of Norwich); H. A. L. Hall, first vice president; W. G. Redfield, second vice president; C. W. Bettcher, secretary and sales manager; T. W. Ryley, treasurer.

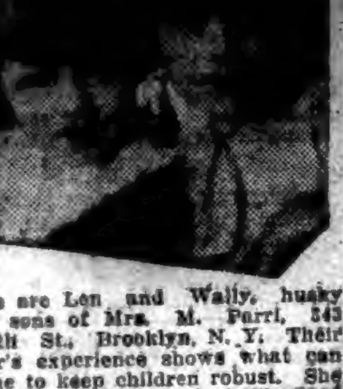
Wise Mother



Here are Len and Wally, husky young sons of Mrs. M. Parri, 343 Fortieth St., Brooklyn, N. Y. Their mother's experience shows what can be done to keep children robust. She says: "Since I found out how good California Fig Syrup is, I have kept some in the house. It always helps my boys. I give it for upsets or colds."

When your child's breath is bad; tongue is coated; or he is headachy, bilious, feverish, without appetite or energy, give him a little California Fig Syrup. See how its gentle cleansing helps a child. Appetite, digestion and assimilation improve. Stomach and bowels are toned and strengthened.

The genuine always bears the word California. So look for that when buying. Seven million bottles used a year proves its merit!

PREACHES LENTEN SERMON BEFORE LARGE CONGREGATION

Rev. Brian Murphy of the Passionist monastery at Union City, N. J., again preached a brilliant sermon at the Lenten vesper service Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church, before a large congregation. The preacher cited the cowardness of Pilate before whom Christ was tried and urged those in the audience not to follow his example, setting forth that even though Pilate adjudged Christ innocent he was going to chastise him.

The preacher asked his audience to consider the feeling of the heart of Christ after he hears himself rejected by his own people after all the good he had done. The Saviour's heart was filled with sorrow, he said, when He heard of the sentence of death. Let us consider our own conscience and see if we, too, are not as guilty as the Jews. Christ has done far more for us and we have been far more ungrateful.

There are those who are ashamed to be called Catholics, said the preacher, ashamed of their religion. They lack courage, they are moral cowards, followers of human respect. The preacher urged his listeners to have courage enough to admit and be proud that they are Catholics, making no apologies or excuses, and asked them to go out and spread the good moral of Christ. Christ crucified and all he represents appeals to you and asks you to be His followers, doing what is right and avoiding what is wrong, he said.

The musical service opened with the first stanza of the Stabat Mater in its original medieval form as a prelude to the brilliant setting of Giacomo Rossini, which followed. The Pro Peccatis with its poignant and mystic appeal was sung in excellent taste by Horace F. Corning, whose splendid baritone lent dignity and ideal to the musical content.

The Inflammatus, a soprano solo, accompanied by a delicate choral chant was finely suited to the artistic singing of Miss Sadie A. Driscoll, at all times equal to the demanding music, the high C, bane of sopranos, ringing clear above the chorus.

Panis Angelicus or "Bread of Angels" by Cesar Franck, followed the brilliant Rossini, being sung by Roderick F. Sullivan and chorus. Mr. Sullivan's fine tenor voice is admirably fitted to this inspiring composition and Sunday evening's performance was a noteworthy one.

Veni Creator by Barnby was sung in quartet form by John Kelly, William Shannon, Walter LaFontaine, and Henry J. LaFontaine. The chorus was at all times subdued and in sympathy with the soloists, later in the choral numbers singing with precision and good tone.

NEWTON CENTER PASTOR BEGINS SERIES OF Y. M. C. A.-CHURCH MEETINGS

"What is Man?" was the question propounded by Rev. Charles N. Arbuckle, D.D., of Newton Center, Mass., in his sermon Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church in opening the series of addresses this week for which he has been secured to come here by the Young Men's Christian association in co-operation with the churches. Rev. Dr. Arbuckle announced that he proposed to speak this week upon "Some of the Major Perplexities of Faith," for he said that knowledge has been crowding in so fast upon us that people seem to be a little bit confused by it all. Our boys and girls are in the firing line in the skirmish for truth.

We are a bit late with our question, "What is Man?" he said, for it was asked many years ago by one who asked, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" The answer was, "Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels." Out of the laboratory we get another answer; man is a little higher than the beasts; and from second Peter is this luminous phrase, "partakers of the divine nature."

We see that we are related to the creatures, but because of that we don't have to be nothing but a creature. There are differences. There is no self-consciousness among the animals, they are never concerned about the future. There is nothing like education among the beasts, it is only training. There is no moral sense and nothing that corresponds to worship among the beasts. A great gulf is fixed between us and them.

The same Creator who created us created also in us aspiration and hope, the sense of sin, the craving for protection and life immortal. There is something that makes me look up, declared the preacher. Something out in front that is drawing me. We love Him because He first loved us. It is our response. We are related to the creatures, but we are also sons of God. That is our immortal dignity. How man came to be is a scientific question, but why man came to be is a religious question. Science deals with the cause of my being, but religion deals with the reason for my being. Our interest is bestowed so much upon what we are made of that we are likely to forget what we are made for. Let us not be disturbed by the scientific explanation of how we came to be. If we are related to God we are going to share the fortunes of God. With such possibilities, can't we see what it is to sin, to sell ourselves too cheap and not to realize our high destiny?

The service Sunday evening, for which there was a congregation that filled the body of the church, was opened with a hymn by the congregation and Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt read a scripture selection. After an anthem by the church quartette, prayer was offered by Rev. Joseph Cooper of Trinity Methodist church, and Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. announced that the collection would be for the starving people of China. The quartette rendered an offertory anthem.

President Herbert B. Cary of the Y. M. C. A. expressed a welcome to the series of meetings on behalf of the association and acknowledged the co-operation of Park and the United Congregational churches, which had deferred their special joint Lenten service in order to join in this meeting with the other churches. President Cary announced that the meetings would be continued each evening at 7:45, through Friday, with Dr. Arbuckle as the speaker.

METHODIST CONFERENCE OPENING IN NEW LONDON

The 90th annual session of the New England Southern conference of the Methodist church opens today (Monday) in New London. One of the leading issues at New London according to an opinion expressed in Providence, is apt to be a raid on the board of home missions and the church extension for a larger percentage of return funds to this conference, as it is felt that there are many parishes nearby that are greatly in need of assistance and development. It is estimated that only about 30 per cent of the money turned into the board by the churches of this conference finds its way there, and there are some who believe that the board has been too lavish in its grants to new churches in the "wild and woolly West."

About the usual number of men will take the conference examinations beginning at 11 o'clock, Tuesday, and continuing through the day. The examining board will meet Tuesday afternoon at 4 to pass on their findings.

The cabinet, which includes Rev. Edward E. Wells of Providence, Rev. Earl E. Story, D. D., of New Bedford and Rev. Myron E. Genter of Norwich, superintendents of their respective districts, will have a meeting Tuesday evening to complete details for the opening of business sessions, Wednesday morning.

Lindberg by Officer Peter Driscoll Sunday evening after the automobile driven by Lindberg had been in collision with a car driven by Arthur Rolland of 383 West Main street. The accident happened in Main street, a short distance easterly from the Norwich Savings society corner. Lindberg will be in the city court. The damage to the automobile was inconsiderable.

Driving Without License.

When Howard Hayford, 18, of Auburn, R. I., turned a motorcycle around in Main street, he attracted the attention of Motor Policeman Clifford Crary, who found the young man did not have a driver's license with him. He paid $4 at police headquarters.

DAIRYMEN TO HEAR CATTLE BREEDING PROGRAM

Dairy cattle breeders and owners are to gather at the Buckingham Memorial here on Tuesday, at 10.30 a. m., to hear a program on breeding practices. The meeting will essentially be a one day breeding school in which heredity will take up a large portion of the discussion.

Some very good speakers on the subject of breeding have been obtained, one of whom is Theodore S. Gold of West Cornwall. He is president of the Connecticut Dairyman's association and the Connecticut Holstein Breeders' association. Mr. Gold is a graduate of Yale university and has taken advanced courses in "Genetics" there but now is farming at the old Gold homestead in West Cornwall, which has been in the family for five generations. On this farm is one of the best producing Holstein herds in the state. Mr. Gold will speak on "Results of a Well Planned Breeding Program In My Herd."

Prof. J. A. Simms of the extension service of the Connecticut Agriculture college will speak on "What Science Has Accomplished For the Cattle Breeder." Prof. Simms has made the subject of "Genetics" and "Heridity" as it pertains to cattle a study for the past three years, having taken advanced study in 1928 at the University of Minnesota. Prof. Simms is also the originator and leader in the Connecticut proven sire program which is taking so well among dairymen.

Prof. A. R. Merrill also of the extension service, is to speak on "The Practical Care and Management of the Dairy Herd Sire," which should be of interest to all dairymen who are endeavoring to build up a herd of good producing cows.

There will also be a question box out of which will come many interesting questions for discussion.

At noon lunch will be served by the Women's Relief corps of the Sedgwick post.

FIREMEN RESCUE CAT AND ANSWER FIRE CALLS

Four calls, one to rescue a cat from a telephone pole, two for brush and grass fires and one for burning soot in a chimney, were answered over the week end by the fire department. Saturday, at 4:45 o'clock, the department was called out by phone for a brush and grass fire on a lot in the rear of St. Mary's cemetery. The land is owned by St. Patrick's Church corporation. Chief Henry R. Taft, Squad A and Engine No. 2 responded.

At 1 p. m. Sunday, Squad A and Deputy Chief D. J. Brennan answered a telephone call for a brush fire in the rear of No. 45 Hedge avenue. Boys playing with matches caused the fire which was extinguished by water from pump cans. Dr. E. P. Brewer owns the land.

At 2:09 o'clock Sunday afternoon Squad A and Deputy Chief Brennan responded to a telephone alarm to rescue a cat from the top of a telephone pole. The cat was pushed off the pole into a blanket and landed unhurt. It is owned by William Blair.

Sunday night, at 10:45 o'clock, there was an oral alarm for a chimney fire at No. 46 Thames street, owned by Peter Kolenkiewicz and occupied by Antoni Hanasyn and family. The firemen found a quantity of soot burning in the base of the chimney and shoveled it out. Chief Taft, Deputy Chief Brennan, Engine No. 5 and Engine No. 6 responded. There was no damage.

Lippman and Son of Hartford, are ordered to pay the sum of $3,592.16 to Mrs. Lena Rabinovitch of this city, according to a judgment handed down Saturday by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court. Mrs. Rabinovitch claimed that she loaned the Lippmans $5,000 on or about Aug. 3, 1928, to be re-paid in one year, and of that amount only $1,500 had been paid her.

FUNERALS

George W. Beebe

With relatives and friends present, the funeral of George W. Beebe was held in Providence, Thursday, the services being conducted by Rev. William Couden, pastor of the First Universalist church, Providence. The body was brought here and burial was in Poquetanuck, a committal service being conducted at the grave. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Dennis J. Galvin

Saturday morning at 9:15, the funeral of Mary E. McCarthy, wife of Dennis J. Galvin, was held from her home, 115 Bishop street, Waterbury. At 10 o'clock, at St. Thomas' church, her son, Rev. Myles Paul Galvin, assistant pastor of St. Patrick's church, this city, was celebrant of the solemn mass of requiem, with Rev. John J. McCarthy of Waterbury, nephew of Mrs. Galvin, deacon; Rev. Peter J. Cuny of Waterbury, sub-deacon, and Rev. John J. Reilly of this city, master of ceremonies. Rev. Thomas J. Hanley of Waterbury was thurifier. Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero of Waterbury and Rev. Raymond G. LaFontaine of St. Thomas' seminary, Hartford, were acolytes. Seated in the sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May of Norwich; Rev. Francis J. Lally, Stamford; Rev. William Judge, rector of St. [illegible], Waterbury; Rev. Fathers William J. McGurk, George Carroll, James T. Butler, Peter J. Daly, Edward J. Brennan, Francis M. O'Shea, William P. Kilcoyne, Felix Keough, James J. Tyler, Charles W. Brennan, all of Waterbury; Rev. Fathers William Brewer, Stamford; Henry J. Coleman, New Haven; Edward L. Morrison, Colchester; Francis E. May, Mt. Carmel; Eugene Cryne, Middlebury; John J. Sullivan, West Hartford; James J. Tyler, Alfred F. Driscoll, Francis J. Sugrue and Robert J. Bowen, Bridgeport; William P. Botticelli, Torrington; Adelard A. Jalbert, Baltic; J. J. McCormick, New Haven; Joseph F. McCuen, Danbury; Walter D. Casey, Hartford; Arthur B. Sullivan, Norwich; John J. McGrath, Washington.

Upwards of 50 nuns of various orders throughout the state also attended the impressive service.

George Perreault was at the organ and at the offertory Miss M. J. Delaney sang "Pie Jesu"; as the recessional, the same singer gave "Mother Dear, O Pray for Me," the chimes being introduced effectively in the organ accompaniment.

The bearers were Joseph, Thomas and James McCarthy, nephews; Ambrose Guilfoyle, Judd Smith and Thomas Fleming.

There was in attendance a delegation of 20 members of White Cross council, Knights of Columbus, No. 13, from Norwich, of which council Rev. Father Galvin for a number of years served as chaplain and of which he is a member, also many individual friends and parishioners went to Waterbury from this city to express sympathy to the bereaved family and to be present at the funeral services.

Burial was in the old St. Joseph's cemetery, Waterbury, where Rev. Father John J. McCarthy read the committal prayers, Rev. William J. Kilcoyne of Plainville leading the [illegible] priests present in the chanting of Benedictus. There was a large assemblage of mourners at church and cemetery, including relatives and friends from various cities. The flowers were particularly choice and many family friends sent spiritual bouquets, affectionate pledges of the offering of the holy sacrifice of the mass in churches and at shrines and missions for the eternal repose of the soul of Mrs. Galvin.

The high regard in which she was held in the city where so many of the years of her life had been passed, in which she and her husband noted the 58th anniversary of their marriage a few weeks ago, and where their five sons and three daughters were born and reared, is indicated by the tribute of the Waterbury Evening Democrat, which concluded as follows:

Mrs. Galvin was a woman of many enviable attainments, an ideal wife and mother, a most sympathetic friend and neighbor. She had been a devout communicant of St. Thomas' church since the day of its dedication, a daily attendant upon its services until illness made her visits physically impossible. Her family has played a leading part in the various activities of the parish for the past 32 years or since the late Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Slocum organized it and Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, now of St. Mary's church, New London, became its first pastor. Rev. Myles P. Galvin was a member of the first graduating class of St. Thomas' parish school.

Having lived through the most eventful periods of development in the history of Waterbury, Mrs. Galvin was always a source of interesting information concerning the many changes the city has experienced of which she was a witness. She was by nature a home-loving woman and the happiness and success which her family have enjoyed were tributes to her efforts. Always charitable in opinions and deeds, she delighted in smoothing the way and making life a little brighter and happier for others. Her life was an exemplary one in every respect and her death will be widely mourned. She leaves scores of friends and acquaintances, whose love, respect and esteem she always had and which she held by virtue of her character, disposition and personality.

The undertaking firm of Corcoran & Lyons of Norwich had entire charge of the funeral arrangements.

Charles J. Abell.

The funeral of Charles Judson Abell, town clerk and treasurer of Lebanon, was held at his late home Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Rev. Hough of Connecticut Milk Producers' association of Hartford. The active bearers were F. Russell Abell, Harrison W. Abell, Richard P. Abell and Robert W. Abell, grandsons, all of Lebanon, E. LeRoy Robinson, Mystic, and Gardner F. Wood of Naugatuck. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and a profusion of beautiful floral tributes. She was fined $10 and costs, the fine being remitted. The costs amounted to $6. Miss Gallup was responsible for a fire Monday afternoon that burned over 200 acres in Scotland and Sprague and in which between 2,000 and 3,000 small pine trees owned by Henry Bowers of Scotland were destroyed. MERIDEN FIVE WINS BASKETBALL TROPHY IN PLAINFIELD TOURNEY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, March 30 — The St. Stanislaus Five of Meriden won the first annual Eastern Connecticut basketball tournament at the Plainfield Community house here last night when they defeated the Willimantic West Ends in the finals. Both Meriden and Willimantic had mowed down all opposition in coming through to the finals which were played shortly after midnight. The Meriden team showed a brilliant brand of basketball to swamp the Willimantic five 59 to 35.

In the final encounter the Willimantic team started strong and in the first two minutes of play scored several baskets but their advantage was shortlived as Meriden rallied and scored heavily. At the half the Meriden team was leading 29 to 15 and at the beginning of the second half shot far out in front and took a commanding 24 point lead which they held to the finish.

The Willimantic team took over the Maple Ends in the semi-final game 45 to 30 while the Meriden boys beat the Bristol Dixies 42 to 21.

Cups were awarded to the winners and runners-up by the Community association. The games were well conducted and the tournament was a great success with the crowd hanging on until the finals were over. The summaries:

NORWICH GOLF COURSE OPENED FOR PLAYING

On Saturday the course at the Norwich Golf club was opened to the members for play and a large number availed themselves of the opportunity of getting out for the first time this year. This is the earliest the course has ever been opened and is exceptionally good. The greens survived the winter well and are in fine shape, thanks to Greenskeeper William Skelly who has spent much time in getting them into condition.

The remodeled first green is well along and will be opened for play during the invitation tourney in July. In the meantime a temporary green will be used. The fairways are good and the green grass is beginning to show through the brown. Another week or two and the course will be almost in mid-season condition.

Massie B. Miller, pro at the club, will begin his duties on Tuesday.

JOHNNY KOP TO APPEAR ON NEW LONDON CARD

Johnny Kop, local hard-hitting lightweight, has signed for a six-round bout at New London on Thursday night. Kop is matched with Young Mandell of Fall River. Kop after a few more bouts is looking forward to a return match with Joe Barra, who took a close decision from him last Friday night. Kop fought a good fight the other night but is not getting enough work to keep him in shape. With a bout every two weeks oKp would not be forced to do so much intensive training and would be much stronger. For the last bout Kop trained so hard that he was slightly under 133, his best fighting weight.

LAUGHS AT NAME OF NEW POLISH TEAM

Mr. Sports Editor: Several days ago this writer noticed an article on the sport page of The Bulletin, giving the news—"The Polish Citizens club will be in the baseball field again this summer. This club will be known as the Polish Royals." What a name! This new club, it seems, has forgotten that their mother country, Poland, is a republic and not a monarchy. Well, they have a very good manager in John Olney, to give the devil his credit.

The statement, "will be in the baseball field again this summer" makes me laugh because this will be the first public appearance of this new 'belligerent' club. The Polish Belligerents, is a very good name, because Mike Panek, the late manager of the pioneer Polish American Citizens club, for personal reasons known to the writer and the members of the original Polish club, has engineered this new Royalist club.

The veteran of local diamonds, John Olney, even with the able assistance of Mike Panek, will have to "strut his stuff" to cop the Industrial league flag this summer. Well, here's wishing lots of good luck to the "Royalists."

Well, getting down to brass tacks, the original and the pioneer Polish American Citizens club, having their headquarters in the Pulaski hall, has an excellent team. This and the backing of the largest Polish club in Norwich will make a hard nut to crack for the Royalists, if ever the twain will meet on the diamond this season.

George Bizinski is the manager of the pioneer club and he has the entire support of the players and there is no doubt that, Mr. Sport Editor, we shall have some exciting games this summer. Well, here's hoping.

ALEXANDER E. POREDA,
The Polish American Citizens Club.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., March 30—Horatio Seymour Stanton, well known Westerly Indian runner left Westerly Sunday morning for Wakefield, R. I., by train. Susie Says

The mental musings of a girl playing her first round of golf.

Well, here I am going to start the first round of golf I ever played. Gee, look at that crowd of men around that first tee. I guess I better let them get started before I try it. I'm glad the boy friend is with me, I can blame a lot on to him.

Oh Gosh, here comes another foursome and the boy friend is beckoning me to drive. Let's see, do I want a niblick or a driver, I know it's one or the other. Yep, it's a driver because Anne has got one. Guess I better take a coupla practice swings first.

Wow, I nearly hit that man. I better apologize. Well, he's a nice man, he took it all right. Now it's my turn. Hope I can do as well. Guess I better make my alibi right now, I'll tell Anne it's the first time I ever had a golf club in my hand so everybody'll hear me.

Well, I got to do it. Gosh, it's just like going in swimming on a cold day and the only way is to plunge right in. Here goes. I'm going to hit that ball a mile. Oh, glory be, I missed it. I better laugh. Ha, Ha, Ha. I don't think that man's so nice. I just caught him laughing behind his hand.

I'll hit that darned thing or I'll go right back to the club. There, I did it, but there must be something the matter with that ball, it didn't go but ten yards. That's terrible, I don't see why they have such balls and I hit it as hard as I could.

Well, will you look at the ball. Of all the nice places around here and it had to stop in that hole. What'll I use now, a divot? No, no, that's not right, a divot is not a club. But just the same somebody told me you should take one when you played an iron shot.

Well, I got to do something. I wonder if anybody'll see me if I kick it out? There, it's out. I think that horrid man saw, for I swear I heard him laugh. Well, here goes. There, that was not so bad, that was a good long shot. This is quite a game. Now, if I hit them like that all the way around, I bet I'll do it in less than 200.

Oh, mercy me, can you imagine that the boy friend just told me I was using a niblick to putt with. How stupid of me. But what should I use? Caddy, I want to putt. So that's the club you use. Oh, yes, it says putter on it. There, I know I did that wrong, I wonder if I should have taken a divot?

Well, that's over. How many strokes did I take I wonder? Let's see. I missed the first one, hit the second, kicked one out of a hole, missed another, then I was down in the gully and then seven putts. Well, I'll call it a five, which is not so bad on a par four hole.

What, time for me to shoot again? All right, I'll knock this one straight down the fairway. Watch me! Well, can you imagine that? I hit the ball and the darned thing hit my shins and here it is back of me. In football we'd call that being thrown for a loss.

Well, I'll try again. DAMN. Excuse me, but that's the way I feel and I don't wonder people learn to swear on a golf course. There, I hit that one. Say, I wonder what those people on that tee I just left are waving for? Four? Say, that fellah was counting the times I missed that ball. I wish he'd mind his own business.

Gosh, how my feet hurt. I'm going to tell Anne I'll wait for her at the club. I'll quit and come down some other day when there's not so many around.

DO YOU REMEMBER THIS ONE?

(Another of a number of articles recalling baseball of other years.)

Probably the best exhibition game ever played here by a league team was that against the Norwich K. of C. nine by the St. Louis Cardinals on Sunday, May 22, 1921, at the Fairgrounds, when the major leaguers, although winning, 11 to 1, gave 4,000 fans that packed every available space in the park a grand afternoon's entertainment.

Rogers Hornsby, then at second base for the St. Louis bunch, was the star, getting four hits in five trips to the plate. McHenry collected the only home run.

The Kaceys were held to three hits by two Card pitchers while Hughie Canavan, pitching under the name that day, of Levine, was the target for 22 drives. Only two of the Cards of that day, Hornsby and Jess Haines, are now in the majors. Two of them, McHenry and Dilhoefer, have died.

SINGER-FERNANDEZ BOUT ONLY HIGH SPOT IN RATHER DRAB FISTIC WEEK

NEW YORK, March 30.—(AP)—On the theory, perhaps, that lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place, Al Singer, Bronx lightweight idol, again will take on the slugging Filipino, Ignacio Fernandez, in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

This return battle features a rather dull boxing week from Atlantic to Pacific.

Singer, then on a sensational winning streak, met Fernandez at the Garden last year and made the mistake of dropping his guard for an instant in the third round. Fernandes swung his right with all the speed and precision of a trip hammer and Singer went to the canvas where he was counted out. That is the only bad defeat on the Bronx lightweight's record and he would like to get even with the record book. The betting fraternity probably will be willing to lay odds of 2 to 1 or more that he succeeds.

Vince Dundee, of Baltimore, battles Ben Jeby, of New York, in a welterweight semi-final. Joey Medill, Chicago junior welterweight, takes on Hubert Gillis of Belgium in the opening ten.

The only other bout on the national list of particular interest is Tuffy Griffiths' ten round struggle with Jack Gagnon, Boston heavyweight, at Philadelphia tomorrow night.

Others include:

Monday, at Philadelphia, Nicardt Alis, Spain, vs. El Kadir, middleweights, 10, Fred Caldori, Philadelphia vs. Walter Cobb, Baltimore, heavyweights, 10; at Boston, Argonne A. A., Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo, Mich., vs. Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y. Negro, and Henry Perlick, Kalamazoo vs. Hy Diamond, Boston, all light weights, each 10.

Tuesday—At Oklahoma City, young Jack Dillon, Oklahoma City, vs. Humberto Curi, heavyweight, 10.

Wednesday—At Akron, on K. O Christner, Akron, vs. Joe Sekyra, Dayton, heavyweight, 10.

Thursday—At Denver, Eddie Mack, Denver, vs. Gaston Charles, France, and Eddie Murdock, Oklahoma City, vs. Jimmy Fodrich, Buffalo, all lightweights, each 10.

Friday—At San Francisco, Madison Dix, Bellingham, Wash., vs. Andy Diovdi, New York junior welterweights, 10.

Saturday—At Cincinnati, Mike Dundee, Los Angeles, vs. Lewis Carpenter, Toledo, featherweights, 6.

JONES HAS LOW PRACTICE ROUND FOR SOUTHEASTERN

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30.—(AP)—Bobby Jones served notice of his earnestness in the southeastern open golf tournament starting tomorrow by playing 69 in a practice round here today, one stroke above the course record.

He paired with Ed Dudley to beat Al Espinosa and Gene Sarazen three and two. Dudley had 76, Espinosa 77 and Sarazen 74.

Jones' card was just one stroke above the record for the course held by Ernest Ryall, professional at the club who is also entered in the two day $5,000 southeastern open golf tournament which starts here tomorrow.

The first 36 holes tomorrow will find 60 or more contestants trying their clubs over the hill course at the Country club where 72 represents par for the rolling layout. The championship rounds were to be fought over the Forrest Hills-Ricker course Tuesday.

Horton Smith, who beat Jones by one stroke at Savannah, played an exhibition match in Asheville, N. C., today with Denny Shute, young Columbus, O., sensation.

ACADEMY TO HAVE TWO PRACTICE SESSIONS DAILY

In an effort to make up for lost time occasioned by adverse weather during the past ten days, the Academy baseball squad will be put through two sessions a day, starting Tuesday of this week as the final preparation for the opening game of the season Saturday at the campus with the Richmond Radiators, one of the best teams in last year's Industrial league.

Coach Brigham, who is out of town for a few days, will return tomorrow to spend the rest of the spring vacation in whipping his Wildcats into shape. A light workout will be held today in charge of Captain Gibbs.

Although the first call was sounded almost a month ago, the Red and Whitesters have had only a few days of good weather and consequently are still somewhat not in the condition that should be theirs for the opener. The diamond, and especially the infield, at the campus, will be put into condition during the week in time for the Radiator invasion.

GREENE PERFORMS WELL W.-M. FRESHMEN

When the Williams and Mary college freshman nine of Williamsburg, Va., opened its season last week by defeating a New Jersey college, 8 to 2, Johnny Greene, former Academy luminary, was in the lineup. Johnny played in the outfield and, according to reports performed in impressive fashion. He was the only local boy to see action. The Frosh are coming north in about three weeks to play the Army plebes at West Point.

Mace Goldblatt, another local boy and former Academy baseball captain, is out of the varsity lineup with an injured hand.

SEA GULL BREAKS UP CLOSE GOLF MATCH

WILDWOOD, N. J., March 30—(AP)—Ted Austin, Wilwood high school golf champion, scored a "birdie" today on a par three hole but lost it, the deciding one of a match, without his opponent getting a hole in one.

Austin and Walter Green approached the final hole on the links with the match even. Green's shot fell 20 feet from the pin. Then Austin drove, the ball landing on the beach, an equal distance from the green, but it struck a parading sea gull and the bird, startled, picked up the ball and started seaward. The gull dropped it when beyond the surf.

J., 3 and 2, in an exhibition best ball match here this afternoon over the Asheville Country club course. Club officials announced that Rice will be retained as the "Pro" at the Asheville club.

EASTERN CONN. WELL REPRESENTED AT ASSUMPTION

The end of the 1929-30 season finds eastern Connecticut well represented on the Assumption college varsity basketball squad. Captain "Ray" Valade of Putnam, Conn., two-letter man, piloted the Blue and White squad through the strongest schedule ever undertaken. Johnny Bachand of Willimantic, "Rudy" Gaucher of Baltic, and "Ray" Mercier, of Plainfield, are the other members of Hop Riopel's squad from the Nutmeg state.

Mercier and Gaucher, two high school tossers, former class league stars, played their first year of varsity basketball and survived the numerous "cuts" throughout the season by brilliant flashes of basketball. Valade and Gaucher are guards, while Mercier and Bachand play the forward berths.

REDS START FOR HOME FROM TRAINING CAMP

ORLANDO, Fla., March 30.—(AP)—After a long, hard four hour drill, the Cincinnati Reds today began packing up preparatory to their departure northward tomorrow. A series of games with Southern Association teams will occupy the Reds until April 12 when they meet the Cleveland Indians at Cincinnati.

Manager Dag Howley said he was not worried over the predictions of a number of experts who place the Reds in sixth or seventh place at the finish.

"I am making no predictions myself but feel we have a good ball club and will make trouble for all our opponents," he said. "We will carry a punch and our pitching is going to be much stronger than I expected."

CAUSE FOR REJOICING!

EXCUSE our enthusiasm, but we see good cause for rejoicing as the Music Defense League nears the 2,000,000 membership mark after a few short weeks of effort.

And, if that doesn't prove that the American public wants Living Orchestras and Organists in the Theatre, what would?

There is nothing EXclusive about this swiftly-growing society. It's INclusive—inclusive of the intelligent citizenry of the New World. And that covers a lot of people, cynics to the contrary notwithstanding. It should, by the way, include YOU.

To become a member in good standing of the Music Defense League one needs only the discriminating taste to know that the art of music is worthy of preservation, and the good sense to want one's money's worth. There are no dues, no obligations.

Throughout the world friends of music are alive to the cultural menace of Canned Music in Theatres. Even the governments of England, France, Spain and Italy are considering measures to prevent this artistic debasement.

American music lovers have chosen the popular and democratic course—that of registering public demand through the Music Defense League.

What if theatrical interests are momentarily deaf to all considerations save profits gained through false economy? They will heed the voice of the public when that voice attains a sufficiently compelling volume. For the public must be served.

If you value the cultural influence of music . . . if you feel that the price you pay for theatrical entertainment entitles you to real music rendered by living musicians in the theatre, sign the coupon below and mail it.

TEXTILE MARKETS ACTIVE LAST WEEK WITH INDICATIONS MORE PROMISING

NEW YORK, March 30. — (AP) — While signs of business recovery during the past week continued rather unimpressive, the week brought to a close an unsatisfactory first quarter with confidence in the future vastly improved. A check to the recent decline in steel production, firmer commodity prices, a turn for the better in freight car loadings, and a buoyant stock market were widely accepted as auguring substantial improvement during the second quarter.

Gains in wholesale and retail trade continued gradual, but the situation was somewhat obscured by the return of winter weather in the central west, and the late date of Easter. Sentiment in the automobile industry was definitely more cheerful, although the low-priced car manufacturers continue to do an abnormally large share of the business.

F. W. Dodge's report of total building contracts let in the week ended March 1, was the most favorable in some time, showing an increase of 23 per cent over the preceding week, and of 28 per cent over the like week of 1929.

The situation in the petroleum industry continued to improve, crude production for the previous week declined more than 43,000 barrels, and a slight inroad upon the unwieldy stocks of gasoline in storage was made for the first time this year.

The wheat market was somewhat unsettled during the week, but held fairly steady. The textile markets were somewhat more active, with evidence of better business in most lines. Eastern shoe manufacturers were most active, and hide prices were fairly stable.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, March 30.—(AP)—"We must adjust our minds to what seems to be the fact, namely, that spring business, while it may show the usual seasonal upturn, will not equal last year's, or probably that of 1928, the Guaranty Trust Co., says in its monthly survey of business conditions. It adds: "But weighing these factors carefully, and viewing the situation as a whole, one may still reason that the current depression is temporary, and that sooner or later easy money and economic necessity will exert their influences."

FISHERMEN TRESPASS AND ONE IS PENALIZED $19

Several weeks ago Andrew Balaza, who is in charge of the property of Victor Bissonette, near Moose Meadow, found fishermen on Mr. Bissonette's pond. The trespassers had not received permission from the owner or occupant of the place and the matter was reported to the state police. Officer K. The first petition, signed by Henry Lamphere and 14 others, is asking the district to maintain the World War Memorial which was erected on Baptist hill, by popular subscription. The second, signed by Arthur Berry and 28 others, asks that the boundaries of Mystic fire district be extended from Prospect street along the New London road, to Ocean View avenue, along Ocean View avenue to Island avenue and from Burrows street north on Pequot avenue to Clift street. The third petition, which is causing a great deal of sputtering and talk, signed by W. A. Harrison and 114 others, asks that Mystic fire district consider taking the necessary steps for having the charter amended at the next session of the state legislature so that the district may legally undertake the collection of ashes and garbage. Countless residents who were hit hard in the recent tax re-assessment by being doubled and tripled in the values of their property, are not taking kindly to being taxed any more, as this would require a tax on all persons, whether they contribute ashes or garbage or not.

The annual festival of the states was held all last week in St. Petersburg, Fla. In all there were 75 floats, 17 by different states. Maine had the honor of leading, being No. 1; Connecticut was No. 3 and New Hampshire was No. 8 in the procession which was most impressive. The Mystic people, who have been in St. Petersburg, for several months, remained there to see this gorgeous spectacle, which is carried on every day and evening the entire week. Parades, pageants, musical entertainments and flower shows were some of the interesting items.

Friday night was the last night of play in the elimination bridge tournament given by West Mystic Parent-Teacher association, and held in the school house at West Mystic. The team playing was: Roscoe K. Burrows and Mrs. Albert Talbot against Henry Ritzie and Mrs. A. H. Wilson. Mr. Burrows and Mrs. Talbot won by a margin of 433, their score being 4,611. Their opponents' score was 4,178. Play was started at 8 o'clock and the long-drawn-out playing of seven rubbers was over at 1:15 Saturday morning. The fifth rubber was very close, Mr. Ritzie and Mrs. Wilson having a score of 869 and the other team having a score of 886. A beautiful silver mesh bag was presented Mrs. Talbot as first prize, and a leather case with brush, comb, etc., to Mr. Burrows. It is interesting to note that Mrs. Talbot is Mr. Burrows' daughter. The woman's second prize, a choice green vase, was given Mrs. Wilson, and a hand-tooled leather case, holding a bridge set, to Mr. Ritzie. While the tournament was going on, a public whist was being played, which ended at 10 o'clock, so that the attendants might be able to watch the last table. There were 24 tables of bridge and straight whist. First prizes in straight were won by Mrs. George McAslan and Herman Anderson. Consolations went to Mrs. Melissa Crandall and Albert Wilson. In bridge whist, high scores were made by Miss Marian Cooper and Charles Gremley. Second prizes went to Mrs. Lawrence Gremley and Carroll Bliven.

STATE COP MACKENZIE GETS SHEIK IN WILD PURSUIT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 30.—Richard E. McCary, 18, of 34 Denison avenue, a motorcycle driver of the sheik type, was arrested Saturday night by State Police Officer William MacKenzie, charged with reckless driving and will be in court Monday. McCary was riding on Main street shortly before 7 o'clock with a passenger on the tandem seat. McCary stopped at a gasoline station, corner of Church street, to procure a supply of gas and then started through Main street at a wild rate of speed for the cycle, with cut out opened, traveled at between 45 and 60 miles. Officer W. Elmer MacKenzie observed McCary and started in pursuit. The cycle continued to be operated regardless of the safety of its occupants or other drivers for it cut in and out of traffic. At Crystal avenue, the cycle was driven through that thoroughfare and McCary continued his wild ride, under the underpass of the railroad bridge and Winthrop street and across the Thames river highway bridge. Officer MacKenzie was hot in pursuit and finally overtook McCary. When arrested McCary was surly and abusive. To make his status more serious as a law violator, he had an obscene inscription displayed on the rear of the cycle, to say nothing of the wording appearing in lesser conspicuous places.

WILLIAM NORRIS KEPT GIRL IN HIS ROOM OVER NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 30.—William Norris, 28, formerly of Naugatuck, now employed as a candy maker by the Robert Frink company, Garfield avenue, was arrested Saturday on a technical charge of indecent assault and will be in the police court Monday. In default of a surety on his bond of $1500, Norris was held a prisoner at police headquarters.

Norris, who has been employed at the Garfield avenue plant but a comparatively short time, has been infatuated with a girl worker of 16 residing on Cutler street. Friday afternoon upon the conclusion of work, Norris induced the girl to remain a short time and then, other employes having left he persuaded the girl to go to his room which is located over the candy making establishment. There the girl remained throughout the night. When she did not return to her home during the early evening her mother requested the aid of the police in locating the girl, but the latter was not found. A short time before work was to be resumed at the factory Saturday morning, the girl left and went home. The mother, upon inquiring as to the cause of the girl's absence from home, was informed of her experience of the night before and the police were requested to act in the matter. Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray, after interviewing the girl, went to the factory and arrested Norris. The man was taken to police headquarters and locked up and during the afternoon he made a confession of his acts of the night before. According to the statement of Norris, the girl made no endeavor to leave the apartment, not making an outcry or even an effort to go home.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 30.—Jacob Hester, 57, a resident of Quaker Hill, where he had been employed several years as caretaker by Frank J. (Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, March 30.—Tony Menghi, 87 Smith street, was in the police court Saturday, charged on two counts of violation of the liquor law, actual sale and possession. He pleaded guilty to both counts and was fined $200 and costs on each. Menghi was arrested Friday when a raiding force went to his residence after Andrew Miller, 25 Ledyard street, had squealed on the former. A search of the residence revealed 15 cases of beer and a quantity of alcohol. When the officers entered the house, Menghi was making a fresh batch of beer. Miller was driving about the city late Thursday night and his driving attracted the attention of Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray. When Miller was found to be intoxicated he was arrested and in court Friday was fined $100 and costs, but $50 of the costs was ordered remitted. It was then that Miller made it known that he had purchased his liquor of Menghi.

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

OBITUARY

Louis S. Vergason

In failing health since before Christmas, Louis S. Vergason, 83, died Saturday morning at 6:20, following serious illness since Tuesday, March 18th, Mr. Vergason, whose death was caused by a complication of diseases, was unconscious for three days. He was devotedly cared for by Mrs. Frank Perry, a niece of his late wife, Mr. and Mrs. Perry having made their home with Mr. Vergason for the past two years. He was born January 8th, 1847 on Vergason avenue, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Vergason, and had always resided in Norwich Town. Fifty-eight years ago, he was united in marriage with Miss Julia Smith. She died about six years ago. They observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary about two years previous to her death.

Mr. Vergason all his life had been a painter and paper hanger, in business for himself, honest and upright in all his business dealings. A true type of a Christian man, he had the good will of the community, where he had lived and labored for so many years. Mr. Vergason was a member of the First Congregational church. He was the last of his family. His home for many years had been on Case street, formerly known as Tanner avenue.

MEETINGS TO BE HELD TO INSTRUCT CENSUS TAKERS ON THEIR DUTIES

Tentative appointments of those who are to take the population census have been made, according to Judge Otto B. Robinson of Willimantic, who is in charge of the district that includes New London, Windham and Middlesex counties, but definite announcement of the names is held up pending the receipt of some of the test schedules, all of which had to be sent to Washington for marking.

There will be 12 census takers required for the city of Norwich and six more to cover the town limits. New London will need 16 to do the work there and in the city of Willimantic ten are called for. The work begins Wednesday morning.

There is to be an instruction meeting for census takers in the court house in this city at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, at which Mr. Mull of Mystic, assistant to Judge Robinson in the census work, will be in charge Mr. Mull will also be in charge of a census takers' meeting which is to be held at the court house in New London this (Monday) afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Judge Robinson is to have charge of two meetings for census takers on Tuesday, going to Middletown for a meeting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and having another meeting at 8 o'clock in the evening in Willimantic.

Some Difficulty

Judge Robinson has found considerable difficulty in some towns in his district to secure persons capable and desirous of taking on the work. In some towns the only applicants for the job were tax collectors or assessors, these being ineligible for the work according to the census regulations. Where this condition has existed, the judge has found it necessary to go out into the town and round up somebody able and willing to do the work.

Fakirs in Killingly

It has come to Judge Robinson's attention that already there have been reports of fake census takers trying to operate in the town of Killingly. If they can be detected, it is needless to say that they will be brought before the court. It is believed they may be posing as census takers in order to get some information which might be of value in a business way.

56TH REGIMENT ASSOCIATION IS LEFT WITHOUT OFFICERS

The 56th Regiment, C. A. C. association, in which a number of World war veterans from this city are enrolled, is without officers or a convention city for this fall.

The death of the treasurer, Richard Burns, and the unexpected resignations of N. T. Miller, president, and Carl Weyand, secretary, all of Waterbury, leaves the organization without a head.

At the annual meeting in this city last year Waterbury was selected as the site for the fall reunion and officers were chosen from that city.

Mr. Miller gave up his post because his business has caused his removal to Hartford and Mr. Weyand, who recently was operated on, resigned because of ill health.

George J. Knox, Jr., of Bridgeport, two years ago chosen permanent secretary of the association, has received the resignations and Arside Chapdelaine, president of the Bridgeport unit, has called a meeting of unit heads from the different towns in the state for April 15 to take steps to provide temporary officers and select a city in which to hold the reunion. A dinner will follow, the delegations being guests of the Bridgeport unit.

The association is made up of members of Connecticut's war time artillery with overseas service.

Judge Allyn L. Brown took the papers and reserved decision in the superior court at New London Friday afternoon following arguments over the naming of Alby G. Cote and William Bouchard as co-defendants in the civil suit of Joseph W. Wellington, administrator against Ovila LeClair and others.

Attorney J. James Floyd, representing the plaintiff, argued that Bouchard and Cote were liable with LeClair in the action and Attorney Thomas N. Shields contended that they were free from any liability.

The suit was brought to recover damages for alleged damage to a farm house which was leased by LeClair who, the plaintiff claims, was an agent for Bouchard and Cote.

The Polish-American Citizens' club held its regular monthly meeting last week in the club rooms at Pulaski hall, with the president, Anthony Grzymkowski, presiding. The report of Treasurer Peter Tylenda, showing a good balance, was warmly applauded and seven new members were initiated.

Plans were formulated for the purpose of acquiring a suitable piece of land and converting it into a private park for the use of the members for outings and picnics. A committee was appointed to look over several parcels and a good report is expected to be made at the next meeting.

The baseball committee made a very satisfactory report and, because of the team's excellent players, an exciting season is anticipated. George Bizinski is manager.

After the meeting the members retired to their club room for a social hour.

HEARING CONTINUED IN CASE OF LEO LABBY

Leo Labby of Taftville was presented before Justice of the Peace Walter F. Drew in justice court at Lisbon Saturday afternoon, on a charge of manslaughter. Trial of the case was continued until Saturday, April 5th, pending a finding by Coroner Edward G. McKay, who is investigating the automobile accident which resulted in Labby's arrest.

Labby was the driver of a machine that figured in a fatal crash at the underpass on the Newent road, Lisbon, in February, resulting in the death of Raymond Bernard, 16, of North Grosvenordale.
